The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS

Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year	$5 00
" " 6 months	2 50
" " 1 "	45
Daily only, one year	3 00
" " 4 months	1 00
Sunday, one year	2 00
Weekly Press, one year	1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.

Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

THE NEW NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana — FARM LANDS

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. — LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. — Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands, New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetes Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raizers' paradise. — Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

The Farmers' Tribune

THE Best Newspaper.
THE Best Agricultural Paper
THE Best Editorials.

THE BEST MISCELLANEOUS READING.
THE BEST SKETCHE OF TRAVEL.
THE BEST ESSAYS AND SERMONS.

Should be read in every home in the Northwest.

LIBERAL PREMIUMS.

Each subscriber who pays arrearges and one year in advance, or each new subscriber who sends one dollar for one year's subscription between Feb. 15th and May 1st, 1893, will receive as a premium their choice of either

No. 1—12 Packages Vegetable Seed.
No. 2—12 Packages Flower Seeds.
No. 3—25 Strawberry Plants.
No. 4—1 Lb. Farmers' Tribune Pedigreed Seed corn.

Remember, $1.00 for the Farmers' Tribune one year, with choice of either of above premiums. Or the

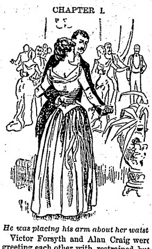
POLK COUNTY JOURNAL
ONE YEAR
AND EITHER OF THE ABOVE PREMIUMS,
For $2.00.

Address
THE JOURNAL,
Crookston, Minn.

Beautiful Miss Armadale.

By Mrs. W. H. PALMER.

CHAPTER I.



He was placing his arm about her waist

Victor Forsyth and Alan Craig were greeting each other with restrained but unmistakable satisfaction on the platform of the little station at Indian Beach.

"Hello, old man!"

"How are you, Craig?"

"First rate. John will take your traps. I suppose you'd rather walk—to stretch your legs?"

"By all means."

The traveler handed his well worn valise, his overcoat, checks, umbrella and cane to the servant, and the two young men started onward at a swinging pace.

It was a late August day—warm and still. Just as they left the station steps a village cart containing a couple of ladies came whirling along the sandy road. The horse wore a gold plated harness, and the ladies' toilets gave an impression of elegance which was shared by even the slim, straight whip decorated with a narrow streamer of pale blue ribbon. The occupants of the cart bowed graciously to Craig in spite of their apparent haste to reach the station. The young man lifted his straw hat, and his friend of course performed the same ceremony.

"Who are they?" he asked as one of the two alighted and entered the telegraph office.

"Lucille Eliot and her friend," was the answer.

"Mighty good looking girls," was the careless remark of Forsyth as he and his host struck across the sandy highway toward the beach, against which the summer sea broke in slow, caressing ripples.

"Yes," was the thoughtful rejoinder; "they seem between them to unite most of the attractions of womankind. One or the other might suit even you, Forsyth—unless," with a quick glance, "you have left your heart in Germany with some of those placid frauleins."

"No," said Forsyth in an indifferent way. "I've seen very little of ladies' society these past three years."

He lifted his hat as he spoke and faced the cool salt air and the shining sea with a tired traveler's weary satisfaction.

"You never were oversentimental about girls," laughed Craig, "even in our sophomore days. I doubt if you've ever been genuinely in love."

"No, and I never shall be—but once—and the time hasn't come yet," was the rejoinder.

The two young men were near the same height and weight, but had no other point of resemblance. Victor Forsyth was dark, intellectual, refined looking. He had gray eyes, never intended—though they were handsome eyes—for indiscriminate service in lovemaking. He wore his full dark beard in German fashion, and the white hand with which he chanced to stroke it as he gazed off over the shining sea was a hand for gesture, for persuasion or command—a hand which had soul in its nervous lines.

Craig was handsomer in a more commonplace way. His older sisters had dubbed him a "girl runner" at fifteen. He was the "masher" par excellence of his college class. At twenty-five he was still so fascinating with his elegant figure, his large blue eyes and exquisite golden mustache that his pert little Cousin Clare had declared only that morning that any girl who married Alan might expect to share him with womankind in general, adding that for her part she believed in monopoly in the marriage contract. All of which meant that Clare in her way was also in love with her cousin.

Craig and Forsyth walked slowly along the beach. They had been great chums, and they did not dream that the three years of separation which had followed their graduation from college had brought any changes which could affect their friendship. Nothing indeed could do that unless it was a love affair. It was perhaps the consciousness of this which caused Craig's abrupt question concerning the state of Forsyth's affections.

"This is a sort of lotos land, Alan," was the newcomer's remark presently. "'Blank ocean and mere sky'—that is what I've been longing for. I am wearied out with people and things. How I shall enjoy this emptiness—with you!"

A quizzical smile crossed Craig's face.

"Well, certainly we are not crowded here at the beach. But I suspect you'll have to admit a good deal besides 'blank ocean and mere sky' into your life during the next month or so—duck shooting, for instance."

"Have you a houseful of company?" Forsyth inquired, with a sort of dismay.

"Well, my married sisters' friends keep coming and going, and my Cousin Clare—you remember her?—she is the Miss Craig now, and a more terrible child at eighteen than she was at fifteen. But the worst of it is, Victor," added Alan, with sudden seriousness, "you and I are the only men in the family, and we can't expect much time off duty."

"Then society has even invaded the lonely strip of coast?" was the mournful comment.

"Bless me, man, how else came the railroad and telegraph, and the villas, and the lawns and—Lucille Eliot and her friend!"

"Yes, I might have known."

"But it is good society. Comfort yourself with that. Miss Eliot is beautiful, rich, rather serious in style. And her friend, Hope Armadale"——

"Does language fail to describe her?" asked Forsyth with quiet irony as Craig paused abruptly in his description.

"Yes, it does—that is, any language I can command. She is very fascinating."

"Ah, so? Alan Craig's hour has struck then?"

"You and I won't joke on the subject, Victor. I—I—don't think I've a ghost of a chance with Miss Armadale. Every man at the beach is more or less in love with her."

"And she?"

"Wait until you see her. She is to dine with us this evening."

"A formal dinner?" sighed Forsyth.

"Got up in your honor, my philosopher. But here is Craig cottage," turning toward the spacious Queen Anne villa that stood in dull red outlines against the gray sky, with clumps of blue hydrangeas massed in the center of the smooth green lawn. "It is scarcely five o'clock," he added, "and I propose to smuggle you into your quarters and leave you alone until seven."

"Thanks," said Forsyth, adding, "I little knew into what a vortex I was plunging. It is fortunate that I have a dress suit."

"The 'vortex' will do you good," was the reply. "In a month those two significant lines between your eyebrows will have disappeared. No, no, Victor; it is too soon for us to begin to grow old."

Forsyth found himself established in a chamber overlooking the sea, with dressing room attached. His cases had been opened and toilet articles arranged, his steamer trunk unpacked, the contents placed in the wardrobe with soothing dexterity by an accomplished valet, and an hour remained to him before he must dress.

He had not taken this wearisome journey for the sake of studying dinner cards and doing the agreeable to his next neighbor. He felt bored in advance, and spent the time wondering how he could contrive to cut short his visit. And as he sat by the open window listening to the beat of the waves against the rocks he could hear from time to time in the intervening silence the thud of a tennis racket, a succession of rapid soprano exclamations and baritone protests, and finally the laughter of the chorus.

"For heaven's sake," he muttered, "is this same sort of thing going on still? Has Alan kept at it steadily for the three past years?"

By and by silence fell. The tennis players had dispersed. It was half an hour before dinner.

Promptly at seven Craig tapped at his friend's door, and they went together through the winding corridors, down the broad stairs. The fading summer daylight mingled with the soft glow of shaded lamps, and the damp salt air made the scent of burning pine knots grateful.

"What are you going to do with me?" Forsyth asked.

"You will see. My sister is only waiting our appearance to give the signal for dinner."

Mrs. Macy, a handsome blond, like her brother Alan, held out a cordial hand sparkling with costly rings.

"Welcome home and to Craig cottage, Mr. Forsyth."

"How do? I shall examine you later," from Clare Craig, extending one finger tip as she glanced with big black eyes over her bare shoulders and returned to her companion's story.

"Miss Eliot, permit me—Mr. Forsyth."

Forsyth found himself bowing silently for the third time, with the oppressive sense of the necessity of pulling himself together and doing the agreeable.

Miss Eliot ceased moving her fan. She wore a contented smile, as though life on the whole was a very pleasant affair, while in her large blue eyes was a latent wonder as to whether there might not be in existence some possibilities not compassed by dinners and drives and sails and calls.

The dinner signal was given, and Forsyth and Miss Eliot were drifting to their places among the sixteen others who assembled around the table with the centerpiece of ferns, the branching silver candlesticks, the thin stemmed glasses, and over all the becoming rose colored light.

Of course, as the soup in the royal Worcester plates and the ices in the cut glass cups came and went, they talked about Indian Beach, and then about Berlin, about undertows and thronerooms, all in the subdued way of people who are bound to keep up this sort of thing, as the resigned dog keeps up the tread upon the platform which is attached to the churn.

Suddenly—Forsyth had really become a little interested in his conversation, Miss Eliot was so calm, so unaffected, so intelligent—suddenly, therefore, warming somewhat in his own talk, he sat upright and glanced, as he was speaking, down the table. Craig sat at the end, and on his left was a lady upon whom Victor Forsyth's intense eyes rested for a moment—just a moment, from which his whole after life bore the impression, as flesh bears a scar. The lady was leaning forward speaking to some one opposite. Being on the same side with Forsyth, it was her side face that he saw. She had the low Greek brow, but no straight Greek line from eyes to chin had ever the seduction that lurked in this slight inward curving profile, the delicate, spirited nostrils, the babyish mouth, the protruding chin, the swelling throat, the bare shoulders. Her dress was of the simplest—soft creamy silk gathered about her form as if to merely drape it. She wore no jewels or ornaments; her dark brown hair was twisted to conform to the shape of her head, a fringy ring or two straying upon her forehead, curling against the white nape of her neck.

As she ceased speaking she moved backward out of range of Forsyth's fascinating eyes. He recovered himself, as if a mesmeric influence had suddenly been removed.

"The young lady who was driving with you this afternoon—is at the table, I think," he stammered.

"Miss Armadale—yes, she is here. She is my guest this summer," returned Miss Eliot with calm surprise.

"True. Mr. Craig mentioned your names. I had just come in by the train as you drove to the station," persisted Forsyth.

"I know. We were forewarned of your arrival, of course, on account of this dinner."

"Craig and I are old friends," said Forsyth vaguely.

If Miss Eliot had been very brilliant herself she would have wondered perhaps that Victor Forsyth, of whom she had heard so much, did not appear more brilliant. She was rather relieved at his quiet way. She had already said to herself: "He is a very nice fellow. No one would suspect he was worth half a million. Now," she added mentally, "it will be a pity if he, too, is going daft over Hope Armadale. She has destroyed Alan's peace of mind, and that is enough, though he is such a flirt."

The dinner went on; Forsyth had no longer but one idea. It was to gain another look at the enchanting face that had appeared and disappeared. Furtive, almost feverish, he watched the end of the table. He could see that Craig had eyes and thoughts only for the lady beside him. At times a moody look came over his handsome face which Forsyth never remembered to have seen there before. But Miss Armadale did not come fairly within range again.

When they rose from the table Forsyth had but one motive. It was to get presented to Miss Armadale. For that reason he devoted himself to Lucille Eliot as the most likely means of accomplishing his purpose. But Craig and Miss Armadale had disappeared from the drawing room. Forsyth thought the figure in the long white cloak which passed and repassed the windows on Craig's arm was she, but he had no excuse for joining them.

Presently there was a strong touch on the keyboard of the piano, gliding into a measured waltz. The servants were rolling up the long rugs that covered the hardwood floors, and setting the chairs against the wall. Some one was inviting Miss Eliot to waltz. She excused herself to Forsyth, and he remained standing watching the door. Two or three couples were moving to slow waltz time up and down the floor. Forsyth's attention was caught by some one clapping their hands together smartly and calling out in a peremptory way, "Faster!"

It was Hope Armadale. She and Craig had entered by a side door, and stood together at the extreme end of the long room. She had a bunch of blue violets in her bosom, which Forsyth was sure she had not worn at dinner. Had she just accepted them from Craig? Was he her lover? He was placing his arm about her waist. Forsyth had never before seen "poetry" in a woman's motion. His senses swam as Hope Armadale came flying past him.

"For pity's sake, Mr. Victor Forsyth, have you left your manners in Germany? Don't you see there aren't dancing men enough to go round?" It was Clare Craig in blue wrap and silver bangles, who had come up to him unperceived.

"But, Miss Clare—I don't waltz."

"Ridiculous. Come!" She seized his hand. "Hold me tighter. You are a great deal too tall for me."

"No matter. We are getting on all right."

"Of course we are."

"And—when you are through with me, won't you introduce me to the tallest lady in the room?"

"The tallest lady, Hope Armadale?"

"Yes."

"Of course I will, just to tease Alan."

"Is"—Forsyth's heartbeats almost choked him—"is Alan engaged to Miss Armadale?"

"He'd like to be."

Forsyth could have hugged the elfish Clare for the comfort of her saucy words.

"Come," she said, suddenly stopping midway in a revolution, disengaging herself and catching her small hands around her partner's arm. "Alan has gone for her cloak or something. Now is your chance. Mr. Forsyth wants to waltz with you, Hope, because you're tall," she went on, all in a breath. "I don't show him off enough," she was saying. Then her hands were unclasped, and she was gone.

Forsyth was murmuring something about "pleasure." He had partial control of his words, none whatever of his eyes, which looked exaltingly into Hope Armadale's!

"We tall people can sympathize with each other," she said.

"If height is—a bond of sympathy, blessed be my many inches," laughed Forsyth. "Will you give me one turn?"

"Mr. Craig has just gone for the carriage. We promised Mrs. Eliot to come home early."

"One turn," repeated Forsyth between entreaty and command.

Miss Armadale rose, half undecided, but still she rose. He held her in his arms. They caught the time, which the musician quickened when he saw that Miss Armadale was dancing again. Forsyth's protest to Clare was an affectation. He waltzed superbly. The pair moved in swift smooth circles, as though by a single will. Forsyth knew this—knew that the will they moved by was his. He breathed the odor of the blue violets in Hope Armadale's bosom, and it suffocated him. He was sure Craig had placed the flowers there. He could almost have snatched them away and scattered them underfoot.

They were the last left dancing.

"We must stop," Miss Armadale said. He obeyed her almost abruptly. They were face to face with Miss Eliot and Alan Craig. Miss Eliot had her wraps about her. She looked a little disturbed.

"You are waiting for me," said Miss Armadale penitently.

"You know that mamma is ill and alone with the servants."

"What's that—when one is having a good time!" cried Clare Craig mockingly.

"Clare!" said Alan gravely.

"Oh, I'm speaking for people in general—not for myself. When I speak for myself it's as good as a sermon," said the incorrigible girl.

"Let's have a cigar, Victor," said Alan Craig when the last guest had gone and the servants were putting out the lights.

They went into the library together. A pale, late moon looked in through the tall stained window, and they heard the rush of the tide without.

"How did you come to dance with Hope Armadale?" Craig asked abruptly at the end of several minutes of silence, in which both felt that something was brewing. His words had a hard, threatening sound.

Forsyth hesitated before he said stubbornly, "I suppose because I was determined to do it." And he added with a sneer, "Is Miss Armadale private property?"

Craig's hand was clinched as it rested on the arm of his chair.

"Let her alone, Victor," he said betwen his teeth, "if you care for my friendship."

Forsyth got up haughtily.

"Have you a claim on Miss Armadale? Yes or no?" he said angrily.

Alan sprang to his feet also. Then his expression changed. He was an even tempered fellow on the whole.

"We'll not quarrel tonight, Victor; it takes two to quarrel," he said. "I trust we shall never quarrel about a woman. But—we used to be confidential of old. I am ready to keep up the habit. And so—I am going to tell you that about all I care for in the world is to win Hope Armadale."

Forsyth winced.

"I wish you had not told me."

"I've flirted with lots of girls, as you know," Craig went on. "I've fancied myself in love several times, and have discovered that I was mistaken. But now I tell you frankly I am in for it. If I can't win Hope Armadale I shall—go to the dogs. I am a different fellow since I've known her. I've thought, you know, that I was irresistible!" with a short, nervous laugh. "Well, now I've no pride left—as you may judge from what I'm saying. I have just one desire, one determination, and that is to make myself necessary to that girl."

Forsyth's face was stern and unsympathetic.

"I suppose I ought to feel honored by your confidence, Craig; but, to tell the truth, there are some sentiments which men had better keep to themselves."

The two were standing. The cold moonlight streamed through the stained window into the dimly lighted room. Their faces looked fierce and ghostly in the wan light.

"Do you mean that we are to be rivals?" asked Craig slowly.

"You have no reason to fear a bookworm like me," equivocated Forsyth contemptuously. "And besides, since you have set the example of confidence, I will tell you that my investments have failed; that I am no longer a rich man"——

A gleam of triumph crossed Craig's handsome face.

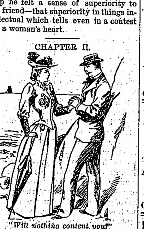
"She has got to marry a man with money—she has none," he said.

"All right, then," retorted Forsyth fiercely; "she can choose between us." And he lighted his candle by the one burning on the table. "Come," he said, "let us give up the struggle for tonight, and tomorrow—when I patch up some excuse for taking myself out of your house, and when afterward it is found that I have not left the beach after all, you will understand that it is best to let my reasons stand unchallenged."

"One word more," said Craig. "Miss Armadale has as good as accepted me. I have no right really to tell this. But—tonight—on the piazza, after dinner, I said irrevocable words—to which she listened without dissent. If you—should—cut me out, Forsyth, you can have the satisfaction of knowing that in her heart she has already accepted me."

"Forewarned is forearmed," said Forsyth, moving to the door. And for the first time in their eight years of friendship he felt a sense of superiority to his friend—that superiority in things intellectual which tells even in a contest for a woman's heart.

CHAPTER II.



"Will nothing content you?"

The dull hour of the day at Indian Beach was that which followed luncheon. During this hour, on the day following the Craig dinner party, Miss Eliot and Miss Armadale, sitting behind the scalloped awnings of the piazza, saw Clare Craig in her short red skirt and broad brimmed hat, in which she suggested a gypsy at a masquerade, picking her way along the beach over which the rising tide from moment to moment spread higher and higher.

"Clare can't walk from her house to ours without trying to get a little excitement out of it," remarked Miss Eliot, whose knees were covered by some huge undertaking in Bolton cloth and Kensington stitch.

"It is a queer time to come. The tide will be up in half an hour, and she will

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Price | "Worth a Guinea a Box." | 25c.
BEECHAM'S PILLS
Dislodge Bile,
Stir up the Liver,
Cure Sick-Headache,
Female Ailments,
Remove Disease and Promote Good Health.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Famous the world over.
Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Scandia-American Bank,
C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.
Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.
DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED —RIVER HARD WHEAT.—
BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.
BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
Besides carrying a full and complete line of COFFINS, CASKETS AND BURIAL SUPPLIES.
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—
Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 105½ Broadway.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINNESOTA.

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts.
CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor,
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.
CALL IN.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
Commenced Business October, 1881.
PAID IN CAPITAL.........$100,000
SURPLUS......................15,500
Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. E. Chase, E. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE OFRECLOSURE SALE.

First publication April 6th, 1893.
Last publication May 18th, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly made and delivered by Pierre Lemieux and Philomine Lemieux, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of December, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 23d day of February, A. D. 1888, at 10.40 o'clock a. m., in book 34 of mortgages, on page 598, etc. Whereas default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest to-wit: $35.00 that became due June 22, 1889; $35.00 that became due December 22, 1889; $35.00 that became due June 22, 1890; $35.00 that became due December 22, 1890; $35.00 that became due June 22, 1891; $35.00 that became due December 22, 1891; $35.00 that became due June 22, 1892 and $35 00 that became due December 22, 1892, and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum to-wit: Thirteen hundred forty-two and seventeen hundredths ($1342.17) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of section thirteen (13) township one hundred fifty (150) range forty-five (45) containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situated and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public aution, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on the 22d day of May, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated March 30th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney For Mortgagee.
[51-7] N. G. 136.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication May 11, 1893]
[Last publication June 22, 1893]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Joseph Falardeau and Cizarie Falardeau his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 33 of mortgages, on page 416.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay certain installments of interest when due and the principal sum, $700, that became due December 31st, 1892.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to wit: Nine hundred eighty-eight and 40-100 ($988.40-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-eight (28), Township one hundred and fifty (150), Range forty-one (41), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 148)

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Cyprien Gosselin and Perpitus Gosselin his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 30th day of April, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of May, A. D. 1887, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 29 of mortgages, on page 420 to 422.

Whereas, default consists of the failure to pay the principal sum, $300, that became due April 30th, 1890.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred twenty-two and 58 100 ($322 58-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section seven (7), Township one hundred fifty-one (151), Range forty-two (42), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 149)

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.
Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

GREAT NORTHERN

Railway

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday.
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c@20c
Eggs, per dozen	12½c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	65c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	60.
1 Northern	57.

'Round Home.

The Crookston Belle—Kœppe's new cigar, is as fine as silk. Try it.

Wall paper from 5c. to $2.00 per roll at Schmidt's 2nd street. [4-6]

Do not miss the bargains at the NEW YORK STORE.

Get your job work done at the JOURNAL office. Latest styles, all of modern improvements.

The Great Northern will sell round trip tickets to Chicago on Mondays and Thursdays at $32.55.

L. L. Blood & Co's ready mixed paint a pure lead and oil paint at A. C. Schmidt 2nd street. [4-6]

George Crocker appeared in our city on Tuesday morning for a brief vist of business and pleasure combined.

Money to loan. Farm and city lots for sale. Please call at R. R. V. Loan and Investment Co., Opera Block, Crookston Minn.

Wall paper, paints, oils, glass room and picture moulding, largest assortment in the city. A. C. Schmidt, 2nd street. [4-6]

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county, Sano, sure cure for piles. I. O. O. F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [39-tf]

A. E. Flanders came down from Warren on Saturday last for a few days visit with old friends.

Before buy any paper, you will make no mistake by looking over my fine line of pressed papers, finest goods ever brought to the northwest, no trouble to show goods. A. C. Schmidt, 2nd street. [4-6]

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Alderman W. E. Walker is rejoicing in the arrival of a fine bouncing baby boy at his house. He says he has got to have a trainer for that filly whose arrival we noted a few weeks since.

If you are looking for a snap in farms call and look over that bargain that the Red River Land and investment Company offers in another column. A good improved farm all ready for business at about the bare cost of improvements is a snap not to picked up every day. For full particulars call on or address August George, Opera house block.

The more Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used the better it is liked. We know of no other remedy that always gives satisfaction. It is good when you first catch cold. It is good when your cough is seated and your lungs are sore. It is good in any kind of a cough. We have sold twenty-five dozen of it and every bottle has given satisfaction. Stedl man & Friedman, druggists, Minnesota Lake, Minn. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Druggist-Crookston, Minn.

Feed at oat meal mill.

Will Peterson made a trip to Ada last Saturday.

C. E. Rickett came up from St Paul last week.

A. J. Stoeser was over at Grafton on Monday.

John Cromb made a business trip to the twin cities last week.

R. S. Knudson was over from Grand Forks this week.

Postmaster Dawley is rusticating in the twin cities this week.

Attorney A. C. Wilkinson went to St Paul on a brief business visit last week.

Anton Erickson departed for the great world's fair last Saturday evening.

W. F. Bugg, who has been very ill from inflammation of the bowels, is reported to be better.

I. W. Webb was in the city on Saturday. Is up from St. Paul looking after the seeding operations on his Edna farm.

Dr. J. F. Torkelson, assistant manager of the Minneapolis Tidende, was in the city last week in the interest of his paper.

Feed at oat meal mill.

Tom Harris is the first man to report having finished seeding. He had his wheat, oats and barley all sowed before the rain.

John Wyatt talks of taking his family to England for an outing this summer. Expects to start about the 1st of July.

Schmidt, the painter, went north this week to look after work in our sister towns. Schmidt has work in every village along the line.

T. G. Thompson exercised his muscle setting out various and sundry shade trees last Saturday. He forgot it on Arbor Day.

With a county fair and a base-ball team to match, the cornet band should wake up and go to tooting, then things would boom in good shape.

P. M. Dauser, the photographer, was in the city last Friday. His photograph car is now at Ulen, and he reports having good trade when the sun shines.

The Great Northern road is doing a grand work in their yard putting on two or three feet of gravel. No more mud to bother them. A little gravel on our streets would be a fine thing.

H. B. Budd was up from Edna on Saturday. Says seeding was well commenced at the time the rain came on. He had his wheat nearly all sowed and many had from one-third to one-half completed.

JOURNAL readers who contemplate visiting the fair this summer would do well to write to Ira M. DeCamp, manager of hotel Hayes, corner of 64th st. and Lexington Ave. Chicago, Ills., for his prices. Ira will take care of oue people in good shape.

The Congregational and the Presbyterian churches have united for services for every night this week except on Saturday night. The first meeting on Sunday evening was well attended and very interesting. The meetings will be held in the Congregational church.

Wm. Erdmann is putting up the walls for Geo. Vine's new building rapidly—though hindered a good bit by the rain that caused a good deal of caving. It was also a delicate and difficult job to get the foundation walls underneath the Fortier block owing to the condition of the mortar in the wall of said block which was extremely soft, looking as though there was more sand than any other material in the days when that building was erected. When he gets the cellar walls completed it will be a very short job to complete the brickwork.

Speaking of a Crookston youngster the Ada Index says:—"A Mr. Wilcox, of Crookston, was in the city Monday looking after his seventeen year old son, who ran away from home the day before with two companions. Marshall McDonald received a telegram early that morning to keep watch for him, but was unable to locate the young man. While Mr. Wilcox was coming down from Crookston he came across the two other boys who claimed they were put off the train at Beltrami. They could give no account of young Wilcox's whereabouts and the father returned home without the runaway."

DR. PRICE'S
Cream Baking Powder.
The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

Feed at oat meal mill.

S. L. Collins is moving into his new house.

Such weather as Tuesday would soon see seeding completed.

Monday afternoon was bright and fair and the ground dried rapidly.

S. S. Simpson is up from Bellevue, Iowa, looking after his farming interests.

M. Mercil starts this evening for a six weeks trip to Canada. Intends to take in the World's Fair enroute.

S. L. Collins sold a lumber wagon to H. W. Cleveland on Wednesday and shipped it out to Mentor on Thursday.

L. M. Bergquist welcomed the arrival of a bouncing baby boy at his home at 3 o'clock Monday morning.

Will Hoch has sold out his interest in the restaurant to his partner Fred Moeckel and has hired out to work for John Bergquist at Kistenmacher's old place.

At and below cost, my big and well assorted line of Dry Goods, Clothing and Boots and Shoes.
NEW YORK STORE,
A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

Herman Helmich bought of S. L. Collins, one of the finest carriages we have seen in some days, and took it out to his farm on Tuesday. Collins handles none but the very finest goods made of the most durable material. If you want the best, see Collins.

The sneak thief who stole the fence from the base-ball park on the hill deserves a term behind the bars and would get it if we could get the evidence to convict. In every city there seems to be a set of human-vultures too lazy to work who live off of the labors of others. Such things give a city a bad name and they should be eliminated in some way.

The Helmich brothers brought into the city on Tuesday, two of the finest beeves we have seen in some time. They were fine square-built animals that cost no more to produce than they would, had they weighed one-half what they did. No one could see those handsome creatures without being fully impressed with the difference between thoroughbreds and scrubs for profit. Every butcher in town was crazy to get hold of them.

At 9 o'clock on Thursday evening the fire-bell gave warning that the destructive element had broken out again in our midst and the department made haste to reach the Crookston Steam Laundry where a fire was already making havoc in the drying room and engine room. The wind was blowing and the rain pouring at the time, and the streets very muddy making the work of the firemen extremely difficult and yet, for all that they succeeded in confining the fire to the space it occupied on their arrival and in short order had it extinguished, but not until the two rooms above mentioned were wrecked completely. The fire is supposed to have caught in the drying room. The engine was badly damaged by fire and the washing machinery by rusting. Messrs. Hertz and Roberts estimate their loss at $4000, with $1500 insurance. This is the second fire that Mr Roberts has passed through recently, his first being the Williams and Roberts fire last winter. Aside from other losses from this fire there were a large amount of clothing in the drying room which is a total loss and for which the boys feel responsible. It is a pretty severe loss for the boys but we trust that they will find a way to get to work again soon as the city could ill afford to spare this institution from its midst.

One day last week, the residence of Aaron Cooke, on section 9 in Fairfax, took fire in the roof of the kitchen from a chimney that was burning out. Mrs. Bartlett and her niece, Miss Lizzie Arnold, were about their usual household duties at the time the fire was discovered, and Mr. C., who is about 85 years old was in his own room adjoining. Hearing the unusual commotion, natural upon such occasions he came out to ascertain the cause thereof and catching up two pails standing convenient he ran to a well-house a few rods distant, hastily filled the pails and returning ran up a ladder to the kitchen roof as nimbly as a fireman of 25 or 30 years could do, and, by a judicious application of the contents of the pails he had the fire out before the men working in a field near by had been notified of the trouble and started to the rescue. When they arrived they found the fire all subdued in good shape and the old gentleman calmly resting in his easy chair as though putting out a fire on a roof was an ordinary every day amusement of his. This feat was more remarkable from the fact that owing to his extreme age it is very doubtful if he could climb the ladder alone on any ordinary occasion much less carry up the water as he did.

J. T. Knight was in from Red Lake Falls on Tuesday.

O. H. Lucken returned last week from a visit to Alexandria.

Choice family wines at the California wine house. (5-tf)

A big stock of paints, oils, glass, putty, sash and doors at T. H. Bjoin's hardware store.

Adolphus R. Gordon will cancel stamps in the Warren postoffice as soon as his commission arrives.

Mrs. E. M. Stanton returned last Saturday from Rhinelander, Wis., where she has been visiting for a few weeks.

You can get anything you want in the tinware line at T. H. Bjoin's opera house hardware store.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strand welcomed the arrival of a little baby girl at their residence on Friday of last week.

It strikes the JOURNAL that some of those back-yards could stand a leetle more pains—in fact it would puzzle a man without spectacles on to see where some have been raked up a little bit.

If you want a cook stove, get prices on the famous Charter Oak stove at T. H. Bjoin's. The best is always the cheapest.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

Andrew McCrea died at his residence in Spokane, on Monday, at the age of 62 years. Mr. McCrea represented this district in the state senate years ago when Ottertail county was a part of it. He lived at Perham, in that county, to which place his remains will be brought for interment beside his first wife.

Hertz & Roberts have their laundry delivery wagon running again all the same as though they had not burned out on Thursday evening. They have made arrangements at the Commercial house until they can get into a building elsewhere.

Rudy Burkhardt has rented the Cleveland house and will run the business alone for the future. Rudy says that if energy, perserverance and good hard work will do it, he is bound to make a success of the hotel business and he invites JOURNAL readers when in the city to try the new Cleveland house.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Ronald Kennedy died of consumption on Friday last and the remains were interred in Oakdale cemetery on Sunday. In digging the grave a coffin containing the body of an infant was found, another place selected and another body found. The next attempt was successful. No one seems to know how to account for the presence of the two bodies found.

Those cows that Helmich brought to the city on Tuesday were of such fine form that "a statuary could use them as a model"—as the Times would say.

Chief Gonyea commenced building his new house this week. Gates and Barret are doing the carpenter work.

The county board met on Tuesday

Ole Hanson went down to Ada on Saturday on revenue business. Ole is working with one eye on Grover and the other on his business.

Tom Harris took his house moving apparatus to Fertile on Tuesday where he has several houses and a hotel to move and also to raise the Fertile house for a new foundation.

Capt. Wagner was brought up from Fertile this week and placed in the hospital to await admission into the soldiers home. He is a victim of consumption and will probably not need a home on this earth very long.

Prof. Strawbridge: I am not jealous of any one who wants to come here and start an opposition school on their own resources, but I do not think it quite fair for the citizens to put $2500 into an institution of learning and turn it over to two strangers, when one-half, or a much less amount, added to our school will give them the same results—the same low prices and cheap board and the courses of instruction to meet the needs of the people. We are protectionists and believe in protecting home industries and believe in patronizing home institutions as well as home industries. Give us a little means to enable us to pay for the necessary expenses of larger school rooms and we guarantee a school in which the tuition will be within the reach of all and to compete with any school in the state. We have a school already established by our own money and effort and if the citizens will only contribute enough to pay the rent of the necessary buildings for school purposes and dormitory and boarding hall for one year we will broaden ours to a Normal school equal to the one proposed by Messrs. Christianson and Tuve, who agree to put in nothing to offset the $2500 asked for. As far as can be learned these gentlemen have had but little experience in running a school, and what guarantee have the people that they are capable of doing so?

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.
Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

Ed. George and P. J. Russell will deliver orations at Barnsville on Memorial Day. The Barnesville people have prepared an elaborate program and we can vouch for the orators that they are wool and a yard wide. The G. A. R. posts of Ada and Moorhead will assist in the exercises and a big turn-out is expected.

Base Ball Club.

The subject of organizing a baseball club has been agitated until finally the boys got together and organized one evening last week. We are told that it was decided to try to get a diamond upon the fair grounds for the simple reason that it is not safe to build upon the block they have occupied because some scalawag or other, continually steals the fencing. This is not a very good compliment to our city but it seems to be a stubborn fact nevertheless.

The following are the officers elected:

Manager, L. J. Columbus.
Captain, Harry Walker.
President, A. J. Fontaine; Secretary, George Raphael; Treasurer, A. P. Kirsch.
Finance Committee, F. Cleary, F. Williams and Jas. Montague.

Memorial Day.

Department Commander John Day Smith has issued General Orders No. 3, to the Posts in his department relating to Memorial Day services. He states that during the past year, 7000 Grand Army boys have pitched their tents beyond the silent river and urges the importance of observing the solemn ceremonies of the day, especially urging the comrades to discourage all games and frivolous amusements that would detract from the solemnity of the occasion.

T. H. Bjoin's Hardware Store.

Tom Bjoin has his stock of hardware arranged in his store in the Opera House block and is ready for business. He has a good chance to display his stock, as the store 25x100 feet and is filled from end to end and top to bottom. He has cook stoves and ranges till you can't rest—all sizes and prices. One side of the store is given up to tinware, which is neatly arranged. In the basement he has sash and doors, pumps, oils, etc. The stock is complete in every particular, and by selling close for cash Mr. Bjoin expects to do a fair share of the hardware business. He will devote most of his time to the business, and will have for an assistant August Morrow, who was formerly with Sylvester & Finseth.

Crookston Business College.

Arrangements will be made for a summer term of from six to ten weeks if a sufficient number of pupils can be secured. Bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, the common branches and penmanship will be taught, the special feature being penmanship; low rates. Prof. Knudson of Grand Forks College, or Prof. J. M. Latham of Decatur, (Ill.) Business University will assist me in conducting this special term. If you are interested please notify me as soon as convenient.

[5-7] BENJ. A. STRAWBRIDGE.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[4tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

Reciprocity Convention at St. Paul June 5th to 9th.

The Great Northern makes a rate of $8.77 for the round trip. See W. W. Fegan, agent, Crookston for further information regarding dates of sale and limit of tickets. (4-6)

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $32.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th. C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

The Weather

Since our last issue has been what you might call, various. About noon on Thursday, the 11th, a steady rain set in, continuing until Friday morning, which put a stop to seeding for the balance of the week in most places. On the sandy and rolling lands the delay was not so serious, the farmers being able to get to work again Saturday morning. The low lands did not show a perfect condition on Monday morning, which opened out cold, cloudy and raw, however most of the farmers went to work to do what they could. The streets in the city dried rapidly and were in good condition on Monday morning. The weather since the rain, has been threatening, with very little sunshine, high winds and cloudy weather prevailing for the most part. If no more rain falls this week will doubtless see the most of the wheat in the ground—or ought to at least, for wheat sown later than the 20th is not apt to fill well. At the time of the rain, from one-third to one-half the area to be sown to wheat was finished.

Farmers Institute.

Last week Postmaster Dawley received a letter from O. C. Gregg saying that, if the people of Crookston would furnish a good hall free of expense to the institute, he would make a date for a summer meeting. Mr. Dawley laid the matter before Mayor Stephens who at once instructed him to wire Mr. Gregg that the hall would be ready on any date he should name. Mr. Gregg replied naming July 7th and 8th. All those who were present at the last meeting held here will gladly welcome this opportunity to enjoy another event of the kind.

A Good Idea for Crookston.

The Congregational church and the Presbyterian church at Fergus Falls are taking steps looking to uniting in one union church. This is an excellent idea and could be followed in other towns to the benefit of the cause of Christianity. One good solid institution formed of those two denominations can do more good than two starving associations and there don't seem to be much more than denominational pride to prevent these unions becoming more general.

OPERA HOUSE
Hardware Store,
T. H. BJOIN, Prop.

SHELF AND HEAVY—
Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,
SASH AND DOORS.
In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and
—THE PRICES LOW.
Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.
T. H. BJOIN.

RED RIVER VALLEY
LOAN AND INVESTMENT
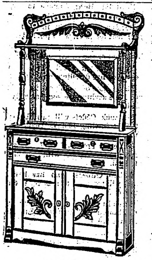
COMPANY.
MONEY TO LOAN
ON REAL ESTATE.
FARMS AND LANDS
For Sale in nearly all the Towns of Polk County.
CITY LOTS
In Crookston and Thief River Falls.
List your Lands and Lots with us and effect quick sales.
OFFICE IN OPERA HOUSE BLOCK.
A. G. GALLASCH, Pres.
J W. WHEELER, Vice Pres.
W. H. MATHEWS, 1st Vice Pres.
A. F. GEORGE, Sec.
O. H. LUCKEN, Treasurer.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1893. NO. 6



Crookston Furniture Co.

FURNITURE, CARPETS, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

$1.35.

Antique Oak Finish.

$19.50.

Solid Oak,
Large Glass,
Plush-lined Drawers.

8-ft. Oak Table,
42x42, only
$7.90.

WE ARE NOT DOING

Much Blowing

At this time of the year, and it is not bragging to say that

OUR MAMMOTH STOCK

was never more complete than this spring, and that you can find no greater bargains in the city than we are giving. There is an old saying to the effect that

"THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN CHEWING THE STRING."

This applied to the old-fashioned steamed Indian Pudding that was put in a bag and tied with a string, which string no doubt retained enough of the pudding to furnish a sufficient sample.

We don't claim to have a "string" on the public, but it is a fact that when a man once comes into our store and taades he always comes again. s the pudding was supposed to speak for itself, so our goods speak for themselves every time.

☞YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.
Governor	Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor	David M. Clough.
Secretary of State	F. P. Brown.
Attorney General	H. W. Childs.
Congressional.
Member of Congress, 7th Dist.	Haldor E. Boen,
Legislative.
Senator, 51st Sen. Dist	E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.	John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.
Judicial.
Associate Justices Supreme Court	Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District	Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court	Nils Muus.
County.
Auditor	C. U. Webster
Treasurer	J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds	John Amundson
Attorney	A. R. Holston
Sheriff	Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate	C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools	A. A. Lommen
Surveyor	O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r	W. H. Averill
Coroner	Henry Shepard
County Commissioners.
First District	John E. Oppegaard
Second District	Anton Linden
Third District	M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District	C. P. Demers
Fifth District	A. C. Rhinehart

There is nothing I have ever used for muscular rheumatism that gives me relief as Chamberlain's Pain Balm does. I have been using it for about two years—four bottles in all—as occasion required, and always keep a bottle of it in my home. I believe I know a good thing when I get hold of it, and Pain Balm is the best liniment I have ever met with. W. B. Denny, dairyman, New Lexington, Ohio. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Druggist,

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, city of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on May 10th, 1893, and terminating on May 10th, 1894, by the following person and at the following place, as stated in said application, to-wit: Gaarder and Sundet in the two story frame building on the east 20 feet of lots 11 and 12, block 8, Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council in the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, Minn., on Tuesday, the 13th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and the seal of said city this 5th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.)
E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place, as stated in said application, to-wit: N. Rapin; in the two story frame building on lot 5, block 1, original townsite city of Crookston.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, in the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 13th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 9th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.)
E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on May 10th, 1893, and terminating on May 10th, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place, as stated in said application, to-wit; Bergquist and Morberg in the one story frame building on lot 9, block 8, Fletcher & Houston's Addition to the city of Crookston.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, in the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 13th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 4th day of May A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.)
E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

DISTRICT COURT

Convened Last Monday with a Long Calendar of Cases to be Disposed of.

The Judge Charges the Grand Jury About Certain Wickedness Which Exists.

A Resume of the Work Accomplished up to the Time of Going to Press.

District court convened Monday morning. Hon. Frank Ives on the bench, the members of the bar and the necessary officers of the court being present. Promptly at 10 o'clock, at the request from his honor "You may open court, "sheriff" Bailiff Holt, whose presence and bearing has done honor to many a similar occasion, declared accordingly in the old "war" cry "hear ye, hear ye, this court is now open."

After calling the roll of grand jurors, three or four of whom were absent, they were discharged without instructions till 2 p. m. The petit jurors were summoned to appear on Wednesday, as the first two days are always taken up in preliminary business, motions, etc.

A preliminary call of the calendar was then had, and some motions were argued after which court adjourned till 2 p. m. There are 79 civil, and 10 criminal cases on the calendar. These, with the appealed cases to come on (at least 12 in number) and the crimnal cases likely to be brought up by the grand jury, will make a big grist to grind at this term.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Court called at 2 p. m. The roll of grand jurors was called and 19 of the 23 were present. After reading to them that portion of the statutes required by law, his honor gave them very explicit instructions and outlined to them their duty in such forcible language that, should they stand by their sworn duty as good citizens, vice and lawlessness will have to pack up and move to a more congenial clime. We hope that his fearless and most wholesome instructions will be conscienciously followed by the grand jury and the eyesores to law and order be removed.

After hearing several motions, court adjourned till 9 a. m. Tuesday. The following cases were disposed of: Chas. L. Hoff vs Bjerk Herstad, H. Steenerson for plaintiff, Montague & Bucklin for defendant; stricken from calendar.

Levi Myers vs A. D. Stephens, dismissed.

Henry Rodman and Edward L. Wichterman, Falardeau for plaintiff, Boughton and W. Watts for defendants. Motion for judgment, appeal by plaintiff; motion denied.

Daniel Scully vs Town of Gentilly; continued.

Walker Bros. vs T. O. Midboe; continued.

C. M. Sprague vs A. Nelson and Andrew Opheim; dismissed by plaintiff.

Geo. F. Carpenter vs Ole Hanson; continued and plaintiff allowed to amend complaint.

State of Minnesota vs Chambers Bros.; judgment by default.

State of Minnesota vs John Grythen; judgment by default.

Henry Nelson, an infant, by O. N. Lundberg, his next friend, vs Ole Nygaard, appeal case; continued by consent. The following criminal cases were also disposed of:

State of Minnesota vs W. M. Stewart petit larceny; dismissed.

State of Minnesota vs Gunder Bjorgo, selling intoxicating liquors without a license; dismissed.

State of Minnesota vs John Shannon; continued.

Elsie Stuhr vs Henry Oesterloh; continued. Levi Steenerson Myers vs Carrie Melland; continued.

On Monday morning E. D. Childs said to a Journal reporter: "We are sowing wheat at the rate of about 200 acres per day and expect this week will wind up our wheat sowing, with reasonably fair weather."

J. S. Nichols came up on Monday morning to enter upon his duties as grand juror.

P. LeMay came down from the east side on Monday. Reports seeding well along in his neighborhood.

Dept. auditor Cornelius has been out inspecting school lands this week and a part of last.

M. R. Brown met with a painful accident during the wind storm of last week. In attempting to shut a barn door his hand was caught by a hook and was severely lacerated. He was obliged to have a doctor sew it up a little and he will wear it in a sling awhile.

The early sowed wheat is all up and is stooling nicely under the influence of this cool weather.

J. W. Wheeler went up to Thief River Falls this week.

R. J. Montague took a trip to Duluth last week.

W. C. Kelso was down from Hallock this week.

Tim Donovan was over from the Forks on Sunday.

Rev. J. W. Smith went to Detroit this week to assist in the dedication of the Congregational church at that place.

TUESDAY.

In the case of John W. Burgess vs Northern Pacific railroad company; H. Steenerson for plaintiff, and Mr. Watson, of Fargo, for defendant. A motion for continuance was brought by defendant and granted by the court. The plaintiff claims damages against the railroad company for personal injury received about two years ago.

A motion to vacate the order, placing on the calendar the case of John B. Whipple & Co. vs Michael Jacobson; C. Argall and D. L. Millard for plaintiff and J. A. Sorley by L. E. Gossman for defendant. Appealed from justice court, the justice rendered judgment for plaintiff for $97 and some cents, and plaintiff appealed to have judgment set aside. It was for threshing done by the plaintiff for the defendant. The order was denied, and the case was tried before the court in the afternoon and judgment affirmed by the court.

The grand jury brought in the first indictment this morning just before court adjourned, and strange to say, the parties reside in that model (?) little city of East Grand Forks. James O'Brien (not Crookston's "Jimmy") and Fred Kimbert are charged with grand larceny in the second degree, the offense being the taking of $20.50 from one Jacob Dobmier.

PROGRAM OF EXERCISES.

Memorial Day, May 30, 1893.

HEADQUARTERS COL. COBHAM POST NO. 90.

Woman's Relief Corps committee will meet at Grand Army hall at 9 o'clock a. m., to receive contributions of flowers.

Members of the Grand Army, Woman's Relief Corps, and Sons of Veterans will meet at their respective halls at 1 o'clock p. m.

The procession will be formed on Robert street, right resting on Main, and march at 1:30 to Oakdale cemetery in the following order; Louis Fontaine, Marshall; Platoon of police; Juvenile Drum Corps; Sons of Veterans; Woman's Relief Corps; Grand Army Post; Queen City Band, children and teachers; citizens on foot and citizens in carriages.

A cordial invitation is extended to all citizens to join with us.

Memorial services at cemetery; decoration of soldier's graves; music; prayer, by chaplain; commander's address; saluting the dead; music; oration, by E. M. Stanton; music, America; return to hall.

The Seeding.

Probably but very little wheat remained to be sowed after last Saturday, all that we know of being on lands that have remained too wet to work before last week. The season has been a peculiar one, very late before the snow disappeared entirely and since then it has been one continual fight to get much done between showers. Very much wheat is up and growing nicely and the cold spell, commencing on Saturday had a tendency to cause it to stool well. On the high, rolling lands, the seeding is practically all done, on the lower and level lands some barley and oats remain to be sown yet and some will be seeding barley until well along in June, the oats will be, (or should be) all in by next Saturday.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $32.55, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of the Special Meeting Held Monday, May 15th.

The Question of Extension of Sewers Occupied a Considerable Portion of the Time.

Several Applications for Liquor Licenses Read and Acted Upon.

Procedings of an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in the city hall on Monday evening, May 15th, 1893.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll Call.

Aldermen present:—Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Norrie, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen absent:—Walker, Childs.

The city engineer brought in a report on the sewer assessment, for sewers on Front street, which the committee wished to present as their report also. On motion the report was accepted and adopted.

To the Honorable City Council of the City of Crookston.

GENTLEMEN:—In the matter of the estimate of cost and assessment relating to the Front street sewer, referred to me by your honorable body at your last meeting, I would respectfully report. The plans, profits and estimates, on file in my office left by my predecessor, seem to me upon examination to be correct and all that can be practically desired. I however think the rate of assessment per front foot per lot, considering the benefits and the value of the property, to be excessive. This proposed section is the outlet for nearly all of the sewerage of the city lying north of Fourth street, and as the system is extended, other property will be as much if not more benefited than that under consideration while under the rate of assessment heretofore practiced would have to pay a smaller proportion of cost. I would recommend an assessment of $1.00 per front foot in place of $1.75 as it now stands, and believe this amount would be cheerfully paid. I believe some uniform rate should be adopted for the city's entire system if it is practical and think it would save much discussion and loss of time.

Respectfully Submitted,
W. F. ARNOLD,
City Engineer,

May 15, 1893.

At a regular adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 15th day of May, 1893, Alderman Watts offered the following resolution; which was seconded by Alderman Norrie.

Resolved: That in our opinion the assessment for the construction of sewer along Front street from the centre of Sixth street to Red Lake River against adjoining property, is excessive, being one dollar and seventy-five cents per front foot against all affected property, while it should not exceed one dollar per front foot.

Resolved: That the assessment for the construction of said sewer be reduced from one dollar and seventy-five per front foot to one dollar per front foot and the assessments for property affected be as follows:

LOCATION, ORIGINAL TOWNSITE.

Name of Owner.	Rate	Blk.	Lot.	Front	Cost.
Hack & Gallasch	$2 00	39	13, 14.	50 ft	$50 00
James Maloney	2 00	39	15, 16,	50 ft	50 00
George Q. Erskine	2 00	39	17, 18,	50 ft	50 00
" "	2 00	39	19, 20,	50 ft	50 00
Betsy Wood	2 00	39	21, 23,	50 ft	50 00
Lars Dahl	2 00	39	22.	25 ft	25 00
C. Hanson	2 00	39	24,	25 ft	25 00
Kretzschmar & Uizinger	2 00	36	11, 12,	50 ft	50 00
Mary Ann Carter	2 00	36	9,	25 ft	25 00
Chris Eickhoff	2 00	36	5. 6,	50 ft	50 00
O. P. Johnson	2 00	36	3, 4.	50 ft	50 20
August Walters	2 00	36	1, 2,	50 ft	50 00
" "	2 00	37	10, 11,	50 ft	50 00
" "	2 00	Fr lot 10		75 ft	75 00

And it is further resolved that the city clerk at once file with the county auditor and county treasurer a certified copy of the foregoing resolution.

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Norrie, Simmons, Watts, Marlette.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 15th day of May, 1893.

JAS. E. MORRISEY,
Vice-President of the Council.

Approved this 16th day of May, 1893.

A. D. STEPHENS, Mayor.
Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

A committee appointed to draw up a bicycle ordinance asked for further time, which was granted.

To the Hon. Mayor and Council of the City of Crookston.

Your petitioners respectfully represent that they are resident freeholders of the city of Crookston and that they each own real estate fronting on Broadway between its intersection with Fletcher street and its intersection with Loring street, in said city.

That it is to the best interest of said city generally, and especially to your petitioners that the sewer now being constructed on Broadway south of Robert street be extended along Broadway south to its intersection with Loring street. That your petitioners represent the owners of real estate fronting on Broadway on both sides of said street between Fletcher and Loring streets.

Your petitioners ask that said sewer be continued and extended south to Broadway from Fletcher street to the intersection of Broadway and Loring streets by the authority and with the consent of your honorable body. We hereby agree to pay when the work is done.

Dated May 9th, 1893.

SHELDON W. VANCE,
GEO. Q. ERSKINE,
FRED ANDERSON,
C. O. CHRISTIANSON,
D. N. TAYLOR,
A. CHABOT.

The city engineer presented his report on the construction of the sewer on Broadway from Fletcher to Loring street, with the names of the property owners and the size of the lots as near as could be learned.

To the honorable City Council of the City of Crookston.

GENTLEMEN. In respect to your request, I would respectfully submit the following as an estimate of cost for the construction of a 12-inch pipe sewer from the man hole at the intersection of Broadway and Fletcher streets to the proposed location of a man hole at the intersection of Broadway and Loring streets, viz:

Length of sewer, 360 feet.

Excavation 1070 yds. at 15c	$160 50
810 feet 12-inch sewer pipe at 50c	155 00
24 yds. at $2.50	60 00
1 man hole	120 00
Total	$495.50

There are no catch basins at the Broadway and Loring streets.

Respectfully Submitted
W. F. ARNOLD,
City Engineer,

May 15, 1893.

Owner's Name.	Description.	Lot.	Blk.	Amt.
M. E. Church	50 ft	13	7	$ 26 00
Caroline Anderson	50 ft	14	7	26 00
Fred Anderson	50 ft	15	7	26 00
A. Chabot	50 ft	16	7	26 00
D. N. Taylor	50 ft	17	7	26 00
Mrs. Pierce	50 ft	18	7	26 00
S. W. Vance	50 ft	6	10	26 00
Geo. Q. Erskine	50 ft	5	10	26 00
Geo. Q. Erskine	50 ft	4	10	26 00
Nor. Luth Church	50 ft	3	10	26 00
C. O. Christianson	50 ft	2	10	26 00
O. H. Lucken	50 ft	1	10	26 00
City of Crookston,	30 ft Fletcher st 30 ft Loring st			63 50
City of Crookston,	1 manhole inter-sec'n of Brd'y and Loring st.			120 00
Total,				$ 495 50

The amounts proportioned of the cost to the abutting property, as well as the owners, as nearly as can be ascertained, are as tabulated above.

W. F. ARNOLD,
City Engineer.

On motion the chair appointed Aldermen Anderson, Jennings and Simmons as a committee of three to look into the matter of laying a sidewalk from Broadway street into the police office door.

A. Brosseau asked the privilege of moving his saloon from Felix Fournet's building into the Dufresne-Barrette block. The request was laid on the table.

A bill was presented amouting to $145 for W. Bloom for injuries sustained at the Page fire on April 1st. The same was referred to the finance committee.

The following liquor license bonds with the following sureties were read.

Hans E. Erickson with G. L. Mattson and Wm. Creighton as sureties.

On motion sureties were accepted and bond ordered filed.

A. J. Johnson with George Vine and W. H. Norrie as sureties.

Moved by Alderman Marlette, seconded by Alderman Simmons, that the sureties be accepted and the bond filed. Carried.

Bergquist & Morberg, with J. J. Ide and L. O. Tommerdahl as sureties.

Moved by Alderman Simmons, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the sureties be accepted and the bonds ordered filed. Carried.

Dahle & Bergstrom, with Hans Larson and Julia Walter as sureties.

Moved by Alderman Norrie, seconded by Alderman Simmons, that the bond be accepted and filed. Carried.

Gaarder & Sundet with T. O. Sundet and L. I. Benoit as sureties.

Moved by Alderman Jerome,

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 2.]

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The World's Fair directors decided to open the exposition on Sundays, and to return to congress the $2,500,000 which was to be given to the directory with the proviso that the fair be closed on Sundays. The Illinois state senate has passed a resolution directing the attorney-general to commence proceedings looking to the opening of the fair on Sunday.

THE St. Paul Globe and other democratic papers are trying to create a tempest in a tea-pot over the dedication of the World's Fair building. They are trying very hard to make it appear that Governor Nelson has gratuitously slighted the newspaper men of Minnesota, while the simple fact is that somebody made a blunder, for which the governor is in no way responsible. The Globe never misses a half a chance to get a dig at the governor.

IN his new paper, the representative, Ignatius Donnelly indulges in a rich brown roast of Attorney General Childs on account of the construction that official puts open the new elevator law, and frantically calls upon Governor Nelson to convene the legislature at once. Donnelly claims that under Childs' interpretation no elevator can be built and he now tries to shoulder the blame all onto the shoulders of the attorney general, all of which shows that Mr. Donnelly is either a very impractical man or worse, for it was Donnelly himself who had the greatest hand in framing the bill and if the bill is now defective he is more to blame than is the attorney general and his abuse of that official is the veriest drivel. The board of warehouse and railroad commissioners are of the opinion that the elevator can be built however, and will take steps to accomplish it at as early a date as possible.

This is what Bob Dunn, of the Princeton Union has to say in relation to the JOURNAL's comment upon his alleged ten thousand dollar remark:

The JOURNAL sizes up the situation correctly. That ten thousand dollar remark was made by the writer immediately after the defeat of the last attempt at an equitable re-apportionment, when he was in no enviable frame of mind. Ten thousand dollars is considerable money—more than the average county newspaper man earns in a year! But the JOURNAL can appreciate the circumstances that gave rise to the remark. Had northern Minnesota been properly represented the so-called Markham bill would not have been defeated. The clause in the general appropriation bill appropriating $50,000 for internal improvements in northern counties was stricken out because the portion of the state to be benefitted was weak in the senate.

Baited For Catfish and Caught an Owl.

A man of unquestioned veracity vouches for the truth of this fish story: His friend, who lives a few miles in the country, set a line for catfish one day. In the morning when he went after the fish he found them in abundance, and on one line he found a large owl that must have been a terror to birds and fishes when alive. The line was wound around the body and the neck of the owl, and the fish bore marks of the owl's talons, showing that the owl had caught the fish after the hook had caught it, and in its efforts to fly away with the fish it had been ensnared by the line, after which the fish had its inning by drowning the owl.

At any rate the owl was dead, and the fish, though disfigured, was still in the swim and playing the line with a vigor that caused the line to bob up and down with the irregularity of the cotton market. The drowned owl is on exhibition as a witness to the truth of the story, and the fish, though the finest of the catch, escaped the frying pan, and now has a steady job as an owl catcher. The fisher set him for owls.—Valdosta Cor. Atlanta Constitution.

Celtic Melancholy or Joy.

In the Irish dirges and laments there is great similarity to the music of the west highlands, only the Irish music having been written in most instances for the harp—which has all the notes of the voice—is a music of full and sweet harmonies and has not the omissions and deficiencies of the pentatonic scale in which all music for the pipes was written. While the melancholy of the Celtic people finds adequate expression in these laments—plaintive, wailing airs, something between recitative and melody—another and not less characteristic side of the Irish temperament is very truthfully illustrated in their songs of humor.

About these there is an inimitable raciness, a fresh and sparkling wit, a spontaneous ring of chaff and fun, with a dash of chivalrous sentiment and an airy lightness which gives to them the unmistakable Hibernian accent, and to which there is no exact counterpart in the songs of England or Scotland.—London Saturday Review.

THE COUNTY DADS.

Minutes of the Meeting of the County Board Held Tuesday, May 16th.

The Cell Work in the County Jail Accepted and the Bill Ordered Paid.

The Board Decided to Make a Limited Number of Seed Grain Loans.

The board of county commissioners of Polk county, met at 10 o'clock a. m. on May 16th, 1893, pursuant to a call. All members present.

On motion the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was deferred till the regular meeting in July.

The petition of Anton Welbe, Carl T. Molstad, John Stav and M. Eoje, was granted and the following desterritory was accordingly detached from school district No. 155 and attached to district No. 8 as follows: The e½ nw¼ and e½ sw¼ section 21 (Welbes) se¼ section 21 (Molstad's) ne¼ section 21 (Stav's) nw¼ ne¼ and n½ nw¼ section 21 (Eoje's) Tp 147, R 39. Commissioner Oppegaard and Lindem voting in the negative.

Sections 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 34, 35, and 36. Tp 153, R 49 was was organized into a new school district to be known as No. 46.

The e½ se¼ and w½ sw¼ and n½ of section 7, Tp 151, R 48 was attached to district No. 84.

The s½ nw¼ and ne¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ section 32, Tp 151, R 41 was ordered stricken from the tax book for 1891, final proof having been made June 3rd, the same year.

The taxes paid in error by A. Campbell on lot 42, block 3, original townsite of Red Lake Falls for the years 1888, 1889, and 1890 amounting to $13.29 was ordered refunded.

The application of N. J. Highberg for refunding taxes paid in section 9, Tp 152, R 45, for 1883 was rejected.

The application of Olson & Anderson for a correction in the assessment for buildings on lots 3 and 4, block 5, Fletcher & Houston's addition Crookston, for 1892 was granted as prayed for.

The amount of 400 dollars was appropriated out of the county road and bridge fund to aid Fisher Tp and the money to be expended under the supervision of Commissioner Lindem.

Rhinehart and Lindem were appointed a committee to investigate the condition of the bridge across the Marais in section 7, Huntsville Tp with power to act.

The 150 dollars appropriated for the raising of the bridge across Red Lake River to Jerome's addition was reconsidered and the appropriation cancelled.

On recommendation of Oppegaard, the following appropriations was granted out of the road and bridge fund to-wit:

For Winger Tp	200	dollars
" Sletten "	150	"
" Eden "	50	"
" Hill River "	75	"
" Badger "	100	"

The monies to be expended for the purposes as prayed for in their respective petitions.

The amount of 200 dollars was appropriated to Euclid Tp for rebuilding bridges in said Tp and 100 dollars to the Tp of Belgium for roads and bridges.

The amount of 200 dollars was appropriated for improving the county road between the Tp of Crookston and Lowell and the amount of 150 dollars was appropriated for improving the Co. road between sections 9, 10, 15 and 16, Tp 149, R 46. Said amounts to be expended under the commissioner of the 3rd district.

The petition from residents in Sullivan Tp asking for aid in rebuilding a bridge across the Marais was referred to a committee consisting of Rhinehart and Lindem with power to act.

The cell work in the new county jail was accepted by the work and the chairman authorized to make settlement therefore with the Diebold Safe & Lock company, as per contract.

The applications of O. K. Ose, of Sletten Tp, O. O. Fosback, of Tynsid, James E. Morrisey, of Crookston, for a correction in their assessment as prayed for in their respective petitions, were granted, and the assessment of Ames Bros. and Smith, of Terrebonne Tp, for year 1892 was reduced 1,870 dollars.

The application for Wilfred Susan for a correction in the assessment of some real estate was rejected.

The taxes paid by M. W. Jenson, McIntosh, for the assessment of a mortgage of 375 dollars was ordered refunded.

The board decided to reconsider the action taken at a previous meeting relative to the seed grain applications, and the board finally determined to make a personal investigation and to grant such relief as they shall deem advisable, such granting of seed grain loans shall however not exceed the aggregate amount of 60 dollars in any individual case.

The chairman appointed J. E. Oppegaard, A. C. Rhinehart and C. P. DeMers, a committee to examine the proposed route of a county road from Erskine station to Poplar River Tp, as petitioned for by H. T. Gilbertson and others. Said committee was authorized to engage the county surveyor in making survey and file plat of the same.

Commissioner Oppegaard presented his report to the effect that he recommended the county printer to be allowed payment for 6849 descriptions instead of 7737 descriptions as charged in the bills. The ayes and nays being called on the motion of adopting said report, the vote stood as follows in the affirmative: Oppegaard, Linden and DeMers, in the negative: Kirsch and Rhinehart.

The report of the state printer, David Bamaley as to the number of folios contained in and charged for the printing in the financial statement, was accepted and that the county printer be allowed pay at the rate of 452 folios.

The following bills were audited and allowed:

JS. Dwyer, justice fees	$ 4 00
Chas Meyers, constable fees	6 80
Red River Dalen, stationery	5 00
Patrick Conners, salary hospital janitor	70 00
Herborg Wilson, wit. fees in justice court	1 48
Arny Grundysen, boarding prisoners	50 67
J. V. E. Wyatt, coroner's fees	20 15
A. Anderson, wit. fees in justice court	1 48
Thos. Torgerson, justice fees	6 95
Nils Muus, postage	2 80
Thos. Benson, removing banking from court house	8 00
Leonard Lee, constable fees	7 40
A. A. Lommen, postage and express	5 40
Christianson Bros., insurance policy on court house	46 00
Alex. Gunderson, cleaning jail vault	7 00
Mrs. C. A. Wyatt, burial supplies for Aslak Olson	18 00
A. F. Rausch, provisions for hospital	72 70
S. A. Wallace, medicines, etc., for hospital	81 85
Pioneer Press, assessment books and blnks	169 00
" " 3 assesment books and wolf bounty certificates	13 10
Pioneer Press, books and stationery	17 50
Brown, Treacy & Co., stationery	35 50
" " " "	57 10
Sam'l Gibeau, goods for poor person	40 00
F. H. Knickerbocker, med. services	10 00
Arny Grandysen, coal for office	21 00
C. H. Denniston, med. attend. at hospital	71 50
Geo. A. Raphael, typewriter and cabinet	115 00
Gorgas & Kirsch, insurance policy on court house	69 00
Frank Theno, remov'g storm windows, etc	5 65
C. E. Dampier, med. attendance at jail	4 50
S. A. Wallace, med. for prisoners	2 95
Wm. Cunningham, milk for Co. hospital	11 50
A P Toupin, justice fees	4 40
E. Work, services at Co. hospital	30 00
Mrs. A. M. Freeman, nurs'g at Co. hospitol	56 00
Rasmussen & Frankenfield, hardware for county hospital	6 03
Hertz & Roberts, laundry for co. hospital	19 74
S. A. Wallace, medicine for co. hospital	6 00
W. A. Hammond, stationery for Judge of Probate	5 00
Gustaf Erickson, wit. fees justice court	1 48
James Dainard, constable fees	4 60
L M Juesvold, " "	1 70
J. M. Hanson, justice fees	1 20
O. W. Webster, express, drayage, etc	3 65
C. P. Demers, Com's fees, mileage and committee work	27 70
J. H. Oppegaard, Com's fees, mileage and committee work	48 00
M. E. Kirsch, Com's fees, mileage and committee work	29 00
A. C. Rhinehart, Com's fees, mileage and committee work	36 80
Anthon Lindem, Com's fees, mileage and committee work	15 60

A bill of Alex. Gunderson for cleaning jail vault, was rejected.

Board adjourned sine die.

M. CORNELIUS,
Acting Clerk of Board.

About Fishing.

"Did you ever fish—for game fish, I mean—for trout, black bass, muskallonge, pickerel—I care not which? Ah, there's a sensation! You are beneath a blue sky, in a cooling breeze, with the green drapery of Nature gladdening every view. But you are uncertain whether you are to have any sport or not; just a little tired and discouraged—thinking of going back to your camp or trying somewhere else—when zip!!! what's that? Your line pulls, your rod bends, you have got a dandy—a two pounder, at least. Then follows one minute, or five minutes of keenest, wildest, most magnetic, thrilling pleasure. What is it? Will you get it? Oh, thunder! It's off; but, no, there it is again. Give it a little line; reel in steady and slow. There! see that! a black bass—a big one—it leaped a foot from the water! Oh, my friends, take your dreamy waltzes, your ruddy wine, your demoralizing cards, your horses and your boats; but give me an hour at a good fish-ground, and I'll ask no more." The enthusiastic angler who uttered these words would find his paradise along the east side of the Mississippi river from Dubuque to St. Paul. The great river is well stocked with black bass, pike, pickerel, and other varieties, and from La Crosse north many clear and sparkling brooks swarm with the speckled "brook trout," affording delightful sport. The legal season in the states of Illinois and Wisconsin varies somewhat with the kind of fish sought, but may be said generally to include about all the time from the middle of May to the first of October. The Burlington Route is the line by which the fishing grounds on the east side of the Mississippi can be most conveniently reached, and any detailed information desired will be cheerfully furnished on application to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Money to Loan.

On city property, business and dwelling—at 6½ per cent per annum. For full particulars call on P. J. Russell, 25 and 26 Reckitt block, Crookston, Minn. [47tf]

TEA WITH THE JAPS.

Nice Place to Take Luncheon at the World's Fair.

HOUR IN THE PRETTY TEA HOUSE.

The Japanese Know the Commercial Value of Politeness—They Are the Yankees and the Frenchmen of the Orient—Among Some of the Other Exposition Sideshows.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 24.—[Special.]—Every one who comes to the exposition will want to visit the Japanese tea house. It is one of the prettiest and quaintest spots within the enclosure. At the edge of the lagoon, just across from the tall-domed building of the state of Illinois and near the palatial structure of the Brazilian government, it has a little corner all its own. A month ago it was a muddy bank, now it is a thing of beauty. The Japanese know how to do these things, if any people in the world do. The ease and rapidity with which they have transformed an uninviting spot into a garden speaks well for their practical energy. They have been called the Yankees of the Orient, just as the Chilians are called the Yankees of South America. It appears to be a compliment to a people in any part of the world to say of them that they are like the Americans.

But the Japanese are as much like Frenchmen as Americans. They have the deft touch, the artistic instinct, the knowledge of how to make everything they do look finished and picturesque. They also have a politeness that is better than that of the French, because more subdued, less conspicuous and self-conscious. Their garden is enclosed by a bamboo fence, and a very tight, pretty enclosure it makes. The wonder to me is this material, which the Japs use for everything, has not been more imported to this country. It is cheap, light, easily worked up, suitable for an immense variety of purposes. It would be an admirable material for use in the fencing of summer places, lawns and grounds; for the construction of pavilions, summer houses and settees. Who can tell but that one of the results of this exposition may be a general use in America of the universal construction material of the Japs?

From a tall flagstaff at the entrance to the tea house garden float two Japanese paper banners, each in the form of a fish monster. Over the gate are draped the flags of the United States and the golden yellow ball of the Oriental kingdom. Just within is a little ticket booth, built of bamboo, and here you pay coin for quaint tickets of Japanese paper, which is almost like celluloid in its substance and finish. Here, also, Japanese politeness takes you in hand, and it attends you from this moment as long as you remain within these charming precincts. The young man in the booth carefully explains to you in very fair English the price of the various tickets and what they admit you to see.

First is the "Cha-Mise," or common tea saloon. It is simply a cotton tent, but very inviting on a warm day. Ten cents is the price of admission, and for one dime you get not only a glimpse of the garden and its inhabitants, but are served with a cup of good tea and a small Japanese cake or bit of sweet meat. The tea is called "choice," and such it is to the average American palate, but in reality it is a very common tea in Japan. They give you also a souvenir—a pretty flower made of feathers or something of that sort.

But perhaps you prefer to pay 25 cents and enter the "Cha-Ya," or special tea saloon. This is a bamboo pavilion, with quaint bamboo chairs and polished tables. The tea served here is thus described on the programme: "A cup of the better Japan tea than that you got at the Cha-Mise; it is quite popular in Japan but has never been imported." After testing it the visitor says to himself that if the common people of Japan are able to afford such tea as this every day in the year they are lucky mortals. For it is glorious tea. With the cup they serve you a couple of Japanese cakes. At least, they are called cakes, but they are soft and you don't know whether to eat them with a fork (which you have not) or your fingers. They are sweet and rather peculiar. The attendant gives you also a paper or feather flower and a little sample package of the tea which you very eagerly put in your pocket, determined to try your hand at Japan tea-making as soon as you get home. The chances are you will not produce any such tea as that with which you were served in the "Cha-Ya." There is an art in tea-making, as in everything else. The sample package is thus labelled: "Basket-fired choicest natural leaf Japan tea. Price in Japan 50 cents per pound."

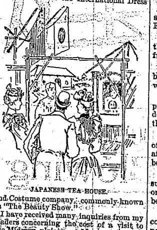
It is safe to say you will pay another visit to the tea houses; and when you go again you will pay 50 cents at the gate, determined to see the holy of holies of the tea-making and tea-drinking business. Again you will note that the Japanese understand the commercial value of politeness. An attendant takes you in charge, with a deferential obeisance, leads you in the proper path through the garden, explains the various features of the show as he goes along, and finally drops you in a chair before a platform in the "Cha-No-Ma" or ceremonial tea saloon. This is a beautiful structure with an open stage at one side much like the stage of a miniature theater. Here, sitting squat upon the floor, are five or six solemn Japs, including two or three pretty women. They are there for the purpose of showing you how tea is drunk in Japan by the people of importance. A tea urn is before them on the floor, and with many salams and no end of ceremony they show you how to brew the tea and how to drink it in true Japanese style.

And the tea one gets here! Well, it is simply divine. It lingers lovingly on the tongue, and tickles the palate into laughter. One scarcely knows which to fall most violently in love with—the tea in the dainty cups or the pretty Japanese maiden who hands it to you. The big Jap with spectacles on his nose keeps pretty close watch of you, while he explains in tolerable English that this is the best tea that Japan can produce, which is equivalent to saying it is the finest tea in the world. You are prepared to believe him. You are amazed to learn that such tea can be bought in Japan at $1.25 per pound. In this country, if it were imported or to be had at all, which it is not, the cost would be at least $5 per pound.

There are many curios to be examined or purchased, and one has to guard his pocketbook with much assiduity while in this fascinating place. If you are not careful one of the Japanese maidens—or she may be a matron, as they all look alike—will sell you a cup and saucer, or a box or vase in spite of yourself. There are real Japanese flowers in the garden, and a Japanese gardener to attend them. At the lagoon edge is a landing where the gondolas touch to put off or take on passengers, thus giving us Venice and Yokohama in one picture. It is really a very pretty scene; and all the Japs are so polite, so deferential, so communicative, you say to yourself you will surely visit them again.

The tea garden was put here by the Central Tea association of Japan. In their programme they say its purpose is to "advertise thoroughly and impress upon the minds of the world's nations the genuine tea by indicating to you how the genuine Japan tea is prepared from the original tea tree; how it should be cooked; how it may be served; how many different ways it may be drunk; how the ceremonies were carried down from the ancients; what utensils for cooking tea, and what decorations of the house, both interior and exterior, are essential for welcoming the tea guests; besides the information of the Japanese architecture, old historical curios and her imperial plumule of malt." And it must be confessed the Japanese know their business.

Of all the international novelties at the exposition to which an admission fee is charged this is about the most delightful. While the Japanese refresh the eye with pretty things and the inner man with their glorious tea the continental Europeans and the Africans and Arabians seem to think the western world wants nothing but beer and dancing. Along the Midway plaisance, the special section of exposition sideshows, one may drink beer as it is served in all countries and see dancing supposed to be typical of all peoples. With few exceptions all the beer is brewed right here in Chicago, and the dancing is rather commonplace. If one is seeking the sensational in the dancing line I advise him to look for it in the Midway plaisance. Still, all these foreign novelties are interesting, and if one has the money to spare, and the time as well, he will not be sorry for having visited them. The Irish village, which is as neat and characteristic as the Japanese tea house, the German tyrolese and Javanese villages and the street in Cairo are easily worth going to see; and so is the exhibit of the International Dress and Costume company, commonly known as "The Beauty Show."



JAPANESE TEA HOUSE.

I have received many inquiries from my readers concerning the cost of a visit to the Midway plaisance. Many people are surprised to read in the papers that to see all these attractions costs about $12, and some think it an imposition upon the public that such things should be permitted. They do not understand the situation. It is true the cost of seeing all these sideshows is at least $12, but there is no reason why a visitor who feels he cannot afford it should visit any or all of them. A good part of the show, a glimpse of the international spectacle, may be had by simply walking through the plaisance which costs nothing beyond the 50 cents admission to the exposition itself.

The Midway plaisance is simply a section of the exposition set apart for the occupancy of these sideshows or special amusements. There is no more reason why one should spend his $12 to see them all than there is a good reason why he should go to all the innumerable places of amusement in Chicago itself, or why he should buy all of the articles displayed for sale. The only way in which these novelties could be assembled here from all parts of the earth was by permitting them to charge an admission fee; and the management of the exposition did well to provide a place for them, for many visitors are able to pay the price of entering their gates and are glad of the opportunity of doing so. For those who do not wish or cannot afford to enter there is enough to see, heaven knows, without the sideshows.

While it costs something like $12 to enter all of these attractions, few visitors will care to make the grand rounds. A judicious selection will enable one to see the best of them at an expense of three or four dollars. This may be done at the luncheon hour, as many of the villages and enclosures have their cafes and restaurants where the prices are reasonable and where one may sit for a half hour or longer and rest. Besides, the prices of admission to these sideshows are being gradually reduced. The enterprising foreigners who came here expecting to find the Americans a race of millionaires or spendthrifts are already discovering their error. It is true the Americans will spend more money for travel and amusement than any other people in the world, but they are quick to detect imposture and they readily resent imposition. Many of our showmen from over the sea have already cut their prices in two in the middle, and others will find it to their advantage to follow suit. The restaurant keepers in the exposition proper, and the hotel keepers without the gates and in Chicago itself, are discovering the same thing. The truth is, as I said in an earlier letter, that all business here will have to be governed by the laws of supply and demand. There is keen competition in amusements, in restaurants, in hotels and in furnished rooms. There are accommodations for twice or thrice the number of people who have made their appearance here, and all prices and charges are gradually coming down to a common sense, popular level.

ROBERT GRAVES.

Things Good to Eat.

Three dishes made from corn starch and corn flour placed on a small side table attract a large number of people around the kitchen platform in the Woman's building. Mrs. Rorer shows how to make blanc mange with corn starch and water into which the white of eggs is stirred. A corn bread with rice is also made. The rice is added to give a lighter texture. Women are not the only interested listeners. One gentleman said: "Give me the recipe slowly, so we can take them." Other lessons demonstrate how to make corn waffles, Plunkets and another steam pudding are also made.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Boyd has a new bank.

The Bank of Zumbrota suspended payment last week.

Paynesville Odd Fellows dedicated a new hall last week.

Secretary Hart has condemned the Albert Lea jail as unfit for use.

Frost did slight damage to crops in Southern Minnesota last week.

Receipts of the grain inspection department for April were $6,140.35.

Joseph Sequin and Michael Duffy broke out of the Itasca county jail.

Fire at Rock Creek, Pine county, destroyed five dwellings and two stores.

The rumors of smallpox in the Fergus Falls asylum are emphatically denied.

Shattuck Cadets will probably camp at Fort Snelling 10 days, beginning on June 2.

Guiseppi Tressonni of Le Sueur is supposed to have met with foul play in St. Paul.

Bishop Gilbert, who has been seriously ill for some time is considerably improved.

Seven hundred head of young stock was shipped to Dakota from Elk River last week.

The board of education at Hastings has decided to furnish school books to all pupils free.

Someone broke into the postoffice at Soudan, near Tower. They secured about $6, all pennies.

Dick Moore knocked out Tom Murray of Minneapolis at the Phœnix club, St. Paul, Thursday night.

Two men were struck by a freight train at Aitkin. One was fatally and the other seriously injured.

While the family were away a tramp stole $200 in gold from the house of N. E. Glason, at Spring Grove.

The output of the Diamond mine, on the Mesaba range, will be increased from 75 tons to 500 tons daily.

The Minneapolis Trust company has been appointed receiver of the Northwestern Guaranty company.

It has been decided to abandon the programme of exercises and formal dedication of the Minnesota building at the world's fair.

A geological survey of the iron belt of Minnesota will be begun immediately after the appropriation for that purpose becomes available July 1.

Martin Johnson, a sufferer from consumption, was taken with a hemorrhage on the streets of Alexandria and died before assistance could reach him.

The Lamberton Leader will be discontinued and the plant moved to Winnebago City, where the editor, W. D. Smith, will establish a new paper.

The Boston Realty company will build a 3-story office building on the site of the Hotel St. Louis, at Duluth, which was burned some time since.

J. H. Landis, a brakeman, was blown from a freight train on the Great Northern at Northern Pacific Junction. Seventy-five cars passed over his body.

The fifth annual convention of the Fourth district and the sixth annual convention of the Blue Earth county W. C. T. U. are being held at Mankato this week.

Sho-Cog-Geesic, a Chippewa chief, while drunk, went to sleep on the railroad track at Deer River. The passenger engine of the Duluth and Winnipeg road ran over him.

A. H. Hornsby, the St. Paul real estate man who jumped from a Burlington train while in charge of Chief McGinn, has plead guilty to the charge of forgery in the second degree.

"Traveling Men's Day" will be celebrated at Mankato June 2. A parade in the morning, a minstrel show in the afternoon at the opera house and a banquet and ball at the Salpaugh in the evening.

Mayor Eustis of Minneapolis has given it out that saloonkeepers will be held responsible for losses in confidence games in their saloons. Two saloonkeepers put up $100 each Tuesday to reimburse a sucker.

FREE TEXT BOOKS.

One Minnesota Town Has Tried Them for Three Years.

The city of St. Charles, Winona county, adopted the free text book plan in June, 1890, so that the system has been three years on trial. Professor George A. Stanton in the last issue of the St. Charles Union sums up the experience of the three years. He finds that the total cost of books, covers, case labels, etc., during the three years has been $626.40, which is a little more than 27 cents per pupil per year for all below the high school grade. Were the parents to buy the books now in use, the total cost of the complete set of books used during the eight years would be about $12, or, on an average, $1.50 per year for each pupil who completes the course. But the saving in expense, says the professor, great as it is, has proved to be one of the least of the many advantages resulting from the system. A supply of books for every pupil on the first day of the term, the ease with which a pupil may be transferred from one grade to another, the consequent better grading, increased attendance, a more liberal supply of reading books, the readiness with which an old or well worn set of books may be exchanged for a new and better series—these are some of the marked advantages noted. The system has given general satisfaction to pupils, parents and teachers in that city.

Bailey May Buy It.

NEW YORK, May 23.—It is likely that J. Bailey, the big showman, will buy Madison Square Garden.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, May 17.

California's state treasury is emp'y.

Four men were drowned at Lake Bluff, Ills., by the capsizing of their boat.

Four convicts escaped from the Indiana state prison at Jeffersonville Monday night.

The committee of the United States senate appointed to investigate the immigration question begins work in New York.

Frank C. Almy, the murderer of Christie Warden at Hanover, N. H., in July, 1891, was hanged at Concord penitentiary Tuesday. The murder was committed because she refused to marry him.

The railroad conductors will not strike during the world's fair. They have adopted a patriotic resolution denouncing as slanderous the statement that railway employes would strike at this juncture.

Thursday, May 18.

Major Le Caron, once a British government spy among the Irish in America, is dying.

Commissioner Lochren has announced an intention of making all boards of pension examiners Democratic.

Mr. Cleveland is credited with a plan to put an end to political appointments, having appointive officers serve during good behavior, as in England.

The president has appointed Colonel William P. Carlin of the Fourth United States infantry to be brigadier general, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Brigadier General E. A. Carr.

President Cleveland has disapproved the findings and sentence of a court-martial which tried Captain William S. Johnson, retired, on a charge of duplicating pay accounts and making a double assignment of his salary. The president thinks the court was too lenient.

Friday, May 10.

The Infanta Eulalie has arrived in New York.

The Presbyterian general assembly has opened its convention at Washington.

The Northern Pacific directors have adopted a plan to fund the floating debt.

The New York proves to be probably the fastest armed cruiser in the world.

M. M. Duffie of Arkansas has been appointed consul at Winnipeg, Mr. Givens having declined.

The Chinese minister says that his government will not retaliate on account of our excluding Chinamen.

Saturday, May 20.

Internal revenue collections increased over $8,000,000 last year.

James E. Murdock, the once famous actor, died in Cincinnati Friday.

Children under 12 will hereafter be admitted to the world's fair grounds at half price.

The governor of Indiana has declined to have anything to do with the anti-trust convention.

The National Editorial association has decided to hold its next meeting at Asbury Park, N. J.

The Green Bay (Wis.) Table company has assigned. Losses by fire and lack of capital the cause.

A. H. Hornsby, the St. Paul real estate agent, was sentenced to two and a half years imprisonment for forgery.

Highbinders at San Francisco posted notices Friday offering $800 reward for the murder of Sam Lee, a wealthy Chinaman, and president of the Six companies. He has been an active opponent of the Geary law.

Monday, May 22.

President Cleveland, it is said, will recommend an income tax.

It is rumored that Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., will soon wed Dr. W. T. Bull, a New York physician.

Eight ladies attending the Woman's congress at the World's fair were injured by a floor giving away Saturday.

Secretary Carlisle says he will enforce the law as to Chinese deportation as fast as possible with the means at his command.

Advices from Japan say that the volcano Bandaisin has become active and that widespread disaster has been caused by its eruptions.

At a meeting of medical societies at Berlin Professor Virchow said that the recurrence of cholera anywhere in Germany this year was improbable.

W. B. Strong of Whitewater and D. D. Smith of Fort Atkinson, students at the Wisconsin university at Madison, were drowned Saturday at Lake Mendota.

Governor McKinley has declined President Cleveland's appointment to the board of visitors of the naval academy at Annapolis because of a press of official business.

Tuesday, May 23.

A rate war has broken out between the Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Congressman Geary, author of the exclusion act, thinks the chinese can be deported at $15 a head.

The bureau of statistics reports that during the year ending April 30 immigrants to the number of 82,868 have arrived.

The shot mill of J. W. Bennett, at Gilead, Me., was burned Sunday. It was the largest mill of the kind in the world, and the loss will be heavy.

The West Virginia State Sunday School convention passed a resolution pledging the members not to attend the world's fair if the gates are opened on Sundays.

Coffins containing bodies are piled high in a barn and receiving vault in the Catholic cemetery of Hudson county, N. J., and persons living in the vicinity have sought relief from the health board.

MANY CREMATED.

TERRIBLE HOLOCAUST IN A MICHIGAN LUMBER CAMP.

Unfortunates Hemmed In by Forest Fires and Burned to Death—Some Jumped Into a Well for Safety, but Were Suffocated—Saginaw Laid Waste.

LAKE CITY, Mich., May 22.—The loss of life in the fire which destroyed Louis Sand's lumber camp, three miles northeast of here, is greater than first supposed. Ten bodies have been recovered and the whole crew is not accounted for. The dead are:

MICHAEL GALEN.
CHARLES TAYLOR.
JAMES HUGH.
EDWARD RORABACHER.
SAMUEL CAMPBELL, foreman of the camp.
JOHN HILL.
FRED SAGER.
HANS JACOBSON.
FRANK SANGREF.
MIKE MULHOLLAND.

These ten men, with Edward Sullivan, were hemmed in at the camp by the fire. The strong wind cut off all escape. Sullivan started north in the face of the fire and by some chance escaped. He is severely burned but will live. Edward Rorabacher started east and got 25 rods away before caught. Mulholland started west and got about the same distance. The remaining eight stayed too long and took refuge in a well about 20 feet deep. The top curb of the well burned and the timbers fell on the men literally cooking their heads the remainder of the bodies being under water. A rescuing party tried to get the bodies out of the well during the night, but it was caving so the effort was postponed until morning when the recovery was effected. A large force of men are still scouring the adjoining country to make certain no other unfortunate has been overlooked. The camp employed 60 men. The remaining 50 were near the green timber and those escaped. The property loss is not very great.

Huddled in the Well,

SAGINAW LAID WASTE.

Fire Does $1,500,000 Damage in the Michigan City.

SAGINAW, May 22.—A little spark and a strong southwest gale Saturday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock, resulted in a very destructive fire. In that brief period the work of years of toil was destroyed and the fairest portion of Saginaw left a mass of smouldering ashes and debris. Three hundred buildings were destroyed, entailing a loss of $1,500,000 and dozens of families are left homeless.

The burned district covers 31 blocks of the finest residence portion of the city. The body supposed to be that of James Clark turns out to be the remains of George Turner, father-in-law of Charles Holland, one of the leading citizens. He was 89 years old and became lost in the confusion and was burned to a crisp a block away from his house.

TWO BAD FIRES.

Antigo and Bryant, Wisconsin, Towns, Badly Scorched.

ANTIGO, May 22.—This town is half destroyed by fire, and the little town of Bryant has been completely wiped out. About 30 buildings were destroyed in Bryant; also 1,000,000 feet of lumber and 300,000 feet of logs. No estimate of the loss can be secured. The fire here originated in brush heaps near town, and spread by means of fences and barns to the city. The fire soon caught the planing mill of the Northwestern Lumber company, which was consumed in a few minutes. Next to burn was Weed's large mill; then 25 dwellings, leaving 200 persons homeles. The loss is $100,000, with small insurance.

Bad Wisconsin Blaze.

MONFORT, May 19.—Seventeen business houses and residences were burned here during the morning. Loss $75,000. It is supposed to be of incendiary origin. The business part of the village is practically ruined. The fire started in Stevens Bros.' hardware store, three floors of which were filled with goods, and spread until half the business part of the town was in ashes. There was no means of successfully fighting the flames and building after building went.

Equines Perish.

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—A fire in Quinn's livery stable at the corner of Channing avenue and Locust street, resulted in the cremation of James Quinn, 7 years of age and 135 horses. Six other members of the Quinn family had narrow escapes. The loss is over $100,000.

Six Men Killed.

GENEVA, Ills., May 19.—C. A. Pope's glucose factory was the scene of a most disastrous explosion during the afternoon in which six persons lost their lives and one was fatally scalded.

Manitou Launched.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The great steel passenger steamship Manitou, designed for world's fair traffic and said to be the finest on the great lakes, was successfully launched at the yards of the Chicago Shipbuilding company at South Chicago.

Bad for Officeseekers.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Secretary Smith states that a precedent has been established fixing the practice of permitting Republican registers and receivers of land offices to hold their offices until their 4-year term expires.

Provides For Death Penalty.

LANSING, Mich., May 20.—The house by a vote of 56 to 35 passed the Kline bill providing the penalty of death by hanging for persons convicted on direct evidence of murder in the first degree.

THE MINNESOTA BUILDING.

The Editors Dedicate in Their Own Peculiar Way.

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, May 17, J. A. Johnson, president of the State Editors' Association, who looked upon a large gathering of Minnesota people, stated that the exercises of dedicating the Minnesota building would begin with prayer. Rev. Mr. Hare of Mankato, responded.

Then a song, a transposition of "The Charmed Cup," altered to fit Minnesota and the occasion, was sung by Oscar L. Lienau.

This song was followed by a dedicatory ode written for the event by Franklyn W. Lee of St. Paul.

THE DEDICATORY ODE.

Think you the bold and hardy Genoese,
Who groped his way across the unknown seas,
E'er dreamt that where the sky and ocean met
A future such as this would rise? And yet,
Great minds are oft prophetic, and the eyes
Of genius see beyond the clouded skies.

If, then, the Great Discoverer pierced the veil
Which hung far out beyond his flagship's sail
It must have roused his heart to faster beat
To realize that where his humble fleet
Would touch God's earth a constellation bright
And greater far in magnitude and light
Than any star or group e'er given birth
Would rise to shed its glory o'er the earth;
That from the thirteen stars thus born to men
Still other stars would issue forth, and then
The galaxy so fill the wond'ring world with light
That mankind would no longer grope in night.

Star of the North! Thy place upon the field
Of stars which mists of ages long concealed
Is such that none need ever blush with shame
To hear the sound of Minnesota's honored name.
Star of the North! thou home of changing scene,
Where sapphire lakes begin the stretch of green,
Where wood and dale and fertile plain
Dominion lend to Plenty's kindly reign,
Star of the North! thy fame upheld by noble sons,
While meadows yield and water runs;
Thy name deep graven on the nation's roll—
Thyself a portion of the nation's soul.
Star of the North! thy glory cannot fade
To mar the record thou hast made,
Nor shall there ever rise a star
To dim thee with a radiance from afar.

Thy temple is the people's loyal heart,
Which throbs to tell the world how dear thou art;
But here, among the nations of the world,
Where every flag is to the breeze unfurled,
We rear another in thine honored name—
A temple to thy worth and fame—
And dedicate it to the fairest state
In this broad land incorporate.

President Johnson's Address.

President Johnson then made the formal presentation of the building to the State of Minnesota. He rehearsed the history of its construction, related the obstacles which had been surmounted and felicitated the people on the possession of a home complete in every detail. He felt that the editors of the state press had been largely instrumental in securing this fitting representation of the great State of Minnesota at the Exposition by reason of their persistency in advocating a liberal appropriation and through the intelligent manner in which they had made plain the advantages—in fact the necessities—of such a representation. He paid a pretty and what everybody agreed was a deserved compliment to the intelligent efforts of the board of state commissioners and to the workmen under the immediate control of this body.

Senator Keller's Address.

On the part of the state the building was accepted by Senator Keller in a brief but fitting address. As a resident of Minnesota he was proud of the building, proud that his state should be so handsomely and well represented among the older members of the Union and glad to see such a large number of fellow Minnesotans who were inspired, as he was, with the enthusiasm of the occasion. In accepting the building it pleased him to acknowledge that those who had taken an active part in its construction had done rather more than was expected of them in that they had given the citizens of Minnesota a better equipped and more finished building than if was thought could possibly be put up in the time and with the means at command. The satisfactory and timely completion of the work was a legitimate cause of congratulation all around.

Frank Mead's Address.

Frank J. Mead was the next speaker. He began his remarks by firing a good natured shot at his friend Johnson for his liberality in giving away other people's property; but the editors of the state, he admitted, had given the building to Minnesota just as much as Columbus gave Ferdinand and Isabella a new World. He approved the location, too. In his mind there had never been a doubt that the Columbian exposition should be held in one of two cities. Inasmuch as it was impossible to secure the attraction for Minneapolis, he was satisfied that it should go to Chicago. He admired that city greatly. It was typical in everything; typical in her virtues—what few she had—in her enterprise and in her appreciation of the value of a dollar. He had been coming here for a matter of 30 years and he had always noticed this. Chicago always got what she wanted, and if she wanted a dollar or two more than usual of his money on some extra occasion she was welcome to it as long as the pile held out. Striking a more serious vein, Mr. Mead paid a sincere and hearty tribute to Chicago, which was thoroughly endorsed by his hearers.

Remarks by S. A. Langum.

S. A. Langum of Preston expressed his admiration of the beautiful buildings to be seen on the exposition grounds, and congratulated the State of Minnesota for having made such an attractive contribution to the number. As a resident of Minnesota he was particularly proud. He explained that in the legislature he had voted against an increased appropriation of public funds for this purpose, but was now convinced the money had been wisely and advantageously expended.

The Ladies Spoke, Too.

As representing a sex and class which had been largely instrumental in spreading and keeping up the enthusiasm of which this building was the fruition, Mrs. Franklyn W. Lee of St. Paul was called on for some remarks. She responded briefly, saying that woman's heart beat responsive to man's in all undertakings, and signified her pleasure in sharing with the gentlemen the honors of the occasion.

H. P. Hall Was There, and Spoke.

Mr. Johnson introduced H. P. Hall as a man without a home, but said a consensus of opinion among the editorial fraternity was that Mr. Hall's home ought to be in heaven. Mr. Hall said that, as a representative of heaven, he welcomed the people now and hoped to hereafter. Minnesota, he admitted, was a great state. Her newspapers had quadrupled in the last five years. He was afraid to say how much their circulation had increased, but would refer interested parties to the usual affidavits. As a man who had lived in Minnesota all his life he was proud of the state, proud of the showing it was making at the fair, proud of everything, and especially proud of the Duke of Veragua for consenting to be the descendant of a man who had made this great day possible.

The Building Christened.

The time had now come to christen the beautiful Minnesota building. A St. Paul lady was accorded the privilege and honor. Mrs. Oscar Lienau stepped to the balcony and broke a bottle of champagne with a small hammer, and as the foaming liquid poured over the balcony and down the stairs, these words were heard by all,

I CHRISTEN THEE MINNESOTA.

Various gentlemen were then called on for impromptu speeches. Commissioner LaDue said that when the editors returned home they could point with more pride than ever to the proud position held by the commonwealth. He hoped they would do more than this; that they would urge the railways to transport the people who till the soil, work the mines and fell the forests to furnish them business which enables the declaring of big dividends, as cheaply as they transport delegates to great political conventions, for it is the working people who have made it possible for Minnesota to compete with the world in her staple products.

Commissioner Ward of Fairmont, said their labor had been one of love and pride of state. He rejoiced that the work of the commission met public indorsement. Minnesota was now in position to demonstrate to Pennsylvania and other states that all the coal and iron in the country was not in the east.

The interesting ceremonies closed with brief remarks by Editor Lamphere and Superintendent Hunt. The Minnesota building is opposite the Fine Arts Gallery, one of the finest locations on the grounds.

OUR TRADE ABROAD.

Exports Largely Decreased, While Imports Are Increased.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The chief of the bureau of statistics, in his monthly statement to the secretary of the treasury, reports that the total value of the exports of merchandise from the United States during the 12 months ending April 30, 1893, were $848,594,427, and during the corresponding period of the preceding year $1,011,343,173, a decrease of $162,748,746. The values of imports during the same periods were $926,151,988, and $832,145,371 respectively, an increase of $94,006,627. During the 12 months ended April 30, the exports of gold amounted to $110,039,026, and the imports to $19,541,000.

Rejected the Budget.

ROME, May 20.—The chamber of deputies has rejected the budget for the department of justice. A cabinet crisis is imminent.

Quits.

She—A pretty time of night for you to come home!

He—A pretty time of night for you to be awake!

She—I've staid awake for the last four hours waiting for you to come home.

He—And I have been keeping myself awake for the last four hours at the club waiting for you to go to sleep.—Exchange.

Ocean's Depths.

Some argue that the deepest place in the ocean will be found to correspond almost exactly with the height of the highest mountain. This theory has been disproved, however, ocean depths 10,000 feet deeper than the height of Mount Everest having been found.—St. Louis Republic.

The Creed of the Mongol.

The Mongol's religion makes out for him certain seemingly indifferent actions as good or bad, meritorious or sinful. There is scarcely one single step in life, however insignificant, he can take without first consulting his religion through his priest. Not only does his religion insist on molding his soul and coloring his whole spiritual existence, but it determines the cut and color of his coat. It would be difficult to find another instance in which any religion has grasped a country so universally and completely as Buddhism has Mongolia.—"John Gilmour, of Mongolia."

Some Old Cheeses.

In the cheese regions of Switzerland a custom formerly prevailed for the friends of a bride and bridegroom to join in the presentation on their wedding day of an elaborate cheese. This cheese was used as a family register, on which the births, marriages and deaths were recorded. Some of these old cheeses date back to 1660.—Exchange.

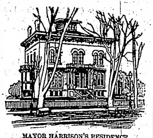
A HOSPITABLE MAYOR.

Carter Harrison's House an Object of Interest to World's Fair Visitors.

The residence of Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago is well known to most residents of the World's fair city and to not a few eminent strangers who have enjoyed the liberal hospitality dispensed within its walls. Before the big fair is over it will probably be known to a great many more, for Mayor Harrison's latchstring is ever on the outside, and any one with even the slightest claim upon his courtesy is welcome to the best he has. The mansion is on the west side of the city at the junction of Ashland and Jackson boulevards and is an object of great interest to many passersby.

The grounds are spacious and natural rather than artificial and trim, and the house is old fashioned, roomy and comfortable. No attempt is made to keep in line with the ever varying kaleidoscopic changes of modern fashionable architecture. The residents there, it is quite evident, know when they are well off. They have become attached to what is familiar by association and do not find it necessary to stimulate tired emotions by the novelty of constant change. It is essentially a home place, and of it the most casual observer would predicate an owner of refined tastes, luxurious instincts and great individuality.

And the casual observer would be quite right. Carter Harrison is all this and something more. A brilliant newspaper correspondent has said of him that he had a Kentuckian's love for a horse, a Virginian's adoration for beautiful women and a Chicagoan's love for himself, and it is doubtful if so much of a man's biography was ever written in so few words. His love of horses is well known in the Windy City, and during the labor troubles of his previous term in the city's executive office, when he rode about continually from place to place on a beautiful thoroughbred, "the mayor and the mare" were household words.



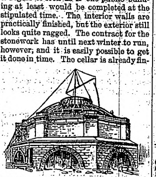
MAYOR HARRISON'S RESIDENCE.

His respect for women has more than once appeared in evidence in the patience with which he has listened to the irritating details of petty domestic squabbles brought to him for settlement as a magistrate, and which should never have left the privacy of the family hearth. His love of self is not idiosyncratic, nor does it ever become offensive, but it or some other controlling influence in his nature has preserved his personal honor, during a long connection with politics and politicians that have become a national byword.

THE NEW NATIONAL LIBRARY.

The Present Condition of a Structure That Is Designed to Last.

Work on the Congressional library's new building is progressing so well that it begins to look as if one public building at least would be completed at the stipulated time. The interior walls are practically finished, but the exterior still looks quite ragged. The contract for the stonework has until next winter to run, however; and it is easily possible to get it done in time. The cellar is already finished, the windows and doors there being all in place and the heating apparatus completed.



PRESENT CONDITION OF CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY DOME.

It is an immense structure that is slowly assuming shape east of the capitol, and when finished it will be one of the handsomest buildings in Washington, as it should be to house what is destined to be one of the largest and most important libraries in the world. The dome, which will be finished this summer, will be a prominent feature. The iron skeleton, both for the dome itself and the lantern which is to surmount it, is now nearly all in position. The outside surface will be of copper and is to be gilded. There will be a balustrade about the base of the dome and also about the lantern, making safe and convenient outlooks for visitors. The height of the lantern will be on a level with the base of the dome on the capitol, so that the view in that direction will be shut off, but in all other directions it will be unimpeded.

Beneath the dome is to be the great reading room of the library. It will be a rotunda with a diameter of 100 feet, or 140 feet including the alcoves outside the columns. The arrangements for lighting this vast room are calculated with such nicety that it is said there will not be a shadow cast anywhere within its limits. The whole building indeed is to be exceptionally well lighted if the number of windows is any indication. Of these there are to be 1,500 when the structure is completed, and there will be no necessity for any one spoiling his eyes while studying the 800,000 or more books at present contained in the library or the future millions that are expected to be placed there. On the basis of the library's growth in the past calculations have been made which show that the new building ought to meet the requirements of the next century, and if the shelves are not overcrowded before that time we may safely leave the question of future extensions to some coming generation.

Euclid Items.

From our regular correspondent.

Euclid's streets during the day time, looks rather lonesome these days—evenings are the busy times.

Most of the wheat sown is up and in a very few days fields will look green.

Mr. I. W. C. Misner and family who started last week for their old home at Fond du Lac, Wis., on account of Mrs. Misner's health, arrived there all right. Mr. Misner will return in a few weeks, but Mrs. Misner and the family will remain for the summer.

Dr. Chapin after attending a series of hen lectures delivered by Prof. C. E. Misner of Crookston, has decided to go into the poultry business on a large scale—office hours 9 a. m. to seven p. m. at the hen coop.

Euclid township has just received a car load of 3-inch plank for bridge and culvert purposes.

> "The needs are many and the planks few,
> Judging from the great amount of work there is to do."
> TENNYSON.

Miss Lillie Losey is now a schoolmarm having started her school at Keystone Monday morning. Euclid is deserving of a pension for the great number of school teachers she has furnished Polk county.

Miss Ollie Currie is also teaching her first term of school at the little white school house in Belgium.

Miss Hattie Davidson of Keystone has returned to school at Crookston. Her mother Mrs. Wm. Davidson having fully recovered from her attack of fever.

Miss Tena Tiedt of Argyle is down, visiting friends and renewing old acquaintance—if one gets a dose of Euclid it is Euclid forever—"There is no place like home."

Albert Vine, the P. D. Amour of Crookston is again looking after his cusomers hereabouts, everybody, even to the dogs, look for his coming and know the good quality of his meat.

The threads of fungus which flourish upon the roots of oaks and beeches surrounded by decaying leaf mold turn the latter into nourishment for the trees, and the seedlings of the trees are unable to grow amid such surroundings without the aid of the fungi.

Mistake, Mistaken.

The use of this word seems to be so anomalous as to need some inquiry and explanation.

I may be mistaken, for I continually make mistakes. But when shown to have been mistaken I own myself in error. Yet, if I am mistaken, is it not the error of him who mistakes me? But it may be that I am right and that he is mistaken, though I suppose that I ought to take him aright and not mistake him. Nevertheless I often have to say in argument: "You were quite right. I was mistaken."

In a word, though he who mistakes must be in error, our common use of language considers him who is mistaken to be so.—Notes and Queries.

Two Things Without Patents.

The floating dock and the typewriter are among the many important inventions that were hit upon by men who have made no attempt to patent their ideas. A photographer conceived the idea of the floating dock before the device was perfected and put to practical use, and a naval officer thought out a practical typewriter, but was persuaded by friends to abandon his invention as a thing that nobody could be induced to use.—New York Sun.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 15th, 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Anne J. Ose deceased:

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Anne J. Ose deceased, late of said County, has been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Edward P. Manson has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things that said Anne J. Ose died in said county, on the 19th day of April 1893, testate, and that petitioner is the executor named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to Edward P. Manson.

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston, in said county, on Tuesday the 13th day of June A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 15th day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[5-7]

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.
HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention.
Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday,
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c@20c
Eggs, per dozen	12½c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	65c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	60.
1 Northern	57.

'Round Home.

Revs. Squier and Smith went to Detroit this week.

R. A. Wilkinson was up from St. Paul on Tuesday.

A. C. Wilkinson was over at East Grand Forks last week.

The Crookston Belle—Kœppe's new cigar, is as fine as silk. Try it.

Wall paper from 5c. to $2.00 per roll at Schmidt's 2nd street. [4-6]

Do not miss the bargains at the
NEW YORK STORE.

The Queen City band has a leader at last and will come to the front in its usual good style.

Get your job work done at the JOURNAL office. Latest styles, all of modern improvements.

The Great Northern will sell round trip tickets to Chicago on Mondays and Thursdays at $32.55.

L. L. Blood & Co's ready mixed paint a pure lead and oil paint at A. C. Schmidt 2nd street. [4-6]

Mrs. O. J. Barnes, who has been quite ill with typhoid fever, is reported convalescent.

Money to loan. Farm and city lots for sale. Please call at R. R. V. Loan and Investment Co., Opera Block, Crookston Minn.

Wall paper, paints, oils, glass room and picture moulding, largest assortment in the city. A. C. Schmidt, 2nd street. [4-6]

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county, Sano, sure cure for piles. I. O. O. F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [39-tf]

Before buy any paper, you will make no mistake by looking over my fine line of pressed papers, finest goods ever brought to the northwest, no trouble to show goods. A. C. Schmidt, 2nd street. [4-6]

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

If you are looking for a snap in farms call and look over that bargain that the Red River Land and investment Company offers in another column. A good improved farm all ready for business at about the bare cost of improvements is a snap not to picked up every day. For full particulars call on or address August George, Opera house block.

The more Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used the better it is liked. We know of no other remedy that always gives satisfaction. It is good when you first catch cold. It is good when your cough is seated and your lungs are sore. It is good in any kind of a cough. We have sold twenty-five dozen of it and every bottle has given satisfaction. Stedl man & Friedman, druggists, Minnesota Lake, Minn. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, druggist-Crookston, Minn.

Feed at oat meal mill.

School closes for the long vacation on Friday. Commencement exercises on June 7th.

Choice family wines at the California wine house. (5-tf)

J. P. Johnson, of McIntosh, assigned last week. Too much credit business.

Andrew Nelson was over from Grand Forks last Saturday looking up business in his line.

Feed at oat meal mill.

E. J. Loken left for Baldwin, Wis., on Monday evening, called there by the death of his father.

You can get anything you want in the tinware line at T. H. Bjoin's opera house hardware store.

Joe Koelmel and family left for Wabasha on Sunday evening where Joe will engage in business.

Chris. Houston sowed wheat with a broad-cast seeder during both days of the wind-storm last week.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Mrs. Andrew Locken died on Tuesday morning at 1 o'clock, of consumption. Funeral today at 10 o'clock.

Little Fannie Copeland, who has been ill for the past eight weeks, is able to be up a little and is slowly improving.

Frank Cernousek was in from Tabor on Tuesday. Says the wheat is nearly all sowed in that vicinity and most of the oats.

C. S. Rogers, president of the Northwestern Cordage Co. committed suicide at St. Paul last Friday by jumping off the high bridge.

W. C. Andrew, Wright, Barrett & Stilwell's traveling man, was interviewing the newspaper boys in the city on Monday.

The JOURNAL is informed that Superintendent J. B. Copeland is quite ill with rheumatism at Seattle, and homesick to be back again in old Polk county.

Harry Norrie tried his luck with the festive fish on Monday afternoon. Although he trolled faithfully for steen hours he never caught a bite.

George McLean, Jr., came up from St. Paul last week with a lot of flower plants to sell and so popular is George that he sold out the whole calabash in a trifle less than no time at all.

At and below cost, my big and well assorted line of Dry Goods, Clothing and Boots and Shoes.
NEW YORK STORE,
A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

B. C. Jorgenson informs the JOURNAL that he will sow 160 acres of wheat this week. He does not really like the idea of sowing wheat so late, but has the land and has no other use for it so will try the experiment this time.

The strike on the Great Northern gravel train last week was not successful and the result was that some of the boys were out of a job as the company found no trouble in getting all the men they required at $1.25 per day.

Dr. M. Leguee is kept on the go day and night attending to the wants of the equine family. Everybody in Polk county knows Doc, and when anything whatever gets to ailing a horse, nothing to do but what Mike must come and attend to it.

Notwithstanding the late start the prospects are that the seeding will all be done as early this year as last, if not earlier. Everything will probably be finished by the 8th or 10th of June, while last year some were seeding as late as June 17th.

Rudy Burkhardt is putting the Cleveland house in elegant shape for the summer business. Is putting down a new floor in the dining room, has papered it thoroughly and will use the paint brush freely. Rudy is bound to have things nice and slick.

Hicks was not so far out of the way on his predictions for May, although in this locality we have as yet had none of the cyclones he predicted, we have had rain enough to bother a good bit and two days of good solid wind-storm, but by comparison with other parts of the United States, we have every reason to be thankful. We read of cyclones, of water-spouts and all kinds of ugly storms elsewhere, such as we have not experienced here.

Feed at oat meal mill.

John Barnhardt lost $40.00 during the big wind on Friday.

Those rooms need papering. Let S. A. Wallace figure on the paper. Medical hall. [6tf]

A big stock of paints, oils, glass, putty, sash and doors at T. H. Bjoin's hardware store.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

John Amundson received 34 assignments of mortgage to record from the Northwestern Guaranty Loan company on Tuesday.

During the gale on Friday a tar barrel blew off the McKinnon block striking on the sidewalk in front of Gervais & Gervais.

If you want a cook stove, get prices on the famous Charter Oak stove at T. H. Bjoin's. The best is always the cheapest.

Stork Anderson has been duly appointed dog-catcher for the ensuing term.

Look out for the Peter Baker farce comedy company on the evening of June 1st.

L. B. Benson, of Erskine, visited his brother Judge Benson last week, returning on Saturdays delayed train.

Joe Gauche has his seeding all completed except barley. He says however that he knows of lots of farmers who have not finished their wheat sowing yet nor will they be able to this week.

Matron Streeter, of the county hospital lost two $10 bills one day last week. A. M. Childs found a $10 bill in front of the post-office and returned it to her.

The best time to paint that house or barn is when you can buy your paints as cheap as you can right now of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. It will pay you to look this up. [6tf]

Farmers, bring your dressed hogs during the summer months to the Crookston Packing House and we will tell you the truth how you can realize the most money out of them.
[4-11] ROBERT STANTON.

H. C. Misner received a letter from Mr. George Easbey who is taking in the World's Fair on his way home from Pennsylvania. He advises taking plenty of shirts and pocket handkerchiefs with you to Chicago and says the fair is a wonderful study.

I am handling the famous "Zenipli" wall plaster, same as used in the new county jail. Get prices for this plaster, also cement, lime etc.
W. H. NORRIE.

D. D. Horton, of Maple Bay, was in the city last Friday and informed the JOURNAL that the people of Maple Bay were planning to have the biggest kind of a Fourth of July celebration at the lake. There will be boat racing, tub racing, horse racing and athletic sports of all kinds. The grand feature of the day will be the boat racing. Mr. Horton will let the people know more about it through the JOURNAL.

Wm. Anglim returned from the World's fair on Monday morning well pleased with what he had seen, although he says the big show is not quite ready yet. He says the stories of extortionate charges are largely fakes and he don't believe there are half as many cases as reported. He thinks about September will be the best time to go as then everything will be in full running order and the weather will not be so hot as in midsummer. It is rather too early to see it all now.

Thursday and Friday of last week were days to be remembered as the very windiest of the season. "De win' it blow a hurrican; bimeby she blow some more," for forty-eight hours with an intensity never before equalled. While not so much work could be done as on quiet days, yet farmers kept right on seeding just the same—some even using broadcast seeders. The wind storm was followed by a rain storm and a fine drizzling rain prevailed all day Sunday, but on Monday morning the sun shone out bright and clear and everybody was ready to resume seeding.

The loss of a fine healthy Hogg on Friday, may not affect the supply of pork for the county jail this fall, but it cost jailor Grundysen his position. It seems that when he entered the corrider to remove the dinner dishes, one of the prisoners, Hogg, managed to step out and lock the door on Knute and darting out into the jail-yard lit out for freedom—and up to date of present writing he has had it. When last seen he was going north on the N. P. railroad and although Knute succeeded in freeing himself and procuring a horse started in pursuit very soon, the prisoner had disappeared as effectually as though the earth had opened and swallowed him up. The moral of this is that the new county jail should be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible so as to avoid all such escapades. The officials have done their best to keep such prisoners as have been entrusted to their care, but with the facilities at their command this would seem to be impossible to do. If the new jail was ready it would be within the range of human possibilities to keep prisoners in it.

Dr. Watson drove in from Red Lake Falls on Monday.

The street sprinkler was getting in its work on Tuesday.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

W. H. Norrie went down to Fosston on Saturday to corral several car-loads of wood.

Chas. Hurst and wife are over from East Grand Forks visiting relatives and friends this week.

Alderman & Sylvester have been putting down a new sidewalk on Fletcher street along side their hardware store.

John Locken and wife returned from a trip south on Saturday. The trip does not seem to have benefitted him as much as his friends could wish.

Miss Beaudry who was with Mrs. E. E. Bangs, has engaged with Mrs. I. U. Jennings for the season. She is an expert trimmer.

Halvor Steenerson went up to Hallock on Tuesday to see about some liquor cases in which he is interested as counsel.

Any style of pattern in wall paper and any price you want you will find at Medical hall. You can save money by allowing S. A. Wallace to quote you prices. [6tf]

The celebration of the completion of the Great Northern road, which is to be held in St. Paul in June bids fair to be held an immense affair. Crookston will be right in it.

Tom Newby, of Ada, a horse trainer of long experience, will make Crookston his headquarters for the future and be prepared to train trotters for any who think they have anything smart.

The Northern Pacific will make a rate of one fare for the round trip to St. Paul during to the Hill celebration and reciprocity convention. Tickets good till June 11th.

If it's wall paper you want don't fail to see S. A. Wallace's large and complete stock. Prices the lowest on record, this spring. At Medical hall. [6-tf]

Senator Burkhardt came up from Wabasha last week to look after his business interests in this city, returning home on Sunday evening. While here he arranged with W. H. Norrie to handle his lime at this point.

Frank Hutchinson while sawing wood at Norrie's wood yard on Tuesday got too familiar with the buzz saw and the result was some badly mangled fingers on the left hand.

Tom Torgerson came down from Erskine on Tuesday evening's train. He reports seeding nearly all done in his locality and the wheat most all up and stooling out nicely under the influence of this cool weather.

S. L. Collins & Co. received a carload of Champion binders and mowers on Tuesday and are now prepared to supply the wants of farmers in that line. The Champion, you know, is the leading machine of the country.

If you are going to paint that house or barn this year it will pay you to get prices on paints of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. [6-tf]

Carl Rauk, the North Dakota giant, spent Tuesday night in our city. Mr. Rauk stands 6 feet 7 inches high in his stocking feet and weighs 482 pounds. He is assessor in Belmont, Trail Co., where he lives and if the taxes are as large in proportion as the assessor is they must be immense.

Another invoice of goods, comprising flowers, and different colors in Leghorn hats for ladies and misses was received by Mrs. I. U. Jennings on Tuesday. Her large trade this spring made it necessary for her to order a large addition to her spring and summer goods.

On Tuesday evening the petit jurors began to arrive and that with the witnesses and principals in the various suits now on trial before the term of court filled every hotel to over-flowing and our streets on Tuesday evening presented a very lively appearance.

St. Paul is making extensive preparations to celebrate the opening of the Great Northern as a transcontinental line. The parade of floats and industries in which cities of the Northwest and Pacific Coast will take part will be the most imposing affair ever seen in the northwest. St. Paul is building arches across the principal streets, and the city will be elaborately decorated. The Great Northern makes a half rate from here to St. Paul and return. Tickets good between June 6th and 11th. [6-7]

DR PRICE'S
Cream Baking Powder.
The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.
Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

Freaks of the Wind Storm.

The residence of Joseph Beaudette, at Gentilly, was unroofed during the wind storm of Friday.

The wind storm of Friday took Woodham's porch on top of his house and left it high and dry.

The Scandinavian hotel sign was taken down, howbeit Westerberg didn't intend to go out of the business for all that.

A chimney on W. W. Fegan's residence was blown down.

The granary of E. Lanctot, near Gentilly, was moved several feet—not otherwise injured.

Harry Norrie lost part of his wood-yard sign. Several fires were started on his wood yard from sparks from railroad engines and his own.

The grand stand on the trotting park was blown down.

Chief Gonyea was awakened in the night by his chimney falling. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Alderman Marlette says: "If you see or hear of any extra houses scattered about by the storm they all belong in Carman."

The Great Northern train was delayed five hours on Saturday morning by the high winds. Trains on the branches were consequently late in starting out.

Rauenbuehler's barn, near Heidrick's place, was blown down.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending May 20th, 1893.

Johnson, Julius G.
Malmaasen Marit
White Joe Mrs.
Lee C. T.
Slitty H. S.
Warner Hanna

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised:
WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Crookston Business College.

Arrangements will be made for a summer term of from six to ten weeks if a sufficient number of pupils can be secured. Bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, the common branches and penmanship will be taught, the special feature being penmanship; low rates. Prof. Knudson of Grand Forks College, or Prof. J. M. Latham of Decatur, (Ill.) Business University will assist me in conducting this special term. If you are interested please notify me as soon as convenient.
[5-7] BENJ. A. STRAWBRIDGE.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Central house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.
[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

Reciprocity Convention at St. Paul June 5th to 9th.

The Great Northern makes a rate of $8.77 for the round trip. See W. W. Fegan, agent, Crookston for further information regarding dates of sale and limit of tickets. (4-6)

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $32.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th. C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

The second International Reciprocity Convention meets in St. Paul, Minn., June 5th and 6th. Distinguished speakers will be present from all parts of the United States and Canada. The Great Northern makes a round trip, of one fare between Crookston and St. Paul. For further particulars see W. W. Fegan, agent. [6-7]

"Brace Up"

Is a tantalizing admonition to those who at this season feel all tired out, weak, without appetite and discouraged. But the way in which Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up the tired frame and gives a good appetite, is really wonderfull. So we say, "Take Hood's and it will brace you up."

For a general family cathartic we confidently recommend Hood's Pills.

Swedish Lutheran Jubilee.

Northern Pacific make reduced rates to Minneapolis, for the Swedish Lutheran Jubilee Festival, to be held at Minneapolis, May 22nd and 23rd, we make rate of fare and one-third on certificate plan, provided there are one hundred or more in attendance, who have paid full fare on the going trip.
C. A. SHARKEY,
Agent.

One day last week Pat Russell and several others got into a discussion as to how many shells could be put into a Winchester shot gun, and to demstrate the point Pat took Will Peterson's shot gun and filled the chamber and then commenced to work the lever to throw them out. He got along all right until a shell caught and the hammer dropped, exploding the thing and sending a charge of shot through the floor pretty close to the toes of the bystanders all of whom thought for a moment that he had got it in the hoof. Was Pat scart? Well, we should remark!

The pastor of the Congregational church is preparing for a Memorial service next Sunday evening. All soldiers and their friends are invited. The service will begin at 8 p. m.

Frank Farnam and C. C. Bartlett joined the Sons of Vets on Tuesday evening.

Levi Myers is up from the west side this week on business before the court.

J. W. Galloway came down from Fosston on Saturday evening—the advance guard of the army in the tar and feather case.

Col. Stadsvold and A. Kaiser were among the Fosston people in the city yesterday.

Attorney Averill of Fosston came in yesterday from Winona, where he was summoned last week by the sudden illness of his mother. When he left home she was improving.

That flower toque at Mrs. I. U. Jennings' is the admiration of the ladies. It is a poet's dream, composed of evergreens and trailing arbutus. Every lady wants one.

The G. A. R. Post has completed arrangements for the Memorial Day exercises. Elsewhere in this issue will be found the program.

Nels Anderson was brought before Commissioner Christianson on Tuesday, charged with selling whisky to Indians. He was defended by Judge Averill, Fosston.

A. Hougerud was brought before U. S. Commissioner, C. O. Christianson, on Tuesday, charged with attempt to sell whisky to Indians.

Gus Holt came down from Fosston on Tuesday evening. Business at court. By the way it strikes us that pretty nearly all of Fosston's citizens are in the city this week.

OPERA HOUSE
Hardware Store,
T. H. BJOIN, Prop.
SHELF AND HEAVY—
Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,
SASH AND DOORS.
In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and
—THE PRICES LOW.
Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.
T. H. BJOIN.

RED RIVER VALLEY LOAN AND INVESTMENT
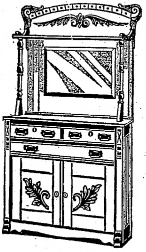
COMPANY.
MONEY TO LOAN
ON REAL ESTATE.
FARMS AND LANDS
For Sale in nearly all the Towns of Polk County.
CITY LOTS
In Crookston and Thief River Falls.
List your Lands and Lots with us and effect quick sales.
OFFICE IN OPERA HOUSE BLOCK.
A. G. GALLASCH, Pres.
J. W. WHEELER, Vice Pres.
W. H. MATHEWS, 1st Vice Pres.
A. F. GEORGE, Sec.
O. H. LUCKEN, Treasurer.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1893. NO. 7



$19.50.

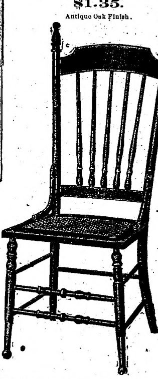
Solid Oak,
Large Glass,
Plush-lined Drawers.

8-ft. Oak Table,
42x42, only
$7.90.

Crookston Furniture Co.

FURNITURE, CARPETS.
BURIAL SUPPLIES.

$1.35.
Antique Oak Finish.



OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor..........Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor..........David M. Clough.
Secretary of State..........F. P. Brown.
Attorney General..........H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist...Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist..........E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.....John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District..........Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court..........Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor..........C. U. Webster
Treasurer..........J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds..........John Amundson
Attorney..........A. R. Holston
Sheriff..........Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate..........C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools..........A. A. Lommen
Surveyor..........O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r..........W. H. Averill
Coroner..........Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District..........John E. Oppegaard
Second District..........Anton Linden
Third District..........M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District..........C. P. Demers
Fifth District..........A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Buffington
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron.	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetla
Lowell,	Ole Christiansou,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson.	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $32.55, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Crookston Business College.

Arrangements will be made for a summer term of from six to ten weeks if a sufficient number of pupils can be secured. Bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, the common branches and penmanship will be taught, the special feature being penmanship; low rates. Prof. Knudson of Grand Forks College, or Prof. J. M. Latham of Decatur, (Ill.) Business University will assist me in conducting this special term. If you are interested please notify me as soon as convenient.

[5-7] BENJ. A. STRAWBRIDGE.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $32.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

The second International Reciprocity Convention meets in St. Paul, Minn., June 5th and 6th. Distinguished speakers will be present from all parts of the United States and Canada. The Great Northern makes a round trip, of one fare between Crookston and St. Paul. For further particulars see W. W. Fegan, agent.
■[6-7]

If you are looking for a snap in farms call and look over that bargain that the Red River Land and Investment Company offers in another column. A good improved farm all ready for business at about the bare cost of improvements is a snap not to picked up every day. For full particulars call on or address August George, Opera house block.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

DISTRICT COURT.

The Doings of the Court and Grand Jury During the Past Week.

The Grand Jury Bring in their Report and are Discharged by the Judge

Several More or Less Important Cases Disposed of by the Court.

WEDNESDAY, May 24th.

The petit jury came in this morning, and the first case to occupy their attention was that of G. C. Winchester vs Fritz Melloh: H. Steenerson for plaintiff and Lewis E. Jones, of St. Paul, represented the defendant. Mr. Winchester, through his agent Montgomery, of Angus, having a chattel mortgage on Melloh's crop, besides a book account at his store in Angus claimed to have loaned Melloh in the spring of '91, a shoe seeder worth $80 or $125 to put in his crop in good shape, it being set out that grain sown broadcast the year before was blown out of the ground, so he would stand a better chance of getting his money on the mortgage. He afterward sold his securities to E. Taylor & Co., of Euclid, and made a settlement with Melloh's attorney Jones. Melloh kept the seeder a year or more and Montgomery demanded that something be done about it. Melloh claimed to him that the drill was paid for at the time of settlement, for Jones told him so. As it was not entered on any of the accounts against Melloh, consequently not settled for, Montgomery brought replevin suit in justice court for the possession of the seeder and the case was there decided in his favor. Brer Jones fearing St. Paul would be unwilling to greet him with commendation, resolved to appeal to the district court and win it there. This case occupied the whole day. One of the plaintiff's witnesses, Mr. Fred Stroble, a G. A. R. man, being cross-examined by the defense, knowing Mr. Jones was from the south, (St. Paul,) and the fighting blood of rebellion days being yet warm in his veins, and somewhat mistaking counsel's motives, answered "You can't come up here and bulldoze me," and rather requested that the counsel come outside with him for a while. Thus ended the third round. Honors easy. No blood drawn.

The grand jury brought in indictments as follows: McKonkey, assault in first degree; Isaac Orvick is indicted for assault in third degree, striking Lars Peterson with a club. Trial set for June 1st.

Joe Gervais, East Grand Forks, for assault on Germain Laurence.

Ole Anderson, grand larceny second degree, the crime being that of stealing 46 bushels of wheat from one Martha Anderson. Sam Hogg, grand larceny in the first degree. This Hogg was in jail but broke a few days ago.

W. T. Rogers and Chas. Rogers will leave the hotel Grundysen as the grand jury failed to find any good reason for the county boarding them any longer, although Chas. was put in there because they said he did not play a straight game.

THURSDAY MORNING.

After due deliberation the jury brought in a verdict in the case of G. C. Winchester vs Melloh, giving the defendant the right of possession of the seeder, or in case possession could not be had the sum of $80.

The next case called was that of S. S. Simpson, of Iowa, vs Garlef Von der Beck, of Euclid. The case excited a good deal of interest, and consumed all of Thursday and till Friday afternoon in the trial. The evidence, or rather testimony, is voluminous. The defendant, Von der Beck, has been a tenant on one-half section of land in the town of Euclid for the plaintiff for seven years, beginning in 1885. Although somewhat of an iron clad contract, it was entered into for three years at first. At the expiration of that time it was verbally agreed from year to year that Von der Beck should remain on the land. He remained there till the spring of '92. The plaintiff now brings suit to recover damages to the amount of $1013; plaintiff claiming that the defendant violated the contract in not summer fallowing the number of acres, and not fall ploughing the number of acres yearly, and not leaving the buildings and land in as good condition, usual wear and tear allowed, as when received by him, as the contract called for, and allowing mustard to spread over the farm.

An attempt was made by the plaintiff to impeach the testimony of defendant, but judging by the verdict it proved a fizzle.

FRIDAY, May 26th.

The Simpson-Von der Beck case was resumed this morning and given to the jury at three o'clock this afternoon. After a few hours reconciling and weighing the evidence the jury filed funeral like into the court room again and declared they had agreed upon a verdict, which when read by the clerk was, "We the jury find for the defendant and assess his damages at one (1) dollar. A. A. Miller counsel for plaintiff and Wm. Watts counsel for defendant.

The Walter A. Wood Machine Co., through its attorney Wm. Watts, brought suit against Peter Cornelius on two promissory notes, $40 each being two of a series of three notes given for a self-binder. This was the next case on docket and was taken up in the afternoon. The usual plea of unsatisfactory work was the defense, and it was strong enough in the minds of 12 tired and true men to give a verdict for the defendant. H. Steenerson and E. M. Stanton, attorneys for defendant.

SATURDAY MORNING.

The chattel mortgage continues to cut as big a figure as ever. The next case for trial was that of Henry Rodman and Edward L. Wichterman vs Lewis Wadekemper. P. G. Falardeau, of Red Lake Falls, for plaintiff and Chas. E. Boughton, Red Lake Falls and Wm. Watts for the defendant.

It is claimed by Wadekemper that in the fall and winter 91-92 Louis Albert owed him the sum of $500 to secure which he took notes of Albert for that amount, notes secured by a chattel mortgage on 55 acres of grain to be grown on nw¼, 23 township 150 in summer 92; and also on some other personal property, mules, cows, etc. This mortgage was dated Jan. 5th, 1892. During the same winter and spring Albert was indebted to Wichterman in the sum of $175 and to satisfy this he gave Wichterman a mortgage dated April 25th, 1892, on the crop on the same nw¼ 23, Tp 150. Then on the 20th of July, Wichterman gave a mortgage on the same crop to H. Rodman for $195.

Wadekemper foreclosed on his mortgage about Nov. 1st last, a few days before his notes were due, selling the pair of mules, cows, bobsled, etc. And nothing is credited on Albert's chattel mortgage to him. Wadekemper claims that it took it all and $14 and some cents out of his own pocket to pay the expense of foreclosing. The intricacies of the chattel mortgage system and the rights of the litigants in this case were turned over to the jury early in the afternoon. They soon returned with a verdict for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $191.71.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

John McLennan, of Angus, vs Minneapolis & Northern Elevator company and W. Leman, Edward George counsel for plaintiff and A. A. Miller for defendant. Plaintiff claims that he had hauled wheat to the defendant's elevator, two loads of which he never received any return for. The case was given to the jury at half past five with directions to bring in a sealed verdict on Monday morning. Adjourned.

The grand jury brought in further indictments since Wednesday against John L. Yoeman, Jens Hanson and Oscar Olson, of Fosston, for assault in the 3rd degree. These are the young men who are charged with tarring and feathering Dick Big Bird and Solomon Blue, two Indians, at Fosston last March. Whether they were implicated in the outrage or not, there is no doubt they were not the instigators, and the really guilty parties will likely escape punishment. Possibly they thought they were doing a humane act by sticking a few feathers on poor "Bird" as the weather was quite cool about that time. They pleaded guilty and their counsel made a pathetic appeal to the court to act with leniency in imposing the fine upon them. The judge took the matter under consideration.

The grand jury dismissed Carl Nash who was charged with assault.

Adjourned till Monday at 9 a. m.

MONDAY, MAY 29TH.

Ole Anderson who was convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, stealing wheat from one Mrs. Anderson near Fisher, and who pleaded guilty of the crime charged, was brought before the court and sentenced to the state reformatory at St. Cloud, there to be held till discharged by due course of law.

In the case of John McLennan vs Minneapolis & N. Ele. Co. and W. Leman, the jury brought in a sealed verdict for the plaintiff and assessed the damages at $145. Defendant asked for 90 days stay of proceedings.

The next case was that of Gerard Palen and Leon Wichterman vs J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co. John R. McKinnon and A. R. Holston, H. Steenerson as counsel for McKinnon and Holston. In August '91 McKinnon, as agent for the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co. sold Palen and Wichterman, a threshing machine for $2100, taking notes and chattel mortgage to secure same. Payment to the amount of about $300 was made in the first note, and later on extension of one year was granted plaintiffs on their executing, or promising to execute, deeds on their respective farms to further secure payment, and the payment for two belts which it is claimed plaintiffs converted to their use. Palen executed his deed, witnessed by one witness only and delivered same to A. R. Holston. Wichterman failed to deliver his deed. McKinnon settled with J. I. Case Co. and severed his connection with it as agent in January last, retaining ownership of the chattel mortgage on the machine. He foreclosed the mortgage on this machine and took possession of same. Plaintiff brings suit to enjoin him from foreclosing the mortgage on the farms.

The defendant moved the court to give judgment on the pleadings. The court took the matter under advisement.

The case of J. E. O'Brien & Co. vs Wm. Findelson was dismissed, so also was that of August Kalle vs Christina Halvorson and Axel Wahlstrom.

The case of Aultman Taylor & Co. vs John Ellington was continued by consent.

The case of Ulric Boudoin vs Munn Bros.—A. C. Wilkinson and D. Hatlestadt counsels for plaintiff and Wm. Watts counsel for defendants—was taken up next.

The plaintiff worked for the defendants from March 12th, 1888 to Dec. 1890 under a continued verbal contract for a certain amount per month for 8 months and then for the months of January, February, March and April of each year a smaller amount, defendants claiming that the agreed price was to be continued the same the year around. The case was given to the jury about three o'clock.

A PREMIUM ON PROMPTNESS.

Court convened at 1:30 p. m.

Peter Cornelius being one of the jurymen on the above case was ten minutes late at roll call, and the counsels agreed to go on with the eleven jurymen. When Peter put in his appearance some evidence had been introduced during his absence; so he was called to give answer if he knew the time of adjournment, to which he answered "yes." His honor ordered the clerk to deduct one day's wages from his pay while in attendance at court.

The jury brought in a verdict in the Boudoin-Munn case for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $176.80.

Messrs. Yeoman, Hansen and Olson, the Fosston tar-and-feather gentlemen were fined $40 each by the court.

The case of J. P. Johnson & Co. vs Ole J. Vaule et al, Montague & Bucklin counsel for plaintiff and O. J. Vaule and Wm. Watts counsel for defendants, came next in order. This was a replevin suit brought by plaintiff to recover some lumber. The plaintiff offered in evidence a copy of the chattel mortgage which was claimed covered this lumber, and as it did not bear evidence of the notorial seal it was objected to by plaintiff. The objection was sustained and the plaintiff moved to dismiss the case. The motion was granted and judgment ordered for return of the property described in the complaint and case return of property can not be had the sum of $115.

The grand jury having returned a presentment against F. J. Duffy, publisher of the East Grand Forks Courier, for perjury, the matter was argued before Judge Ives, and was taken under consideration till Wednesday.

An indictment was returned against John J. Kinkenberg, Woodside for the destruction of property. Jos. Lajamb was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree; the charge being that of taking $298.38 worth of school property in district 103. The grand jury brought in ten or twelve other indictments. No further business required the attention of the grand jury the court thanked them for their promptness and dispatch in performing their duty and discharged them. Court adjourned until Wednesday morning 9 a. m.

After adjournment the deputy and janitor tore up the beautiful (?) carpet which has done service on the court room floor for years, and will give the floor a bath.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Court called at 9 a. m.

In the case of Gerard Palen and Leon Wichterman vs J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co., John R. McKinnon and A. R. Holston. The court granted the motion of the defendant, McKinnon, for judgment on the pleadings.

The criminal calendar was then taken up. A. Gilmour and Ole Bjorgo druggists at McIntosh, both of whom were indicted by grand jury for selling intoxicating liquors without license, were fined $50 each.

The first criminal case taken up for trial was that of State vs Joe Gervais indicted for attempting to bite off the left ear of one Germain St. Lawrence, of East Grand Forks, in Aug. 1892. John M. Cochrane, of Grand Forks, and Ed. George counsels for the defendant. The jury was drawn and the case commenced at 11:30.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY.

To Hon. Frank Ives, Judge 14th Judicial District:

We the grand jury in session, this 29th day of May, A. D. 1893, report and recommend as follows:

We have examined the county jail and find that the one window of the lower part of the jail should have steel netting or wire placed on the inside of the windows to prevent parties on the outside passing tools or weapons through to the prisoners. Also that no visitor should be allowed in the corridor of the jail unless there be a jailor or guard present.

We find the outer walls of the court house and the roof of the same in bad shape, and recommend that the same be repaired and the loosened bricks replaced in the walls securely.

We find that the water closets are inadequate and we recommend that suitable accommodations be provided. Also that carpet or matting be provided for the court room, and that iron shelving be provided in the safety vaults for the accommodation of books and papers. We also recommend that the court house be heated by steam from the county jail and that sewer connection be made with the city sewer as soon as possible. That the inside walls of the court house be repaired and that the wood work be oiled or painted and additional seats be provided in the court room where necessary.

JAS. E. MORRISEY,
Foreman.

Special Sleeper to St. Paul.

The Great Northern will run a special sleeper from here to St. Paul next Tuesday evening to accommodate the Crookston delegation to the Hill celebration. Berths can be engaged immediately. First come, first served.

Northern Pacific Half Rates.

For the Second International Reciprocity Convention, to be held in St. Paul, June 5th and 6th; for this occasion the Northern Pacific railroad, has make rate to St. Paul and return, at lowest rate one way first class fare, for the round trip, on sale June 5th. Tickets good until June 11th.

C. A. SHARKEY, Agent.

Lost Strayed or Stolen.

From the residence of the undersigned on section 8, town of Crookston, about 10 o'clock Sunday evening, May 28th, 1893, one male boy of the masculine gender, about 3 feet 9 inches high in his stocking feet. When last visible to the naked eye said boy had on a dark complexion, light (out) eyes and brown hair. A suitable reward will be paid everybody who finds him if they will (not) return him to C. SNYDER.

Money to Loan

On city property, business and dwelling—at 6½ per cent per annum. For full particulars call on P. J. Russell, 25 and 26 Reckitt block, Crookston, Minn. [47tf]

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

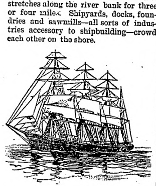
LAST WOODEN SHIPS.

STEEL TO REPLACE TIMBER IN THE YARDS OF BATH, ME.

Fluctuations of the Shipbuilding Industry In the Quaint Old Town—The Biggest Wooden Sailers Contrasted With the Largest Steel Steamers.

They will build no more big wooden sailing ships at Bath, Me., the chief city of timber shipyards in the United States. The biggest yard there has just put in a steel plant, and steel ships will soon be produced. Bath is a shipbuilding city to the core and to the man. It was incorporated as a town in 1780, but ships were built there more than a century and a half ago, and though the industry has sometimes lagged sadly seagoing vessels have been launched from the Bath yards every year since the first keel was laid there.

Its site was fixed upon by its settlers with especial reference to its adaptability to shipbuilding. It is located some miles up the Kennebec, the shores of which between the city and the sea are rugged and abrupt. But at Bath there is not only enough comparatively level ground for a town of some size, but there the river broadens into what seems like a spacious bay extending along the city's front and northward for several miles above it. Bath itself is narrow and stretches along the river bank for three or four miles. Shipyards, docks, foundries and sawmills—all sorts of industries accessory to shipbuilding—crowd each other on the shore.



THE SUSQUEHANNA.

In the old days great fortunes were made out of shipping and shipbuilding in Bath, and the fortunes of the town are still bound up in the same industries, of which there has been a revival during late years. The names of Houghton, Sewal, Patten, Goss, Sawyer, Rogers, Hawley and Donnell, shipbuilders famous in the annals of Bath, are inseparable from the history of marine construction in the United States.

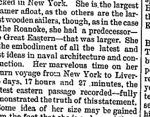
Bath was made a city in 1850. In 1860 her population was 8,076; in 1870, 7,371; in 1880, 7,874 and in 1890, 8,723. These fluctuations corresponded exactly with the condition of American shipbuilding and are in themselves significant. Time was when the majority of the craft launched from the yards of Bath were square rigged, but for some years fore and aft schooners of three and four masts have largely predominated.

Among the largest vessels burned out there are the Susquehanna of 2,728 tons burden and the Roanoke of 3,362. The Roanoke is, in fact, the largest wooden ship afloat, and there is but one larger sailing craft on the ocean—the five masted steel built France. The Roanoke is also the largest American ship ever built but one, the Great Republic, which was launched in 1853.

Notwithstanding the superior size of the Roanoke, she has not so good a record for fast sailing as the Susquehanna, which beat her in a recent trip from New York to San Francisco "around the Horn," the Susquehanna's time being 122 days, while the Roanoke's was 125. Though both are wooden vessels, they are fine specimens of the shipbuilder's art, all the latest ideas being embodied in their construction.

It was but a few days after these ships anchored in San Francisco bay that the Campania, the Cunard line's handsome new steel passenger boat, completed her first transatlantic voyage and was docked in New York. She is the largest steamer afloat, as the others are the largest wooden sailers, though, as in the case of the Roanoke, she had a predecessor—the Great Eastern—that was larger. She is the embodiment of all the latest and best ideas in naval architecture and construction. Her marvelous time on her return voyage from New York to Liver—5 days, 17 hours and 27 minutes, the fastest eastern passage recorded—fully demonstrated the truth of this statement.

Some idea of her size may be gained from the fact that she is as long as three city blocks of 200 feet each with 20 feet to spare. The full complement of her passengers and crew would fill 31 railroad cars of a seating capacity of 50 each, leaving 30 passengers to stand in the aisles. In finish and decoration the Campania and her sister ship the Lucania are so fine as to merit the oft used descriptive term of "floating palaces," and great things are expected of them when they get down to their best work after their machinery shall have worn smooth.



THE CAMPANIA.

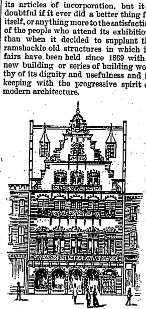
The Paris of the American line bore the ribbon for fast Atlantic voyages before the advent of the Campania on the high seas, but the spirit of competition tore it from her. The same spirit is likely seen to wrest the pennant from the fast Cunard boat, for the White Star line threatens to enter the field with a new ocean racer to be 700 feet long, which they believe will make the transatlantic voyage in less than five days. This ship will be 20 feet longer then the Great Eastern was and will be named the Gigantic.

THOMAS ARLINGTON.

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

It Is Going to Have a Creditable Building in New York at Last.

In the years that have intervened since its organization in 1828 the American institute has certainly done much to "promote and encourage the industrial arts in America," as it declared it would in its articles of incorporation, but it is doubtful if it ever did a better thing for itself, or anything more to the satisfaction of the people who attend its exhibitions than when it decided to supplant the ramshackle old structures in which its fairs have been held since 1869 with a new building or series of building worthy of its dignity and usefulness and in keeping with the progressive spirit of modern architecture.



NEW AMERICAN INSTITUTE BUILDING.

The new building will be erected on the site of the present structures, which cover 40 city lots, and will be in three sections. One of these sections will have a frontage of 50 feet on Third avenue and wings extending to Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets. This will be called Administration building and will contain the library and offices of the institute, besides three large assembly halls and a large number of lodgerooms for renting. The first floor will give entrance from Third avenue to the exhibition hall, and in the basement will be a model kitchen. The front will be of mottled Flemish brick, with antique iron and terra cotta ornaments.

The Administration building is to be 100 feet deep, and to the rear of it will be the great exhibition hall, 304 by 200 feet in size, and back of that will be Machinery hall, 157 by 200 feet, making the mean depth of the structure 610 feet. There will be an extensive gallery at each end of the exhibition hall, and the roof, mainly of glass, will be supported by steel trusses.

The main entrance on Third avenue will have five Roman arches, supported on Doric columns, and there will be another grand entrance at the Second avenue end of the building, besides six fire exits at the sides. The fair next fall will have to be carried on elsewhere, as the old structures will then be demolished and the new one under way.

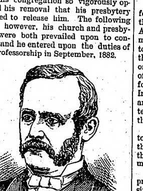
THE NEW MODERATOR.

Dr. Craig, Like His Predecessor, Dr. Young, Is a Kentuckian.

The new moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, the Rev. Willis Green Craig, D. D., was elected as the representative of the conservative element of the assembly, but has been freely commended for his eminent fairness by members who did not vote for him. Like his predecessor in the moderatorship, Dr. W. C. Young, he is a native of Danville, Ky., and was educated at Center college in that town and at Danville Theological seminary.

Dr. Craig graduated from Center college in the class of 1851, when he was not yet 17 years of age, and spent seven years afterward managing a large plantation in association with his brother. He entered the seminary in 1858 and in the spring of 1861 was licensed to preach. His first ministerial connection was with the Westminster Presbyterian church of Keokuk, Ia., where he remained 20 years.

In 1881 he was elected to the chair of Biblical and ecclesiastical history in the Theological Seminary of the Northwest, but his congregation so vigorously opposed his removal that his presbytery refused to release him. The following year, however, his church and presbytery were both prevailed upon to consent, and he entered upon the duties of his professorship in September, 1882.



REV. WILLIS GREEN CRAIG, D. D.

He occupied the chair of church history for nine years and in 1891 was transferred to the chair of didactic and polemic theology made vacant by the resignation of the late Dr. Thomas H. Skinner He still retains his membership in the Iowa presbytery, however, and was sent to the general assembly as a commissioner from that body.

Dr. Craig is in his sixtieth year, but he looks fully 10 years younger. He is a fluent talker, but has a marked accent which betrays his Scotch lineage. He is a cousin of Vice President Stevenson, but has never taken any active interest in political matters.

INDIANS AS JUDGES.

THEY HOLD COURT IN DISTRICTS OF THE RESERVATIONS.

Some of the Penalties They May Impose For Offenses and Their Fees For Performing the Marriage Ceremony—Fines For Vagrancy.

During the recent discussions of Indian affairs reference has been made to the judicial establishments on the reservations. The obstacles to carrying on there a full system of courts will be apparent on reflecting, in the first place, that a large proportion of the Indians are among the five civilized tribes, who have arrangements of their own under the local governments assured to them, and next, that among the remainder there are many thousands who by taking allotments have become citizens and have passed under the jurisdiction of the states and territories where they reside.

However, there is an existing system of Indian courts organized under the regulations of the interior department, while the act of 1885 gave to the United States and territorial courts jurisdiction of crimes committed by Indians upon their reservations. Recently the regulations for the Indian courts proper have been enlarged, so as to make them more efficient. Among the changes in the new regulations is the division of the reservations into districts, with a judge in each, while there is a court in banc for the reservation, having a clerk to keep its records. A reservation may be divided into three or more such districts, following, as far as practicable, county lines, provided that the Indian populations, including mixed bloods and whites, who are members of the tribes, shall be nearly equal in the districts. If there are no county lines, natural boundaries are used, so that the Indians can easily ascertain what districts they belong to.

All the judges are Indians and must be men of intelligence, integrity, good moral character and monogamists, preference being given to those who "read and write English readily, wear citizens' dress and engage in civilized pursuits." They are appointed by the commissioner of Indian affairs for the term of one year, subject of course to earlier removal on proof of misconduct. Each judge must reside in the district and hold court at least one day in each week.

Any Indian engaging in the sun dance, scalp dance or war dance, or any similar feast, so called, shall be punished by withholding his rations for 10 days or less, or by imprisonment for 10 days or less, on the first offense, a second offense bringing not less than 10 nor more than 30 days of withholding rations, or imprisonment.

Plural or polygamous marriages hereafter entered into receive a penalty of $20 to $50, or hard labor for 20 to 60 days, or both, and the forfeit of right to rations while continuing in such relations. Other immorality of like nature is punished. The willful destruction of property of other Indians requires the making up of its value and also 30 days' imprisonment, "and the plea that the person convicted or the owner of the property in question was at the time a 'mourner,' and that thereby the taking, destroying or injuring of the property was justified by the customs or rites of the tribes shall not be accepted as sufficient defense."

Intoxication and the selling of intoxicants are put on the same footing, bringing a penalty of between $20 and $100 or imprisonment between 30 and 90 days. The rounders of the police courts of cities who are accustomed to the $10 or 10 days of civilization might be aghast at the introduction of these penalties. Among the misdemeanors, a neglect or refusal to perform road duty brings a fine of $1.50 for every day omitted or imprisonment for not more than five days. Another noteworthy provision proposed in the new regulations reads as follows:

"That if an Indian refuses or neglects to adopt habits of industry or to engage in civilized pursuits or employments, but habitually spends his time in idleness and loafing, he shall be deemed a vagrant and guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon the first conviction thereof be liable to a fine of not more than $5 or to imprisonment of not more than 10 days, and for any subsequent conviction thereof to a fine of not more than $10 or to imprisonment for not more than 30 days, in the discretion of the court."

This inclusion of vagrancy among offenses punishable by the courts is among the changes in the new regulations. Any one who adopts the practices of medicine men or the arts of the conjurer to prevent Indians from abandoning their barbarous customs is to be imprisoned between 10 and 30 days for the first offense and not more than six months for a subsequent one. The deterring of Indians from following civilized habits and pursuits, or their children from attending schools, is also included under this regulation.

The district court judges have power to solemnize marriages between Indians, the fee for each not exceeding $1, and they are to furnish certificates of such marriages.

The Indian court in general term, comprising all the judges on a reservation, sits at least once a month, and a majority constitutes a quorum, but any judgment to be valid must have the concurrence of a majority of all the judges on the reservation, and upon a failure of such a majority to agree the case must be tried again at a subsequent term. It has jurisdiction in all appeals from the district court and exclusive jurisdiction over all civil cases between Indians and in the administration of their estates.

It will be seen therefore that the Indian courts are of no little inportance, while of course the federal, state and territorial courts also have a jurisdiction which need not be described in detail.—Washington Letter.

Sincere Wishes.

Jones—I'm quite a near neighbor of yours now, Mrs. Golightly. I've taken a house on the river.

Mrs. G.—Oh, well, I hope you'll drop in some day.—Exchange.

A VICTIM OF SPEAKING TUBES.

Sad Fate of a Man of Peace Who Is Situated Midway on a Vocal Route.

There is a man in this town whose work keeps him sitting at his desk all day. He thinks himself fortunately situated, for his employers are considerate in their requirements and liberel in the matter of pay, and his work is enjoyable. The others who work in the same room are busy men. They seldom speak, but when they do have something to say it is of a pleasant nature. His modest home has been all that heart could wish, so far as comfort and contentment go. All these things are sources of grateful satisfaction to him, for he is a man of middle age and is no longer consumed by youthful ambition to possess the unattainable. He is of a placid disposition and is, above everything else, a lover of peace. Thus situated he ought to be one of the happiest of men, but he is not. He is wasting away, the helpless victim of continuous and violent contention.

Close to his desk, inclosed by a thin wooden sheathing, are some tin speaking tubes that run from an upper story of the building to a lower story. These stories contain departments of the same business, and the tubes are in almost constant use. The tubes are cracked at about the altitude of this man's desk, and the wooden sheathing is split in places. The cracks in the tubes give a curious querulous sound to every voice that ascends or descends through them. A feud of long standing exists between the office boys and others who speak from the upper floor and those who speak from the lower story. A pleasant word never ascends or descends. All the harshness of inflection that accompanies the harsh words is strangely multiplied by the cracked condition of the resonant speaking tubes, and this man of naturally peaceable inclinations has to sit and hear it all.

Unfortunately his is a somewhat sensitive and sympathetic nature. It is impossible for him to remain undisturbed when this continuous war of words is going on through the speaking tubes. A provocative voice from above causes him to side with the floor far beneath him, and the reply that comes up grieves him, and he thinks that the upper floor has been assailed with unpardonable violence. Then there is a rattling exchange of warlike expressions in angry tones—made more angry to the ear by the cracked speaking tubes—and the man of peace groans and sighs for the quiet of a lodge in some vast wilderness. He has heard these savage exchanges so long and so continually that his conception as to the sound of the male human voice is like that which comes to his ears through these diabolical speaking tubes.

This has been going on year after year, and the feud shows no signs of abatement. Its effect on the helpless man of peace is deplorable. He feels constantly as if he were a party to a never ending quarrel. He goes out to his luncheon feeling like a man who has just been engaged in a riot, and he does not enjoy his food. He scolds his most obliging waiter without cause and gives him an increased tip by way of apology. When he goes home, he kisses his wife and children in a perfunctory way and is irritable at the dinner table. His wife says sadly, "My dear, you are working too hard." He is not working too hard, but he is ashamed to tell what ails him, for he knows that it would be difficult for even his considerate helpmeet to understand the effect of the continuous speaking tube strife on his nervous system. So he changes the subject and endeavors to make amends by his best behavior. His wife notices that his playfulness is forced and is a sorry imitation of the genuine article, and this is more alarming to her than his irritableness.—New York Sun.

The Charm of Dickens.

Perhaps the dominant charm of Dickens' novels lies in the secret of his ability to portray with skill the workings of an affectionate heart. The Cheeryble brothers send out warm sunny rays of loving kindness on every reader of "Nicholas Nickleby." Little Dorrit, God bless her memory, with her sweet, unselfish devotion to her complacent father and thoughtless brothers and sister and witless Maggie, wins the sympathy of every one. Dear old Pegotty, redarmed, a genuine lover; honest Ham and his father; poor little Em'ly, Agnes and Dora (the juxtaposition does not harm them); the pinched face and willing hands of the Marchioness; Ruth Pinch and her brother—and hosts of other faces shine out with genial warmth from the novelist's pages and become tender household memories.

Wherever such hearts are found, in poetry or fiction, in the pages of the novelist or in the busy streets, their power is recognized as unique, beneficent and enduring.—Harper's Bazar.

What a Little Girl Would Do.

A little girl I know is possessed of a peculiarly pugnacious and rebellious nature. One day, being in a neighbor's yard, she noticed some heavy wool socks hanging on the clothes line and inquired of a lady of the house to whom that unusual footgear belonged. The lady told her that they were the socks furnished by the United States government for the use of soldiers and belonged to her son, who had then just enlisted in the signal service. The child gazed at the uncouth objects with curling lip.

"Does he have to wear them?" she inquired.

"Yes," answered the lady, to keep up the fun, "he is obliged to wear them."

The child's eyes flashed fire.

"I wouldn't wear 'em!" she declared. "I'd sass the government!"

And so she would.—Washington Star.

Insects Used For Medicine.

The cochineal insect is in some cases recognized as a medicine, and at one time had a reputation for wonderful virtues. Honey and wax, often used in pharmacy, are insect products, while galls, used in medicine for their astringent proprieties and the gallic and tannic acid they furnish, are also the work of insects.—London Tit-Bits.

MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is not generally known that the seat of life is located in the upper part of the spinal cord, near the base of the brain, and so sensitive is this portion of the nervous system that even the prick of a needle will cause instant death.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the nerve centers, located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also deranged. When it is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented by the injury from reaching the paralyzed portion, it will be understood how the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement primarily originating in the organ itself. The great mistake of physicians in treating these diseases is that they treat the organ rather than the nerve centers which are the cause of the trouble.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statement, and that the ordinary methods of treatment are wrong. All headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion, pressure, blues, mania, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principle.

DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle; six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for Cook's Cotton Root Compound, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps.

Address Pond Lily Company,
No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by C. Anderson, S. A Wallace, F L. Durand and druggists everywhere

AT BEDTIME
I TAKE A PLEASANT
HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS

Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year	$5 00
" " 6 months	2 50
" " 1 "	45
Daily only, one year	3 00
" 4 months	1 00
Sunday, one year	2 00
Weekly Press, one year	1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.

Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE

Marvelous success. Insane Persons Restored

Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER

for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

Notice of Final Proof.

LAND OFFICE AT CROOKSTON, MINN.,
MAY 3d, 1893.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 19th, 1893, viz: Jacob Weidenhoefer, Hd. 12,056, for the ne¼ sec. 30, twp. 151, range 47.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Julius Radl, William Senske, Julius Zachge and George Bassler, all of Fisher, Postoffice, Minn.

[4-9] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 11th, 1893.
Last publication June 22d, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Lottie Larson and Ole E. Larson, her husband, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of August, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th, day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:35 o'clock A. M., in Book 47 of Mortgages, on page 38.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $12.75 that became due November 1, 1890; $12.75 that became due May 1, 1891; $12.75 that became due November 1, 1891; $12.75 that became due May 1, 1892, and $12.75 that became due November 1, 1892.

And whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum to-wit: Five hundred, eleven and 10-100 ($511 10-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (SW¼) of section eleven (11) township one hundred fifty-three (153) range forty-four (44) containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
[4-10] N. G. 147.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 11th, 1893.
Last publication June 22d, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Anson Bancroft and Ann Eliza Bancroft, his wife mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of December, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of December, A. D. 1887, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., in Book 83 of Mortgages, on page 410.

Whereas such default consists of the failure to pay a certain installment of interest when due and the principal sum, $900, that became due December 14th, 1892.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum to-wit: Nine hundred, fifty-six and 30-100 ($956 30-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said Mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (NW¼) of section twenty-four (24) township one hundred forty-eight (148) range forty-seven (47) containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
[4-10] N. G. 152.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 11th, 1893.
Last publication June 22d, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Baumann and Josephine A. Baumann, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 30th day of July A. D. 1886, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 2d day of August, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m. in book 25 of mortgages, on pages 150 to 153.

Whereas such default consists in the failure to pay certain installments of interest when due and the principal sum, $600, that became due July 30th, 1891.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Seven hundred twenty-one and 25.100 (721.25-100) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) Section four (4), Township one hundred forty-seven (147), Range forty-five (45), containing 160 acres; more or less, according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 150)

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, May 24.

Antonie von Schamstein, the Austrian statesman, died Tuesday at Vienna.

The Duke of Mortomart died at Paris Tuesday. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor.

W. G. Van Pelt, son of a leading last manufacturer of Chicago, suicided in that city Tuesday. Dissipation was the cause.

All the graves of Union soldiers in the South will be decorated on Memorial day, under the auspices of the G. A. R.

In accordance with the agreement entered into on Saturday the union dock laborers of Hull, on strike, have resumed work.

The total number of fourth-class postmasters appointed Tuesday was 93, of which 67 were to fill vacancies caused by resignations and deaths.

The Panama Star and Herald announces the death of Judge James S. Dewey of Detroit, Mich., which took place on the 10th inst., at Georgina station on the canal.

Thursday, May 25.

Minister Lewis Baker of St. Paul has arrived at Nicaragua.

Fire at Winston, N. C., did damage to the extent of $200,000.

Locusts are ravaging nearly the whole province of Saratoff, Russia.

Charges of fraud have been made against New York customs officials.

The paid admissions at the world's fair grounds Wednesday numbered 40,990.

The wedding of the Duke of York and Princess May of Teck has been fixed for July 6.

James Gordon Bennett has decided to run the New York Herald on the cooperative plan.

N. A. Nettleton, a potato dealer of Scandinavia, Wis., was held up by robbers and relieved of $1,200 in cash.

Walter Oakes, son of the president of the Northern Pacific road, was married at St. Paul Wednesday to Miss Mary Beekman Taylor.

Friday, May 26.

Lieutenant Peary will sail for the Arctic regions in the steamship Falcon June 15.

Rainbow won the Brooklyn Derby Wednesday. Don Alonzo was second and Commanche third.

One million dollars in gold and $76,000 in silver was shipped to England on the Normania Thursday.

D. F. G. Masters, superintendent of a Chinese mission in New York, claims that a Chinaman discovered America before Columbus did.

The Conservatives of Belfast and neighboring towns made a great demonstration in Ulster hall in honor of the Marquis of Salisbury. Fully 3,000 Ulsterites, most of whom carried miniature union jacks, took part in the meeting.

Saturday, May 27.

Italy will raise its representative to this country to the rank of ambassador.

The gold reserve is again invaded to the extent of about $4,000,000.

Heavy damage suits have been begun against the Hamburg American company by passengers who were on the cholera ships last fall.

Over 50 operators on the Peninsula division of the Northwestern road who struck last week on Ramsay's alleged order, hav ebeen discharged.

The New York World publishes a story to the effect that Carlyle Harris almost succeeded in committing suicide on the day before his execution.

Judge Patterson of New York in a decision says that trusts must not attempt to drive others out of business. The decision was made in the case of the Deuber Watch company against the Howard company.

Monday, May 29.

The proposed cowboy race from Chadron, Neb., to the world's fair, has been declared off.

Ten thousand people are suffering for food and shelter in the flooded districts of Louisiana.

Sealing in certain portions of Bering sea is prohibited for a year by the British and Russian governments.

Miss Augusta Legnard, daughter of John B. Legnard, a leading citizen of Waukegan, Ills., has married the family coachman.

A report presented to the Minnesota conference of the Augustana synod denounces dancing as sinful and takes a rap at secret societies.

The superintendent of immigration says that owners of American vessels on the great lakes who employ Canadian sailors will be prosecuted for violating the alien contract labor law.

F. S. Milburn, said to be a son of the blind chaplain of the house of representatives, committed suicide Sunday at a Chicago hotel by cutting his throat.

Tuesday, May 30.

Incendiaries are at work in Cleveland.

During a cyclone in the Bay of Bengal the ship Germania was sunk and 74 men were drowned.

The president has appointed Colonel George M. Sternberg to be surgeon general, United States army, to succeed General Sutherland, retired.

The New York Central's "Exposition Flyer" was put on Sunday afternoon. The first trip each way was made on time—20 hours.

W. R. Estee, of Madelia, Minn., consul to Hamburg, is likely to be recalled for disobeying the rules of the department.

Miss Anderson, a pretty school teacher of St. Clairaville, O., has sued Dr. Hobson of Cleveland for $25,000 for breach of promise.

THE RING ESCAPES.

Minnesota's Attorney General Knocks Out the Pine Land Investigation.

ST. PAUL, May 29.—The seven members of the legislative committee who were authorized to investigate the charge that certain prominent men of Minneapolis and elsewhere had robbed the State of Minnesota of pine to the value of $5,000,000 were chagrined upon receiving the announcement from the state capitol that they could pack their grips and go home. It was learned that Attorney General Childs had decided that the joint resolution under which they were acting was unconstitutional. During the last days of the session a joint resolution had been adopted upon the motion of Ignatius Donnelly and signed by Governor Nelson naming the above committee to investigate the alleged frauds and appropriating $5,000 for the work. Attorney General Childs simply quotes the general statutes, which state that no money can be appropriated for any purpose by the legislature except by bill. The committee can, therefore, do nothing but adjourn and go home. There are loud charges by the men who are fighting the "pine land ring" that there has been collusion to protect the leading citizens who have been foremost in securing pine lands by methods which will not bear investigation.

ON TO RICHMOND.

Remains of Jefferson Davis En Route to Their Final Resting Place.

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—The remains of Jefferson Davis, after reposing in Louisiana for nearly four years, are now speeding away to their final resting place in Hollywood cemetery, Richmond. The special train bearing the ashes left the Louisville and Nashville depot at 7:30 p. m.

The Davis Funeral Train.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 30.—Governor Jones and staff accompanied the Davis funeral cortege to the Alabama state line. As the train drew out the infantry saluted and the cannon fired. At all stations along the route floral tributes from ladies and respectful salutes from bareheaded veterans marked the run of the funeral car.

Rogers' Body Found.

ST. PAUL, May 27.—The body of Charles S. Rogers, president of the Northwestern Cordage company, who jumped 200 feet into the Mississippi from the Smith avenue bridge nine days ago, was recovered at 6:30 p. m. at the Minnesota fish hatchery, two miles down the river from the point at which the leap was taken.

The Monterey's Boilers.

NEW YORK, May 30.—The Times' San Francisco despatch says: The Examiner asserts that the Monterey's Scotch boilers are of such defective design that the only way to repair their faults is to take them out and virtually rebuild them.

Carpenters Strike.

MADISON, Wis., May 26.—Two hundred carpenters have struck to force their employers to hire no non-union labor. The question of wages is not involved. The master carpenters have determined not to yield. Sixty non-union carpenters are at work.

Iowa Democrats.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 30.—The Democratic state central committee will meet here between the 12th and 14th of next month to fix the time and place for holding the state convention. Talk is now that Des Moines will be selected.

Harris Tried Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The World publishes a story to the effect that Carlyle Harris almost succeeded in committing suicide on the day before his execution.

Found Dead in Bed.

HUDSON, Wis., May 29.—Willis A. Taylor, son of ex-United States Railroad Commissioner Horace A. Taylor, was found dead in bed.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, May 31, 1893.

HOGS—Receipts arrived too late for the market and will be held over.

CATTLE—Receipts arrived late and no trading was done on the opening market. Fair demand for all grades. Prime steers, $4.00@4.30; good steers, $3.50@4.00; prime cows, $3.00@3.40; good cows, $2.50@3.00; common to fair cows, $1.50@2.40; light veal calves, $3.00@4.25; heavy calves, $1.75@3.00; stockers, $2.00@3.25; feeders, $2.50@3.50; bulls, $1.75@2.75.

SHEEP—No receipts and no trading. Muttons, $4.50@5.00; lambs, $4.50@5.50; stockers and feeders, $3.00@4.50.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 30, 1893.

WHEAT—May closed, 63c; June opening, 64½c; highest, 64½c; lowest, 63¾c; closed, 63¾c; July opening, 66c; highest, 66⅝@69¼c; lowest, 66c; close, 66½c. September opening, 69½c; highest, 69⅛@69¼c; lowest, 68@68⅞c; close, 69c. On track—No. 1 hard, 67c; No. 1 Northern, 64¾c; No. 2 Northern, 62½@63c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, May 30, 1893.

CATTLE—Steady.

HOGS—Market dull 10c lower. Heavy, $7@7.40; mixed and medium, $6.95@7.35; light, $6.85@7.30.

SHEEP—Strong 10c higher.

Receipts: Cattle, 19,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 12,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, May 30, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 70c; July, 71¾c; September, 75¼c.

CORN—May, 40c; July, 40c; September, 41c.

OATS—July, 28⅛ September, 26½c.

PORK—September, $21.75.

SHORT RIBS—July, $9.95; September, $10.10.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 68⅝c; July, 70⅝c; September, 73¾c.

CORN—May, 39½c; July, 40¼c; September, 40c⅜@41c.

OATS—May, 29¾c; July, 28⅝c; September, 26¾.

PORK—May, $20.50; July, $20.9 ; September, $21.25.

LARD—May, $10.25; July, $10.52½; September, $10.87½.

SHORT RIBS—May, $9.75; July, $9.82½; September, $9.95.

RULING REVERSED.

NEW DECISION PROMULGATED BY SECRETARY SMITH.

Disability Not of Service Origin Must Be Such as to Prevent the Applicant From Earning Support by Manual Labor—Will Save Millions.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Secretary Hoke Smith has just made a decision repealing Raum and Bussey's order construing "disability not of service origin" so as to limit it to disabilities preventing the applicant from earning support by manual labor.

It is believed this will reduce pension payments from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 annually.

INCOMING IMMIGRANTS.

Important Rules Affecting the Canadian Pacific and Great Northern.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The treasury department has issued an important set of rules relating to incoming immigrants over Canadian roads entering this country. No immigrant will be allowed to enter after 7 o'clock in the evening, for the reason that the worst class has been in the habit of coming over after night, when rigid inspection was relaxed and the inspectors were off duty or asleep. The big roads, like the Canadian Pacific with its through connections with the Soo line, and the Great Northern with its Canadian Pacific connections in Minnesota and North Dakota, will be compelled to run special trains upon which all the immigrants are carried. None of the regular passenger trains will be allowed to carry immigrants, and a penalty will be provided for violation of this provision.

Extra Session Talk.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—It is said on most excellent authority that the president is likely to issue a proclamation within a short period setting the date for an extra session of congress.

FOSTER FAILS.

The Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Makes an Assignment.

FOSTORIA, O., May 27.—Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Charles W. Foster has startled the business world by making an assignment of his vast business interests for the benefit of his creditors. His assignee is J. B. Gormlee, a prominent banker of Bucyrus, and a warm friend of Mr. Foster. The liabilities are given out by Mr. Foster as being $600,000, and the assets about the same.

The failure is due to the fact that Mr. Foster has been a very heavy endorser of the three assigned windowglass houses and the brass and iron works, his indorsements of these companies aggregating over $300,000. The stringency of the money market caused banks to request payment of the notes, which precipitated the failure.

Worse Than First Reported.

FOSTORIA, O., May 29.—J. B. Gormley, the assignee of ex-Secretary Charles Foster, states that further investigation shows affairs to be in even worse shape than had been at first thought, and that the liabilities would reach $800,000 and possibly $1,000,000, with the assets much less.

BANKS CLOSED.

National of North Dakota at Fargo and a Branch at Lakato.

FARGO, N. D., May 30.—The National Bank of North Dakota was closed by the order of Bank Examiner Diamond. E. Ashley Mears is president. The capital is $250,000. The failure will not affect any business firms in Fargo, as it has been known for some time that the bank was in shallow water.

LAKOTA, N. D., May 31.—The First National Bank of Lakota has been closed by Bank Examiner Brush on order of the comptroller of the currency. The bank has been under suspicion for six months and is owned by Ashley E. Mears and belongs to his system of banks in this state.

Bank of Bresford Fails.

BRESFORD, S. D. May 30.—The Bank of Bresford, a private concern at the head of which is A. A. Ames, has failed. Particulars as to its condition are meager but it is believed depositors will be heavy losers.

Three Hundred Men Laid Off.

MASON CITY, Ia., May 30.—Three hundred employes on the Iowa and Dakota division of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, including mainly roadmen, have been laid off. Dullness in freight traffic is the attributed cause.

Villard Retires.

NEW YORK, May 30.—At a meeting of the directors of the North American company the resignation of Henry Villard as president was presented and accepted. C. W. Wetmore, the chairman of the executive committee, was elected to succeed Mr. Villard.

Dr. Graves Out on Bail.

DENVER, May 30.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, who last year was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Josephine Barnaby of Providence, R. I., has been released on a bond of $30,000.

Shot Himself Dead.

HUDSON, Wis., May 27.—Herman Yeugrch, foreman of the Omaha machines shops, committed suicide about 1 p. m., by shooting himself through the head.

Match Declared Off.

CHICAGO, May 30.—The proposed match between Martin Danny of Australia and Austin Gibbons before the Crescent City Athletic club is off.

Grand Lodge of Orangemen.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 30.—Representatives of the twelve lodges of Orangemen of Minnesota met here and organized a grand lodge for the state.

A WHITE HOUSE GUIDE.

Entertaining Conversation of an Executive Employe of a Few Months Ago.

Not to be too personal, this account of White House visiting is taken from an experience in the past. It is on a day when the president is in the big east room, shaking hands with any Tom, Dick or Augustus who wishes to inflict himself on the head of the nation. There are numerous familiarly polite men lounging in the vestibule of the mansion. Their dress consists of indifferent business suits, very ready made in appearance, black, brown, blue and gray, ill fitting and often shabby. These are the servants of the place, whose duties are to show the guests through the public rooms and at times through the private ones. Their appellation in this house of the people is "guide." They are particularly the persons from whom the visitor to Washington gets the tone of the White House. If any one claims that these are gentlemen in office and not serving men, let him try them with a fee. It is not exacted, is forbidden, but—try it!

Through with the president, a group of people are invited by a guide to go into the other rooms.

"These rooms has all been newly decorated," he says, "and after designs by Miss' Harrison, and 'tain't necessary for me to say that she's a artist." A sweep of his hand takes in floor, wall, ceiling and furniture.

"This," he goes on, "is the famous blue room, where the president receives with his lady beside him. You have all heard of going behind the line. Well, the president stands here with his lady on his right and the ladies of the cabinet. That makes the line. After they shake hands the elight go behind the line where all the dignataries is.

"That's right, ma'am. Sit right down." This to a woman who has rested against the arm of a chair. "All sit down and make yourself comfortable. People seem to think this house belongs to Miss' Harrison, but it don't. It belongs to all of you. Miss Harrison wants everybody to feel at home. Now, in this room Miss' Cleveland was married. She stood right there where that lady's feet is."

The modest appearing little woman on whose feet all eyes were centered looked inclined to put them in her pocket, but the guide went on remorselessly. "Where that lady's feet is placed."

"This clock," said the guide later, pausing before an elaborate mantel clock, "and them side ornaments was presented to George Washington, our first president, by Layfayette and presented by he to the White House. And it has ben going ever sence. Them lights are electric and just put in. You turn them on and off this way," illustrating. "Seeing as you look interested, sir, you can turn them on once if you like."

The man to whom this kind permission was granted bears a name synonymous with electricity, but the famous electrician, as courteous as the guide, gravely manipulated the button.

Leaving after a quarter of an hour more of this talk, and a visit to the conservatories, and a peep at the private dining room, Selina expressed herself in this fashion:

"All applicants for such work in the White House should pass a civil service examination before being accepted. Secondly, they should be obliged to wear a distinctive dress. Call it a uniform if the word livery is objectionable. But these men should look as neat and trig as postmen, motormen and car conductors. Thirdly, they must be as willing and obliging as they are at present. I would like to leave our president's house once without feeling half amused and half vexed and altogether ashamed, as I am today."—Newport News.

Queer Japanese Beliefs.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among these are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as the tiger which is said to turn as white as a polar bear on the date of his one thousandth birthday. They also believe in a species of fox which if it lives to be 50 years old without having been chased by a dog transforms itself into a beautiful woman. This same fox, if he can manage to live for a century, gains additional powers, such as becoming a wonderful wizard, etc. When he lives to be 1,000 years old, he becomes a "celestial fox," with nine golden tails, and has the power of going to heaven and returning whenever he chooses.

These Japs also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished by their monstrous size or by the multiplication of their members. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant; boxes with eight legs; monkeys with four ears and seven tails; fishes with 10 heads attached to one body, the flesh of this last monster being a sure cure for boils, bites of poisonous serpents, hydrophobia, etc.—Philadelphia Press.

States Meant.

A monthly statement, Mo.; a weakly statement, Ill.; a personal statement, Me.; a graphic statement, Del.; a written statement, Penn.; a decimal statement, Tenn.; an interesting statement, Miss.; a historical statement, Ark.; a confident statement, Kan.; a rich statement, Ore.; a lump statement, Mass.; a spirited statement, R. I.; a medical statement, Md.; a French statement, Va.; a French statement, Ala.; an emphatic statement, O.; an emphatic statement, La.; a close statement, N. Y.; a neutral statement, I. T.; a neat statement, Wash.; a doubtful statement, Wy.—Truth.

A Pleasant Opinion.

Patient—Do you think smoking hurtful, doctor?

Doctor Smarte—Hem! Ah—do you smoke?

Patient—Yes.

Doctor—But not enough to hurt you, that's easy enough to see.

Patient goes off happy and never begrudges the $3 he pays for this unbiased verdict.—Boston Transcript.

Making Love to His Own Wife.

"Did you ever hear of a man marrying his own wife?" asked Harvey Kuttner of a party of good listeners last night. "I don't mean a divorced couple getting remarried, but a couple really going through the marriage ceremony a second time, with one of the two entirely ignorant of the fact. I met a case of that kind last year and am thinking of selling the idea to some novelist to build a plot on. It was in a small Ohio town, and the bride had been deserted by her husband 20 years before. She had long ago come to the conclusion that he was dead and had been looked upon as an eligible widow, who was fair and 40, if not fat, when a stranger came to town, got himself introduced to her and finally persuaded her to try the matrimonial experiment a second time. They were married after a short courtship, and a few weeks after the honeymoon the husband gave away his story and told his wife that she had married him twice without knowing it.

"His explanation was that on leaving her 20 years before he had gone on a protracted spree and had finally got himself sent to the penitentiary in a distant state for a long term. After being liberated, he was ashamed to look up his old friends and took it for granted that his wife had forgotten all about him by that time. He accordingly went abroad, and it was only on his return after a long period that he heard accidentally that his wife was still living at the old home. Rather than run the risk of being spurned for his heartlessness and relying on an entire change in his personal appearance, he conceived the daring plot of winning and remarrying his own wife. I don't know what the lady said when she was undeceived, but that is one of the details the novelist I sell the story to can supply for himself."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Greek Stools and Chairs.

The stools or chairs seen on Greek vases are in great variety, and as regards time cover a period of many hundred years. On some of them are figures seated on blocks of stone or wood, but the general form is that of stools with or without the feet of animals, sometimes having arms, but rarely backs. Sometimes personages are seen on vases or on statuettes seated on chairs, with backs of moderate elevation, curved in the form of the ruff worn by women in the time of Queen Elizabeth, which were probably considered thrones. A form of chair in common use among the Romans was that with curved arms, familiar to all those who have seen upon the stage the Roman plays of Shakespeare.

Chairs or stools of other forms were also in use among the Romans, made often within a certain degree of art and elegance and of costly materials. Sitting at table the posture now considered the most elegant and the most cleanly was not practiced by them, the reclining attitude corresponding more nearly with their ideas of ease and luxury.—San Francisco Chronicle.

No Need to Wait Ten Years.

It is said that a public reader of some repute, making a tour through the west, happened to have an audience one night in a South Dakota town whose "hustling" spirit created a demand for anything from Sunday dog fights to lectures on æsthetics. The house was packed, and the reader's efforts were followed with marked attention. Several selections had been well received, when some of the shorter poems of Arnold were announced.

Probably few of the auditors knew who Matthew Arnold was or what to expect from the next number on the programme, but they had been hearing some good old soul stirring verses, and interest was keyed to a high pitch. It chanced that the reader started with "Youth's Agitations," beginning, "When I shall be divorced, some 10 years hence"— He paused for breath, and in an instant a voice in the gallery shouted: "Ten years! Come out to Dakota, an yer can git one in two weeks."—New York Tribune.

Substantial Studies Better Than Fads.

An honest education in the primary branches is all the public schools should be expected to give. As it is, there is a disposition to divert the pupils from substantial studies to fads that tend to defeat the main object of the public school system. By giving them a smattering of a dozen things they are deprived of useful knowledge that can be easily imparted in the schools and sent out into the world imperfectly equipped, when they might have been supplied with knowledge that would have been useful to them in every item.—Pittsburg Press.

Borax In the Arts.

In the arts the use of borax is constant. It produces the glaze on china, earthenware and tiles and is used in the enamel for granite ware, as a mordant in calico printing and dyeing and a flux for all metals, as it enables them to melt at a lower temperature. Used with pure, fine white sand in the proportion of four to one, it produces a glass so hard as to cut common glass like a diamond, while it is added to slaked lime where it is desired to render plaster fireproof.—Epicure.

The Interior of the Mormon Temple.

The interior of the Mormon temple has an air of mystery about it. Up to date none but the faithful have been admitted to its sacred precincts, and none of the inquisitive Gentile reporters are allowed to enter. As a matter of fact, there are portions of the interior which are as sacred as was "The Holy of Holies" in the days of the temple constructed by the wise son of David.—C. M. Jackson in Harper's Weekly.

England contends with smallpox at a disadvantage. Many persons of influence do not believe in vaccination, write against it and oppose it in every way they can. The opposition has grown greatly during the long absence of the epidemic.

"It will cost you 15 cents just the same," are the reported words of a New York druggist when he was told that the use of his telephone was desired in a case of life or death. Of course the 15 cents were paid.

Fits.

All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

Proposals For Sewers.

Sealed proposals for the construction of about 1,700 feet of brick and pipe sewers in the city of Crookston, Minn., will be received by the City Council until 6 p. m., June 13th, 1893. Bids are to be made on the forms furnished by the City Council and accompanied by the proper bond. Forms of proposal and specifications may be obtained, and plans seen at the office of the city engineer. The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids, also to waive any informalities. By order of the City Council, Crookston, Minn., May 24th, 1893.

W. F. ARNOLD, City Engineer.

E. E. CARRUTH, Clerk.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

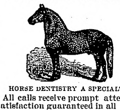
CALL IN.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor
R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, ☰ ☰ ☰ MINN.

This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.



HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

WE ARE NOT DOING
Much Blowing
At this time of the year, and it is not bragging to say that
OUR MAMMOTH STOCK
was never more complete than this spring, and that you can find no greater bargains in the city than we are giving. There is an old saying to the effect that
"THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN CHEWING THE STRING."
This applied to the old-fashioned steamed Indian Pudding that was put in a bag and tied with a string, which string no doubt retained enough of the pudding to furnish a sufficient sample.
We don't claim to have a "string" on the public, but it is a fact that when a man once comes into our store and taades he always comes again. As the pudding was supposed to speak for itself, so our goods speak for themselves every time.
☞YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED.
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

OPENED THE GATES

PEOPLE SEE THE FAIR ONE SUNDAY AT LEAST.

Over a Hundred Thousand in Attendance—Illumination in the Evening. Many of the State Buildings Closed. Appeal For Lower Railroad Rates.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, May 28.—One hundred and twenty-five thousand people, after a week of toil, came to the world's fair grounds Sunday and with souls freed from care drank in inspiring music and feasted their eyes upon the artistic and natural beauties of the White City, while their minds were improved by studying the works of genius and industry. It was the first open Sunday and was a success.

The people began coming into the grounds early. All means of transportation brought their quotas and from the steamer piers and the railroads came long lines of people and by 4 o'clock at least 90,000 were in the enclosure. After dark the grounds were lighted up and this together with other attracted still more and when the crowds were about ready to go home, a conservative estimate placed their number for the day and evening at 125,000. It was an orderly, well dressed crowd which evidently was of the opinion that it had already been kept away from its property altogether too long and they took possession in the name of the "toiler." The music during the day was of the elevating character and the bandsstands were surrounded by large crowds.

Features of the Illumination

Some State Buildings Closed.

Sunday opening was frowned upon, however, in the north end of the park, where the American state buildings are grouped. The multitude of visitors did not throng the state circle and the few thousands who passed that way were not disappointed, apparently, to find many of the buildings closed. Missouri, Delaware, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland and Massachusetts were among the buildings which the people obtained only an outside view of. Utah had the closed sign on its door, and North Dakota added to its announcement the invitation "Come on Monday."

BETTER RATES WANTED.

World's Fair Commissioners Appeal to Transportation Companies.

CHICAGO, May 29.—At a meeting of executive officers and commissioners of the several states and territories, hold Wednesday last at the Massachusetts building, a committee of five members, consisting of Havens of Indiana, McNaughton of New York, Apperson of Virginia, Hovey of Massachusetts and McDaniel of Utah, was appointed to draft an appeal to the railroad and steamboat corporations, asking that fares on the different lines to and from Chicago be reduced immediately.

At an adjourned meeting held Saturday afternoon at the New York building, the committee submitted drafts of a letter, which is to be signed by the executive officers and addressed to the managers of the various railroad and steamboat lines, which was unanimously approved and will be sent to officers of the corporations referred to at once.

This appeal is made on behalf of the people of the country, but especially in the interest of farmers, mechanics, employes, pupils, etc.

GROUNDS ORDERED OPEN.

Injunction Restraining Fair Directors From Closing on Sunday.

CHICAGO, May 30.—In the legal proceedings brought against the world's fair directory to compel an open Sunday and to restrain public admission on that day, the former gained the first victory. Judge Stein issued a temporary injunction restraining the directors from closing tho gates on Sunday. His ruling was made in accordance with the prayer of a bill filed by Charles W. Clingman on behalf of himself as a stockholder in the Exposition company and as a citizen.

Judge Stein's Decision.

The decision holds in substance that the park commissioners had no power to concede to a corporation more than the usufruct of the South park ground. The contention of the intervening petitioner, C. H. Howard, that to open the fair on Sunday is against the law of the land and the act of congress of April 25, 1890, is dismissed with the statement that it has not been proven that there is anything in that act which overthrows any of the existing laws of the State of Illinois, and the laws of Illinois are not affected.

CHOLERA AT HAMBURG.

Two Fatal Cases of the Disease Officially Reported.

QUARANTINE, May 29.—Dr. Nash, the representative of Dr. Jenkins in Hamburg, reports by cable that there was one death from cholera in that city Sunday.

HAMBURG, May 29.—The committee on prevention and detection of cholera, constituted by the senate of Hamburg, has declared officially that a clerk who was supposed to have been suffering the previous week from diarrhoea, died on Saturday last from Asiatic cholera.

Will Locate a Danish Colony.

MILLER, S. D., May 30.—Oscar Mattison, in charge of Denmark's exhibit's at Chicago, has just been here with others looking up a location for a large colony from his country, also to establish a large Lutheran college, and will report favorably for locating a colony in Hand county and the college between Miller and St. Lawrence.

IS ON IN EARNEST.

Arguments Begun in the Celebrated Briggs Case.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The greatest ecclesiastical trial of modern times, as it is termed, was begun during the day in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, when Dr. Briggs, the Union seminary professor, faced his accusers and his 500 judges. The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States sat as a high court. The court represented nearly 1,000,000 Presbyterians in this country, who recognize the supreme authority of the general assembly in ecclesiastical matters. The issue is one which a large portion of the the church and a large majority of the general assembly evidently regard as one of the gravest that has ever arisen in the church. To their minds the will ensue if the church does not, through its highest authority, pronounce anathema against Dr. Briggs, who is accused of denying the inerrancy of Holy Scripture and teaching as true doctrines which they consider contradictory of scripture and of the confession of faith to which he subscribed when he was ordained as a minister. There was a large attendance at the church, people crowding into the galleries and even encroaching on the space set aside for the commissioners. The proceedings, however, were not at all lively, for the arguments made were exceedingly formal in character. The principal argument for the prosecution was made by Rev. Joseph J. Lampe, D. D., who finished in the afternoon, having spoken three hours and a quarter. Professor Briggs then began his answer, to which seven hours had been allotted, and continued it at the evening session. At the conclusion of the latter's argument Colonel McCook will close for the prosecution.

Most Serious Consequences

Briggs Has an Ambition.

CLEVELAND, May 30.—A dispatch from Cincinnati says that Professor Briggs, now on trial at Washington for heresy, has written to Professor E. D. Morris of Lane Theological seminary about the advisability of forming a new church to teach his theology. Morris replied, saying that few Presbyterian ministers would join the now departure. Four liberal Presbyterians of Cincinnati have gone to Washington to confer with Dr. Briggs and assist in promoting the new project.

Baptist Home Missions.

DENVER, May 30.—The 61st annual meeting of the Baptist Home Missionary society convened in the First Baptist church here during the morning. Committees were announced, after which the report of the board was read by the Rev. H. L. Morehouse, D. D. It showed the society to be free of debt, but a need for greater funds to successfully push forward the increasing work. In 1892 there had been an increase of 19 missionaries, 8 schools, 136 churches organized and $113,350.56 contributed during the year.

THE IRON HALL.

An Address to Members of the Order Mailed.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—The address to members of the Iron Hall prepared by the new officers has been mailed. It says the law has been so revised as to provide proper safeguards for the funds collected from the membership, and a number of recommendations have been adopted for a thorough revision of the constitution and laws of the order to be presented for action at the session of the order of the supreme sitting to be convened in July. The supreme justice will no longer have absolute control as in the past. The order now has assets aggregating $2,250,000 in the various states. It has a membership of 62,000.

LAW DEFECTIVE.

A New York Judge Finds a Good Sized Flaw in the Geary Statute.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—As the result of District Attorney Milchrist's consultation with Attorney General Olney he took away with him explicit instructions, if he finds on his arrival in Chicago that the commission still adhered to its decision to open the world's fair next Sunday, to present the matter to the federal court and ask for an injunction or any other legal process which the facts would warrant, and which would prevent a violation of the laws of the United States."

Fear an Epidemic.

STOUGHTON, Wis., May 30.—Diphtheria of a malignant character has made its appearance in the town of Rutland, four miles west of here. In the family of John Hogan one child died and the father, four more children and the hired girl are down with the disease and considered in a critical condition. Many other cases are reported and an epidemic is feared.

Costly Blow for Sullivan.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The Sun's Biddeford, Me., special says: John L. Sullivan did not appear in court to answer the charge of assaulting Lawyer Lezotte. The ex-champion was represented by Counsel Thomas Leigh, Jr., who pleaded guilty on behalf of his client and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

Viking Ship Sighted.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The Viking ship which is on its way to the world's fair is reported off Cape Shear, N. F., with all hands on board safe. This is the first that has been heard of the ship since she was seen in a storm off the Orkney Islands a fortnight ago.

Will Occupy It in July.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., May 30.—President Cleveland's cottage at Saranac Inn has been completely remodeled. It is stated upon good authority that President Cleveland will occupy it during July.

Compartment Sleeping Car.

In European countries, all railway coaches are divided into compartments, calculated to afford the passenger all the discomfort possible, would never be popular in this country. Without heating apparatus, without water-coolers or lavatories, the doorlocked between stations and the only means of passage from one compartment to another a narrow foot-board on the outside of car, it is to the credit of the American railway managers that they have never tried to introduce them here. But a compartment sleeping-car, such as are run on the Burlington Route between Minneapolis and St. Paul and Chicago, is a very different vehicle. Entering the car at either end, you find a vestibule, leading out of which, on the left-hand side, is an aisle or corridor. On the right of this corridor and opening into it, are five cozy boudoirs, each containing two commodious berths. Overhead is a shaded globe from which comes the soft light of the compressed gas. In yonder corner is a mirror and dressing stand, under which is a polished wood box with nickel handle. Pull down on this, and a hand-basin comes in view, with handy faucets for hot and cold water. Near by is a stand for canes and umbrellas. The seats are the usual Pullman style, and form the lower berth at night. The berths, unlike those in the "boudoir" sleepers, run lengthwise of the car. These five compartments have communicating doors, enabling them to be thrown together when desired. The corridor now crosses to the opposite side of the car, and from it open five more similar compartments. The furnishings vary in color, but all are the very acme of the upholsterer's, wood-worker's and metal-worker's art. Buy tickets of your home agent for the Burlington trains, and travel by the world's finest. For any special information, address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Ladies' Sleeves for the Summer Season and How Make Them.

The most essential feature of our present modes is the pre-eminent part which the sleeves take in the general make up of a toilette. They constitute the dominant note, the striking accessory which compels the attention of the beholder. In point of variety of details, such as draperies, trimming and ornamentation, they surpass any other part of the costume. To this complication must be added the further necessity of knowing the historical origin and ascertaining the style most suitable to the figure of each individual wearer. The well-known and popular McDowell Fashion Journals are excellent guides in this embarrassing perplexity. Recognizing the important role of the sleeve in our modern styles, they have devoted many lessons to the different kinds of the prevailing sleeves and the manner of making them. These lessons are invaluable. They will be found in "La Mode de Paris," in "Paris Album of Fashion," and in "The French Dressmaker," (formerly "La Couturiere.") The former two cost $3.50 each a year, or 35 cents a copy. The latter is $3.00 per annum, or 30 cents a copy. "La Mode" with its low subscription price of $1.50 a year, or 15 cents a copy, is a unique publication of its kind not duplicated in this country. If you are unable to procure any of these magazines at your newsdealers do not accept any substitutes, but apply directly to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

COTTOLENE
What is it
?
It is the new shortening taking the place of lard or cooking butter, or both. Costs less, goes farther, and is easily digested by anyone.
AT ALL GROCERS.
Sold in three & five pound pails.
Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.
CHICAGO.
Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes.

Sick Headache
21 Years of Suffering Ended by One Bottle of HOOD'S.
Mrs. Ed. Swan
Duncanville, Ill.
"Few people have suffered as much as I have with sick headache. I have had it by spells for 21 years, sometimes as often as
Three Times a Week.
I would get up with it, suffer all day, go to bed with it and have it all night. I tried everything that was recommended, but never was cured until about a year ago, when
My Mother-in-Law
persuaded me to try one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am glad to say that it cured me, and I have not had sick headache since I took the first bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has done me a great deal of good in other ways, and has increased my weight from 122 to 147 pounds. I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla enough." MRS. ED. SWAN, Duncanville, Ill.
Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures
HOOD'S PILLS are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. per box.

IT'S THE Fault of the Merchant
IF YOUR CLOTHING
DOESN'T FIT.
There's nothing extraordinary about your figure. It's an easy enough matter to take your measure, and it's just as easy to cut cloth according to the measure when taken. We can take your measure and cut the cloth without the possibility of a mistake.
YOU MUST SELECT THE MATERIAL
however, and much depends upon the good taste you display in making a choice. It's no case of Hobson's choice in our store either, because our stock embraces all the materials
SANCTIONED BY FASHION.
and if there is not something in it perfectly appropriate to you, then the appropriate fabric has not been made yet. We are showing the
LATEST NOVELTIES
FOR SPRING WEAR.
BOSTON
ONE PRICE
Clothing House,
Mossefin & Lindell, Proprietors.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication April 13th, 1893.)
(Last publication June 1st, 1893.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE condition of a certain mortgage, containing power of sale, dated November 30th, 1885, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk county, Minnesota, on December 4th, 1885, in book 23 of mortgages, on pages 99, 100, 101, whereby Jean B. Lelande and Cleophie Lelande, his wife, mortgagors, mortgaged to Mary E. Towle, mortgagee, all those tracts of land described as follows, to-wit: The south east quarter of the northeast quarter, and lot one; all in section four, in township one hundred and fifty-one, of range forty-five, in Polk county, Minnesota, containing eighty acres more or less, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and there is now claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice $444.50, including interest and principal and taxes on said lands for the years 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888, [illegible] 1891 and 1892, paid by the mortgagee.

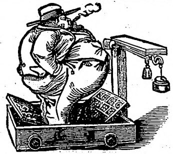
Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be fore closed and said premises sold at public auction by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on June 10th, 1893, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county, to pay said debt and interest and taxes, if any and $25 attorney's fees, and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated April 20th, 1893.

MARY E. TOWLE,
Mortgagee.

MONTAGUE & BUCKLEN,
Attorneys for Mortgagee.
[52-7]

FRESH VEGETABLES
RECEIVED DAILY.
A Choice Lot of
CANNED GOODS
At Reduced Rates.
STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,
Large Stock, Low Prices.
The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.
ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.



The Price
OF Groceries
HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.
Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as
TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,
I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.
My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.
Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.
L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BUY A WHEEL
EARLY
And get the benefit of full riding season. The Victor is the leader wherever known. Call and see one. We sell on terms to suit. We also have a line of low and medium priced wheels. We can suit anybody's pocket.
The Rushford Wagon still stands at the head; best material, best finish, best ironing, best paint, in fact it can't be beat.
Our usual line of Buggies, Carts, Harness, and other seasonable goods is complete, and prices right. Call and see.
MERIT WINS.
Larsen Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance.
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜
Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE WORLD'S FAIR OPENS MAY 1ST.
Are You Going? If so be sure and take out a Membership Certificate in "The Chicago Entertainment Bureau."
It will save you Worry, Time and Money. Respectable and well located rooms at moderate prices guaranteed. Send for descriptive circulars to the Minnesota and Dakota Headquarters, 618 AND 619 PIONEER PRESS BLDG., ST. PAUL,
N. T. HALL, Manager.
Partial List of References. HON. KNUTE NELSON, Gov. of Minnesota; HON. A. R. McGILL, Ex-Gov. of Minnesota; HON. W. R. MARSHALL, Ex-Gov. of Minnesota; RT. REV. W. N. GILBERT, Ass't Bishop, Diocese, Minn., and many other equally well known names.

IT SAVED THE SHIP.

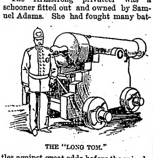
THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICES OF THE "LONG TOM" IN 1814.

The Famous Cannon That Repulsed the British and Saved the Good Ship Armstrong at Fayal Is Now Exhibited at Chicago—Story of the Conflict.

It was a far cry from Yankee privateers to the magnificent steel cruisers which fairly rival the finest men-of-war afloat, but the "sea devils" of long ago with a handful of men and a couple of guns somehow managed to cut notches in history which time's marvelous changes cannot obliterate nor the world forget, and which this country is proud to have remembered. Among the relics and mementos of bygone days and storied achievements which adorn Uncle Sam's war museum in the Columbian exposition is a piece of old fashioned long barreled ordnance with a thrilling battle record.

It is the "Long Tom" of the privateer General Armstrong. The Armstrong alone fought a British squadron mounting 136 guns in the harbor of Fayal in the Azores, Sept. 26, 1814. The Armstrong carried seven guns, six of them the usual 9-pounder boat howitzers and a 24-pounder, such as were mounted on a swivel at the bow of the fleet sailers for use in chasing the enemy. They were long guns and acquired the general title "Long Toms." The "Long Tom" at Chicago is the particular "Long Tom" which made the General Armstrong a terror of the sea throughout the war of 1812.

The Armstrong privateer was a schooner fitted out and owned by Samuel Adams. She had fought many battles against great odds before the episode at Fayal, and her "Long Tom" was already the mainstay of her armament. Shortly before the Armstrong sailed for the Azores she received a new commander from the regular navy, Captain Samuel Chester Reid. He was 30 years of age and had been a sailor since he was 11 years old. He fought several battles in his teens and was a prisoner of war to the French in 1798-9.

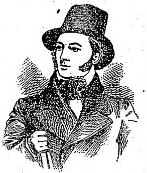


THE "LONG TOM."

The British squadron entered the harbor of Fayal purposely to capture the Yankee privateer, which the pilots told them was lying there to take on water and provisions. The harbor was neutral, and the Armstrong could not withdraw owing to a calm. The British officers declared that they would have the privateer and her crew if they had to knock down the town to get them. Under cover of night they sent four launches filled with men to board the Yankee. The attack was repulsed with muskets and the "Long Tom." Two volleys settled it, and the boats hauled off. A second attack was made with 14 launches loaded with Britishers. That time the "Long Tom" made fearful havoc firing into the solid lines of boats. The attack was repulsed, and there was a lull until morning.

Then the whole British fleet closed in on the privateer. The leading ship was wounded several times by the "Long Tom" and dropped out of the fight. Reid saw that the British fire was endangering the town in front of which his vessel lay, so he scuttled the schooner and prepared to fight it out on land. The British lost 300 sailors from the boats, 120 of them killed or drowned.

Reid was showered with honors for his exploit with the Armstrong and was appointed to a position in the regular navy. He was stationed in New York harbor for a number of years and died there in 1861. The arrangement of our national flag with a star for every state and a stripe for each of the original 13 was designed by Captain Reid. The return of the "Long Tom" to America was brought about by Colonel Samuel C. Reid of Washington, who visited Fayal recently to gather materials for memoirs of Captain Reid, his father. Since the fight the gun has been in the custody of the Portuguese and was returned to its original owners by the courtesy of the king of Portugal, Dom Carlos I.



CAPTAIN REID.

JOHN F. WILLOUGHBY.

Relics of Lafayette.

An exact reproduction of the room in which Louis XVI of France received the American delegates in 1778—in itself a worthy feature—is the home of the Lafayette exhibit at the World's fair. The very tapestries which covered the walls of the room at Versailles on that occasion and the same furniture are employed. Glass cases contain interesting articles that were once the property of Lafayette. An unusually interesting relic is the sword of honor voted to Lafayette by congress in 1779.

All Three Were Left.

A rich joke leaked out this week on three boys. They are Pic Cross, Billy Byrnes and D. Webster McCarthy. A woman was at the bottom of it all. Not long ago she was visiting friends across the river. She was an attractive Kentucky girl and had much company. As she was here for a good time she treated all the boys graciously and of course expected attention in return. Each thought he was her favorite suitor, and as a consequence was lavish in his attention to her. All of the boys know each other, but none knew of the other's predilection for the girl. When the time came for her to go home, she bade them adieu and said that she would go in a day or two.

Each of the boys asked the girl if he could call on her. She said yes and fixed the evening when she would be at her home in the interior of this state. Each went there thinking that he had a cinch on her. One of them rode in a sleeper, the second in a day coach and the third in the smoker. It was about midnight when they arrived at the place, and they went to bed at different hotels. The next morning three buggies were strung along the road en route to the girl's house. It was a snowy, cold day, and they all got left. The girl concluded to remain over a week longer and never thought that the boys would come. When they came to the house one by one and found that the girl had not yet got home, they—swore. They all came home together. The trip cost them $20 each. They tried to keep the affair quiet, and they have succeeded so far.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Lifts an Elephant With His Teeth.

Milo, the famous athlete of ancient Greece, the man who was victor at both the Olympic and Pythian games for six different times in succession, and whose chief claim to fame rests upon the feat of running four miles with a 3-year-old ox upon his shoulders, would hide his head with shame could he visit London and witness the wonderful feats performed by Sullivan, the modern Samson. Sullivan is only 31 years of age and weighs but 168 pounds, yet he is a physical giant without an equal in the known world. He regularly goes through a routine of feats illustrative of his wonderful strength, the most remarkable being the actual lifting of an elephant with his teeth.

The elephant is not a Jumbo, to be sure; neither is he small, especially when you come to consider the size of the man who does the lifting and the usual dimensions and strength of human teeth. The elephant daily and nightly swung like a pendulum from Mr. Sullivan's teeth is known as "the infant" and weighs between 1,800 and 2,000 pounds. This remarkable strong man is probably the only one in the world who lifts more than 1,000 pounds with the teeth alone. Another favorite trick of his is that of lifting a barrel of water (566 pounds) with one finger.—St. Louis Republic.

The Use of Sudden Wealth.

The disposition toward mad extravagance so often seen in wealthy young men is not always the result of means to gratify overstrong desires, but the positive foolishness or mental incompetence, which, under the pressure of narrow means, would not only never have developed itself, but never have existed. "I have succeeded," said a very great statesman, "because I have never had enough to live on."

The silly marriages the old frequently make are in just the same way the result not of loss of judgment, but of a weakening of the resisting power of the will. The consequences of unexpected wealth are, however, as often fortunate as unfortunate, for they are the products of the natural character.

We have seen a man who inherited a fortune, very large for his wants, become during the remainder of his life almost or quite miserly, but that was only on a large scale the result of the impulse to save, which on a small one had been pronounced a "wise economy," aggravated a little, it may be, by a foible—timidity about spending, which is constantly noticeable also in men who were born rich.—London Spectator.

Going Out by Degrees.

Brignoli was so careful of his voice when he had to sing that he would not speak at all and was in the habit of writing his wishes on a piece of paper. During the last 30 years of his life he lived at the Everett House when not on the road. It took him at least three-quarters of an hour to go from his room to the sidewalk. He must get used to the changes very gradually. Leaving the room, he would pace up and down the hall for 10 or 15 minutes, until thoroughly "acclimatized," as he himself would say, and from there would go to the lobby to experience for 20 minutes a slightly lower degree of temperature.

At the end of half an hour he usually reached the vestibule, where he would pass another quarter, opening the outer door occasionally to get a taste of the fresh air. When thoroughly acclimatized here, he buttoned his greatcoat close about him and stepped out on the pavement.—New York Tribune.

Prodigality of Life In Ancient Egypt.

The reckless prodigality with which in ancient Egypt the upper classes squandered away the labor and lives of the people is perfectly startling. In this respect, as the monuments yet remaining abundantly prove, they stand alone and without a rival. We may form some idea of the almost incredible waste when we hear that 2,000 men were occupied for three years in carrying a single stone from Elephantine to Saïs, that the canal of the Red sea alone cost the lives of 120,000 Egyptians, and that to build one of the pyramids required the labor of 360,000 men for 20 years.—London Tit-Bits.

A Parliamentary Joke.

Lord John Russell never made an unparliamentary joke, and that recorded by Mr. Torrens is no exception. A teller was absent on his honeymoon, at which some unkindly grumbled. "No, no!" said Sir John, "no man is bound to kiss and tell."—London Academy.

If Your Cistern Is Out of Order

or Soft Water is scarce, don't worry yourself for a moment—go right ahead and use hard water with

KIRK'S
WHITE RUSSIAN
SOAP

and you'll never know the difference.

The clothes will be just as white, clean and sweet-smelling, because the "White Russian" is specially adapted for use in hard water.

JAS. S. KIRK & CO., Chicago.

Dusky Diamond Tar Soap. Best Soap for the Hands.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON. - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

W A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N, B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE
North American Review
YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year,
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

THE DUAL
MEAT MARKET.
oOo
CHARLEY VINE
Is Headquarters for all kinds of
Fresh and Salt Meats.
o
Highest cash price paid for cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry and hides.
SHOPS
Corner Broadway and Robert street,
and on Second street, in Reckitt block,
Crookston, - - - Minn.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana | FARM LANDS

NEW TOWNS | 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. | LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. | Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. | In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetes Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. | Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines | These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
BETWEEN
Chicago, St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.
Leave Crookston Daily
For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior, 7:12 p.m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8:19 a.m.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

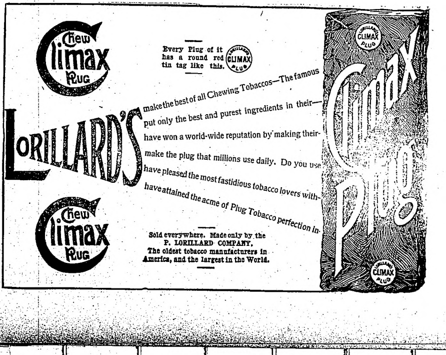
IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

ALDERMAN
&
SYLVESTER
ARE OFFERING
SPECIAL PRICES
ON
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS
AND
WALL PAPER.
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER
THAN EVER.
☞ WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY. ☜
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN, C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜



Every Plug of it has a round red tin tag like this.

make the best of all Chewing Tobaccos—The famous put only the best and purest ingredients in their—have won a world-wide reputation by making their—make the plug that millions use daily. Do you use have pleased the most fastidious tobacco lovers with—have attained the acme of Plug Tobacco perfection in—

Sold everywhere. Made only by the
P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America, and the largest in the World.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

"Nearly every body understands that when one of those financial revulsions, known as panics comes over the country, money disappears in the west and goes to the East—secreting itself in the bank vaults, safety deposits and strong boxes of the manufacturing States. Farm value and prices fall—farms become unsalable, and farmers find it difficult, if not impossible, to pay their debts, or to borrow money, and are forced to struggle along as best they may, till times grow better. The explanation of this disagreeable phenomenon is that the manufacturing states control the money of the country: they are the creditors states, while the Western and Southern states are debtors; they are money lenders, while the other states are money borrows; they hold mortgages on considerably more than one-half of the property of the west and south, and there is a perpetual drain of money from all other states and territories into them to pay the interest on these enormous claims."

The above article, coming from a democratic source, the Minneapolis Times, if the correct diagnosis of the cause of hard times is one of the strongest arguments for high tariff that could be brought to show why the State of Minnesota should always cast her vote for the protection of the manufacturing interests of the country. With her vast forests of pine and hard wood, with her unlimited supplies of iron and other minerals with unbounded facilities for establishing manufactories of all kinds, no state in the union has greater advantages and if the position assumed by the Times be correct why should not the citizens of Minnesota vote to protect these interests? And yet, during every campaign the Times urges the voters to vote against our manufacturing interests by voting in favor of no tariff. Such ideas as the above, that will sometimes crop out show how little stock these no-tariff papers take in the doctrines that they try hard to inculcate during the heat of political campaigns.

WHAT TIME IS IT, BOYS?

We note that a number of our exchanges are running an ad. for the "American Cigar Co.," of Winston, N. C., the pay for which, (on the terms of their offer) was to be made in an elegant (?) gold filled watch and 150 cigars, delivered free at nearest express office. The JOURNAL received their proposition and wrote to them to send their goods at once giving them the privilege of holding them subject to their own order until they had received evidence that we were doing their work, and—we never head from them since. The National Advertiser pronounces the concern "no good" and as a matter of curiosity, we should like to know if the boys who run that ad. have received their cigars, and if it is not about "time" to pass 'em around? Most of us newspaper boys smoke.

THE St. Paul Globe and other soldier hating papers are trying hard to make political capital out of the suspension of a new York Grand army post for its action upon the pension question and the Globe, in high glee trumps up a story to the effect that a member of the old Iron Brigade advises all Grand Army men who sympathize with the sentiments expressed by the resolutions passed by the suspended posts to pull off their buttons and have nothing to do with the G. A. R. until that post is re-instated. There are very few G. A. R. men, who do not know that the men who bared their breasts to the storm, and risked their lives to save the Union, are as much, nay more entitled to compensation than the men who stayed safely in their homes, and furnished money to carry on the war, taking bonds therefor, from which they reaped a bountiful harvest in gold. These men simply risked their money and have reaped millions while the men who risked their lives are begrudged a small pittance to cheer their declining years. But the force of the Globe's point is broken when the fact that Farnham post was not suspended for passing resolutions, but for violation of a G. A. R. General Order becomes known.

WHILE our Polk county farmers' representative was wracking his massive brain in the interests of his constituents last winter if he had thought to have procured a law changing the term of court until June he would have done something that would have been of practical benefit to the farmers who now have to neglect very important farm work to attend to court duties. The idea of holding court earlier than from the eighth to the tenth of June is tough on the farmers who have not finished seeding.

THE fish warden has been after the fishers with nets in Otter Tail county and has captured a number of them and they have been obliged to put up more wealth than they could earn in a month with their nets. He should take a day off and make a quiet sneak on Polk county some fine rainy day when the fishers with nets are quite numerous hereabouts. The impression seems to have been obtained that the fish laws are no good, anyhow, but the fish warden seems to have a different idea and he is making it hot for some.

THE Horseman has been moved to Minneapolis where in future it will be published. The Horseman is one of the papers that no breeder should do without.

THE new collector of customs at St. Vincent is Ed. Love, of the Kittson County Enterprise. It seems that Grover does not always forget the newspaper man.

Of a faithful worker in the vineyard of the Lord the Marshall county Leader has the following good words to say, which the JOURNAL can heartily endorse. Mr. Battey is doing a faithful, conscientious work, and we are gratified to see that it is appreciated by our neighbors. The Leader says:

"Rev. R. H. Battey will fill the Congregational pulpit next Sunday, May 28th, at the regular hours, 3 and 7:30 p. m. He is announced for a temperance lecture at Northcote to-night. Rev. Battey is one of the busiest and most zealous of christian workers. Besides his lectures and Sunday supply work in towns outlying from Crookston, with the regular amount of work involved in preparation, he is building up a very creditable christian paper, The Message, at Crookston. He is certainly an instructive and entertaining speaker, meriting a full house at his Sunday meetings."

Maple Bay Items.

Maple Bay is booming this spring with a big B. Among our other improvements is a big hotel soon to be erected.

Farmers are jubilant—grain nearly all in and growing nicely.

Felsing Bros., have thoroughly refitted their steamer for the summer's business and neatly painted, she rides the waves like a duck. One great improvement this season will be the side curtains they have added this spring.

Everybody with his wife together with his sisters and his cousins and his aunts should bear in mind that the great and only Fourth of July celebration of the northwest occurs at the Bay this year. No pains nor expense will be spared that will contribute to the hilarity of the occasion and the comforts of the crowds who will attend. A cordial invitation to all is extended to come and be happy.

H. D. Horton's new emporium, at the Bay is the place to obtain the best goods cheap. Call and be convinced.

MAPLE BAY.

Electrical Entertainment.

Mr. Louis Favour will give an entertainment next Monday and Tuesday evenings, June 5th and 6th, at the Methodist Episcopal church, under the auspices of the Epworth League. The entertainment is a lecture on electricity, with a series of exceedingly brilliant experiments introduced, such as electric fire works, etc. Mr. Favour comes highly recommended and the entertainment will be very interesting and instructive.

A Card of Thanks.

In behalf of Col. Cobham Post No. 90 I desire to return the sincere thanks of the Post to the ladies of the W. R. C., to the Sons of Veterans, the Juvenile Drum Corps, the Queen City Band, to the singers, to the school children and to all loyal citizens whose patriotism prompted them to go with us to the cemetery and participate with us in the solemn and sacred ceremonies of Decoration Day.

O. H. LUCKEN,
Adjutant.

Dr. M J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May, while in Des Moines en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhœa. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhœa Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliabiliy, he procured a 25 cent bottle, two doses of which completly cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhœa. Every one should procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. For sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

MEMORIAL DAY

Was Properly Observed by the G. A. R., W. R. C., S. O. V. and Citizens Generally.

A Long Procession goes to the Cemetery, Where Appropriate Exercises were had.

The Day was Perfect, the Turn-out Large, the Oration Excellent and the Singing Good.

The exercises of Memorial Day were carried out as per program in our last issue. The procession, when formed and marching, reached for many blocks, making as large a parade of the kind as Crookston ever witnessed, and nearly all who started went out to the cemetery where a greater concourse gathered than has been seen there for many a day. The clouds at one time threatened rain, which happily was not verified, and soon the sun shone out and the afternoon proved an exceedingly pleasant one. The exercises at the cemetery were solemn and impressive and the large attendance showed beyond a peradventure that patriotism is not a dead letter in this county of Polk. E. M. Stanton delivered an eloquent address that was listened to with wrapt attention, and the singing, which was given by a number of ladies and gentlemen, was well rendered and appropriate. To the old boys in blue, who annually make this pilgrimage to the silent city of the dead to pay their mute tribute to the memory of departed comrades, the scene was one of solemn significance, as each succeeding year their already depleted ranks are thinning with frightful rapidity, and no one of them can tell whose turn will come next. Standing thus in the presence of the noble dead their minds were carried back to the wild scenes of the camp, the bivouac and the field, when these silent forms, whose memory is thus perpetuated, were animated comrades in arms—thousands now lying in forgotten, neglected graves on the ensanguined field of blood—never more to respond to the greetings of friend or foe, and with feelings of love and awe unknown to any but a true veteran, these old comrades whose feeble footsteps have almost compassed life's fitful journey, gathered round to render these mute tributes to the comrades who have only gone before and who are awaiting the "tramp, tramp, tramp," of the boys who are marching to that silent land of which they are already inhabitants. Let us hope that each one was strengthened with the thought that when life's fitful fever is over he may go to meet those comrades in a land of peace and joy beyond the confines of the cold and gloomy grave.

Bible Society Meeting.

The Polk County Auxiliary of the American Bible Society will hold its annual meeting in the First M. E. church next Sunday evening. The President, A. A. Miller, Esq., will preside and ten minute addresses will be made by city ministers as follows:

The Bible and the Nation, Rev. O. H. Elmer.

The Bible and the Home, Rev. G. F. G. Hoyt.

The Bible and Vital Godliness, Rev. H. F. McDonald.

The Bible Society and the Poor, Rev. J. G. Smith.

The Bible Society in Foreign Lands, Rev. L. W. Squier.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend this interesting meeting.

"W—R—DS F—I—."

Is the heading of a conundrum Bro. Smith, of the Marshall County Leader is running to advertise somebody's cigars, and whoever can supply the missing letters is entitled to a gold watch and 150 cigars (by paying for them.) Now, we are not going to compete for the prize but we will venture one year's subscription to the JOURNAL that we can supply the missing links and solve the deep riddle. Most anybody would guess the words completed to mean "World's Fair" but we do not so interpret them. It seems plain to us that in this case they mean "Words Fail" to express the disgust of Diamond Hiram when he fails to receive the gold watch and the 150 cigars which he was promised for running the ad.

A Snap.

The Red River Valley Loan and Investment Company has for sale a half section of land situated two miles from the city limits, good buildings, artesian well, 80 acres fenced, land all broken except about 10 acres in grove. Been used as a stock farm and admirably adapted for that purpose, as being close to the city it is available as a milk and dairy farm. Improvements upon the farm alone cost over $4,000 and it can be had for $6,400. A cash payment of $2,000 will secure the place and purchaser can have a reasonable time on the balance, or for cash a liberal discount will be made. Owner desires to invest his means in other business. Inquire of August George, opera house block. [1-tf]

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A survey of Faribault is being made for a system of sewerage.

The Milwaukee road has abandoned its Twin City short line trains.

Charles Parker, of St. Paul, paid $100 fine for violating the lottery law.

Schools at Deer Creek have been closed on account of scarlet fever.

The German American bank is being organized at Wells. Capital $25,000.

A new postoffice has been established at Biwabik, with Chester Milburn postmaster.

The next congress of the Daughters of the Revolution will be held in St. Paul in June.

Joseph C. Mold of Faribault has been appointed game warden for Southern Minnesota.

St. Paul swindlers have defrauded country banks out of about $1,000 by means of bogus drafts.

The Garfield Farmers' Elevator company of Fertile has incorporated. The capital stock is $10,000.

The senatorial pine land investigating committee met at the capitol Thursday, but nothing was done.

W. W. Saterlee, the noted prohibition worker of Minneapolis and once a candidate for governor, is dead.

At Cloquet Susan Peyhtovi committed suicide, cutting her throat. She leaves a husband and two sons.

Minnesota will have a national bank examiner of its own shortly. The state is now in a district with Wisconsin.

Robert Bissell, head bookkeeper for the Cargill Elevator company, committed suicide at Minneapolis last week.

The bank of Zumbrota, which suspended a little over a week ago, has resumed business with increased capital.

Frank Fowler, an engineer, was killed near Kasota, while trying to jump from a gravel train on the Omaha road.

At Cannon Falls burglars broke into F. R. Anderson's office, cracked the safe and got 30 cents in cash and $380 in notes.

The former residence of Hon. Michael Doran at Le Sueur, was sold at auction Saturday. It cost $20,000 and brought $2,500.

St. Paul police, in following up a false clew to the missing Mamie Schwartz, found a boy who had been missing.

St. Louis county has voted $250,000 bonds in aid of the Duluth, Mesaba and Northern. Stock at par will be given in exchange.

There will be no term of the United States court at Winona in June owing to the whole of the appropriation being expended.

Several Winona wheelmen are planning to attend the national and international meet to be held at Chicago, Aug. 7 to 12.

A state teachers' training school will be held at Hastings for four weeks, beginning July 19, for the counties of Ramsey, Dakota and Washington.

The state auditor conducted a state land sale in Moorhead on Friday. It was far from a success. Only 210 acres were disposed of and the average amount realized did not exceed $7 an acre.

Secretary Smith has promised a number of important appointments in Minnesota in a very short time; and among them are a successor to Monroe Nichols at Duluth, a register at Crookston and perhaps changes in several other land offices.

The Duluth chamber of commerce, after hearing from the investigating committee, adopted a resolution that it is not advisable to vote for the Minnesota Canal company's proposition for $600,000 of county bonds as a bonus, because the proposition is too indefinite. The company was urged to withdraw it until a more satisfactory proposition can be made.

Secretary Hart of the state board of corrections and charities, has received some statistics from Iowa which show interesting parallels with the state of Minnesota. Iowa has in the poorhouses, 2,256; in jails, 414; in state prison, 628. Minnesota has in poorhouses, 300; in jails, 272; in state prison, 458. The ratio is about the same for prisoners, but Iowa has nearly three times as many paupers as Minnesota.

A telegram from Spokane says that E. A. Bade, formerly of Minnesota and whose parents reside somewhere in that state, has been murdered at Wardner, Idaho. Bade had a placer's claim owned in company with three others. The claim panned out well and the partners had quite a sum in gold dust. The men were in constant dread of being attacked and robbed and feared their claim would be jumped, so they divided themselves into two shifts for watching the property. Bade was suspicious of his partners and after coming off the shift thought he would watch their movements. He stationed himself behind a clump of trees near the claim, but his presence was detected, and he fell dead with a bullet through his head. It is not known whether he was mistaken for a robber or killed intentionally.

Capacity Increased.

WELLS, Minn., May 30.—W. H. Ketzeback & Co., proprietors of the Wells roller mills, have bought the Mapleton flour mill and will run it in connection with their business here.

Needham Wins a Fight.

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., May 30.—Danny Needham won a battle at Kimball, knocking out Joe Korzan, a pugilist of state reputation, in the fourth round.

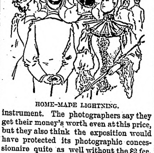
NOTHING LIKE ACTION.

Men Are but Children of Larger Growth.

SEEING THE WHEELS GO ROUND.

Things That Fascinate the World's Fair Visitors—The Marvels of Electricity, Both Spectacular and Practical—The Swiss Watchmakers Have Learned from the Yankees.

WORLD'S FAIR, May 29.—[Special.]—Nothing catches the eye of the multitude like action. The people love beauty, and they are fascinated with vastness or manifestation of great power, but it is movement that seems to appeal most to them, day in and day out. We see that in the fair here. Wherever an exhibit has action in it there a crowd of people will always be found standing about in layers four or five thick, craning their necks to see over each other's shoulders. For this reason the gondolas and electric launches on the lagoons and basins are always a center of interest. Artists who visit the fair say it is a capital place for studies, not only of character on account of the cosmopolitan nature of the crowds, but because of the opportunity afforded to study movement in a thousand ways. I have seen scores of artists sketching the gondoliers as they go poling their craft about the waters, putting their bodies into all sorts of attitudes and positions.



HOME-MADE LIGHTNING.

The amateur photographers find the gondoliers and all the other spectacles here, whether still or moving, greatly to their liking. A great many cameras appear on the grounds, despite the rule which requires the payment of $2 for each instrument. The photographers say they get their money's worth even at this price, but they also think the exposition would have protected its photographic concessionaire quite as well without the $2 fee. For the management will not admit to the grounds any camera with a larger lens than four by five, and a lens of that smallness will not produce a picture likely to have any commercial value or to interfere with the business of the concessionaire at all. Besides, the amateurs are frank enough to admit what is probably true that not one picture in a thousand taken by them would be worth selling, no matter what its size. The $2 fee is collected just the same, and a few days ago I saw the Duke of Veragua and his son stopped at the gate and turned back because the young man had under his coat a detective camera. The sharp-eyed gatekeeper had a detective camera in his eye, and when he spied the box the descendants of Columbus were sent back to pay over their $2 or leave the camera outside the gates.

No one understands the value of action better than the electrical exhibitors. The spectacularism of electricity is being worked up to a great pitch here. The successful devices are those which have movement in them. For instance, there is the home-made lightning which is always surrounded by a crowd of visitors in the southeast corner of the Electrical building. The bolt starts at the base of a column made of red, white and blue lamps, runs to the top of that and thence out along the four outstretched arms made to represent the forks of a stroke of nature's voltage. People wonder how the beautiful effect is produced, but it really is a very simple process as all may see by looking down a skylight like enclosure near by.

It is somewhat like looking down in a well, only instead of water and the old oaken bucket that hangs there you perceive a series of cylinders with little levers touching their surface, a good deal like the cylinders employed in a music box. The cylinders are kept in motion all the time, and the innumerable teeth standing out from their peripheries engage the levers in a regular series, one after another. As each lever is touched an electrical circuit is opened and the current turned on eight lamps on the pillar or along the outstretched forks of the lightning stroke. In the fraction of a second this circuit is closed, as the lever is disengaged, and another is opened by the tooth coming in contact with the next lever of the series. In this way the manifestation of the current in the beautiful lights is made absolutely synchronous throughout the corresponding parts of the device. That is to say, the current is turned on at the end of one arm, for instance, at the precise instant which shows it is on at the end of another. It could not be otherwise, for the lamps which light the ends of the four arms are on the same circuit. So it is with all corresponding positions throughout the construction. The wheels of the music box, which in reality is nothing but a continuously moving switchboard, send the lightning coursing up the pillar and along the arms with the regularity of the ticking of a clock.

This device is fascinating because it has action, and for the additional reason that it seems like a trick of legerdemain. It savors strongly of magic. Even more beautiful, though not quite so picturesque, are the globes of fire which hang at the ends of the lightning-forks. As the current runs out it appears to enter the balls, which are constantly revolving, and set them afire now with red flames, now with blue and finally with rapidly changing colors and prismatic hues. This is also a very simple construction. It is another instance of the multiplication of circuits, to be turned on in sequence by an automatic switchboard. The forked lightning and the revolving globes of changing lights are, as they deserve to be, among the most popular of all the many striking electrical devices in the exposition.

A thousand persons will look at this spectacular, moving display where one will take the trouble to stop and examine some of the more wonderful and really useful forms in which the electrical power is now being utilized. For instance, few visitors care to inform themselves concerning the uses of the iron machines which look unlike any other machine that ever was, but which evidently have something to do with electricity. The few who stop to inquire learn that a revolution in mining methods is taking place through the introduction of electricity. It is about the latest of the constant succession of new triumphs which this force and the magicians who use it are making in the industrial world. Here is an electrical locomotive, designed for use under ground. It may be operated miles from the open air, giving off no gas or smoke, and requiring neither water, draft nor fuel. The power is conveyed to it by what corresponds to the well known trolley. By its side is a powerful blower, also for use under ground. A long distance from the mouth of the air shaft it may be kept constantly in motion, supplying under heavy pressure a flow of fresh ozone through all the leads and passages. There are drills and other underground machines with electricity as their motive power, and the inventors and adapters have scarcely begun operations in the mining field.

The telephone exchange set up in this building also attracts much attention. Telephone exchanges are common throughout the country, but it seems that few people have ever had the opportunity to see the interior of one. Crowds constantly surround the dozen girls who sit with receivers at their ears, whispering "What number?" and other jargon of the trade into the mouth-pieces, and pulling out and putting in little metal plugs. This exchange is not only an exhibit but a practical exchange, because it manipulates the five hundred and odd telephones that are in use on the World's fair grounds. This simple fact gives the reader somewhat of an idea of the immensity of the exposition. If you were to take the place of one of the girls for a few minutes you would hear such requests as "Give me German," "Ring off Japan and put on the state of Maine," "The German commissioner wants the office of the Chilian superintendent," and other telephonic exclamations which give one a very good notion of the fact that here all the world is in one brotherhood.

Here are the long-distance telephones, too, over which one may talk from Chicago to New York and Boston, and it is not too much to suppose that within a year or two one will be able to throw his voice around the globe. As for telephone exchanges, or the much bespoken "central," you will be surprised to learn there is a device here which does away with the need for it and takes from the comely girls their somewhat trying occupation. It is an automatic telephone exchange, by means of which No. 11 may connect himself with No. 44 or any other number in the exchange without the intervention of any hand but his own. How this is done is more than I can understand.

Wherever there is action there you will see the people thickest. In the Woman's building the Welsh girl from Swansea, who bares her ruddy arm and perspires under her chimney-pot hat while manipulating the old-fashioned loom, never lacks admirers. Nor does the Scotch woman near by who makes an old spinning wheel hum in the style which many of us may remember going to sleep by in the days of our youth. In the great transportation department the locomotive which is set up an inch or so from the track and with steam in its cylinders has its wheels kept in rapid motion, attracts more attention than any other locomotive in the exhibit, though in itself it is a rather commonplace machine. Machinery hall draws greater crowds than any other building, because its exhibits are endowed with the charm of motion. The simplest steam engine weaves a spell with its rapidly revolving wheel, and the whirring dynamos fascinate and mystify. Not many of us are so far removed from boyhood that we are not pleased to "see the wheels go round."

In the greatest building that ever was, the Hall of Manufactures, the exhibit which has more visitors than any other is a display of watch-making machinery. Lucky indeed you will be if you get near enough to it to see the marvelous contrivances doing their work. By waiting ten minutes for an opening in the throng you may get within view of the amazing construction of steel which acts more like a human being gifted with infallibility of precision of touch than like a piece of machinery. A long steel finger picks up a piece of wire, passes it to another part of the machine, watches to see when it has been pared down enough to assume the form of a screw, then picks it up again and passes it along to a device which cuts and flattens the head of the screw; and when this is done lifts it once more and places it within a lathe which produces the thread, and in this way escorts the little piece of metal from process to process so that in the end what started in a wire has come out a delicately fashioned and perfectly finished, though very minute, screw for use in a watch. Another of these marvelous machines registers as a thermometer registers heat and cold or a steam guage the pressure of steam in a boiler, the strength of the hair spring and indicates unerringly the size and style of balance that will be required to keep it in proper bounds.

The Swiss show in this building many of their finest watches in part made by machinery. Previous to the Centennial exposition of 1876 they did not use any machinery whatever in the manufacture of their watches. The showing made by ingenious Yankees at that World's fair convinced the shrewd Swiss that if they were to keep up with the procession and have a fair chance in the race for the world's market they would have to adopt machinery, too. Year after year they introduce more and more automatic devices to help them in the construction of their marvelous watches. What is going on in this one field is going on everywhere. The exposition is a show-place of the nations, and one people learn from another now to do just a little better many of the things which are their reliance in the industrial struggle. It would be almost impossible to over-estimate the importance of the fair as an aid to the development of processes which will make the good things of life better and cheaper and therefore within the reach of a greater number of people.

ROBERT GRAVES.

Famous Old Sofa.

The sofa on which Generals Grant and Lee sat together when they talked it all over and put an end to the rebellion has been placed in the West Virginia state building. It is of the old-fashioned pattern with carved mahogany frame, flowered upholstery, high back, round at the corners and ends. When new it was undoubtedly a handsome piece of furniture, but presents now a worn appearance. Three Virginia ladies, deeply interested in the relic and its historical surroundings, were considerably excited when informed that it had once belonged to the widow McLain.

A SOLITARY.

It was snowing hard, as it had been for twenty-four hours. The evergreen trees hung low with the snow. Nicholas Gunn's little house was almost hidden beneath it. The snow shelved out over the eaves and clung in damp masses to the walls. Nicholas sat on his doorstep, and the snow fell upon him. His old cap had become a tall white crown. There was a ridge of snow upon his bent shoulders. He sat perfectly still. His eyes were fixed upon the weighted evergreens across the road, but he did not seem to see them. He looked as calmly passive beneath the storm as a Buddhist monk.

There were no birds stirring and there was no wind. All the sound came from the muffled rustle of the snow on the trees, and that was so slight as to seem scarcely more than a thought of sound. The road stretched to the north and south through the forest of pine and cedar and hemlock. Nicholas Gunn's was the only house in sight.

Stephen Forster came up the road from the southward. He bent his head and struggled along: the snow was above his knees, and at every step he lifted his feet painfully, as from a quicksand. He advanced quite noiselessly until he began to cough. The cough was deep and rattling, and he had to stand still in the snow while it was upon him. Nicholas Gunn never looked up. Stephen bent himself almost double, the cough became a strangle, but Nicholas kept his calm eyes fixed upon the evergreens.

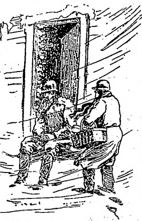
At last Stephen righted himself and kept on. He was very small; his clothes were covered with snow, and patches of it clung to his face. He looked like some little winter starved, white furred animal creeping painfully to cover. When he came opposite the house he half halted, but Nicholas never stirred nor looked his way, and he kept on. It was all that he could do to move; the cough had exhausted him: he carried a heavy basket too.

He had proceeded only a few paces beyond the house when his knees bent under him and he fairly sank down into the snow. He groaned a little, but Nicholas did not turn his head.

After a little Stephen raised himself, lifted his basket and went staggering back.

“Mr. Gunn,” said he.

Nicholas turned his eyes slowly and looked at him, but he did not speak.



Nicholas turned his eyes slowly and looked at him.

“Can't I go into your house an set down an rest a few minutes? I'm 'most beat out.”

“No, you can't,” replied Nicholas Gunn.

“I dunno as I can git home.”

Nicholas made no rejoinder. He turned his eyes away. Stephen stood looking piteously at him. His sharply cut, delicate face gleamed white through the white fall of the snow.

“If you'd jest let me set there a few minutes,” he said.”

Nicholas sat immovable.

Stephen tried to walk on, but suddenly another coughing fit seized him. He stumbled across the road and propped himself against a pine tree, setting the basket down in the snow. He twisted himself about the snowy tree trunk and the coughs came in a rattling volley.

Nicholas Gunn looked across at him and waited until Stephen got his breath. Then he spoke.

“Look a here!” he said.

“What say?”

“If you want to set in the house a few minutes you can. There ain't no fire there.”

“Thank ye.”

It was some time before Stephen Forster gathered strength enough to return across the road to the house. He leaned against the tree panting, the tears running down his cheeks. Nicholas did not offer to help him. When at last Stephen got across the road he rose to let him pass through the door; then he sat down again on the doorstep.

Stephen Forster set his basket on the floor and staggered across the room to a chair. He leaned his head back against the wall and panted. The room was bitterly cold: the snow drifted in through the open door where Nicholas sat. There was no furniture except a cooking stove, a cot bed, one chair and a table; but there were ornaments. Upon the wall hung various little worsted and cardboard decorations. There was a lamp mat on the table, and in one corner was a rude bracket holding a bouquet of wax flowers under a tall glass shade. There was also a shelf full of books beside the window.

Stephen Forster did not notice anything. He sat with his eyes closed. Once or twice he tried feebly to brush the snow off his clothes; that was all. Nicholas never turned his head. He looked like a stone image there in the doorway. In about twenty minutes Stephen arose, took his basket up and went timidly toward the door.

“I'm much obleeged to ye, Mr. Gunn,” he said. “I guess I can git along now.”

Nicholas got up, and the snow fell from his shoulders in great cakes. He stood aside to let Stephen pass. Stephen, outside the door, paused and looked up at him.

“I'm much obleeged to ye,” he said again. “I guess I can git home now. I had them three coughin spells after I left the store, and I got 'most beat out.”

Nicholas grunted and sat down again. Stephen looked at him a minute: then he smiled abashedly and turned away, urging his feeble little boy through the storm. Nicholas watched him, then turned his head with a stiff jerk.

“If he wants to go out in such weather he can. I don't care,” he muttered.

It was nearly four o'clock in the afternoon. The snow was gradually ceasing. Presently a yellow light could be seen through the weeds in the west. Some birds flew into one of the snowy trees: a wood sled creaked down the road; the driver stared at Nicholas in the doorway; he turned his head and stared again. It was evident that he was not one of the village people. They had witnessed the peculiarities of Nicholas Gunn for the last six years. They still stared, but not as assiduously.

The driver of the wood sled, as soon as he went down the slope in the road and could no longer see Nicholas, began to whistle. The whistle floated back like a wake of merry sound.

Presently Nicholas arose, took off his cap and beat it against the doorpost to rid it of its dome of snow. Then he shook himself like a dog and stamped. Then he went into the house and stood looking irresolutely at the cold stove.

“Should like a fire to heat up my hasty puddin mighty well, so—I won't have it,” said he.

He took a wooden bucket and went with it out of doors, around the house over a snow covered path to a spring. The water trickled into its little basin from under a hood of snow. Nicholas plunged in his bucket, withdrew it filled with water and carried it back to the house. The path led through the woods; all the trees and bushes were white arcs. Some of the low branches bowed over the path, and Nicholas passing under them had to stoop.

Nicholas, back in his house, got a bowl out of a rude closet: it was nearly full of cold hasty pudding. He stood there and swallowed it in great gulps.

The light was waning fast, although it lasted longer than usual on account of the snow, which, now the clouds were gone, was almost like a sheet of white light.

Nicholas, when he had finished his supper, plunged out again into this pale dusk. He tramped, knee deep, down the road for a long way. He reached the little village center, left it behind, and went on between white meadow lands and stretches of woods. Once in awhile he met a man plodding down to the store, but there were few people abroad. The road would not be cleared until morning.

Finally Nicholas turned about and went back until he reached the village store. Its windows and glass door were full of yellow light, in which one could see many heads moving. When Nicholas opened the clanging door and went in all the heads turned toward him. There was hardly a man there as tall as he. He went across the store with a kind of muscular scramble; his head, with its wild, light beard, had a lofty lift to it. The lounging men watched him furtively as he bought some Indian meal and matches at the counter. When he had gone out with his purchases there was a burst of laughter. The storekeeper thrust a small, sharp face over the counter.

“If a man is such a darned fool as to live on meal and matches, I ain't got nothing to say so long as he pays me the money down,” said he. He had a hoarse cold and his voice was a facetious whisper.

There was another shout of laughter. Nicholas could hear it as he went down the street. The stranger who had driven the wood sled past Nicholas' house was among the men. He was snowbound over night in the village. He was a young fellow, with innocent eyes and a hanging jaw. He nudged the man next him.

“What in creation ails the fellar anyhow?” said he. “I seed him a-settin on his doorstep this afternoon, and the snow a-drivin right on to him.”

“He ain't right in his upper story,” replied the man. “Somethin went agin him; his wife run off with another fellar or somethin, an he's cracked.”

“Why don't they shet him up?”

“He ain't dangerous. Reckon he won't hurt nobody but himself. If he wants to set out in a drivin snowstorm and tramp till he's tuckered out, it ain't nothin to nobody else but himself. There ain't no use bringin that kind of crazy on the town.”

“'Twouldn't cost the town much,” chimed in another man. “He's worth property. Shouldn't be surprised if he was worth $3,000. And there he is a-livin on cornmeal and water.”

An old man in a leather cushioned armchair beside the stove turned his grizzly, quizzical face toward the others and cleared his throat. They all bent forward attentively. He had a reputation for wit.

“Makes me think of old Eph Huntly and the story Squire Morse used to tell about him,” said he. He paused impressively and they waited. Then he went on: “Seems old Eph got terrible hard up one time. One thing after another went agin him. He'd been laid up with the rheumatiz all winter; then his wife, she'd been sick, an they was 'most eat up with medicine an doctors' bills. Then his hay crop hed failed an his pertaters hed rotted, an finally, to cap the climax, his best cow died an the int'rest money was due on the mortgage an he didn't have a cent to pay it with. Well, he couldn't raise the money nohow, an the day came when he s'posed the farm would have to go. Lawyer Holmes, he held the mortgage, an he expected to see him drive into the yard any time. Well, old Eph he jest goes out in the yard an he ketches a nice fat crower an he kills him an picks him.

“Then he takes him in to his wife. She was takin on terrible 'cause she thought the farm hed got to go, an sez he, 'Sukey Ann, I want you to go an cook this crower jest as good as you know how.' 'Oh, Lor!' sez she, 'I don't want no crower,' an she boohooed right out. But old Eph, he made her go an stuff that crower an cook him, an bile onions, turnips an squash an all the fixins. He said he never felt so bad in his life, an he never got to sech a desperit pitch, an he was goin to have a good dinner anyhow. Well, it so happened that Lawyer Holmes, he driv into the yard jest as old Eph an his wife were settin down to dinner, an he see that nice baked crower an the fixins all set out, an he didn't know what to make on't. It seemed to him Eph couldn't be so dreadful bad off or he wouldn't have any heart for extra dinners, an mebbe he hed some way of raisin the money in prospect.

“Then Lawyer Holmes, he was mighty fond of his victuals himself, an the upshot of it was he was sot down to the table an eat a good meal of the crower an fixins, an there wa'n't no mortgage foreclosed that day, an before long Eph, he managed to raise the money somehow. Now if Nicholas Gunn jest hed a little grain of old Eph's sense he'd jest git better victuals the wuss he felt an let one kinder make up for t'other, instead of livin on Injun meal and matches. I rather guess I wouldn't take to no meal an matches if my Ann Lizy left me. I'd live jest as high as I could to keep my spirits up.”

There was a burst of applause. The old man sat winking and grinning complacently.

“Nicholas Gunn is a darned fool or else he's cracked,” said the storekeeper in his hoarse whisper.

Meanwhile Nicholas Gunn went home. He put his meal away in the closet; he lighted a candle with one of his matches; he read awhile in the Bible; then he went to bed. That was too luxurious for him. He slept rolled in a blanket on the bare floor.

Nicholas Gunn, whether his eccentricities arose from mystical religious fervor or from his own personal sorrows, would have been revered and worshiped as a saintly ascetic among some nations; among New Englanders he met with the coarse ridicule of the loafers in a country store. Idle meditation and mortification of the flesh, except for gain, were among them irreconcilable with sanity. Nicholas would have had more prestige had he fled to the Himalayas and built himself a cell in some wild pass; however, prestige was not what he sought.

The next morning a wind had risen; it blew stiff and cold from the north. The snow was drifted into long waves and looked like a frozen sea. A flock of sparrows had collected in front of Nicholas Gunn's door and he stood watching them. They were searching for crumbs; this deep snow had shortened their resources woefully; all their larders were buried. There were no crumbs before this door, but they searched assiduously, with their feathers ruffled in the wind. Stephen Forster came up the road with his market basket; it was all he could do to face the cold wind. His thin coat was buttoned tight across his narrow shoulders: his old tippet blew out. He advanced with a kind of sidewise motion, presenting his body like a wedge to the wind: he could not walk fairly against it.

When he was opposite Nicholas the sparrows flew up at his feet: he paused and shifted his basket.

“Good mornin, Mr. Gunn,” said he in a weak voice.

Nicholas nodded. Stephen's face was mottled with purple; his nose and mouth looked shrunken: his shoes were heavy with snow.

“If you want to go in and set down a few minutes you can,” said Nicholas.

Stephen moved forward eagerly.

“Thank ye, Mr. Gunn; I am kinder beat out, an I'd like to set a few minutes,” he said.

He went in and sat down. The wind rushed in great gusts past the open door. Stephen began to cough. Nicholas hesitated; his face was surly: then he shut the door with a bang.

While Stephen rested himself in the house Nicholas marched up and down before it like a sentinel. He did not seem to see Stephen when he came out, but he stood before him in his track.

“I'm much obleeged, Mr. Gunn,” said he.

Nicholas nodded. Stephen hesitated a minute; then he went on up the road. The snow blew up around him in a dazzling cloud and almost hid him from sight.

“It's the last time I do it,” muttered Nicholas.

But it was not. Every morning, storm or shine, Stephen Forster toiled painfully over the road with his market basket, and every morning Nicholas Gunn invited him into the fireless hermitage to rest. A freezing hospitality, but he offered it, and Stephen accepted it with a fervent gratitude.

It grew apparently more and more necessary. Stephen crept more and more feebly over the road: he had to keep setting his basket down. Nicholas never asked him if he were ill; he never questioned him at all, although he knew nothing about him but his name. Nicholas did not know the names even of many of the village people; he had never offered nor invited confidences. Stephen also did not volunteer any information as to his circumstances during his morning calls upon Nicholas; indeed he was too exhausted; he merely gave his gentle and timid thanks for the hospitality.

There came a night in January when the cold reached the greatest intensity of the season. The snow creaked under foot; the air was full of sparkles; there were noises like guns in the woods, for the trees were almost freezing. The moon was full and seemed like a very fire of death, radiating cold instead of heat.

Nicholas Gunn, stern anchoret that he was, could not sleep for the cold. He got up and paced his room. He would not kindle a fire in the stove. He swung his arms and stamped. Suddenly he heard a voice outside. It sounded almost like a child's.

“Mr. Gunn!” it cried. Nicholas stopped and listened. It came again—“Mr. Gunn!”

“Who's there?” Nicholas sung out gruffly.

“It's—me!”

Then Nicholas knew it was Stephen Forster. He opened the door and Stephen stood there in the moonlight.

“What are you out for this time of night?” asked Nicholas.

Stephen chattered so that he could hardly speak. He cowered before Nicholas; the moonlight seemed to strike his little shivering form like a broadside of icy spears.

“I'm 'fraid I'm freezin,” he gasped. “Can't ye take me in?”

“What are you out for this time of night?” repeated Nicholas in a rough, loud tone.

“I had to. I'll tell you when I git a leetle warmer. I dunno but—I'm freezin.”

Stephen's voice indeed sounded as if ice were forming over it, muffling it. Nicholas suddenly grasped him by one arm.

“Come in then, if ye've got to,” he growled.

He pulled so suddenly and strongly that Stephen made a run into the house, and his heels flew up weakly. Nicholas whirled him about and seated him on his cot bed.

“Now lay down here,” he ordered, “and I'll cover ye up.”

Stephen obeyed. Nicholas pulled off his boots, gave his feet a fierce rub and fixed the coverings over him with rough energy. Then he began pacing the room again. Presently he went up to the bed.

“Warmer?”

“I guess—so.”

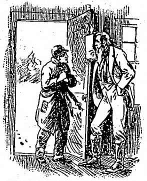
Stephen's shivering seemed to shake the room.

Nicholas hustled a coat off a peg and put it over Stephen. Then he paced again. Stephen began to cough. Nicholas made an exclamation and stamped angrily out of the house. There was a little leanto at the back and there was some fuel stored in it. Nicholas came back quickly with his arms full of wood. He piled it into the stove, set a match to it and put on a kettle of water. Then he dragged the cot bed with Stephen on it close to the stove, and began to rub him under the bedclothes. His face was knit savagely, but he rubbed with a tender strength.

“Warmer?” said he.

“Yes, I—be,” returned Stephen gratefully.

The fire burned briskly; the sharp air began to soften. Soon the kettle steamed. Nicholas got a measure of meal out of his cupboard and prepared some porridge in a little stewpan. When it begun to boil he bent over the stove and stirred carefully, lest it should lump. When it was thick enough he dished it, salted it and carried it to Stephen.



“I'm 'fraid I'm freezin,” he gasped.

“There, eat it,” said he. “It's the best I've got; it'll warm ye some. I ain't got no spirits, never keep any in the house.”

“I guess I ain't—very hungry, Mr. Gunn,” said Stephen feebly.

“Eat it.”

Stephen raised himself and drained the bowl with convulsive gulps. Tears stood in his eyes and he gasped when he lay back again. However, the warm porridge revived him. Presently he looked at Nicholas, who was putting more wood on the fire.

“I s'pose you think it's terrible queer that I come here this way,” said he, “but there wa'n't no other way. I dunno whether you know how I've been livin or not.”

“No, I don't.”

“Well, I've been livin with my half sister, Mis' Morrison. Mebbe you've heard of her?”

“No, I ain't.”

“She keeps boarders. We ain't lived in this town mor'n three years; we moved here from Jackson. Mis' Morrison's husband's dead, so she keeps boarders. She's consider'ble older'n me. I ain't never been very stout, but I used to tend in a store till I got worse. I coughed so it used to plague the customers. Then I had to give it up, and when Mis' Morrison's husband died and she come here I come with her: she thought there'd be some chores I could do for my board. An I've worked jest as hard as I could an I ain't complained. I've been down to the store to get the meat for the boarders' dinners when I could scarcely get along over the ground. But I cough so bad nights that the boarders they complain an Mis' Morrison says I must go to—the poorhouse. I heard her talkin with the hired girl about it. She's goin to get the selectmen to the house tomorrow mornin. An—I ain't a-goin to the poorhouse! None of my folks have ever been there, an I ain't goin! I'll risk it but what I can get some work to do. I ain't quite so fur gone yet. I waited till the house was still, an then I cut.

“I thought if you'd take me in till mornin I could git down to the depot an go to Jackson before the selectmen come. I've got a little money—enough to take me to Jackson—I've been savin of it up these three years, in case anything happened. It's some I earned tendin store. I'm willin to pay you for my night's lodgin.”

Nicholas nodded grimly. He had stood still, listening to the weak, high pitched voice from the bed.

“It's in my vest pocket in my pocket-

“WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.”

BEECHAM'S PILLS

(Tasteless—Effectual.)

For Sick-Headache,
Impaired Digestion.
Liver Disorders and Female Ailments.

Renowned all over the World.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.

Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Made at St. Helens, England. druggists and dealers. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Scandia-American Bank,

C. Hendrickson, President.
L. Ellington, Vice President.
J. W. Wheeler, Cashier.
H. Steenerson, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

Directors—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D., C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Locken.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

Commenced Business October, 1881.

Paid in Capital........$100,000
Surplus........................ 15,500

Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.

Geo. Q. Erskine, President.
Wm. Anglim, Vice President.
Chas. E. Sawyer, Cashier.

Directors:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, J. E. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

S. L. COLLINS,

Proprietor of Main Street

Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
Crookston, - - Minnesota.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

Valley Roller Mills.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS

MADE FROM SELECTED RED
RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.

BRAN, SHORTS
AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

John Wyatt

THE UNDERTAKER,

EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.

Besides carrying a full and complete line of COFFINS,
CASKETS
AND BURIAL SUPPLIES,
has the largest and most complete stock of

Pictures, Picture Frames,

—AND—

Picture Framing Material

—In the city.—

Special discount During the Holidays.

Office 105½ Broadway,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINNESOTA.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

WANTED SALESMEN TO represent us in the sale of our well known hardy and choice Nursery Stock for the North and west. Local or Traveling. Work every day in the year. Special inducements to beginners. Stock guaranteed. Good pay weekly. Apply quick, stating age, and obtain good territory.

ST. PAUL NURSERY CO.,
St. Paul, Minn.

[4-7]

King David.

This celebrated Clyde Stallion will stand for the season of 1893 as follows: Monday, J. B. Roome's; Tuesday, L. H. Judson's; Wednesday, Helmich Bros.; Thursday, John Sylvesterson's; Friday and Saturday at S. L. Collins' Stable, Crookston.

This full blooded Clyde Stallion was purchased of an old reliable firm who make a specialty of importing the best stock and blood that can be found in the old country. This horse was bought by the Andover Stock Company two years ago at a large expense and can show more A No. 1 colts than any other horse ever brought to Polk county. He is a round bodied, heavy limbed, horse of dark bay color and weighs over 1,700 pounds.

Terms—Insure, $15; Season, $10.

For further particulars enquire of

A. E. HELMICH,
Manager.

(1-8)

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication May 11, 1893]
[Last publication June 22, 1893]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Joseph Falardeau and Clzarie Falardeau his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 33 of mortgages, on page 416.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay certain installments of interest when due and the principal sum, $700, that became due December 31st, 1892.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to wit: Nine hundred eighty-eight and 40-100 ($988.40-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-eight (28), Township one hundred and fifty (150), Range forty-one (41), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company,
Mortgagee.

S. M. Houghton,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-20] (N. G. 148)

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Cyprien Gosselin and Perpitus Gosselin his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 30th day of April, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of May, A. D. 1887, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 29 of mortgages, on page 420 to 422.

Whereas, default consists of the failure to pay the principal sum, $300, that became due April 30th, 1890.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred twenty-two and 58 100 ($322 58-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section seven (7), Township one hundred fifty-one (151), Range forty two (42), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law: which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company,
Mortgagee.

S. M. Houghton,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 149)

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 15th, 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Anne J. Ose deceased:

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Anne J. Ose deceased, late of said County, has been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Edward P. Manson has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things that said Anne J. Ose died in said county, on the 19th day of April 1893, testate, and that petitioner is the executor named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to Edward P. Manson.

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston, in said county, on Tuesday the 13th day of June A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 15th day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[57]

GREAT NORTHERN

Railway

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m — Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m — Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday.
Depart 9:00 a m — Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m — Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c@20c
Eggs, per dozen	12½c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	65c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	54
1 Northern	52.
2 Northern	49.
3 Northern	41.
Rejected	28.

'Round Home.

John Dodge, who was for 26 years clerk at the Merchants hotel in St. Paul is dead.

George McLean Sr. has bought Chas. Vine's property in Jerome's addition for a consideration of $2000.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wheeler departed on Monday evening for a trip to Chicago and the great World's fair.

The famous Zenith wall plaster, white lime, cement and plaster hair always on hand at the wood yard.

HARRY NORRIE.

The Great Northern will sell round trip tickets to Chicago on Mondays and Thursdays at $32.55.

School closes for the long vacation on Friday. Commencement exercises on June 7th.

Choice family wines at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Feed at oat meal mill.

Money to loan. Farm and city lots for sale. Please call at R. R. V. Loan and Investment Co., Opera Block, Crookston Minn.

Everybody is enthusiastic over this nice growing weather. The wheat, having had a good opportunity to stool out, should now make rapid strides unto a full and complete harvest.

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county, Sano, sure cure for piles. I. O. O, F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [39-tf]

Charlie Misner was over-run with work on the morning of Decoration Day but closed his barber shop promptly at noon.

Crookston Lodge I. O. G. T. meets at the business college hall, this Thursday evening June 1st. at 8 o'clock. Let all members attend.

R. H. BATTEY, C. T.

Rev. R. H. Battey, will preach next Sunday June 4th, at Mentor, 11 a. m., Maple Bay, 3 p. m., and Fertile 8 p. m.

The best time to paint that house or barn is when you can buy your paints as cheap as you can right now of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. It will pay you to look this up. [6tf]

The fire-bell at about 2 o'clock on Wednesday summoned the department to attend to a burning tar-barrel at the Rickett block. Men were at work tarring the roof when in some way the caught fire. Alderman Morrisey, who was in the club-room at the time chanced to see it and jumping through the window to the roof he poured sand upon the blaze until it was smothered. Who says Morrisey has no sand?

Dr. J. H. Thomas has built a new sidewalk in front of his office.

Alex McKinnon returned from St. Paul on Wednesday morning.

The Crookston Belle—Kœppe's new cigar, is as fine as silk. Try it.

Max Ericsson came up from St. Paul on Monday morning for a brief visit.

Feed at oat meal mill.

A. Chabot is having a store room put beneath the New York store.

The grand jury finished its labors on Monday evening and were discharged.

Ed. Schraeder has laid a new sidewalk in front of his livery barn on Main street.

Rev. R. H. Battey went down to Ada to deliver the Memorial address on Decoration Day.

The Sunday evening train south on the Great Northern arrived about 6 o'clock Monday morning.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Frank Hertz will fit up the building in the rear of the First National Bank for a laundry.

Any style of pattern in wall paper and any price you want you will find at Medical hall. You can save money by allowing S. A. Wallace to quote you prices. [6tf]

Deputy Auditor Cornelius conducted the sale of state lands on Monday in the absence of the state auditor.

Nearly everybody who had his plowing done has completed his seeding in good shape. A few are plowing for oats and barley.

The Northern Pacific will make a rate of one fare for the round trip to St. Paul during to the Hill celebration and reciprocity convention. Tickets good till June 11th.

If it's wall paper you want don't fail to see S. A. Wallace's large and complete stock. Prices the lowest on record, this spring. At Medical hall. [6-tf]

If you are going to paint that house or barn this year it will pay you to get prices on paints of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. [6-tf]

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

A little lady arrived on Saturday evening at the residence of S. W. Vance Esq. She weighed just 10 pounds and not 49 as was reported by a city paper.

At and below cost, my big and well assorted line of Dry Goods, Clothing and Boots and Shoes.

NEW YORK STORE,
A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

Charlie Rapp came down from St. Hilaire on Monday evening and left for St. Paul on Wednesday evening.

Feed at oat meal mill.

Farmers, bring your dressed hogs during the summer months to the Crookston Packing House and we will tell you the truth how you can realize the most money out of them.

[4-11] ROBERT STANTON.

A. G. Gallash returned on Wednesday morning from an extended trip in eastern states. He reports times very much harder there than here.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

Comrade Burnam reports to these headquarters that he has his seeding all completed and that his grain is all up and looking nicely. He is one of the forehanded kind of farmers who always manages to make something at his business.

Those rooms need papering. Let S. A. Wallace figure on the paper. Medical hall. [6tf]

Do not miss the bargains at the

NEW YORK STORE.

The county treasurer's office has been the scene of busy activity this week owing to the fact that real estate taxes go delinquent on June 1st, and everybody has been settling up who has had the wherewithal to do so.

Ole Bang came up from the town of Higdem on Tuesday evening. Although a large portion of his farm was under the water during the flood, he has his grain all in and is now on his way to Duluth to see that city and from thence to make a trip to the wilds of Wisconsin to visit the trout brooks. He expects to be gone about a fortnight.

Judge Ives adjourned court for the day on Memorial Day.

Master Mechanic, T. E. Adams, was in the city on Tuesday from Barnesville.

The train on the Great Northern road on Friday morning was three hours late.

McManus, Farley & Co., will grind feed Tuesday and Saturday of each week hereafter, and other days when necessary. [7-10]

The Salvation Army marched about the streets on Thursday evening attracting large crowds of curious humanity.

E. C. Carruth went over to Grand Forks on Monday to assume management of the Plaindealer, which paper, rumor says, W. E. McKenzie has bought.

The sewer on Broadway will be continued south one block—from Fletcher avenue to Loring avenue. This will make Broadway property still more valuable.

Wm. Erdman is rushing the brick work on Geo. Vine's new block and will soon have it ready for the finishing touches by the carpenter. Erdman is a rusher.

The Crookston Lodge I. O. G. T. recently organized held its first regular meeting at the Business College hall last Thursday evening, taking in one new member and receiving six applications for membership.

Mrs. C. A. Carr, who spent a couple of years here with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Vine, and who is now in St. Catherines, Ont., writes that she would rather live in Crookston, and is sorry that circumstances prevent her from returning.

M. Leguee and S. L. Collins went up to Angus this week, the doctor to see to some sick horses and Collins—well Collins had business that took him along also; we reckon it was in the line of agricultural machinery.

Rev. Mrs. Hoyt departed for her home in Brooklyn, N. Y, on Monday evening. She was accompanied by Miss Dollie Bunnell who will visit with her sometime in that city and then return home, stopping en route at Washington, D. C., and South Bend, Ind., to visit with relatives and friends in those cities.

The June number of the Message to issue from the press this week on Thursday will contain among other things a splendid new story; also whole page of Children's Day, World's Fair, Mexican Travels, Temperance matter, etc. well illustrated.

The Central house is to be elevated and a new foundation put beneath it. Landlord Holston says that this will not necessarily elevate the prices, but he sort o' wants a solid foundation—a sure basis to figure on. Tom Harris is to be the master of ceremonies, of course.

A disagreeable drizzling rain on Friday afternoon, interfered with seeding somewhat judging by the unusual number of farmers' teams that appeared upon our streets. The work of seeding is now so well in hand that farmers do not begrudge a few hours lay off as they did last week.

On Sunday evening, Col. Cobham Post, the W. R. C. and Sons of Vets, attended the Congregational church in a body and listened to an eloquent sermon from Rev. J. G. Smith. The old boys were highly pleased with their reception and all enjoyed that patriotic and fervid address very much.

Last winter O. L. Larson, of Fosston, had four deer and a bear mounted and placed on exhibition in his store. Last Saturday he shipped them to Clement, Bane & Co., Chicago, where they will be placed on exhibition and probably disposed of during the fair.

Nelson Mott, of Ada went north on Friday's train to Warren where he had purchased a bunch of cattle which he said he intended to drive to Ada. He has purchased several hundred head recently for the St. Paul markets. The lot he is buying up now he intends to feed up to marketable condition.

The city "at great expense" erected a new and commodious jail, wherein to house and care for the various and sundry dogs that from time to time should be run in by the lynx-eyed detective, Stork. On Sunday morning, when the janitor called with the prisoners' breakfast—lo and behold nary prisoner was there, they had imitated the Libby prisoners and dug a tunnel, sort'o "dug out" in the night—another dog-gone jail delivery, as it were.

John P. Goergen, of Euclid, dropped in on Friday to renew his subscription, although it was not quite expired. Says seeding is not all finished in his neighborhood owing to wet lands. He says that there are yet quite a good many potatoes for sale but farmers seem to be holding on for better prices. It strikes us that this is the wrong policy because now while so many are needed for seed the market is better than it is liable to be when the demand for seed potatoes drops off.

C. E. Sawyer was a visitor at the great World's Fair last week.

Hans Peterson the jolly Fertile jeweler was in the city last week enjoying life with old-time friends.

Call on August George and get figures on that farm he has for sale—all ready seeded.

The state land appraisers returned from their trip last week having fully completed the work given them to do.

Notice our corrected list of town clerks elsewhere in this issue. It was copied from the auditor's list and is authentic.

The Tribune last week blandly sent Chris. Ingeberg off on a trip to Norway. Come off the perch, Palmer, that's a rank fake.

I. I. Hillestad was in from Fosston last week and called to inspect the new county jail. He was very much pleased with what he saw of it.

A. Braley, Dr. Dampier and the Commercial hotel did a good work last week by sodding up in front of their yards which will improve the looks wonderfully.

FARMERS will find a corrected list of market prices each week in the JOURNAL. We shall make a special effort in this direction so that it will be reliable every week.

Rev. R. H. Battey went down to Northcote on Friday morning to deliver a temperance lecture in the evening. On Saturday he returned to Stephen where he held sevices on Sunday.

Sam Bearns has been busily engaged in fixing up the real estate about his residence on North Ash street by hauling in a million loads of soil—more or less. Sam seems determined to have real estate high enough if he don't lay up a cent.

A relic of the old Montana stage days passed through the city last week on its way to Chicago—a veritable Montana stage-coach. This venerable old relic shows strongly by contract with the railway coaches the great improvement in the methods of traveling that have recently come to that state.

Arne A. Haug died in the city at 7 a. m., on Thursday, at the residence of Elias Steenerson. He leaves five daughters, Mrs. C. A. Johnson, Mrs. J. O. Dypvic, Mrs. C. J. Hendrickson, Mrs. Andrew Steenerson and Mrs. Elias Steenson. He was 72 years old on April 27th, and had lived in Polk county for 12 years.

Of one of Crookston's prominent citizens the Ada Index says:

"August George came down from Crookston Monday evening and remained in the city till Wednesday morning. August said that it is rather dull in Crookston just at present, but in spite of that, there is considerable building going on in different parts of the city. Take it all in all, Mr. George is strictly in "love" with Crookston."

J. W. Wheeler returned from a trip to Thief River Falls last week. Says seeding was not all completed when he left, but farmers were all hard at it and the land was in elegant shape for working. A great deal of the wheat was up, and, under the influence of the cool weather was stooling nicely. The prospects for good crops are very good.

Commenting on the base ball club, the Ada Index says:

"The great big city of Crookston wrote down to the little side-track town of Ada Monday and wanted to borrow our local base ball club's catching mit. For a city the size of Crookston—a club that has been organized three weeks—and can't produce a mit—they ought to be ashamed of themselves. Let some patriotic citizen take up a subscription."

The sheriff moved the prisoners into the new jail last week. There are seven steel cells below, all finished and one in which is a bath tub—a convenience that was sadly lacking in the old structure. These cells are all locked by a contrivance that is locked by a Diebold safe lock. The room is arranged for steam heating though otherwise warmed at present. Upstairs eight more cells are to put in and when the jail is completed it will be one of the best in the northwest.

There is now a good demand for potatoes, caused by a scarcity for seed which should induce all who have them to sell to put them upon the market at once. Later on the demand will not be so great and this fact will be liable to affect the price quite materially. If a road is built from Polk county to Duluth by next fall potatoes will no doubt be a good crop to have but if not there will not be very much money in them for shipping purposes.

A. R. Erickson returned last week from a ten days visit to the World's fair. He says it is the biggest thing he has ever seen and thinks a person might find food for study for several months. Visiting the foreign villages is very like a trip to the old country, and is in itself alone worth a trip to Chicago to see and there thousands of other things to see that are of great interest.

Edward George and P. J. Russell went to Barnsville to deliver Decoration Day addresses.

K. D. Chase was up from Faribault last week visiting old friends in the city.

Tom. Harris is raising the Norman house and putting a new foundation under it.

Langevin says he is getting all the business he can attend to in these days.

Prof. R. W. Hitchcock has accepted a position in the Scandia American bank.

Mrs. C. F. Page of McIntosh, visited Mrs. A. A. Miller in this city last week.

Geo. W. Peake arrived on Tuesday morning from Minneapolis for a few days visit in the city.

M. R. Brown still wears his hand in a sling, though it is healing nicely. It was a very painful thing for a time.

W. L. Davies of Angus, was in the city on Monday looking into the land sale at the court house.

Mosquitoes and hand organs—sure harbingers of summer, have come, and are busy getting in their nefarious work.

M. R. Brown expects to attend the Hill celebration in St. Paul next week and from there will continue his trip to Iowa for more horses. Look out for his announcement later.

Lute McKee, who has been visiting in the family of N. P. Stone, returned on Sunday evening to his home in River Falls, Wis.

J. C. Rose and bride arrived on Saturday morning on a visit to relatives and friends in the city. Mr. Rose was once a resident of Crookston.

Fred Cottier an employe of the N. P. Railroad Co. at Hamline, came up on Sunday morning for a few days visit in the family of his sister, Mrs. C. P. Hathaway.

John Ritegaard, the jovial hotel keeper of McIntosh, was in the city last Friday enjoying himself driving W. O. Wilson's fine carriage horse about the boulevards.

Walter Alderman is building a fine addition to his residence on Main St., which will improve the value of the property very much.

Gus Akerland is building a residence for John Crawford Sr., over on the former site of the gun club's practicing grounds.

Mrs. Fred Hall left on Saturday's delayed train for a visit at her old home in Cambridge, Ills. If the condition of her father's health, who is quite ill at the present time, will permit, she intends to visit the World's fair ere her return.

An item in a previous issue gave Gates & Barrette credit for the carpenter work on Louis Gonyea's new house. It seems they have the contract for the whole business—from cellar to garret, brick work and all.

During the storm on Sunday, a cow and a sheep, on Sec. 3, Fairfax, belonging to E.D. Childs & Co., were struck by lightning and instantly killed. Last summer a horse was killed on the same farm and very near the identical spot where this casualty happened.

The laundry firm of Hertz & Roberts was dissolved last week, Mr. R. P. Roberts, retiring. Mr. Hertz will continue the business and we are told that Mr. Roberts will go to Chicago to accept a situation offered him in that city. His many friends here will wish him abundant success.

George Wagner, who was brought to the hospital from Fertile not long since, died of consumption on May 25th, 1893. Mr. Wagner was born in Virginia 51 years ago. When the war broke out he remained loyal to the government, enlisting in the Union army in which he served with credit. Comrade H. C. Burdick came up from Fertile to convey the remains to that place for burial.

Comrade LaDue came near furnishing us with an item on Friday last. He was shingling his roof and slipped off but fortunately caught hold of a projection and held on until rescued. A drop of 25 feet or so might have shaken him up promiscuously.

Cash for Potatoes.

I will pay the highest market price in cash for 25 to 30 bushels of potatoes delivered at the JOURNAL office by Saturday, June 3rd,

H. E. COOKE.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

FREE HOMESTEADS

In the Saskatchewan Valley.

160 acres free to all males over 18 years of age in the beautiful Saskatchewan valley, where wheat goes 40 bushels to the acre and potatoes 600 bushels, and hay cuts from three to four tons an acre. Plenty of timber for buildings, fencing and fuel. First-class soil and water. Good railroad facilities. Fine climate and good markets and where taxes are only for school purposes. For full information apply to

C. A. MUNSON,
Colonization Agent,
Commercial Hotel, Crookston.

Are you insured? If not, now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy as an insurance against any serious results from an attack of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is almost certain to be needed and should be procured at once. No other remedy can take its place or do its work. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Trusts and Combinations

Are unpopular. But there is one form of trust against which no one has anything to say. That is the trust which the public reposes in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the best of it is the trust is fully justified by the merit of the medicine. For, remember, Hood's Sarsaparilla cures.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

When you speak or even think of spring medicine, how quickly Hood's Sarsaparilla comes into your mind. Take it now.

St. Paul is making extensive preparations to celebrate the opening of the Great Northern as a trans-continental line. The parade of floats and industries in which cities of the Northwest and Pacific Coast will take part will be the most imposing affair ever seen in the northwest. St. Paul is building arches across the principal streets, and the city will be elaborately decorated. The Great Northern makes a half rate from here to St. Paul and return. Tickets good between June 6th and 11th. [6-7]

OPERA HOUSE

Hardware Store,

T. H. BJOIN, Prop.

SHELF AND HEAVY—

Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,

SASH AND DOORS.

In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and

—THE PRICES LOW.

Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.

T. H. BJOIN.

RED RIVER VALLEY

LOAN AND INVESTMENT COMPANY.

MONEY TO LOAN ON REAL ESTATE.

FARMS AND LANDS For Sale in nearly all the Towns of Polk County.

—CITY LOTS—

In Crookston and Thief River Falls.

List your Lands and Lots with us and effect quick sales.

OFFICE IN OPERA HOUSE BLOCK.

A. G. GALLASCH, Pres.
J. W. WHEELER, Vice Pres.
W. H. MATHEWS, 1st Vice Pres.
A. F. GEORGE, Sec.
O. H. LUCKEN, Treasurer.

DR. PRICE'S

Cream Baking Powder.

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.

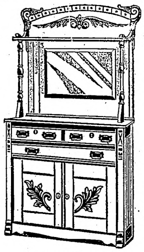
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

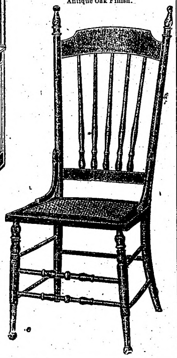
Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 8, 1893. NO. 8





Crookston Furniture Co.

FURNITURE, CARPETS, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

$1.35.

Antique Oak Finish.

$19.50.

Solid Oak,

Large Glass,

Plush-lined Drawers.

8-ft. Oak Table,

42x42, only

$7.90.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor……………………Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor……………David M. Clough.
Secretary of State……………F. P. Brown.
Attorney General……………H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist…Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist……………E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist….John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court…..Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District ……………Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court……………………Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor……………………C. U. Webster
Treasurer……………………J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds……………John Amundson
Attorney……………………A. R. Holston
Sheriff……………………Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate……………C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools……………A. A. Lommen
Surveyor……………………O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r……………………W. H. Averill
Coroner……………………Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District……………John E. Oppegaard
Second District……………Anton Linden
Third District……………M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District……………C. P. Demers
Fifth District……………A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Augus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Nellsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson.	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Ked Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden.	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Siortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Any style of pattern in wall paper and any price you want you will find at Medical hall. You can save money by allowing S. A. Wallace to quote you prices. [6tf]

THE FIRST AND GREATEST SHOW.

A Notable Twenty-Second Year in Sells Brothers' Management.

Sells Brothers are always welcomed to Crookston and their forthcoming visit on Saturday, June 24th, will emphasize that fact. Since their last visit they have signalized the 22nd year of their continuous management by greatly enlarging their enormous United shows and widely increasing the scope of their novelty and attractions. The general attractions are combined in a wild Moorish caravan and romantic pilgrimage to Mecca; magnificent menagerie, triple circuses, regal Roman hippodrome, performing arenas, mid-air carnivals, tropical aquarium, aviary, royal Japanese troupe, Bedouin and Berber athletes and Arabian nights entertainments. Everybody will want to take part in the great ten thousand dollar guessing match. As the pair of Hippopotami, which have been the great drawing feature of this show for many years, will be sent to the Great National Zoological Garden next season, Sells Brothers are going to give five thousand dollars to the person coming nearest in a guess to the weight of this pair of monster animals; three thousand dollars will be given to the person making the second best guess, and two thousand dollars to the person making the third best guess. As all visitors will be entitled to a guess free, the interest will be quite marked.

Dr. M J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May, while in Des Moines en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhœa. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhœa Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliabiliy, he procured a 25 cent bottle, two doses of which completly cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhœa. Every one should procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. For sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

DISTRICT COURT.

The Work of the Court for the Past Week Given in Detail.

The Suit Against J. R. McKinnon by August Young for Damages.

A Woman From Fertile gets a Divorce and the Custody of her Children.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 31.

Immediately after convening at 2 p. m., Meta Koeppner, called by the sporting fraternity, "Mattie," whom the grand jury found an indictment against for keeping a house of ill-fame in our city, was brought into court and through her attorney, A. C. Wilkinson, plead guilty of keep-a disorderly house, but not of ill-fame; which plea was accepted by city attorney and the court imposed a fine of $100 upon her, or in case of default in payment thereof, 90 days in the county jail. The $100 was immediately paid over to the clerk and a promise given to go out of the business.

The balance of the afternoon was taken up with the Jarvis case.

THURSDAY MORNING.

After an exhaustive plea from the county attorney and Mr. Cochrane the Jarvis case was given to the jury.

The next number of the program was State of Minnesota vs Isaac Orvick. Orvick was indicted by the grand jury of assault in the third degree, striking one Lars Peterson on the head with a club.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

The jury brought in a verdict in the case of the state of Minnesota vs Joe Jarvis of guilty of assault in the second degree. He was indicted for assault in the first degree. Defendant's counsel asked for 30 days stay of proceedings.

The Orvick case was given to the jury about half past three and a verdict returned in fifteen minutes of guilty of assault in the third degree, as charged in the indictment. The sentence of the court against the defendant was $100 fine or in default of payment imprisonment in the county jail for 90 days.

The East Grand Forks boys, against several of whom the grand jury returned indictments for keeping gambling houses or allowing their premises to be used for that purpose, were arraigned in the court and three of whom Daniel Sullivan, W. T. Franklin and Ole Gustad plead guilty of the offense charged. Adjourned until 8:30 Friday.

FRIDAY MORNING.

The case of State vs Jens O. Rude, petit larceny was taken up. The offense alleged was that Rude & Norsving obtained money to the amount of $22 on a note against Nels Olson. There being a defect in the indictment, it not describing the note, the case was dismissed and the defendant placed under bonds to appear before the next grand jury.

The next case was of the same nature, but the charge was grand larceny in the second degree, and the amount of note was $51.45, the note against one Ole Gunderson. The same defect existing in the indictment, the case was dismissed and defendant required to appear before the next grand jury.

Gust Hines, W. T. Franklin, Daniel Sullivan, Ole Ganstad, of East Grand Forks fame, and who were indicted by the grand jury for allowing gambling tables to be run on their premises, were each fined $200 and gently admonished to prevent a repetition of such business. Carrie Biederman, of East Grand Forks, indicted by the grand jury for keeping a house of ill-fame, was fined $100, and 90 days in the county jail, but the 90 days were removed upon promise of good behavior for the future. M. T. Hagness and Ed. Hecton came in next with their $200 in payment for the same kind of offense as the above $200 cases viz: permitting gambling on their premises.

The State of Minnesota vs Ole J. Grovo was next taken up. The defendant is charged with assault in the second degree. The complaining witness being Ole K. Haugen, A. R. Holston for state and H. Steenerson counsel for defendant. The case was given to the jury about 5:30 p. m.

The next case taken up was that of the State of Minnesota vs John McKonkey. A. R. Holston for the state and Chas. E. Boughton and A. C. Boylan for defendant. The defendant is charged with assault in the first degree; the offense being on one Frank Peck of East Grand Fork in December 1892.

The jury returned a verdict in the Grovo case, declaring him not guilty.

After drawing a jury in the McKonkey case court adjourned.

SATURDAY.

Court convened at 8:30 and consumed the day in hearing the McKonkey case. The case was given to the jury about 5 p. m.

Thos. G. Frost appeared for The Fidelity & Causalty Co., of New York vs Wm. Eikhoff and argued a motion to dismiss the proceedings; the counsel for defendant having carried a motion before the court to strike the case from the calendar. The matter will be determined in a few days.

The jury in the case of State of Minnesota vs John McKonkey brought in their verdict of guilty of assault in the second degree and asked the leniency of the court.

MONDAY MORNING.

Court convened at 9 a. m.

The case of the State of Minnesota vs James O'Brien and Fred Kimbrick was the first taken up. The defendants are charged with taking $20.50 from Jacob Dobmeyer's saloon in East Grand Forks, at about 2 o'clock in the morning of Feb. 9th. The bartender fell asleep in the room and was awakened by the closing of the back door. He rushed out and found O'Brien in the back yard and the cash register in a snow pile. The register was empty except a small amount. Money was afterwards found on the person of the two defendants who before claimed they had no money. The case occupied the morning and was given the jury about 2:30 p. m.

AFTERNOON.

The next case called was that of Farmer & Mechanics Savings Bank of Minneapolis vs Mathew Laliberty. Wm. Watts for plaintiff and Montague & Bucklen for defendant. This is a replevin suit brought by plaintiff to recover on some oats grown on sw¼ 14, Tp. 151, R 46. Appeal from justice court.

The jury returned a verdict in the O'Brien-Kimbrick case of guilty as charged in the indictment, grand larceny in the second degree.

The court instructed the jury to find a verdict for the defendant and assessed his damages at whatever they find the oats to be worth at the time of the taking by the plaintiff. This the grand jury did and assessed his damages at $103.05.

The next case was of the same nature as the above; Farmers & Mechanics Savings Bank of Minneapolis vs Michael Schelty. Same attorneys as above. This was a replevin on ten acres of oats. Appealed from justice court. The defendant sowed oats on premises belonging to plaintiff without obtaining permission and plaintiff replevined the oats after they were cut. The court instructed the jury to find a verdict for the defendant and assess his damages at what they considered the oats were worth. The jury retired and court adjourned.

TUESDAY MORNING

The jury in the last case tried on Monday afternoon brought in a verdict for the defendant and assessed his damages at $106.51.

The case of Johnson & Marshall vs David Swank was the first called this morning. C. E. Boughton for plaintiff and P. G. Fajardeau for defendant. This action was brought by the plaintiffs, millers at Red Lake Falls, to recover $55 from the defendant for feed sold to one Mr. Millette who did some work on the new railroad there in 1891. The plaintiffs claim that Swank, who was then general contractor for grading a part of the St. Hilaire branch, gave them a verbal order to let his men have feed and he (Swank) would pay for it. The case is an appeal case from justice court.

AFTERNOON.

The case was given to the jury about 3 p. m. and after a short deliberation the jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

The next in order was the case of the Red River Valley National Bank of Fargo vs Geo. Conklin, L. Laughridge and Miller & Foote. A. A. Miller for plaintiff, no appearance for defendant. This was an action on promissory note. Geo. Conklin on April 7th, 1892, gave his promissory note for $150 to L. Laughridge. Laughridge sold it to Miller & Foote and Miller & Foote sold it to the Fargo bank. The court instructed the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount of the note and interest thereon from Apr. 7th, 1892.

John McKonkey was sentenced to two years in the State prison at Stillwater.

Mary Elma Boddy vs Albert Edward Boddy. A. A. Miller counsel for plaintiff and E. M. Stanton counsel for defense, was next case taken up.

The plaintiff prays the court for a divorce from the defendant, A. E. Boddy, her husband, and the care and custody of the two oldest children now in the possession of defendant's parents. All the parties live near Fertile. The plaintiff is the daughter of Eugene Winslow and was married to the defendant in 1886. A divorce is asked on the ground of abandonment and non-support.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The evidence on the part of plaintiff in the above action and that of the defendant himself being taken Tuesday, the counsel for defendant this morning withdrew his answer to plaintiff's complaint. The plaintiff was given judgment for what she asked, the care and custody of the children and granted a limited divorce.

The case of Larsen, Carpenter & Co., vs John Tiedemann; P. J. Russell for plaintiff and A. A. Miller for defendant, was then taken up. This is an action brought to recover on a promissory note for $270 given by the defendant for four wagons. A jury trial was waived by the counsels. Judgment was ordered for the plaintiff for the amount of the note and a stay of proceedings of 60 days was granted the defendant.

The next case was that of August Young vs. John R. McKinnon, H. Steenerson for plaintiff and A. A. Miller for defendant. This action was brought by Mr. Young to recover for personal injuries claimed to have been received on the streets of Crookston during the time Mr. McKinnon was grading the streets, Mr. Young having been thrown out of his cart and injured his knee and back. The plaintiff sues for $5100 damages.

The case of State of Minnesota vs Gunder Rjorgo for selling intoxicating liquor without license was continued.

John A. Burman, who was summoned to appear as a witness in the above case at the December term and failed to appear, was brought before the court and severely reprimanded for contempt of court and had to forfeit his witness fees to the amount of $15.60.

Quite a Runaway.

About 1 o'clock p. m. on Thursday last, a farmers's team attached to a lumber wagon took it into their heads to run away, and unceremoniously lit out. Coming up Main they turned on Robert street, and managing to avoid the excavation being made to provide a sewerage for a building, they collided with the hydrant at the corner of Robert and Broadway, leaving the spring seat there. Turning on Broadway, they ran to the central house where they collided with an electric light pole, leaving there the wagon box and hind wheels, and with the two forward wheels kept on their mad career along Broadway to the bridge, when they turned on Houston avenue, then up Ash street as far as the school house, where they took the sidewalk as they were unable to make the turn short enough to keep the road. At this point little Fannie Copeland who was coming up the walk drawing her tricycle, saw them, and letting go her tricycle sprang from the walk and fell to the ground just in time to avoid being knocked down—but the tricycle was mashed into a useless mass in a second. The team kept right on through town and out on the prairie and may be running yet for all we have heard to the contrary, but that no one was hurt was simply miraculous, as the streets were, at that hour, filled with children on their way to school. Whose team it was we were unable to learn, but it seems to us that our laws in relation to leaving horses unhitched are rather lax or else they are not very rigidly enforced, as such thrilling events are becoming altogether too numerous for the good of the community.

Funeral of Mrs. McLean.

The funeral of Mrs. Geo. McLean, Sr., occurred at the residence on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, attended by a large number of friends, and the remains were laid to rest in Oakdale cemetery. She had been sick but a few days previous to her death and was not considered dangerously so until the day it occurred.

MRS. CORNELIA ROE MCLEAN was born at Williamstown, Mass., on January 22d, 1813, thus being 80 years and four months old. She was married at Victor, Ontario county, New York, on May 1st, 1839, making 54 years of married life. Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. McLean, four of whom, William, John and George and Mrs. W. A. Hunt survive her. Mr. and Mrs. McLean have been residents of Crookston for ten or eleven years, during which time her health has been such as to prevent her being about much, and for some portion of the time she has been nearly blind. Full of years and good works she has passed to that rest that knows no weariness, to that sleep which is eternal in the land beyond the grave, mourned by loving children and a bereaved husband who has most completed life's journey, alone with naught of her to bless and cheer, save a blessed memory.

The 4th at Cottage Grove Park.

H. W. Cleveland was down from Maple Lake yesterday to order posters for the Fourth of July celebration at the Lake. The amusements will consist of horse racing, foot racing, boat racing, base ball, athletic games, vocal and instrumental music. An arbor will be provided for those who wish to dance in the afternoon or evening. There will be an oration, reading of the declaration, etc. The Crookston Juvenile drum corps of ten pieces will be present to enliven the proceedings. The steamer "Maple Lake Belle" will make regular trips from Maple Bay to "Cottage Grove Park," where the exercises will be held. Those who go are assured a good time.

Innocents Abroad.

Speaking of two of Crookston's silver-tongued orators the Barnesville Review says:

"The oration by Hon. Edward George, of Crookston, was one to be remembered with pleasure for a long time. It is seldom such a treat is enjoyed and those who were present will remember Decoration Day by that beautiful oration when all else is forgotten. Mr. P. J. Russell, of Crookston, made a short address full of feeling."

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 3rd, 1893.

Knudson, Bernhard Torkleson, J. F.

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Card of Thanks.

To those kind friends who assisted us during the last illness and recent death of our wife and mother, we desire to extend our sincere thanks.

GEO. MCLEAN SR. AND CHILDREN.

The Torbett Concert Company, composed of the noted violinist, Miss Ollie Torbett, the world-renowned pianist, Mr. Isidore Moquist, and the famous Luttemann Sextette from Stockholm, Sweden, will give a concert in the Methodist church, Thursday night. The members composing this company are all artists of high rank in their respective professions, and no one need have any fear that they will fail to receive an equivalent for money expended for admission. It is very seldom that our citizens have such an opportunity as this afforded them of listening to first-class musicians, both vocal and instrumental, and it is hoped that they will be greeted by a full house, and that the church will receive the endorsement of the community for their efforts to provide entertainment of such high merit, by a liberal patronage.

Are you insured? If not, now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy as an insurance against any serious results from an attack of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is almost certain to be needed and should be procured at once. No other remedy can take its place or do its work. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

A Mr. Woodward of Grand Forks was in the city yesterday looking for a runaway son, who had decamped with another lad. The boys were last heard of at Barnesville, going south.

If it's wall paper you want don't fail to see S. A. Wallace's large and complete stock. Prices the lowest on record, this spring. At Medical hall. [6-tf] book," said Stephen. "If you'll come here I'll give it to you and you can take what you think it's worth. I pinned the pocket up so's to be sure I didn't lose it."

A SOLITARY.

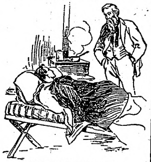
Stephen began rumbling at his vest. Nicholas lifted a cover from the stove.

"I don't want none of your money," said he. "Keep your money."



Nicholas nodded grimly.

"I've got enough to pay you an take me to Jackson."

"I tell ye, stop talkin about your money."

Stephen said no more; he looked terrified.

The air grew warmer. Everything was quiet, except for the detonations of the frost in the forest outside and its sharp cracks in the house walls. Soon Stephen fell asleep and lay breathing short and hard. Nicholas sat beside him.

It was broad daylight when Stephen aroused himself. He awoke suddenly and completely and began to get out of bed.

"I guess it's time I was goin," said he. "I'm much obleeged to yee, Mr. Gunn."

"You lay still." Stephen looked at him. "You lay still," repeated Nicholas.

Stephen sank back irresolutely; his timid, bewildered eyes followed Nicholas, who was smoothing his hair and beard before a little looking glass near the window. There was a good fire in the cooking stove, and the room was quite warm, although it was evidently a very cold day. The two windows were thickly coated with frost, and the room was full of a dim white light. One of the windows faced toward the east, but the sun was still hidden by the trees across the road. Nicholas smoothed his hair and his wild beard slowly and punctiliously. Stephen watched him.

"Mr. Gunn," he said at length.

"What say?"

"I'm afraid—I shan't get to the depot before the train goes if I don't start pretty soon."

Nicholas went on smoothing his beard. At length he laid his comb down and turned around.

"Look a here!" said he; "you might jest as well understand it. You ain't a-goin to any depot today, an you ain't a-goin to any train, an you ain't a-goin to any depot tomorrow nor to any train, an you ain't a-goin the next day, nor the next, nor the next, nor the next after that."

"What be I a-goin to do?"

"You are a-goin to stay jest where you are. I've fought against your comin as long as I could, an now you've come, an I've turned the corner, you are a-goin to stay. When I've been walking in the teeth of my own will on one road, an havin all I could do to breast it, I ain't a-goin to do it on another. I've give it up, an I'm a-goin to stay give up. You lay still."

Stephen's small, anxious face on the pillow looked almost childish. His helplessness of illness seemed to produce the same expression as the helplessness of infancy. His hollow, innocent blue eyes were fixed upon Nicholas with blank inquiry.

"Won't Miss Morrison be after me?" he asked finally.

"No, she won't. Don't you worry. I'm a-goin over to see her. You lay still." Nicholas shook his coat before he put it on; he beat his cap against the wall, then adjusted it carefully. "Now," said he, "I'm a-goin. I've left enough wood in the stove, an I guess it'll keep warm till I get back. I shan't be gone any longer than I can help."

"Mr. Gunn!"

"What say?"

"I ruther guess I'd better be a-goin."

Nicholas looked sternly at Stephen.

"You lay still," he repeated. "Don't you try to get up whilst I'm gone; you ain't fit to. Don't you worry. I'm a-goin to fix it all right. I'm a-goin to bring you something nice for breakfast. You lay still." Stephen stared at him; his thin shoulders hitched uneasily under the coverlid. "You're a-goin to lay still, ain't you?" repeated Nicholas.

"Yes, I will if you say so," replied Stephen. He sighed and smiled feebly.

The truth was that this poor cot in the warm room seemed to him like a couch under the balsam dropping cedar of Lebanon, and all at once he felt the rest of the divine consolation which comes from leaning upon the will of another.

"Well, I do say so," returned Nicholas.

He looked at the fire again. Then he went out. He turned in the doorway and nodded admonishingly at Stephen. "Mind you don't try to get up," he said again.

Nicholas went out of sight down the road, taking long strides over the creaking snow. He was gone about half an hour. When he returned his arms were full of packages. He opened the door and looked anxiously at the bed. Stephen twisted his face toward him and smiled. Nicholas piled the packages upon the table and lifted a stove cover.

"I've seen Miss Morrison and it's all right," said he.

"What did she say?" asked Stephen in an awed voice.

"Well, she didn't say much of anything. She was fryin griddle cakes for the boarders' breakfast. She said she felt real bad about lettin you go, but she didn't see no other way, and she'd be glad to have you visit her just as long as you wanted to. She's goin to pack up your clothes."

"I ain't got many clothes. There's my old coat an vest an my other pants, but they're most worn out. I ain't got but one real good shirt besides this one I've got on. That was in the wash, or I'd brought it."

"Clothes enough," said Nicholas.

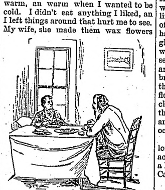
He crammed the stove with wood and began undoing the packages. There were coffee, bread and butter, some little delicate sugar cookies, some slices of ham, and eggs. There were also a pail of milk and a new tin coffeepot.

Nicholas worked busily. He made coffee, fried the ham and eggs and toasted slices of bread. When everything was ready he carried a bowl of water to Stephen for him to wash his hands and face before breakfast. He even got his comb and smoothed his hair.

Then he set the breakfast out on the table and brought it up to the bedside. He had placed a chair for himself and was just sitting down when he stopped suddenly:

"I don't know as it's just fair for me not to tell you a little something about myself before we really begin livin together," said he. "It won't take but a minute. I don't know but you've heard stories about me that I wasn't quite right. Well, I am—that is, I s'pose I am. All is I've hed lots of trouble, an it come mainly through folks I set by, an I figured out a way to get the better of it. I figured out that if I didn't care anything for anybody I shouldn't have no trouble from 'em, an if I didn't care anything for myself I shouldn't have any from myself. I 'bout made up my mind that all the trouble an wickedness in this world came from carin about yourself or somebody else, so I thought I'd quit it. I let folks alone, an I wouldn't do anything for 'em, an I let myself alone as near as I could an didn't do anything for myself.

"I kept cold when I wanted to be warm, an warm when I wanted to be cold. I didn't eat anything I liked, an I left things around that hurt me to see. My wife, she made them wax flowers an them gimcracks. Then I used to read the Bible 'cause I used to believe in it an didn't now, an it made me feel worse. I did about everything I could to spite myself an get all the feelin out of me, so I could be a little easier in my mind." Nicholas paused a moment. Stephen was looking at him with bewildering intensity. "Well, I was all wrong," Nicholas went on. "I've give it all up. I've got to go through with the whole of it, like other folks, an I guess I've got grit enough. I've made up my mind that men's tracks cover the whole world, and there ain't standin room outside of 'em. I've got to go with the rest. Now we'll have breakfast."



"I don't know but you've heard stories about me."

Nicholas ate heartily; it was long since he had tasted such food. Even Stephen had quite an appetite. Nicholas pressed the food upon him; his face was radiant with kindness and delight. Stephen Forster, innocent, honest and simple hearted, did not in the least understand him, but that did not matter. There is a higher congeniality than that of mutual understanding—there is that of need and supply.

After breakfast Nicholas cleared away the dishes and washed them. The sun was so high then that it struck the windows, and the frostwork sparkled like diamonds.

Nicholas opened the door; he was going down to the spring for more water; he saw a flock of sparrows in the bushes across the road and stopped; then he set his pail down noiselessly and went back for a piece of bread. He broke it and scattered the crumbs before the door, then went off a little way and stood watching. When the sparrows settled down upon the crumbs he laughed softly and went on toward the spring over the shining crust of snow.—Elmira Telegram.

Harriet Beecher Stowe's Work.

A special cabinet in the library of the Woman's building at the fair is devoted to an exhibit of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's work. It contains a specially bound edition of all of Mrs. Stowe's works, as well as a copy of the first edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," two black covered books published by Jewett in 1853 and now rare. There will also be 42 translations of the famous story into as many different tongues. There is a silver inkstand presented to Mrs. Stowe in 1853 by English admirers, and the cabinet is surmounted by a marble bust of the authoress.

The application of animals and animal substances to the cure of disease has prevailed from the earliest times, though the greater part of such remedies, until recent times, have been founded on either fantastic or superstitious notions.

There is no other work in the world of which so many copies are printed annually as of the Chinese almanac. The number is estimated at several millions. It is printed at Peking and is a monopoly of the emperor.

There are differences in teeth. Some are of a nature capable of withstanding very rough usage, while others are frail and need constant attention.

AT A CABLE STATION.

ISOLATED OPERATORS LIVE IN A WORLD ALL THEIR OWN.

Picturesque Scenes at the American Terminus of the Great Transatlantic Cables. Thirty Men Live a Peculiar Kind of Existence by Themselves.

To an outsider the words "life at a cable station" convey a vague sort of meaning, such as the term "life on board ship" would imply to one who had never been to sea. The very peculiarity of cable life attaches to it something of a special interest. It will be my endeavor here to portray as far as possible what life is at one of the busiest and most important cable stations in the world, landing two ocean cables from Waterville, Ireland, two from New York city, one of which is operated direct from Wall street; also a cable to St. Pierre, Miquelon, and working a direct land system in connection with and over the Canadian Pacific railway.

It is a well known fact that cable stations, as a rule, are placed upon the most outlandish spots imaginable, in thus wise throwing the operators out of touch with society and the world at large.

Just picture to yourself a moment a small cape running out into the Atlantic on the most northeasterly point of the American continent. A little to the south and situated somewhat on a hill you will see what appears to be a small village circling into the shape of a horseshoe. The background is thickly clothed with small fir trees, and immediately at the foot of the hill is a large lake with miniature islands clothed in rich green foliage.

Beyond the lake and as far as the eye can reach is one vast expanse of water dividing the eastern and western continents of Europe and America. At once you are brought to the "Canso station" of the Commercial Cable company.

To the southeast of the lake the broad Atlantic rolls along in heavy monotone, while far away on the horizon a dark line of smoke floats leisurely in the wake of a passing steamer. The station itself has a picturesque appearance in the glistening sunlight, the handsome office with its bold frontage standing like a sentinel at the western gateway. There are the finely laid out tennis courts, the broad crescent of substantial villas, with their small patches of greensward and flower beds in front, and the neat little clubhouse with its small piazza, where the men enjoy their pipes of an evening and watch the fleet of fishing boats or ocean travelers passing round the cape.

At the eastern entrance are the bachelors' quarters—a large 2-story building, accommodating nearly 30 men. Two and a half miles away is the fishing town of Canso, with its 2,000 inhabitants.

There is nothing outside to portray the amount of activity going on within the office. The commercial world is in full swing, the cables are being worked at top speed, and messages are pouring in to be transmitted to all parts of the habitable globe. Business is being transacted between the London and New York Stock Exchanges almost as speedily as in the exchanges themselves. Here one gets a general idea of the importance of submarine telegraphy to the world at large and the value of time. No stopping, no pausing, nothing but rush, rush, rush, the clicking of sounders, the working of automatic senders, the tapping of keys, and the steady buzzing of recording instruments.

The operators have the money market under their control; are edifying the political world with the latest conundrums or flashing forth the tidings of some dreadful calamity across the submerged chains which link the old world with the new.

Life at a cable station is not all sunshine, neither is it all shadow. We have our periods of dullness as well as our seasons of pleasure, advantages as well as disadvantages. We live in an unconventional manner, but there are times when we experience a thirst for town life with all its rush and rattle, merely for a change. On the whole, however, we are very contented and happy; there is such a sense of freedom so far removed from the congested atmosphere of city life. Roam where one will, there is no one to say, "Whither goest thou?" One can shoot all over "no man's land" or cast the deceptive fly on lake or stream and wile the silvery trout from their various haunts. There are no preserves, therefore no gamekeepers or watchers.

In season we have boating, tennis, cricket, riding and other sports to brace us up for the mental strain of the operating room; also our concerts, dances and picnics to mark the superficial side of life. Naturally we have to rely on our own resources for amusement and entertainment, and at a large station there is generally a fair supply of talent in various directions.

When winter is upon us with its icy grasp, when the trees and everything around are clad in a beautiful garb of white and glistening snow, we don our furs, and away we go across country to the merry tinkle of sleighbells. Snowshoeing and skating also form important features of our winter's pastime.

When the shades of evening cast their dark mantles around us, we gather in the cheery clubhouse and over our pipes discuss the latest news from the outside world, sum up reminiscences of other days, talk of episodes in our lives and experiences at other stations in other lands, with no foreign element to break our bond of fraternity.

There is a strange Bohemianism in the life of a cable operator. The constant moving about he is subject to, the living in foreign countries and mixing with different races give him a cosmopolitan education, with a broad and generous view of humanity, to the downfall of many narrow and popular prejudices. I do not know of any other profession where exists the same fraternal feeling or spirit of clannishness as is met with in the cable service. Let a man travel the globe, and the mere fact of his being a "Son of Mercury" will insure him a warm welcome at any cable station he may visit.—Cor. New York Herald.

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cut the long nerve descending from the base of the brain and terminating in the bowels is the pneumogastric, while the numerous little branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.

Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of this fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in curing these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs. It is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE.

The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps. Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

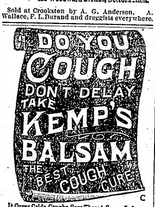
Sold at Crooksten by A. G. Anderson, A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.



It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS

Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year	$5 00
" " 6 months	2 50
" " 1 "	45
Daily only, one year	3 00
" " 4 months	1 00
Sunday, one year	2 00
Weekly Press, one year	1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.

Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT
NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 11th, 1893.
Last publication June 22d, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Lottie Larson and Ole E. Larson, her husband, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th, day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:35 o'clock A. M., in Book 47 of Mortgages, on page 38.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $12.75 that became due November 1, 1890; $12.75 that became due May 1. 1891; $12.75 that became due November 1, 1891; $12.75 that became due May 1, 1892, and $12.75 that became due November 1, 1892.

And whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained,

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum to-wit: Five hundred, eleven and 10-100 ($511 10-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (SW¼) of section eleven (11) township one hundred fifty-three (153) range forty-four (44) containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
[4-10] N. G. 147.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 11th, 1893.
Last publication June 22d, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Anson Bancroft and Ann Eliza Bancroft, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 14th day of December, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of December, A. D. 1887, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., in Book 33 of Mortgages, on page 410.

Whereas such default consists of the failure to pay a certain installment of interest when due and the principal sum, $950, that became due December 14th, 1892.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum to-wit: Nine hundred, fifty-six and 30-100 ($956 30-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said Mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (NW¼) of section twenty-four (24) township one hundred forty-eight (148) range forty-seven (47) containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
[4-10] N. G. 152.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 11th, 1893.
Last publication June 22d, 1893.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Baumann and Josephine A. Baumann, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 30th day of July A. D. 1886, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 2d day of August, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m. in book 25 of mortgages, on pages 150 to 153.

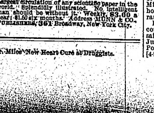
Whereas such default consists in the failure to pay certain installments of interest when due and the principal sum, $600, that became due July 30th, 1891.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Seven hundred twenty-one and 25.100 (721.25-100) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) Section four (4), Township one hundred forty-seven (147), Range forty-five (45), containing 160 acres; more or less, according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 150)



For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication May 11, 1893]
[Last publication June 22, 1893]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Joseph Falardeau and Clzarie Falardeau his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 31st day of December, A. D. 1887, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 33 of mortgages, on page 416.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay certain installments of interest when due and the principal sum, $700, that became due December 31st, 1892.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to wit: Nine hundred eighty-eight and 40-100 ($988.40-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-eight (28), Township one hundred and fifty (150), Range forty-one (41), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 148)

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Cyprien Gosselin and Perpitus Gosselin his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 30th day of April, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of May, A. D. 1887, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 29 of mortgages, on page 420 to 422.

Whereas, default consists of the failure to pay the principal sum, $350, that became due April 30th, 1890.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred twenty-two and 58 100 ($322 58-100) dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section seven (7), Township one hundred fifty-one (151), Range forty two (42), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; all of said premises situate and being in the county of Polk, state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1893.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [4-10] (N. G. 149)

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Ole G. Iverson deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Gulbrand Iverson, administrator, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon this estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described;

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said Ole G. Iverson deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate or any part thereof.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 26th day of June A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in the City of Crookston in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Gulbrand Iverson to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessment and liens, and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 31st day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
[8-10] Judge of Probate.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st, 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Ole G. Iverson deceased:

Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being this day granted unto Gulbrand Iverson of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court, for examination and allowance, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston on Monday the 13th day of November, A. D. 1893, at 10 a. m.

It is further ordered, that six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented to said Court, or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless, for cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to the day appointed for such examination, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said County.

Dated at Crookston the 31st day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
[8-10] Judge of Probate.

Notice of Final Proof.

LAND OFFICE AT CROOKSTON, MINN.,
May 3d, 1893.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 19th, 1893, viz: Jacob Weidenhoefer, Hd. 12,056, for the ne¼ sec. 30, twp. 151, range 47.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Julius Radl, William Seuske, Julius Zachge and George Bassler, all of Fisher, Postoffice, Minn.

[4-9] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

The Review of Reviews for the month of June is a number which nobody who intends to go to the World's Fair at any time can well afford to be without. However attractive the other departments may be, it will be true of this World's Fair, as it was of the Centennial in 1876, that the great majority of the visitors will derive more pleasure from the pictures in the Art Department than from anything else. The Review of Reviews sent as its special representative to Chicago, in May, Mr. Ernest Knaufft, a well known art teacher of New York, who is also a writer upon art subjects and who is known throughout the country as the very successful and sympathetic director of the art studies at Chautauqua from summer to summer. Mr. Knaufft has prepared for the Review of Reviews an extended and discriminating article telling in a straightforward way what are the merits and striking features of each portion of the art exhibit, and his article is illustrated with outline pen sketches intended as a memoranda of the principal pictures. The article serves as an excellent general guide to the art department and as an auxiliary to the more formal catalogue which gives the names and numbers of the pictures.

A Symposium of Western Authors is the name for the June New Peterson. Many of the pest-known writers from Chicago to the Pacific Coast are represented, together with the most promising new poets, romancers and essayists. Joseph Kirkland, Joaquin Miller, Gertrude Atherton, Mary Abbott, Opie Read, Stanley Waterloo, Earnest McGaffey, Le Roy Armsrong, Harriet Monroe, Carrie B. Morgan. Patience Stapleton, and other popular autors have a place. "Pacific Coast Writers," with their portraits by Ella Higginson, makes one of the attractions. Another illustrated article which cannot fail to attract great attention is "The Forest's Last Stronghold," by Hon. F. I. Vassault, a vivid account of the lumber camps of Washington. "The Garden Spot of Washington," by Herbert Bashford, and "Ted Blank," by Effie W. Merriman, both skeches beautifully illustrated, count among the gems of the number. "Cloudland," by John Vanec Cheny is deyond queston, one of the finest of his poems. "A Shelf Full of Western Books" is Octave Thanet's welcome contribution. We heartily recommend to our readers this enterprising periodical, which has so quickly established its claim to take a front rank among American magazines.

A Snap.

The Red River Valley Loan and Investment Company has for sale a half section of land situated two miles from the city limits, good buildings, artesian well, 80 acres fenced, land all broken except about 10 acres in grove. Been used as a stock farm and admirably adapted for that purpose, as being close to the city it is available as a milk and dairy farm. Improvements upon the farm alone cost over $4,000 and it can be had for $6,400. A cash payment of $2,000 will secure the place and purchaser can have a reasonable time on the balance, or for cash a liberal discount will be made. Owner desires to invest his means in other business. Inquire of August George, opera house block. [1-tf]

If you are looking for a snap in farms call and look over that bargain that the Red River Land and investment Company offers in another column. A good improved farm all ready for business at about the bare cost of improvements is a snap not to picked up every day. For full particulars call on or address August George, Opera house block.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $32.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

Fits.

All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $32.55, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

Money to Loan

On city property, business and dwelling—at 6½ per cent per annum. For full particulars call on P. J. Russell, 25 and 26 Reckitt block, Crookston, Minn. [47tf]

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

TELEGRAPH TAPPING

ADVICE AS TO A COMPARATIVELY MODERN INDUSTRY.

The King of Wire Tappers, a Chicago Man Who Has Fought the Board of Trade of That City, Gives a Few Points on Beating Telegraph Companies.

Speaking of schemes, there is one man in Chicago who has caused the board of trade more bother than all the other alleged electricians put together. His name is O. M. Stone, a past master in electrical matters, who has spent years in patient study of electricity, and whose fertile brain has evolved so many schemes to circumvent the powers that be that he has been called the king of wire tappers. Mr. Stone is a modest man. He looks like a granger, but any one who tries to sell him a gold brick will surely get worsted in the transaction. Believing that a disquisition on wire tapping would be incomplete without a few words on the subject from this patriarch of the profession, a representative from The Herald asked the electrician whether he thought wire tapping could be accomplished.

Mr. Stone could not vouch for it from personal experience, but from an electrical point of view he was decidedly of the opinion that he could. He thought, however, that it would require, in this city at least, a knowledge of electricity which not one in a hundred possesses. "In the past three years," observed Mr. Stone. "I suppose that upward of 100 different parties, each representing a coterie of amateur sports, operators and others, have approached me for information on this subject. And it has invariably been in regard to horse racing that they wanted enlightenment. Were I to mention the names of some of these visitors the racing department of a telegraph company would be horrified. Operators as a rule do not get princely salaries, nothing near what they should be paid, so that when a proposition is made to them whereby they may clean up a big stake in a day they naturally have an itching to give it a trial. But to all these young fellows who have been inclined to test their luck in this way I have seriously advised against making the attempt.

"A large proportion of those who do attempt to tap wires make miserable failures. And it is because of their gross ignorance. I will venture the assertion that 60 per cent of the operators in all large offices cannot set up and work a common set of telegraphic apparatus, taking the wires from the time they come into the office until they take the battery or go out again. Yet with a great part of this class the idea of wire tapping emanates. They think they know all about it, and when some of them come to see me and unfold their schemes I have to smile at their simplicity. They do not recognize the difference between an instrument of four ohms and one of 100 ohms, and upon the subject of galvanometers and Wheatstone bridges they are completely lost."

It was suggested to the veteran electrician that a recital of his experiences with the Chicago board of trade in getting quotations would be interesting, and he was asked if he could say how he received the markets during the time the quotations were withheld from the bucket shops.

'In the first place," said he, "the board of trade had detectives innumerable all hunting for 'taps' supposed to furnish me information. I fooled 'em dreadfully on that point, however. Now that the fight is all over I will say that I not only had no wire tapped, but had no necessity for tapping one. I had a better scheme than that."

"But didn't you ever lose your continuous quotations?"

'Never. They had a man who chopped everything in the shape of wires he could find, and occasionally he nipped other wires, but he never succeeded in tracing the source of my information. At one time he cut everything he could lay hands on and then firmly believed he had me in a corner. That made me hot. My office was then in the Traders' building, facing the board of trade rooms. The windows of the exchange floor were all soaped over, the directory foolishly believing I received quotations that way, and they thought they had me sure. Well, that morning, with my wire all cut as they supposed, as soon as the markets opened I seized a bar of soap and scored every eighth change on my window, giving in addition the buyer and seller sign. It dumfounded them. A big crowd stood below on the walk watching my quotations, and I never missed a turn. In spite of the cut wires, too, I had my customers supplied within half an hour after the board opened, and I was furnishing 17 bucket shops at the time."

'I suppose you had some funny experiences during the fight?"

'Well, yes. At one time I had a lot lot of old dead wires connected up that ran from anywhere to nowhere, similar to what is commonly known as a "tree circuit"—that is to say, the 'main' wire had 'legs' scattered in all directions, each of which ran in some dark hole, chimney, vacant basement or the like, and there grounded. I then put a heavy battery on the main circuit and sent a full line of markets over it. There wasn't a single office on the wire, but the mysterious ends made the 'sleuths' believe it was a hot trail, and they would follow lead after lead, cutting each to pieces as soon as discovered. To further bother them I had my man trail them in turn and connect the wires again to keep up the illusion. It was three weeks before they found out I had fooled 'em again."

"Now that the board furnishes its own quotations, I suppose there is not so good a thing in the business for you, is there?"

Mr. Stone pulled in a reflective manner at his long beard. "Well," said he, "I have several other little schemes that serve to keep the pot boiling, and on the whole I cannot complain. My advice, however, to all those who think they have a bonanza in 'wire' tapping is to let it severely alone."—Chicago Herald.

An Irishman's Excuse.

During a season of exceedingly cold weather in a frontier army post the commanding officer issued an order to have limited rations of whisky issued to his men.

All went well until one day a soldier, an Irish-American, was arrested and placed in the guardhouse for intoxication. The quantity of whisky allotted to each man was insufficient to produce such a result, and a brief investigation which followed developed the fact that the soldier had stolen the rations of a comrade.

In course of time the matter was brought to the attention of the commanding officer, and the private was ordered before him for trial upon the heinous charge of stealing.

Pat was very much downcast when he appeared before the officer, but was still in possession of his faculties and native wit. He denied having stolen the whisky, but frankly admitted drinking the double allowance and his subsequent drunkenness.

"No, sur," he said, when asked to explain further, "shure I'm not afther stealin the drink. It was this way, sur. You see, he asked me to get his rations, and I had me own requisition an only wan bottle. Both rations were poured in the wan bottle.

"Now, sur, I lave it to yer honor, what was I to do? Me own whisky was in the bottom of the bottle, an I couldn't get at it but by dhrinking what was on the top, but shure I didn't steal it."

This original explanation secured an exceedingly light sentence for the culprit.—New York Herald.

Stealing a Redhot Stove.

"The incident often illustrated in plays of a man carrying off a redhot stove has no basic truth," said Halman Carmody. "Still the idea seems so preposterous that people never fail to laugh at the incident when placed before them on the stage. The nearest theft that I ever knew to parallel it occurred not so many years ago when an habitual criminal in New York city was given six months in the penitentiary for stealing a tinner's stove. The evidence proved that the criminal had a record which included everything from the theft of a paper of pins and a wagon wheel down to a water gauge of a steam engine and the stove in question.

"The tinner's stove was shown in court. It was a very old fashioned, large and ungainly looking affair, which one might imagine would be the last thing that would attract the attention of even a chronic burglar. The top was cylindrical and perfectly open for the purpose of draft. To this top was attached the handle. Now, the stove had a good fire in it and had been set out on the pavement to obtain extra flame. The thief must have found it a very hot object to handle, and yet he ran with it a dozen blocks before he was caught and arrested."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Club of the Future.

A growing opinion is that the coming club will be the mixed one, where men and women will study together the questions that present themselves and work out together the problems of the day. And this, it is asserted, will not be a consolidation of the distinctively women's and men's clubs as they now exist, but a merging of the best elements of each into fresh organizations.

Following this mixed club sentiment it is not surprising to find Mr. Stead in a London journal advocating "co-operative homes for the unmarried." By this he means that the co-operative homes for spinsters and those for bachelors should combine their housekeeping arrangements into a sort of idealized boarding house, where Mrs. Grundy would be appeased with "an experienced lady housekeeper" and where companies of detached or unattached men and women could find congenial acquaintance. The limitations of the word congenial Mr. Stead insists upon and admits that this matter of selection is the weak point in his scheme. The motion in any form grows out of a recognized drifting apart of the sexes under the changed condition of things.—New York Times.

An Eskimo Trick.

The short, chunky, wooden looking Eskimo men wheedle silver out of the populace by playing a game requiring considerable skill. This consists in lifting a donated nickel or dime out of the ground by the crack of a whip. The whips these chaps use are like an ordinary bull goad, with a number of leather lashes added to the total length of 24 feet. They shoot these long lashes along the ground like snakes straight at a coin set edge up in the dirt, and as each tip reaches the spot it curls with a snap like a pistol shot and likely as not lifts the coin high in the air. It goes to whosoever gets it in that way.—Chicago Cor. New York Sun.

Different Schools of Music.

Each generation, tired of the outworn devices which furnishes its predecessor with excitement, demands newer and stronger effects to stimulate its emotions. As the devices of the classicist grow pale, the listening public demands a romantic school with new forms and strange progressions. The romantic school would, if some hearers had their way, be succeeded in turn by a chaotic school, and in the race for new sensation all vestige of artistic form would disappear.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Unique Holiday Gifts.

One good and well to do old lady in Harlem, being at her wits' ends for presents to meet all tastes procured from the bank a packet of new $10 bills and stacked them upon the parlor table, whence she dispensed them through the day to family and friends as they came in.—New York Sun.

Easily Accounted For.

Harduppe—Did you notice the stony glare Miss Coupon-Bond favored me with as she passed?

Rackette—Yes, but she can't help it, my boy. It's all owing to her rocks.—Life.

My Sweetheart's Face

—that's my wife's you know—wears a cheerful, life-is-worth-living expression, ever since I presented her a box of

KIRK'S
WHITE RUSSIAN
SOAP

She is always recommending Kirk's soaps to her friends—says she is through with experiments—has just what she needed to make labor easy, and ensure perfectly clean clothes. She knows what she's talking about—don't forget it.

JAS. S. KIRK & CO., Chicago.

Dusky Diamond Tar Soap The Soap for Cuts Wounds and Bruises

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS	Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana
NEW TOWNS	100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
LOW RATES	Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.
Horses, Cattle.	Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.
Health, Wealth.	In the Northwest. Free Lands, New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sheep, Hogs.	Sweetes Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock rai2ers' paradise.
Herds, Mines	These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
—BETWEEN—
Chicago, St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior, 7:12 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 8:19 a.m.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

ALDERMAN
&
SYLVESTER
—ARE OFFERING—
SPECIAL PRICES
—ON—
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS OILS GLASS
AND
WALL PAPER
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.
WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN, C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

Chew Climax Plug
It's Much the Best.
Its name indicates it,
Its make guarantees it,
Its use will prove it.
Try it and see.
Sold everywhere. Made only by
THE P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America and the largest in the World.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

IN another column will be found the oration delivered by Hon. E. M. Stanton at Crookston on Decoration Day. It's a gem in its way and too good to be lost, hence its publication at this time.

THE parade part of the Hill celebration in St. Paul yesterday was one of the most unique and imposing ever seen in this country. St. Paul is having her share of festivities this year.

A great deal of oratory was let loose at the reciprocity convention in St. Paul last Monday and Tuesday and the advocates of the scheme from both sides of the line were as enthusiastic as necessary. A constant agitation of this question in this way may result in something tangible—and again it may not.

OUR farmer friends do not take kindly to the Hill celebration and are inclined to think that the people are paying too much homage to J. J. Hill. This is a mistaken idea. This jubilee is to celebrate the completion of a great transcontinental railroad—the first road which has been built without a land grant or a subsidy of any kind. By-the-way the through train service to the coast will commence June 18th.

THE prospects for big prices for wheat next fall do not seem extremely flattering, but for all that the prospects for the most successful year for farmers seem to us better than in several years. The conditions of things are such that for everything else the farmer has to sell, oats, barley, potatoes, pork, beef and poultry and such things, the price will be better than ever, more than enough to make up for a low price in wheat, and it is by no means impossible for that cereal to go to a good profitable price—it certainly cannot go much lower and hence a change must be for the better.

WHEAT, seemingly in sympathy with the general financial depression, opened the week lower than it has been at any time yet. At Crookston the opening quotations on Monday morning were 51 cents for No. 1 Hard. As near as we can figure it out this fact is as much a matter of surprise to the speculators as any one else, if not more so—and it seems to bother the best of 'em to predict what the price will be next fall. The drouth in England, it is said, will materially affect the yield there and have a tendency to create a bettter demand, but for all that the JOURNAL does not see much hope for big prices next fall.

WE thought it bad enough when Monday morning's report showed wheat down to 51 cents, but when Tuesday's report dropped it two cents it did look as though the bottom had gone out for sure. Every report of a bank failure seems to knock wheat crazy, and it must be the panicy condition that is the cause, for on the face of crop reports wheat ought to be going the other way. We trust that the finances of the country will be on a more stable foundation by fall, and we have reason to believe that such will be the case. Otherwise there will be absolutely no money in wheat for the producer.

THE prospects for emigration to this country, according to the views expressed by A. E. Johnson, who has just returned from Europe, are for a much larger influx of a better class of emigrants than ever before. Under the stringent quarintine regulations, it is almost impossible for any suffering from contageous diseases to run the gaunlet. He reports that very many peope are already making arrangements to leave for points in the Northwest.

THE drainage commission met in St. Paul on Saturday, and, after discussing the matter, adjourned to meet right away after the Great Northern celebration. The question of where the work should be commenced was discussed and the probability is that it will be commenced on the Sand Hill river in Polk county, or the Tamarac river, in Kittson county, but this will not be fully determined until the committee thoroughly looks the ground over. It was decided to commence at that point where the work was most needed and finish the work as they go.

GROVER'S FRIENDS.

Ex-mayor McKinnon was a stalwart of the stalwarts in his loyal support of Grover Cleveland first, last and all the time. He was the man who first discovered Grover in the Northwest and has never failed to do him homage. Of McKinnon the Grand Forks News says:

"Mayor McKinnon of Crookston, was the best endorsed man for consul at Montreal, and his Minnesota friends, Doran et. al., had Grover's promise that he should go there. Vilas steps in and a Wisconsin nobody takes the $4,000 plum. One by one the "Cleveland democrats" are getting their eyes opened to the fact that the News was right all the time."

IT'S BLOCKED AGAIN.

Speaking of the state elevator scheme the Duluth News Tribune of Saturday, June 3rd, says:

"Considerable surprise has been expressed in Duluth over the delay apparently found necessary by the members of the railroad and warehouse commission in announcing the name of the successful person in the matter of a site for the new grain elevator. The commissioners have struck a snag, and from present indications it does not appear that the new warehouse will be up in time to receive the crop of the present year. The difficulty lies in the fact that up to date no satisfactory plan by which money is available for the structure has been hit upon and the members of the commission naturally consider it fruitless to proceed with the purchase of a site upon which they have nothing to build nor anything with which to build it. The attorney general has given his opinion, it is understood, that the commissioners will not be justified in assuming any debt in the name of the state, and that if such debt is incurred it will probably have to be assumed by the commissioners, as the state cannot be made subject to ten for either labor or material. This leaves the commissioners in somewhat of a quandary and the services of eminent legal talent have been retained."

THE ONLY GREAT SHOW COMING.

Sells Brothers' Enormous Alliance of Attractions

We can congratulate all patrons of the circus, which means nearly everybody, upon the coming to Crookston on Saturday, June 24th, of Sells Brothers' millionaire amusement alliance, as that means we are not only to have one really good show with us the present season, but in what goes to make up rare variety and recreation for the masses the biggest and best on the road. The progress toward the stupendous made by the Sells Brothers in the past twenty years has been something marvelous. The small show with which they made a timorous beginning has grown to be a genuine public institution of the first magnitude, well and favorably known in every section of the country, and everywhere patronized by the best people. It has even more than kept pace with the unparalleled general development, and easily ranks first among tented exhibitions.

Fifty cents is a small doctor bill but that is all it will cost you to cure any ordinary case of rheumatism if you use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. The first application will quiet the pain. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy
Is famous as a
Cure for severe colds.
Famous as a
Preventive of pneumonia.
Famous as a
Preventive and cure for croup
Famous for the relief it affords in
Case of Whooping cough.
Famous as a safe and pleasant
Medicine for children.
Try it. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

PEACE IN NICARAGUA.

Word Comes From Minister Baker to the State Department.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—A dispatch has been received at the state department from Minister Baker dated Messaya, June 1, stating that peace is restored at Nicaragua and the new government has gone into operation.

Lizzie Borden on Trial.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 6.—The work of selecting a jury in the case of the state against Lizzie Borden for the murder of her father and stepmother has begun. The case is already famous, and promises to become even more so. The best legal talent of the state is engaged in the case.

Doesn't Apply to Strikers.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A special to The World from Pittsburg says: The impression that the nolle prossing of the cases against H. C. Frick and other officials of the Carnegie Steel company would carry with it the quashing of the charges against the strikers is a mistake, according to the district attorney, who says that each case will be disposed of regardless of any connection with the cases against the employers.

Strike at an End.

ASHLAND, Wis., June .—The lumber shovers strike has been settled, the strikers conceding every point and agreeing to go to work again on Monday morning at the old rates, 50 cents per hour.

FOR RECIPROCITY.

SECOND ITNERNATIONAL CONVENTION MEETS

And Proceeds to the Consideration of the Important Question of Freer Trade Relations Between Canada and the States—Mayor Eustis Temporary Chairman—Speeches by Ex-Governor Burke and Others.

ST. PAUL, June 5.—The second international reciprocity convention began in the big auditorium at 2 p. m. Monday. About 500 delegates attended the opening session, and from lists given to the secretaries, it is certain that nearly 1,000 delegates will attend the sessions after Monday. The first meeting was opened by E. V. Smalley, chairman of the local executive committee. Mayor Wright welcomed the delegates and visitors to St. Paul. Ex-Governor Burke performed a like office on behalf of the convention, speaking as follows:

President Burke's Address.

Gentlemen of the Convention: In meeting this convention for the second time, I take pleasure in congratulating you upon the splendid gathering, the numbers and personnel of which will do much to further the objects for which you are called together.

The large number of gentlemen present who met with us at our last convention assures me that there is no abatement in their enthusiasm, an enthusiasm, I am sure, which will continue until reciprocity is an accomplished fact and until the imaginary lines which act as bars to much of the trade and commerce which should come to the Northwest, especially that portion lying along the Canadian border, shall cease to hinder the prosperity of these new and vigorous commonwealths.

The objects of this convention of representative citizens of several states and provinces are well known. While many of you may not agree with me as to the benefits which the system of protection has given to the Eastern sections of this country, we are a unit in the belief that the doctrine of reciprocity, fairly applied, will increase the material wealth of the magnificent country which sends its representatives here today.

Ex-Governor Burke here paid a tribute to the memory of James G. Blaine, whom he designated as the pioneer of modern reciprocity. He then continued:

Never since history began have people held such rich possessions as ours. There is a diversity of interest and of productions in the various sections which authorizes the establishment of the most equitable laws of trade which mortal man has ever devised, and a friendly rivalry which can be cemented in friendship and maintained with profit of all concerned. For there is a production which every section produces of a superior kind, without which no country can prosper, and failing the highest development of which no country can achieve the highest success. For the cultivation of this product, climate and soil and seed are all of the best, and the result has fully justified the claims which some of the more modest among us have made concerning it. The product referred to is men and women.

Not Begging Favors.

Reciprocity apostles do not come begging for favors nor for advantages. They ask, they demand that rights shall be accorded them. We are not suppliants for bounty, nor chasers after appropriations. We purpose, however, that the things to which we are justly entitled shall not be withheld from us, and it is our intention to persevere until the ends for which we have striven and for which we are striving shall have been accomplished.

The remainder of the address was devoted to assuring the Canadian delegates of the great pleasure their presence gave.

When Ex-Governor Burke had finished speaking. James Fisher, M. P., of Winnipeg, was called upon to address the convention in behalf of the Canadian delegates. Mr. Fisher was listened to with great attention by the American delegates, as they expected him to give a hint of the lines to be followed by the Canadians during the convention. Referring to the treaty of 1854, which worked satisfactory for a decade, and was abrogated solely by reason of a mistake, as he asserted, arising out of the American civil war, Mr. Fisher voiced the opinion that no lasting good can be accomplished in the way of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada unless that treaty is restored or a wider and more liberal one is secured.

Mayor Eustis of Minneapolis was made temporary chairman of the convention, with most enthusiastic approval, and when he was escorted to the platform by Mr. Fisher of Winnipeg and Mayor Wright of St. Paul, a wave of applause rolled up from every quarter of the immense building.

At the close of Mr. Fisher's speech committees on permanent organization and resolutions were appointed and the convention adjourned for the day. The committee on resolutions consists of 26 members, 13 from each side of the boundary line.

At the meeting of the committee on permanent organization James Fisher, M. P. P. of Manitoba, was decided on for permanent chairman. Mr. McGinnis of Grand Forks, N. D., was made chief secretary, and Messrs. Bell, Beck and Thompson were made associates. Hon. P. H. Kelly of St. Paul will be presented for vice chairman.

FIGHT AGAINST TRUSTS.

Representative Men of Many States in Session at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The anti-trust convention which met at Apollo Music hall during the morning was not imposing as to numbers, but it was a representative one, and its members were full of enthusiasm and determination.

The convention was called to order by Governor Nelson, who read an address in which he gave a history of the anti-trust movement in Minnesota, which had resulted in the call for the convention. The legislature, Governor Nelson said, made a searching investigation of the coal trust which exists in Minnesota and the lumber trust which flourishes there. The evidence brought out in the investigation was conclusive and clearly showed the nature of the combines, but the remedy was not so apparent. The legislature, therefore, determined to ask the other states of the Union to help devise a remedy.

Temporary Organization.

Governor Nelson at the conclusion of his speech moved that a temporary chairman be appointed and the convention organized at once, the motion resulting in the selection of Henry D. Lloyd of Chicago as presiding officer for the time being. Mr. Lloyd on taking the chair said that he felt the greatest favor of his life had been conferred upon him. He then attacked the trusts as the speaker preceding him had done. He said that the time was now ripe for action and that this convention should take advantage of the opportunity.

Committees Named.

A motion was then passed to appoint a committee on credentials to decide who were the accredited delegates of the various states. After a wrangle which consumed considerable time a committee was finally appointed to pass on credentials. A committee was also appointed to select permanent officers and the convention took a recess for a quarter of an hour. When it was called to order again the committee reported recommending Governor Nelson as permanent chairman, Edward S. Meaney of Washington for secretary and J. E. Morton of Kentucky for assistant secretary.

Donnelly Heard From.

Ignatius Donnelly then came to the front with a series of resolutions which he asked the convention to adopt as a declaration against trusts.

General Weaver was elected first vice chairman and Judge Thomas H. Walker of Pennsylvania second vice chairman. Delegate Davis of Minnesota offered a resolution that the convention call itself the "Anti-Trust Association," to be made an international one by the different states. Ex-Lieutenant Governor Gilman of Minnesota thought the way out of the difficulty in the matter of coal was to purchase the coal lands. He said that the law gave one capitalist power to outrage half a million workingmen. E. O. Brown of Illinois wanted protective tariffs abolished. He was in favor of the tax values on land and public ownership of railroads. All the resolutions were turned over to the committee which met later in the evening to prepare one that would be satisfactory to all the delegates.

St. Paul to Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 2.—T. G. Shaughnessey, vice president of the Canadian Pacific, has stated that his road expects to run through trains from Vancouver to St. Paul by Aug. 1. The run will be made in less than 70 hours, and the road expects to develop a large business.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

Science
MEDICAL SCIENCE
has achieved a great triumph in the production of
BEECHAM'S PILLS which will cure Sick Headache and all Nervous Disorders arising from Impaired Digestion, Constipation and Disordered Liver; and they will quickly restore women to complete health.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss. City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the city council of said City of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons, and at the following place, as stated in said application to-wit: C. C. Hoch and F. Montague, on the first floor of the front part of the two story frame building situated on lot 9, block 1, original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said applications will be heard and determined by said city council of the City of Crookston, at the city hall in said City of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 5th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: T. O. Sundet and O. O. Sundet, on the whole ground floor of the two-story frame building situated on lot 2, block 6, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city, this 5th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, city of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st 1894, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application respectively, to-wit: Henry Burkhardt, in the two-story frame building situate on lot 12, block 15, original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the City of Crookston, in city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk County, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock P. M., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 19th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Proposals For Sewers.

Sealed proposals for the construction of about 1,700 feet of brick and pipe sewers in the city of Crookston, Minn., will be received by the City Council until 6 p. m., June 13th, 1893. Bids are to be made on the forms furnished by the City Council and accompanied by the proper bond. Forms of proposal and specifications may be obtained, and plans seen at the office of the city engineer. The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids, also to waive any informalities. By order of the City Council, Crookston, Minn., May 24th, 1893.

W. F. ARNOLD, E. E. CARRUTH,
City Engineer. Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council, of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of July, 1893, and terminating on the 1st day of July, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Elie Asselin, on the first floor of the southermost store building in that certain brick block, known as the "Vine Block," and now being constructed on the westerly side of Broadway, in block 6, of Fletcher & Houston's addition to said city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city, this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

E. C. CARRUTH.
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application to-wit: Peter Stull and John Waterstadt, in the two-story frame building, on first floor, situate on lot 8, block 4, in Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of Jue, A. D, 1893.

(Seal) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Ernest Rolsch, in the one-story frame building situate on the west twenty-five (25) feet of lots 21, 22, 23 and 24, block 16, in original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Hiren & Johnson, in the two-story frame building on lot nine, block three, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 29th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH.
[8-10] City Clerk.

Scandia-American Bank,

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law;
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - MINN

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

BE QUICK!
IT IS A SNAP.

I will sell the west ½ section 29, T. 149, R. 48, a splendid piece of valley land, 8 miles from Crookston, one-third under the plow, all first-class wheat soil, at the low price of

$8.00 AN ACRE.

Sale subject to an incumbrance of $400. This land is easily worth $12 an acre, but it must be sold.

TERMS:—Half cash; balance secured mortgage.

To the man who buys this tract within Ten Days from this date I will make a Reduction equal to twice the usual real estate commission. First to come gets it.

June 8th, 1893.

J. A. TRUESDELL,
[8-11] Brookland, D. C.

WE SUIT

Everybody Every Time.

Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits,
Suits that Fit to a T.

LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.

Who Wouldn't be Suited

With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?

That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their

SUMMER SUITS.

Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.

BOSTON - - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

THE DUAL
MEAT MARKET.
oOo
CHARLEY VINE
Is Headquarters for all kinds of
Fresh and Salt Meats.

Highest cash price paid for cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry and hides.

SHOPS
Corner Broadway and Robert street,
and on Second street, in Reckitt block,
Crookston, - Minn.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

DECORATION DAY ORATION.

Delivered by E. M. Stanton at Oakdale Cemetery.

This memorial day, with its kindred associations carries us back over the entire history of our county, and vividly brings to mind many facts and circumstances that combined to bring about the great rebellion. It is not my design to transgress the limits of this ocasion by any lengthy allusion to the dry and hackneyed events of our past history, yet it will not be out of keeping with the solemnities of the day to regard generally, some of the political ideas and unfortunate circumstances that engendered sectional strife, and finally involved the nation in civil war.

It is a common notion of men (and very properly) to talk of the necessity of confining history to facts; but it would be absurd to suppose that there are no other facts, but such as are material and visible; there are moral hidden facts which are no less real than wars, revolutions and the public acts of governments. They may be without name or date, confined to no fixed limit, and yet are facts; in history. It is that portion of history which is styled the Philosophy of History." It consists in showing the relation of events to each other, the causes and effects. There is a wonderfully strange and interesting philosophy in history. All along the pathway of time we find the indications of an "allwise providence" shaping and directing the destinies of mankind. It is a philosophy taught by experience. In the prosy facts of history are the shadowy premonitions of coming events. "All history is an imprisoned epic—nay an imprisoned psalm and prophecy." To many, history is but a dry and disconnected chronology of events; to the reasoning mind, it is a complete chain of events; link to link has been added and the whole makes up the sum total of our civilization.

I turn back the pages of history and the past arises before me like a panoramic vision. I see the march of conquering armies and the fall of dynasties. I see time honored monuments crumbling to dust and tottering thrones, here and there a mouldering heap of all that was once a great and powerful city. Ancient Troy the sad remembrance of whose fate is told in Homer's Illiad and Virgils Aenead; Carthage by "Dido built and loved by Juno," an Empire once, but now from its old foundations rent Babylon and Ninevah, their mighty foundations are buried by drifting sands. Flitting across the canvas of the past I see an awful spectacle of ruin and desolation; whole countries devastated by the ravages of war; horror and bloodshed on every page; the cruelties of St. Bartholomew and Smithfield burnings "the reign of terror"—Mirabeau and Robespiere; but to the philosophic eye the history of the past is a grand and beautified picture of the handywork of the "master builder,"—of the rise and progress of civilization. A nation dies that another and better may live. Rome was once the proud mistress of the world; but that mighty empire was shattered and broken into many forms, yet the downfall of the Roman Empire gave birth to a grander civilization upon the continent old world. The conquest of the world, by the victorious armies of Rome gave to the world laws, systems and ideas which will bless benefit humanity for eternity. Thus we,

"Rise on the stepping stones of our dead selves,
To higher things.

In the light of reason and philosophy, the darkest events of our history becomes radiant with some grand scheme for the benefit of humanity. "Through the ages one increasing purpose runs, the thoughts of men are widening with the process of the suns." The grandest achievements of man stand out in bright illumination against a back ground of history's darkest page. Civilization, from its earliest dawn upon the alluvial plains of the Nile has grandly marched along, a step was taken and ages rolled away.

"Westward the course of Empires takes its way,
The first four acts already past,
The fifth closes the drama of the day,
Time's noblest offspring is the last."

The history of our own country is brief; it may all be summed up in a short epitome of a few important events. As compared with the war of the rebellion, all other events become but mere incidents in our history. It is the most important because of the causes that had for years been scheming and combining to produce that mighty effect. The civil war was the logical conclusion of a series of events and circumstances which the dispassionate student of history cannot ignore, and if we would study them in the light of reason and philosophy, with some degree of charity for the errors of mankind, it would do much to extinguish the fires of sectional hate and prejudice that are today smouldering in the hearts of many.

Standing as we do today, thirty years removed from the battle scenes of that strife, with the history of the past an open book before us and analyzing it as with unbiased minds, the causes that led to the rebellion, we are forced to accept as truth in history "that all is well that ends well."

There is no truth in political history more plainly taught, than that "Federal idea of Government" is the resource of small and week communities. The experience of all ages places a limited value upon that scheme of government. It is not then unreasonable that some of the men learned in the experiences of the past, and who assisted in laying the foundations of the republic, should have entertained serious doubts as to the feasibility of adopting that peculiar form of government. Colridge the acute English scholar once said that he looked upon the American states as splendid masses to be used by, and in the composition of two or three governments." Soon after the war for independence it was gravely contended by a party of considerable strength in America, and by thinking men in other parts of the world, that the American Union as a confederation of states, was founded upon early and past necessities, had well served its purpose and that it awaited another political destiny. The civil war had one source in the different constructions, that were thus early in our history placed upon the Federal constitution. The discussion of those differences of opinion in the convention which met to adopt the Federal Constitution, produced at that early period a jealous breach betweeen the north and the south, which aggrivated by other facts and circumstances widened into a yawning Hyatus. At that time and cotemporaneous with the adoption of the constitution, there were established in America two great schools of political thought, that of consolidation represented by the north, and the school of "State Rights" represented by the south. How they should come to be established in those respective localities and distinguished by a sectional line dividing the north from the south is easily explained. By reason of climate influences the system of Negro servitude, which had at one time generally existed throughout all of the original thirteen states, began to drift toward the warmer climate, and at the time of the revolution, Negro slavery was considered a southern institution. In the distributing of federal powers, the constitutional term "All other persons" (meaning slaves) gave the south a decided advantage over the north, in the apportionment of representative in the lower house of congress. The "green eyed monster, jealousy" began to show its hideous form. The northern school of consolidation claimed national responsibility for the existence of slavery and therefore the right to interfere. The south to protect its peculiar system of labor and to hold and maintain the balance of power, adopted the teachings of the school of "State Rights" and strenuously claimed that each state had retained its sovereignty, hence the federal government had no right to interfere with that "domestic institution." Thus there became a political north and a political south arrayed against each other in a bitter though bloodless war of ideas.

Nature also seemed to have drawn a sharp line of distinction between the north and the south. The climatic conditions early demonstrated the superiority of the north as a manufacturing section, while on the other hand, the south with its system of labor was peculiarly adapted to agricultural pursuits, and the production of raw material. There was also a wide difference in the character of the people of the north and of the south. Among the early settlers of the north, were the exiled Puritans, who landed upon the wild, rugged and cheerless shores of New England. They were a people strong-minded, brave and courageous. The distinctive traits of their character in after years became visible in people in the north. They were a true-hearted, industrious people, possessing all those stern qualities peculiar to human nature in the colder climates; but they were nevertheless stiff and formal, selfish and intolerant, utterly despising everything that smacked of aristocracy, fashion or frivolty. The south had a civilization peculiar to itself. Among the early settlers of the south were the Cavilliers who sought a warmer and brighter climate, and built their baronial halls beneath the shade of the palmetto of the south. They were a brave and generous people, whose notions of chivalry gave to the people of the south many of the noble and distinguishing features of their civilization. While their system of enforced servitude was degrading in many ways, and produced much idleness and licentiousness, yet it afforded a great opportunity for culture and the attainment of a high standard of scholarship. They were gay and hospitable, impulsive and high-tempered, sensitive to a fault, yet possessing many of the noble and generous virtues of the "Knight of olden times." The hostility between these two sections of the country and their different civilizations had already too frequently in the past disturbed the sectional equilibrium, and it became apparent, to our statesmen of wisdom and forethought that this state of affairs could not long exist without a crisis. Civil war seemed imminent, and a peaceable disunion was the only alternative. The dreaded moment came at last. From the south came the loud thunderings of war; dark clouds gathered above us and hung low and heavy over Columbia's fair land; the storm burst upon us with all the horrors of civil strife. From the north line, to the gulf-washed shores of the south, came the awful tread of moving armies, tramp, tramp, tramp, the army of the blue, and the army of the grey marching to "the wild mad music of war." Stout were the hearts and stubborn was the conflict. More determined and braver soldiers were never marshalled upon a field of battle. It was not a conflict between infuriated mobs. They were not armies following the star of some conquering hero. They were not mercenary soldiers fighting for booty and reprisal. The southern army was a brave and valiant foe, their bravery was worthy a nobler cause. The soldiers of the south were backed by the courage of an honest conviction, but they were schooled in the teachings of a misguided statesmanship. The union soldiers were encouraged by a higher and nobler purpose—the preservation of the union as a glorious sisterhood of states—encouraged by that other and grander sentiment dear to every loyal American heart "liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable.

For four long years our country endured the varied fortunes of war; they were four long years of weary waiting for the war to close; they were years full of sorrow and mourning.

For not a day wore into morning,
But some sad heart did break."

Many were the lonely hours, many many were the eyelids wet with tears, many were the boys, who in the golden radiance of life's early morn gave all to home and native land. Many were they who, upon the six hundred battles of the war gave their lives a peace-offering upon the altar of liberty and union. Some are sleeping beneath the low hillocks of that far southern country, and some their shrouded forms are resting in grass grown graves of the north. Some, their names are chiseled in marble slab, and monumental stone, and many there are whom time their resting place will never disclose. No holy knell their requiem rang, their death hour heard no kindred wail, but upon the entablatures of our hearts their names are all written, and the kind remembrance of their deeds will keep their graves ever fresh and green.

The story has been told beautifully phophetic of the "sweet bye and bye" when all the warring hosts should cease from their mad strife. The time and place I cannot fix 'twas during the gloomiest period of the conflict upon a certain battlefield, but happening during a brief cessation of hostilities. The opposing forces were resting within hearing distance of each other. Some of the boys in blue thinking of their far away homes and the dear ones left behind, of the scenes of their early childhood dreaming of "home sweet home" and hoping for the war to close, lifted their voices in that song which never fails to fill the sad and lonely heart with hope and joy.

Their voices floated out upon the still, clear air of the night and reached the ears of the boys in grey. There remained one silken cord which bound them together. The boys in grey would not cut it asunder, for back from the rebel ranks came the chorus of "home sweet home," the spirit of the south uniting with that of the north, the shadow of the one mingling with the radiance of the other in chorus loud and long, they sang together that sweetest of songs, it seemed as though to be symphony of angelic harps. The glorious end came at last. The soldier boys homeward made their way, and once more a free and united people rallied around the same old flag in common gratitude, singing,

Blest be the tie that binds,
The sons of our fair land,
In union both of hearts and hands,
One fearless valiant band.

The clouds of battle cleared away and the morning of a new life dawned upon a spectacle of ruin and desolation unparalleled in modern history. The soldiers of the north and south having done their terrible work, returned to the people from whence they came and gladly resumed the vocations of peace. Statesmen of Europe had predicted that riots, anarchy and chaos would result," when so many soldiers familiar with the scenes of violence and bloodshed were freed from military restraint." But this did not prove true. Within eighteen months the vast armies had been disbanded and transported to their homes. The return of that vast multitude to their homes and peaceful pursuits, may well be regarded as the greatest triumph of civilized warfare. The granting of full and unconditional pardon to the south has fully reaffirmed that philosophic truth that "liberty and not despotism is the best curefor anarchy."

Since the close of the war there has been wonderful changes in the ideas and sentiments of both north and south. Never before was the civilization of our country more homogeneous than at the present. Time, and its changes is fast obliterating the geographical line of division, and we may truthfully say to-day, that we know but one flag and one common country, and that all the people of the north and south are to-day equal in all the rights and privileges of American citizenship. In the admiration of all that constitutes the great wealth, prosperity and unity of our nation, and its bright prospect for the future, we are not unmindful of the services of the union soldiers to our country in the hour of its great need, and whose deeds of valor made us the happy possessors of that which is now the common pride and heritage of all.

The south has fully surrendered to the north all that the war decided, but the war did not make "all sacred things profane." We will willingly leave to them their own dead, their own memories, their own tears and the traditions that have fallen from the lips of widowed mothers.

Grand Army of the Republic, another year has rolled its wonted round, and memorial day has come again like "old mortality" in this silent city of the dead to renew to the eyes of posterity, the memory of those who fought, bled and died in the defense of their country. The dewy fingers of spring has again made ready the garlands for their graves and with the choicest flowers of that fair land they loved so well, kind and loving hands will

* * * * "dress as sweeter sod,
Than fancy's feet have ever trod."

"Spirit that made those heroes dare,
To die, and leave their children free,
Bid time and nature gently spare,
The shaft we raise to them and thee."

Survivors of the rebellion; though you by chance escaped the casualties of the war you are no less deserving than your brave comrades who fell fighting by your side. To you we bring the praises of a grateful people. You are just nearing the end of life's journey, and soon you will be numbered with the dead. During the past year seven thousand of your number, growing weary of life's burden, fell by the wayside. Time is fast depleting your ranks and soon all that remains of the Grand Army of the Republic, will have surrendered to the Conquerer Death. Soon there will be no one left to repeat to the anxious, listening ear of childhood the story of the war.

Each year the circle around your camp fire is growing smaller and smaller as one by one death musters them into the "mysterious beyond." Soon you will come to pitch your tent on the camping grounds of eternity. You are growing old and in the declining years of your manhood, memory's golden chain draws you back to the rosy scenes of early years.

Youth hopefully looks into the future, old age loves to meditate and ruminate over the past. To you as the years come and go, the associations of those eventful years you spent in the service of your country become dear and hallowed memories. As you draw nearer the "gates ajar" the ceremonies of this day become more sacred and sublime. To you it is a consolation to feel and know that when death calls you into camp with your comrades on the other side, you will leave behind you a memory that will add new glory to the achievements of the Grand Army of the Republic, and a name that will be a holy inspiration to coming generations. When you, tried and battle-scarred veterans of the war shall pillow your weary heads upon the bosom of mother earth, in remembrance of you and all your comrades dead and gone, coming generations will gather the brighest flowers of spring time from the field and garden bower, and strew them over the gaves of all who to country gave the best years of their manhood. Until the rolling years shall cease to bring the spring time with its buds and blossoms, fragrant flowers and banners of green, a grateful posterity will gather amid these consecrated mounds where sleep the nations honored dead, and annually,

"And Crown in their hearts,
Those dead heroes of ours,
And cover them over with beautiful flowers."

When you speak or even think of spring medicine, how quickly Hood's Sarsaparilla comes into your mind. Take it now.

In regard to

Miss Ollie Torbett

whose picture we give, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says:

"Miss Ollie Torbett with her appearance alone captivated her audience. She demonstrated herself to be a thorough master of the violin, and answered recalls with such unassuming grace that she became the favorite of the evening."

And the San Francisco Examiner says:

"Miss Ollie Torbett plays with exceptional skill. She has perfect command of the bow and fairly won the audience by storm. She was repeatedly encored, and rendered a number of solos during the evening to the delight of her hearers."

THE CIRCUS
WILL SOON BE HERE—
AND YOU WILL—
WANT TO SEE IT.
How to Obtain the Pange?
WELL, there are several ways to accomplish that result, and among them the best way we know of is for you to trade at the—
General Store
—OF—
Fontaine & Anglim.
Where you can save enough in one month to take the whole family to the world-renowned aggregation.
Yours for Good Goods and Low Prices.
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.
BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.
BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
Besides carrying a full and complete line of
COFFINS, CASKETS AND BURIAL SUPPLIES.
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—
Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 165½ Broadway,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
Commenced Business October, 1881.
PAID IN CAPITAL........$100,000
SURPLUS.................... 15,500
Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. B. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor,
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.
CALL IN.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor
R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston. Minn.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.
HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

A COURT OF NATIONS.

A HIGH COURT OF LAST RESORT TO DETERMINE DISPUTES.

How International Differences Might Be Adjusted if the Rulers Did Not Prefer Grim and Destructive War to Peace. Arbitration In Big Affairs.

There is a great deal of carelessness in certain popular demands for referring questions between nations to arbitration. We all know what arbitration is in business. It is a very convenient way of adjusting certain questions which arise between two friends, each of whom wants to do what is right, but who take different points of view of the same subject. Each of them "chooses a man," as the old New England phrase has it. These two "men" choose a third man. All parties meet together and talk over the matter, and the court thus made decides.

But for practical purposes we do not compel every person who has a question arising with another person to create a court which is to try that question. If a policeman catches a pickpocket in the street, he does not appoint one person to try the pickpocket and ask the pickpocket to appoint another, while these two shall appoint a third. If Mr. Cheeryble in London is not satisfied with the account which Mr. Goodchild in Kansas City sends him, if Mr. Goodchild cannot make Mr. Cheeryble understand that account, they do not appoint a court which shall determine how much is due and how much is not due. There is a court existing to which that question can be referred and there are processes perfectly understood by which that court can decide it.

This is a fair enough illustration of the necessity which now exists that the great nations of the world shall have a permanent tribunal, before which shall be brought the important questions which must arise in the affairs of nations with each other. It is to be a permanent tribunal. There is not to be one tribunal about seals and another tribunal about boundaries and another about extradition. There is to be a tribunal which shall gradually gain the confidence of the whole world, and which shall decide these questions which have been left hitherto to a vague public opinion and to what is called the arbitration of war. Clearly we are approaching nearer and nearer the creation of such a tribunal.

The greatest success was achieved when in 1789 13 different nations, here on the coast of the Atlantic, united together and established the supreme court of the United States. The thing has worked so perfectly and simply ever since that we have many readers to whom it has never occurred that there were might have been wars between Massachusetts and New York, or war between Missouri and Iowa, as bitter and severe as half the wars of the middle ages in Europe were. There might have been such wars if it had not been that the supreme court of the United States has determined at least a hundred questions arising between different proud and independent states and has so determined them that each of the states has acquiesced in the decision. Nay, it has so determined them that half the citizens of those states did not know that any such questions existed. Between my own state of Massachusetts and the state of Rhode Island there was a question about boundaries some 40 or 50 years ago which was more important than many of the questions which have thrown European states into war with each other. The supreme court of the United States determined the question, and I do not believe that half the people now living in Massachusetts who were living then ever knew that there was any such question at issue.

The six great powers of the world are the powers who should agree on such a high court of judicature, to exist as a permanent tribunal. It would be easy to arrange some system by which its judges should be appointed. Perhaps a good system would be such as is indicated in the custom which has been spoken of above. Each of the six nations might name one of these judges, and the six judges might nominate six other judges, to be approved by a majority of the high powers forming the court.

At first the new court would have nothing to do. Everybody would be shy of it, but it would exist. It would consist of men of the very highest rank who had distinguished themselves before the world by their equity and wisdom.

At first the court would meet simply for its own organization and to await the reference to it of questions arising between great nations. In this period of leisure these jurists might well be engaged in digesting the international law of the world as it exists now and publishing from time to time their digest. They might determine certain principles on which they would rely in the judgments which should eventually be brought before them. Before long, however, some real question would be submitted to them. There would arise a question whether the San Carlos river was a dirty brook running from the northwest to the southeast, or another dirty brook running from the southwest to the northeast. As things stand now, two armies have to be called out to fight about the proper definition of some old treaty, and a thousand good fellows have to be killed before we can determine which of two dirty brooks is the San Carlos.—Edward Everett Hale in New York Recorder.

The Great Feat.

First Reporter—We got the scoop on you in that robbery in the street car. We were the only paper that published the name of the pickpocket, his arrest and the recovery of the money.

Second Ditto—Yes, but we were the only paper that gave the number of the car.—Boston Transcript.

Tobacco Benefited Him.

"I feel that I owe a great deal to tobacco."

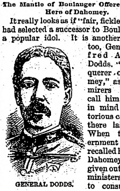
"Nervous temperament perhaps?"

"No. I run a cigar store."—Kate Field's Washington.

ANOTHER MILITARY IDOL.

The Mantle of Boulanger Offered to the Hero of Dahomey.

It really looks as if "fair, fickle France" had selected a successor to Boulanger as a popular idol. It is another soldier, too, General Alfred Amedee Dodds, "the conquerer of Dahomey," as his admirers proudly call him, having in mind his victorious campaign there last year. When the government recently recalled him from Dahomey, it was given out that the ministers desired to consult him concerning the military organization of that country, but there were not wanting those who construed the order as practically a measure of censure.



GENERAL DODDS.

It may have been the spreading of this sentiment among the people that caused the ovations which the general received on his arrival at Marseilles and Paris recently, or it may have been that the "party of revenge" was simply seeking a new center around which to rally. Certain it is that the League of Patriots, who are the organized representatives of that party, had a prominent part in the management of the ovations, going so far as to placard the walls of Marseilles with a circular offering General Dodds the succession to Boulanger, which concluded with these words, "General, do your duty, and if parliamentarians resist thrust them out at the door."

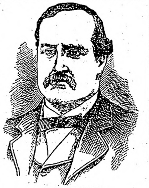
General Dodds is a tall, handsome man and looks like the soldier he has proved himself to be. He is a mulatto, English, French and African blood mingling in his makeup. His grandfather married the daughter of a Frenchman and an African woman, and his father married a native of Senegal, who came of a Norman family. The general was born in St. Louis, Senegambia, in 1842 and was educated at the French military school of St. Cyr, where he graduated in 1864 with the rank of second lieutenant of naval infantry. He was promoted to a first lieutenancy in 1867 and to a captaincy in 1869. At Sedan in 1870 he was taken prisoner, but escaped and rejoined the army. He fought through the Franco-German war, the conflict with the commune and the campaign in Tonquin, coming out of all of them unscathed.

He has been in the service in Africa since 1871, except during the Tonquin campaign, and was made a major there in 1879, a lieutenant colonel in 1883 and a colonel in 1887. He was commandant at St. Louis in 1890 when Colonel Terrilon conducted his campaign against King Behanzin and was made commander in chief of the expedition in 1892, on the successful conclusion of which he was promoted to be a general and made an officer in the Legion of Honor.

VILLARD'S UPS AND DOWNS.

The Phenomenal Success of a Penniless German Immigrant.

Not many of the moneyed magnates of the world have had such a romantic career as Henry Villard, the story of which reads like a chapter of imaginative fiction. In the first place his name is an alias. When he came to this country in 1854, a penniless emigrant from Germany, he was called Heinrich Hilgard. He was born in Speyer, Bavaria, and graduated from the gymnasium of his native town the year before he emigrated.



HENRY VILLARD.

Having some literary ability, he commenced writing for German publications, and after he had mastered English continued his connection with journalism for some years, up to 1874, in fact, when he branched out as a financier. In that year he was sent out from Germany, where he had been reporting the Franco-German war, by a committee of German bondholders of the Kansas Pacific railroad, which had defaulted on its interest. He was finally appointed receiver of the road, and this appointment may be said to have given him his start as a financial skyrocket.

As early as 1869 he had conceived a scheme for the consolidation of various steamship and railroad interests on the Pacific coast, but it was not till 1879 that he found himself strong enough to carry it out. Then he gained control of the Oregon Steam Navigation company and the Oregon Steamship company and combined their interests under one management. Then he got control of the Northern Pacific, and the story of his quick achievement of a colossal fortune was like one of the stories of the "Arabian Nights." But it did not last, as all the world knows, for his downfall was a repetition of the tale of the rocket and the stick.

But his acute discernment and indomitable energy were not to be thus disposed of forever, and after a brief period [illegible] more blazed across the financial sky in full ascendancy—a succesful financier, a railroad king, a millionaire, a shining mark for the financial paragraphers, a man on whose word "the street" waited, and whom the street, with more or less unanimity, tries to "down."

The Nuisance of Inartistic Advertising.

We have occasionally regretted the monstrosities of street advertisements. Every vacant wall or boarding which is accessible to the bill sticker blazes with pictures which do not precisely educate the public taste, and are rather a serious addition to the minor evils of life. Well meant efforts have been made to improve these posters. The late Mr. Frederick Walker designed one for "The Woman In White." It was tolerably inoffensive, but far from an addition to the amenity of a blank wall.

Mr. Herkomer, if we are not mistaken, has tried his hand, and a well known picture of a little boy blowing soap bubbles, by Sir John Millais, is sufficiently familiar to the amateur. But the worst of it is that no such repeated airs, from whatever hand, are agreeable, much less the terrible man with the liver pad, compared with whom the lady with improbably long hair is a gem. This is not the end. The fields on each side of the railways grow monstrous advertisements—an offense to the eyes of travelers, and surely no real inducement to purchase the wares of the culprits.

A society has been formed to deal with these horrors, and the society protests against "diffidence and despondency." This is plucky at least, and so far deserves respect. It is a monstrous anomaly to spend public money on the improvement of public taste, and then to permit that taste to be debauched by "sky signs," advertisements in green fields, posters flaring on every vacant space.—London Saturday Review.

Casting Great Statues.

Stiglmayer, a German goldsmith in the first part of this century, having an ambition to attempt larger works than any he had accomplished, went to Naples in order to see the casting of Canova's statue of Charles III, but was denied the sight of certain secret technical processes. Stiglmayer found them out for himself nevertheless, and as soon as he went home made his first experiment on a statuette of Venus. Many delays occurred, and the excitement increased as the end drew near. By some mistake one of his assistants poured his molten metal into the airhole. Then the casting came to a standstill.

"The crowd of lookers on," writes the poor founder in his diary, "stood first dump about me and then slipped out one by one and left me with my pain."

In a month a second casting was begun and failed. With unbroken courage he begun the third cast, and on Christmas eve the metal was again poured in. It ran into the mold and spurted joyfully out at the air hole.

"Our joy knew no bounds," he declares. "We raised a loud cry of joy and embraced and kissed each other. Pasquale, the helper, kissed the head of Phidias coming out of the broken form and burned his mouth, for it had not had time to cool."—Youth's Companion.

Preparation the Important Factor.

The discovery by Edison of the carbon with which he perfected his electric lamp seems a happy accident, but such accidents never happen to common men. The great inventor scraped some soot from the blackened chimney of his laboratory lamp, and in a spirit of curiosity tested its properties. It proved to be the thing for which he was searching, but behind this fortunate discovery was a series of exhausting and exhaustive experiments with all kinds of likely materials, absorbing the energies of many months. The lucky hit rewarded the persistent will of a patient workman.

So with the young and obscure lawyer who conducts and wins a difficult case, as did Thomas Erskine in his elder's illness, or the struggling surgeon who has a sudden chance of distinction offered to him, he must have had a long and laborious preparatory training before he can profit by such an emergency. In short, a great opportunity is worth to a man precisely what his antecedents have enabled him to make of it.—William Mathews in Harper's Young People.

A Town In Pawn.

It may not be generally known that the little seaport town of Wismar, in the Baltic, is virtually in the same position as Montague Tigg's shirt—namely, at the pawnbroker's. It was in 1803 that Sweden pawned the town to the duchy of Mecklenburg for a round sum of money. It was then stipulated that the town should be restored to Sweden at the end of a century, provided the sum lent, together with interest, were paid back to Mecklenburg.

This sum is now said to amount to several hundred million marks, and apparently there is little chance of Wismar being able to pay it at the date fixed. This singular treaty has lain dormant in the archives of the municipality ever since it was made up to the other day, when, apropos of the concession of some land to the custom authorities, it was exhumed for legal purposes.—Million.

A New Health Food

has made its appearance. It is not only a health food, but a healthy food—a health food that makes other food healthy. Its name is

COTTOLENE

It takes the place of hog's Lard, which is a notoriously unhealthy food. A vegetable oil product—delicate, digestible, and economical—one trial gives COTTOLENE a permanent home in every kitchen, whence it increases the health and enjoyment of every member of the family. Try it for yourself. At all grocers.

Sold in three and five pound pails.

Manufactured only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.
CHICAGO.

In the Yosemite valley there is a fallen tree 300 feet long and several centuries old, that, it is said, has been hollowed out so that for a distance of 60 yards a person can walk upright inside it.

Senator Mills says that for 10 years the railroads of Texas have been operated at an actual loss of $1,000,000 a year to the railroads themselves.

The earliest library was that of Nebuchadnezzar. Every book was a brick, engraved with cuneiform characters.

Oh, My Heart!

Palpitation and Rheumatism.

Mr. James S. Jones
Bruce, Wis.

"From my experience I think Hood's Sarsaparilla will do everything it claims and more too. It is surely entitled to my heartfelt thanks. I think it is the best medicine in the world. For 25 years I have suffered with palpitation of the heart and rheumatism. I tried everything I could hear of, but none of the medicines did me any good, in fact I grew worse all the time until for three years

I Could Not Labor Any.

I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and thought I would try it. I have taken four bottles, and I feel like a new man. I have improved so rapidly in health that I am able to work hard now. I recommend this medicine to all who are sufferers. I would not be without it in my house." JAMES S. JONES, Bruce, Chippewa Co., Wis.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

King David.

This celebrated Clyde Stallion will stand for the season of 1893 as follows: Monday, J. B. Roome's; Tuesday, L. H. Judson's; Wednesday, Helmich Bros.; Thursday, John Sylvesterson's; Friday and Saturday at S. L. Collins' Stable, Crookston.

This full blooded Clyde Stallion was purchased of an old reliable firm who make a specialty of importing the best stock and blood that can be found in the old country. This horse was bought by the Andover Stock Company two years ago at a large expense and can show more A No. 1 colts than any other horse ever brought to Polk county. He is a round bodied, heavy limbed, horse of dark bay color and weighs over 1,700 pounds.

TERMS—Insure, $15; Season, $10.

For further particulars enquire of

A. E. HELMICH,
(1-8) Manager.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE

North American Review

YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc.

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year,
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

FRESH VEGETABLES
RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice Lot of

CANNED GOODS

At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,

Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.

ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Price
—OF—
Groceries

HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as

TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,

I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of

Groceries, Crockery, Etc.

Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, - - - - CROCKSTON, MINN.

BUY A WHEEL
EARLY

And get the benefit of full riding season. The Victor is the leader wherever known. Call and see one. We sell on terms to suit. We also have a line of low and medium priced wheels. We can suit anybody's pocket.

The Rushford Wagon still stands at the head; best material, best finish, best ironing, best paint, in fact it can't be beat.

Our usual line of Buggies, Carts, Harness, and other seasonable goods is complete, and prices right. Call and see.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE WORLD'S FAIR OPENS MAY 1ST.

Are You Going? If so be sure and take out a Membership Certificate in "The Chicago Entertainment Bureau." It will save you Worry, Time and Money. Respectable and well located rooms at moderate prices guaranteed. Send for descriptive circulars to the

Minnesota and Dakota Headquarters, 618 AND 619 PIONEER PRESS BLDG., ST. PAUL,
N. T. HALL, Manager.

Partial List of References. HON. KNUTE NELSON, Gov. of Minnesota; HON. A. R. McGILL, Ex-Gov. of Minnesota; HON. W. R. MARSHALL, Ex-Gov. of Minnesota; RT. REV. W. N. GILBERT, Ass't Bishop, Diocese, Minn., and many other equally well known names.

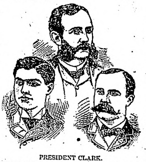
HISTORIC MONTREAL.

SCENE OF THIS YEAR'S CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

How Delegates Will Be Received and Entertained—Attractions of the Town—Information For Intending Visitors—History and Purposes of the Society.

The annual convention of the Society of Christian Endeavor, which meets this year at Montreal, Canada, beginning July 6, is expected to attract upward of 25,000 people to that historic city, a much greater assemblage than has ever been gathered there for any purpose. The preparations already made by the local committee, however, promise ample accommodations for this vast number, and it is quite certain that all will be cared for at reasonable rates. The city has been thoroughly canvassed for sleeping accommodations, and contracts have been entered into for the erection of three large dining tents where 1,500 people can be fed at once, which will obviate the necessity for running to distant parts of the city for meals.

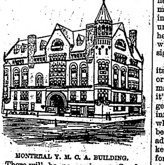


PRESIDENT CLARK.
SECRETARY BAER. TREASURER SHAW.

The meetings are to be held in the large government drill hall and on the Champ de Mars adjoining, where a large tent will be erected, in which services similar to and simultaneous with those in the hall will be conducted. The drill hall will seat 9,000 people, and the tent is to accommodate 8,000 more. The regular sessions will begin Thursday morning, July 6, at 10 o'clock, though on the previous day there will be a meeting of the trustees at Windsor hall and large preparatory meetings in the evening in the different evangelical churches. Many of the most eminent divines will take active part in the proceedings, and celebrated evangelists, lay orators and temperance workers have been assigned places on the programme of the four days' proceedings.

President Francis E. Clark, D. D., has positively announced his intention to be present. He will be home in ample time, as he leaves Liverpool on the Alaska on June 17, after the meeting of the national convention of Christian Endeavor for England at Bradford, which he will attend. Dr. Clark had a rough time of it in Turkey, where he undertook to foster the work of the society, and he will probably have something to say to the convention about his experiences. The government got after him and did everything possible to hinder his work, confiscating his books and other literature and forbidding him to use the name of the society in his addresses. Many of the societies there have been broken up, and if the Christian Endeavor movement progresses in Turkey it will be despite the efforts of the authorities.

President Clark and Secretary Baer will make their annual reports on Thursday night, alternating between the drill hall and the tent so that the audiences in both places may have the benefit of hearing them. There will be no regular session on either Friday or Saturday afternoon, but denominational meetings in connection with the work will be held in some of the churches. On Friday evening the Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky will address the assemblage in the drill hall, his topic being "The Age and Its Possibilities." In the big tent at the same time Rev. B. W. Arnett, D. D., bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver an address on "Christian Stewardship, or Money In the Kingdom," and Dr. Burrell of New York, one of the prominent trustees of the society, will discuss "Good Citizenship." Saturday morning will be devoted to missionary topics, and in the evening there will be a roll call in the drill hall of the states, territories, provinces and foreign countries represented in the convention. The evening session in the tent will begin with what is called "the pastors' hour," one of the most interesting of the whole convention, at which some 20 or more eminent ministers will deliver what are called "minute guns" or "60-second sermons."



MONTREAL Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

There will be no session on Sunday morning, but in the afternoon Thomas E. Murphy will deliver an address on "Gospel Temperance" in the drill hall, while Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, president of the National Young Women's Christian Temperance union, will lecture in the tent on the same topic, to be followed by Rev. D. Burford Hooke of London, who will discuss "The Religious Press." The sessions will close on Sunday evening with sermons and consecration services in both drill hall and tent. Rev. Dr. T. H. Lewis of Maryland college will preach in the hall, and President Clark will lead the consecration service. Rev. B. Fay Mills will both preach and lead the consecration service in the tent.

The local committee has ordered a map of Montreal to be printed and sent to every delegate, so that all may familiarize themselves with the plan of the city and learn something of its peculiar institutions and the enjoyable excursions in the vicinity, of which Montreal has a great many. A drive to Lachine, going by the upper road and returning by the lower one, is very interesting and will give one a sight of the rapids of Sault St. Louis and of the aqueduct that supplies the city with water, near the head of which still stands the house of De la Salle. Opposite Lachine is the Mohawk Indian village of Caughnawaga, very picturesque until you get close to it. Those who have not come down the St. Lawrence by steamer can "shoot the rapids" by taking one of the small steamers at Lachine for Montreal.

The steamboat excursion down the St. Lawrence to Quebec will amply repay those who have leisure to take it, and the lover of grand scenery should sacrifice a good deal rather than miss the trip to Tadousac and up the Saguenay. A delightful excursion may also be made to the White mountains and Lake Memphremagog, and those for whom it is convenient may go right on to Portland, Me., Boston and New York, or to anywhere in the world, for that matter, where railroads or vessels carry passengers.

But a person might go much farther from the city and not see anything finer than the view from Mount Royal, the hill behind the city whence Jacques Cartier looked upon the land and saw that it was good. This has been appropriated for a public park, and the drive thither is something not to be missed. Neither should the little trip to the park on St. Helen's island be omitted, for it will give you the chance of inspecting the famous Montreal quays and the picturesque Bonsecours market and church, which are both near the wharf whence the steamer leaves for the park. You cannot avoid the Place d'Armes and the Church of Notre Dame if you want to, for they are very much in evidence in the heart of the city, and you will not even have to inquire about them, no matter how strange the town may be to you. By all means take the elevator up to the tower roof and get the view, which is worth the time and trouble.

Then there is the Seminary of St. Sulpice, which adjoins Notre Dame in the rear (and into the quaint courtyard of which you can look from the tower), the Hotel Dieu, the Gray Nuns' hospital, McGill university and any number of churches and religious, educational and benevolent institutions of all the creeds in Christendom and all schools of architecture, which you can spend your spare time in visiting. The Episcopal Christ Church cathedral and the Catholic Cathedral of St. Peter are both magnificent buildings, the latter a reduced but very effective copy of St. Peter's at Rome. All good Endeavorers will of course pay a visit to the Young Men's Christian association building at the corner of Craig and Radegonde streets if only to see the exterior of the pretty building which is the home of an association whose objects are so similar to their own, "For Christ and the church."

FRANCES J. BARNES.

It is not necessary to devote much space to setting forth the history and purposes of the Christian Endeavor society. Everybody knows how it originated 11 years ago in the pastor's study of the Williston church, in Portland, Me., and how it has gone on flourishing till now its membership amounts to a million and a half, and there are upward of 25,000 branches established throughout the civilized world, and some in localities not commonly considered to be civilized. "Father Endeavor Clark," as the founder and president has been caressingly nicknamed by some of his followers, planted better than he knew, no doubt, but nevertheless he must be gratified at the increase from his grain of mustard seed, which has already waxed into a tree of surprising greatness, not unlike that to which the kingdom of heaven is compared in the gospel, and in which there can as yet be discovered no sign of decay.

Nor, so long as the society is true to its original purposes, is there any need or likelihood of decay. Founded primarily for the "quickening of the Spirit" in the individual and working for the general good mainly through individual influences, no valid reason can be given why its phenomenal growth should not be more than doubled in the next decade if only the same care be taken to keep it within the lines originally set forth.

JOHN F. WILLOUGHBY.

London's Egg Supply.

London is supplied weekly with 15,000,000 eggs, which come principally from France, Italy, Austria and Russia. The French eggs are esteemed the most highly, and the Russian ones receive the least favor, which is natural in view of the fact that they take 21 days in transit.

A Subterranean River.

An underground river, strongly impregnated with iron, has been found recently near Charlotte, N. C. The stream is 45 feet below the surface, 700 feet wide and 6 feet deep.

FIRST WOMAN CORRESPONDENT.

Grace Greenwood Still Lives and Works In Washington.

In the Washington home of Grace Greenwood on Capitol hill the artistic taste of the authoress who has delighted the readers of two generations has been manifested in a way that is quite as characteristic of her genius as anything she ever wrote. The furnishings are a happy mingling of the old fashions and the new, and the east and west have both made contributions to its elegance and comfort. A marble bust of the authoress sculptured years ago is one of the notable adornments. It might be taken for an ideal head, it is so refined and beautiful.

GRACE GREENWOOD.

Grace Greenwood was the first woman newspaper correspondent in Washington. She began her journalistic labors there as long ago as 1850, and although she has published many volumes of poems, travels and stories her literary reputation rests chiefly on her journalistic work. Her descriptions of Pacific coast scenery when it was comparatively unknown were so vivid as to attract notice everywhere, and her correspondence from Europe during her nine years' residence abroad added greatly to her fame. In children's literature she is acknowledged to be without a rival, and her poetical work is of a superior order. She achieved fame as a lecturer at a time when no other woman could secure the respectful attention of an audience, and she did it without the least effort to imitate the masculine oratory of the day, trusting wholly to her feminine eloquence and wit.

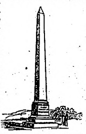
Of course it is well understood that "Grace Greenwood" is a pen name, and the real name of the authoress, Sara J. Lippincott, is almost as well known as that which has been signed to her literary productions for so many years, but there is a story about her pseudonym that is not generally known. Mrs. Lippincott's family name was Clarke, and at her birth her mother named her Grace Ingersoll, after a very dear friend, and she was called Grace until she was 3 years of age. The name did not please her father, however, and he one day took the child to church and had her baptized Sara Jane Stewart, in honor of two maiden ladies of prosaic names and lovable characteristics.

When she wished to adopt a pen name, her mother suggested "Grace Ingersoll" as appropriate, but her mother's friend was still alive and prominent in French social circles, and the young writer did not think it wise to adopt her name. The mother still clung to the name Grace, however, and finally made the suggestion that "Greenwood" be added to it, as the daughter was fond of riding about the forests. Thus originated the happy alliteration that has since become so famous. Although now in her seventieth year, Mrs. Lippincott still does excellent literary work.

A NOBLE MONOLITH.

The Severely Classic Memorial of Mary, the Mother of Washington.

The ladies of the National Mary Washington Memorial association have awarded the contract for the beautiful monument which they intend erecting over the grave of the mother of George Washington at Fredericksburg, Va. A model of the monument is now on exhibition in the Woman's building at the World's fair, where it was the first exhibit installed. The design is severely classic, simple and dignified, and will most appropriately commemorate the character of the woman in whose honor it is to be erected, the woman of whom Lafayette said, "In her only of all women lives the Roman matron of modern days."



THE MARY WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

The monument is to be a granite monolith 40 feet in height upon a base 10 feet high, making an extreme elevation of 50 feet. Upon the rising ground where the grave is situated this will be a very conspicuous object, and it cannot any too soon take the place of the mass of broken stone which is all that remains of the marble monument begun half a century ago, which is today rather a monument of blasted hope and fruitless endeavor than the memorial it was intended to be.

The ladies of the association have entire faith in the women of the country and believe that they will contribute what remains to be raised of the funds necessary to carry out the designs of the organization. These objects include, besides the erection of the monolith, the beautifying of the grounds about it and the provision of a fund for its permanent maintenance. Renewed interest has been shown in the project since the model has been placed on exhibition, and the sale of photographs and souvenirs at the fair has augmented the funds.

It is upon the life membership, however, that the association principally relies not only for the collection of money, but for the strengthening and perpetuation of its organization. Life membership can be secured by the payment of $25 or $85, as the donor chooses, the smaller sum entitling the member to a silver medal and the larger amount to one of gold. These medals, it is provided, are to descend as an inheritance in the direct female line, from mother to daughter or granddaughter, and so on, if possible, or failing there may be devised by will. A medal entitles the possessor to vote at all meetings of the association and to the privilege of aiding in the care, protection and maintenance for all time of the grave and monument of Mary, the mother of Washington.

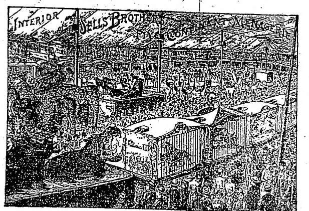
[illegible]

The Glorious Sun of the Amusement Firmament
Shedding its effulgence and Benign Influence Over the Whole Universe.

SELLS BROS.'
MONSTER MONOPOLY
OF ALL THAT IS WORTH SEEING IN THE TENTED FIELD.

Magnificent 3-ring Circus, Royal Roman Hippodrome, Huge Elevated Stages, Five Continent Menagerie, African Aquariam, Aurtralian Bird show, Arabian Caravan, Spectacular Pegeants, and Trans-Pacific Wild Beast Exhibits.

Will Exhibit at Crookston
Saturday, June 24th.



The Sempiternal Sponsors of the World's Greatest Sensations. Its promises are staple ans as current as gold.—Its visits are hailed with delight at home and abroad.—The highest standard of value the world over.—In America it stands pre-eminent and alone.—In Australia it was the theme of universal praise.—in Canada it stood on the very pinnacle of prominence.—In Mexico it astonished all beholders.—As permanently fixed as the stars.—As popular and welcome as knowledge itself.—As perfect as the universal laws of nature,—As true as the needle to the pole.—As firm as Gibralter in public favor;—

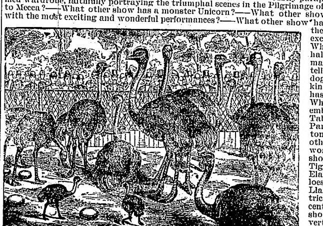
IT IS THE LARGEST TRAVELING SHOW ON EARTH.

It is so admitted by all disinterested people.—Other shows privately admit it, although for policy's sake they may publicly deny it.—It has more people in its employ. This is never denied.—It has the most noted performers. This is universally conceded.—It uses the most cars to transport it. All Railroad men know it,—It is as superior to other shows as the Columbian Exposition is to an ordinary pumpkin and quilt fair.—It has the finest parade ever seen on any public streets in the world.—It has the finest horses. All horsemen admit it.—It has the best music.—It has the handsomest women.—It has the bravest men.—It has the prettiest ponies.—Is has the grandest Spectacle.—It has the richest Pageants.—It has the only pair of—

MONSTER BEHEMOTHS

Spoken of in the Songs of Job, They are the rarest, costliest and most interesting animals ever captured.

What other show can approach it in character, in size, in merit, in management, in morality, in every worthy featues? What other show has a whole school of Sea Lions and Alaskan Seals, taught to perform feats so wonderful as to defy description. They play on banjos, mandolins, drums, cymbals and bells, fire off guns, drill like soldiers, play base ball, walk on tight rope, sing and are actually endowed with reason, and do everything but talk.—What other show has a flock of full grown Ostriches?—What other show has five giant Royal East Indian Tigers?—What other show has three rings, two stages, twelve tents, four hundred horses, one hundred ponies, one thousand men, women and children?—What other show has three hundred circus celebrities? What other show has one hundred beautiful Ladies in Amazonian marches, ballets, choruses and spectacular displays.—What other show has fifty Clowns appearing at one time?—What other show has Oriental Pageants resplendent with the most extravagant and costly paraphernalia, housings and gold-trimmed wardrobe, faithfully portraying the triumphal scenes in the Pilgrimage of the Mohammedans from Medina to Mecca?—What other show has a monster Unicorn?—What other show has two elevated stages, filled with the most exciting and wonderful performances?—What other show has one hundred acts in its Amphitheater?—What other show has 50 exciting Races in its Hippodrome?—What other show has a curiosity one-half so wonderful as Jo-Jo, the remarkable human Sky-terrier, an intelligent man with the head of a pet dog?—What other show has ten kinds of music?—What other show has a genuine Japanese Circus?—What other show has one hundred emblazoned Chariots, Floats and Tableaux in its Grand Free Street Parade?—What other show has tons of Ivoried Mammoths?—What other show has Zebras broken to work in harness?—What other show has a family of playful Baby Tigers?—What other show has Elands, Elks, Moose, Water Buffaloes, Midget Cattle, Hairless Horse, Llamas, Bison, Antelopes and Ostriches, led and loose in the magnificent Pageant Entre?—What other show has always exhibited every advertised feature?



SELLS BROTHERS Are mighty in being always fair to the public and generous to rivals. They are the creators of the show that bears their name, have personally managed it continuously for twenty-two years, and have the proud distinction of introducing more legitimate character and responsibility into the show business than was ever known before. They do not borrow the cast-off plumes of dead men to masquerade in. They do not travel under dead men's names.

SELLS BROTHERS

Are alive and will be at their respective posts to welcome their millions of friends who honor them with a visit this year. You can rely on seeing just what is promised. Others have copied our advertisements and stolen our title, but our show is too big, too great, too magnificent, to well known, to be successfully imitated. You will not regret your visit to Sells Brothers' Shows and its pleasant memories will endure for years.

$10,000 to be Given Away Free.

Who Can Make the Best Guess?

The pair of Hippopotami, which have formed the central figure in our Menagerie, are now on their farewell American tour, and Sells Brothers have decided to give away Ten Thousand Dollars to the ones who make the nearest guesses of their combined weight.

$5,000 to the one guessing nearest to their actual combined weight.

$3,000 to the one making the second best guess.

$2,000 to the one making the third best guess.

This offer is open to all patrons of Sells Brothers' Show during the World's Fair season. A box will be placed in front of the Hippopotami cage, and every visitor will be supplied with a card upon which the person making a guess writes his or her name and post-office address and the weight guessed. At the close of the season the prizes will be awarded. We promise to faithfully carry out this proposition.

SELLS BROS.

Street Parade Be in town early and secure good places where you can see the mightiest, Richest, Longest and most novel Ever seen in any city in the world. Two performances daily at usual prices, and although it is worth ten times as much it costs no more than to see an ordinary show.

Crookston, - Saturday, - June - 24th.

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday,
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c@20c
Eggs, per dozen	12½c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	65c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	54
1 Northern	52.
2 Northern	49.
3 Northern	41.
Rejected	28.

'Round Home.

R. A. Wilkinson was up from St. Paul this week.

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

L. K. Aaker returned from a trip to the twin cities on Tuesday morning.

O. H. Lucken left for Duluth last week. Said he expected to be away two months.

W. F. Bugg is so far recovered from his illness as to be able to be about the streets a little.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

The Crookston Belle—Kœppe's new cigar, is as fine as silk. Try it.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor:

Those rooms need papering. Let S. A. Wallace figure on the paper. Medical hall. [6tf]

Farmers, bring your dressed hogs during the summer months to the Crookston Packing House and we will tell you the truth how you can realize the most money out of them.

[4-11] ROBERT STANTON.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

If you are going to paint that house or barn this year it will pay you to get prices on paints of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. [6-tf]

Wm. Anglim left for St. Paul on Sunday evening to be in attendance on the international reciprocity convention which met on Monday morning.

T. H. Bjoin left for St. Paul on Saturday evening to be in time for the reciprocity convention to which he was a delegate.

J. O. Sargeant is building a house for John O'Brien on one of John's lots on Ash street, near the school house.

Miss Frankie Bearns and Miss Irene Harris went to St. Paul on Sunday evening for a week's visit with relatives and friends in the twin cities.

Tom Harris moved the old Zwickey barn to the rear of Fred Anderson's residence lot on Broadway, last Saturday.

Mrs. A. A. Miller has gone to Wisconsin for a visit with relatives and friends.

A communication from J. S. Nichols is crowded out this week. Will appear next.

C. P. Stine, representing the Minnesota Type Foundry, was in the city on Friday of last week.

Bert Bivins came down for his family on Friday evening returning on Saturday morning.

Adolph Rauch is somewhat of a bachelor in these days. His wife is away visiting relatives.

J. S. Pinney was up from St. Paul on Friday of last week, representing the American Press Association.

A. Braley will build a residence upon his lot on Ash street. Al. Flanders will superintend the construction.

R. B. Gates and wife went to Rochester last week. Mrs. Gates is a delegate to the Rebekah lodge convention.

Claude Clifford, who has been with J. S. Stadsvold for several months, is now engaged in Saake's jewelry store.

The Earl of Jersey passed through the city on Thursday evening of last week en route for Chicago to do the great fair.

J. E. O'Brien has purchased Ed. Barrett's interest in the brick block on Broadway and will put his hardware store in it as soon as possible.

Tollef Hoveland brought in two wolf scalps on Saturday securing the bounty on the same. Where wolves are plenty this is a lucrative business.

The outing season at Maple Lake has begun. F. L. Durand and S. Rosenthal were out this week and report having had a good time, and everything lovely.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Roberts died suddenly Thursday morning. At 5 o'clock in the morning it was apparently well, but in an hour it was dead. No cause can be assigned for the sudden death. The parents are heart-broked, as this, coupled with their financial losses, makes the blow doubly sad.

Miss Hattie Kaiser of Winona, passed through the city last Saturday on her way to Fosston, where she will visit for a couple of months with her brother, A. Kaiser of the Bank of Fosston.

On Thursday the sad news of the death of his mother was wired to John McLean, of South Bend, Wash., but he could not get here in time for the funeral so gave up coming at this time.

Pierce & Kelsey are fixing up their office in great shape—outside and in. Inside they are having a coat of plaster put on and outside new clapboards. They will be in grand style when they get it all completed—papered and painted.

J. E. Harris went over to Grand Forks on Thursday last with Miss Emma Truax, and Miss Truax never came back—but Mr. and Mrs. Harris did. Harris stole a march on the boys that time, as they never once suspected the true state of affairs for a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Roberts leave to-night, the former for Chicago, where he has secured a position in a dry doods house, and Mrs. Roberts will spend a month or two with her folks, who live near St. Paul, before going to Chicago. Mr. Roberts was twice burned out here, and his friends hope his luck will change, and that he will build up a fortune in the Windy City.

Mr. J. H. Davis, the press agent for Sells Bros.' circus, was interviewing the newspaper men last week in regard to advertising. During his conversation with the JOURNAL man, he remarked: "Do you know, people still ask me that old, antiquated chestnut, 'How much of your show are you going to bring here?' It's hard to say how or where the idea of shows dividing originated, for such a thing has never been known in the history of circuses. But there are people who think that a show that plays in the largest cities in the country would not play in a small town."

J. S. Stadsvold will soon remove his jewelry establishment to Durand's drug store, where he will occupy the portion formerly used by A. D. Morris.

DR. PRICE'S
Cream Baking Powder.
The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

A Brief Sketch of the Exercises at the High School Commencement Wednesday Evening.

The Attendance was Large, the Exercises Interesting, and the Audience Appreciative.

Commencement day, with its carefully prepared orations and well-learned essays and declamations has again come and gone in Crookston and seven young students forsake the schoolroom for the more serious duties of life. The class of '93 is composed of the following:

Miss Margaret Ford, Miss Olive G. Twedten, Miss Edith J. Lusian, Miss Edith Copeland, Minnie E. Crookshanks, Miss Clara Jorgenson and Mr. Albert Fontaine—the latter not taking any part in the exercises, as he was afraid of breaking down and was therefore excused. Lack of time forbids the JOURNAL this morning giving an extended write-up of the exercises, or a lengthy criticism of each graduate. Suffice it to say that the six girl graduates acquitted themselves creditably, doing honor to the school and credit to themselves.

The exercises were held in the Grand Opera house, the stage of which was banked on either side with a profusion of flowering plants.

After an invocation by Rev. L. W. Squier, a score of children from the intermediate grades, under the direction of Miss N. F. Laner, sang "Fairy Chorus," keeping good time and doing remarkably well. Next on the program was an essay by Miss Margaret Ford, who took for her subject "A Bunch of Keys." She symbolized the different traits and characteristics of life to represent each a key, and described the doors which each would open. Two solos were then sung by Miss Martha Munch, who has a sweet voice, which shows considerable training. The New-Lochinvar, a declamation by Miss Olive G. Twedten, was a humorous rendition of the elopement of a young couple on a bicycle. Then came a "Baby Song" by five little girls, Rose Roy, Mamie Gonyeu, Alice Carr, Nellie Remshardt and Tilda Ellingbo. Each had a doll baby in her arms, and the little tots created a great deal of applause by their clever singing. Miss Laner, who drilled and directed them, showed herself an adept in this line.

The next number was an essay, "A Famous American Poet," by Miss E. J. Lusian. She took Whittier for her poet, and gave a sketch of his life, with selections from his poems to show his line of thought at different periods of his life.

Miss Tillie Fortier then sang a solo in French, and received an encore, to which she bowed her acknowledgments.

"Is the High School Course of Study a Practical one for Girls," was the subject of an essay by Miss Edith Copeland, who argued that whatever occupation a girl engaged in—whether it be a professianal or business career, teaching in the schools or keeping house—the high school course would be a benefit. The second declamation on the program was the longest and was given by Miss Minnie E. Crookshanks. It was entitled: "The Revolt of Mother," and was an interesting recital of an episode in the life of a farmer's wife, who had lived for 40 years in a shabby little house, while her husband kept building barns and sheds innumerable. Finally when he had a new barn about completed, and was away from home one day, the wife moved all the household effects into the new barn and put the cows into the house, and this constituted the "Revolt of the Mother."

Miss Laner then rendered a couple of solos in her usual artistic manner, and to an encore sang a third number. Miss Laner's style of singing is always popular and well received. Miss Clara Jorgenson, who gave the closing essay, chose an appropriate subject, "After Graduating, What?" She held that the pupils, after leaving school, no matter what occupation they engaged in, should continue to improve their minds by useful, instructive and elevating reading. A brief but well-worded valedictory by Miss Olive Twedten brought the exercises to the presenting of the diplomas, which pleasant duty fell on Prof. Moore. The Professor took occasion to tell the audience a few interresting facts about the high school, the main one being that our high school ranked about seventh among over 100 high schools in the state. He also paid a tribute to Assistant Superintendent Chamberlain, who has closed his labors here. A trio "Good Night" by Misses Laner, Munch and Fortier brought the commencement exercises of '93 to a close.

Chas. E. Sawyer pronounces the World's Fair a big thing on wheels—he intends to do it more thoroughly later on.

The United States Government reports ROYAL a pure cream of tartar baking powder, highest of all in leavening strength.

Royal Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure.

All chemical tests to which I have submitted it have proved the Royal Baking Powder perfectly healthful, of uniformly excellent quality, and free from every deleterious substance

Wm McMurtrie E.M., Ph.D.

Late Chemist U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Only the pure acid of grapes is used in Royal.
Royal leaves no acid or alkali in the food.

A Sensation Near Fertile.

From reports received from Fertile, it seems probable there will be a tar and feather incident in that community ere long. It seems that a farmer living in the town of Rice suspected that his wife had been unduly intimate with a neighboring farmer for a year or two, and wishing to prove his suspicions he told his wife one day lately that he was going to Crookston and would be gone over night. Instead of going to Crookston, he remained in Fertile all day and about 12 o'clock at night returned home. Peering in one of the windows he discovered his wife and the aforesaid neighbor, and he at once concluded that his wife practiced the scriptural injunction: "Love thy neighbor as thyself." The angry husband burst in the door and demanded an explanation, whereupon the neighbor said he was there as a protector, and that he was a constable he had a legal right to be there. With this explanation the indignant husband—who appears to be a long-suffering individual—allowed him to decamp without caressing him with a club. The community is very much worked up over the affair, and don't propose to let the gay Lothario go as easily as the mild-mannered husband. This would-be protector of lonely females has a wife and family, but appears to covet his neighbor's wife.

Mrs. S. Rosenthal goes to Chicago and Laporte soon.

John McLean arrived from South Bend, Washington, yesterday.

M. A. Mossefin, of Mossefin & Lindell, went over to Fisher Wednesday on business.

Vic Fontaine went out on Wednesday morning as a brakeman on the St. Vincent branch.

A. W. Dawley has opened an ice cream parlor at his residence on Broadway, near the Carman bridge.

A. W. Foss came in from Fosston Saturday evening and left on Sunday evening for a few days visit to the twin cities.

Tuesday evening Prof. Moore gave a reception to the pupils of the high school, at his residence in Jerome's addition.

As yet there has been nothing done toward celebrating the Fourth of July in Crookston. If anything is to be done in this line 'tis time it were done.

The building on the Peake property on Main street, formerly occupied by M. Lefebvre, the shoemaker, is being moved by its owner to his lot on south Main street. As the building was vacant and Mr. Mossefin had to pay rent for the ground, hence the move.

The entertainments given in the Methodist church Monday and Tuesday evenings by Prof. Louis Favour were novel, instructive and entertaining. The professor lectures on chemical and electrical science, and has a stage full of apparatus to illustrate his lecture. He starts with the rudimentary principles of his subjects and follows them up to the present system of electricity as applied to power and light.

CLEVELAND SAYS IT

HE WILL CALL AN EXTRA SESSION IN SEPTEMBER.

The Financial Condition Such That Congressional Action Is Necessary. Continued Purchase of Silver Bullion Certain to Result in Disaster.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The president said, in reply to a direct question by a representative of the United Press, that he intended to call an extra session of congress not earlier than the 15th of September unless unexpected contingencies should necessitate an earlier meeting. The president further said:

"While there has been no mystery nor secrecy in regard to my intentions in this direction, I think it not amiss that the people should be informed authoritatively that the time is at hand when their representatives in congress will be called upon to deal with a financial condition which is the only menace to the country's Welfare and Prosperity.

It is well for the people to take up the subject for themselves and arrive at their own conclusion as to the merits of a financial policy which obliges us to purchase idle silver bullion with gold taken from our reserve. One does not need the eye of a financier to see that this gold thus subtracted from the government's stock is eagerly seized by other nations for the purpose of strengthening their credit at our expense. It does not need the art of statesmanship to detect the danger that awaits upon the continuance of this operation. Already the timidity of capital is painfully apparent and none of us can but the fact that the monetary situation will ultimately bring suffering to every humble home in our land. I think that between now and the meeting of congress much depends upon the action of those engaged in financial operations and business enterprises. Our vast national resources and credit are abundantly sufficient to justify them in the utmost faith and confidence. If instead of being frightened they are conservative, and if instead of gloomily anticipating immediate disaster they contribute their share of hope and steadiness they will perform patriotic duty and at the same time protect their own interest. The things just now needed are coolness and calmness in financial circles and study and reflection among our people."

View With Apprehension

Miss Phelps Weds a German.

BERLIN, June 2.—The marriage of Miss Marion Phelps, daughter of the Hon. William Walter Phelps, late minister of the United States at Berlin, to Dr. Franz Von Rottenburg, was solemnized during the morning, in a most private manner, at the residence of Mr. Phelps.

Trusts and Combinations

Are unpopular. But there is one form of trust against which no one has anything to say. That is the trust which the public reposes in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the best of it is the trust is fully justified by the merit of the medicine. For, remember, Hood's Sarsaparilla cures.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

OPERA HOUSE
Hardware Store,

T. H. BJOIN, Prop.

SHELF AND HEAVY—
Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,

SASH AND DOORS.

In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and
—THE PRICES LOW.

Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.

T. H. BJOIN.

RED RIVER VALLEY LOAN AND INVESTMENT COMPANY.

MONEY TO LOAN
ON REAL ESTATE.

FARMS AND LANDS
For Sale in nearly all the Towns of Polk
County.

—CITY LOTS—
In Crookston and Thief River Falls.
List your Lands and Lots with us and effect quick sales.
OFFICE IN OPERA HOUSE BLOCK.

A. G. GALLASCH, Pres.
J. W. WHEELER, Vice Pres.
W. H. MATHEWS, 1st Vice Pres.
A. F. GEORGE, Sec.
O. H. LUCKEN, Treasurer.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1893. NO. 9

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor	Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor	David M. Clough.
Secretary of State	F. P. Brown.
Attorney General	H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.	Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist	E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.	John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court	Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District	Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court	Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor	C. U. Webster
Treasurer	J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds	John Amundson
Attorney	A. R. Holston
Sheriff	Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate	C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools	A. A. Lommen
Surveyor	O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r.	W. H. Averill
Coroner	Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District	John E. Oppegaard
Second District	Anton Linden
Third District	M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District	C. P. Demers
Fifth District	A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Augus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetla
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forks
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Any style of pattern in wall paper and any price you want you will find at Medical hall. You can save money by allowing S. A. Wallace to quote you prices. [6tf]

Dr. M J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May, while in Des Moines en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhœa. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhœa Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliability, he procured a 25 cent bottle, two doses of which completly cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhœa. Every one should procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. For sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

If it's wall paper you want don't fail to see S. A. Wallace's large and complete stock. Prices the lowest on record, this spring. At Medical hall. [6-tf]

DISTRICT COURT.

The Doings in District Court During the Past Week Detailed in Full.

The Jury was Dismissed Last Saturday —Court Cases now Being Tried.

The Case of Young vs McKinnon Decided in Favor of the Defendant.

Commissioner Lindem's Suit Against the Town of Bygland Dismissed.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 7TH.

The jury in the Young vs McKinnon case brought in a verdict in favor of the defendant.

The case of Geo. H. Rodenbach vs Fontaine & Anglim, Ed. George counsel for plaintiff and Montague & Bucklen counsel for defendant was the next case on docket. This action was brought by the plaintiff to recover from the defendants $117, claimed to be the amount yet due him for service performed for the defendants in 1892 under their co-operative plan which defendants adopted for 1892. Plaintiff claims that when the time for settlement under this co-operative plan came the defendants compelled him as well as other employes, to throw off 20 per cent. of the extra pay he was to receive over and above his regular monthly salary by reason of this plan.

The plaintiff finding it necessary to amend complaint, the defendant desired time to answer, as the amended complaint materially changed the defense and a stay of 20 days was granted and the case continued.

The jury was then called in the case of Octave Beauchenne vs Alberic Chabot. Ed. George counsel for plaintiff and Martin O'Brien for defendant. The plaintiff sues for a thresh bill for threshing done on one Mr. Para's place, upon which grain Mr. Chabot had a chattel mortgage. The plaintiff claims that the defendant agreed to pay for the threshing of the grain on Mr. Para's place. The verdict of the jury was for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $100.

AFTERNOON.

The case of Joseph Connery vs J. S. LaDue and H. L. Gaylord, L. E. Gossman for plaintiff and E. M. Stanton for defendants, was then taken up. Is is claimed that one C. Burdick as constable levied on some wheat belonging to Joseph Connery to pay a debt contracted by his father a few years previous. The plaintiff sues the official bond of Burdick, LaDue and Gaylord to recover. The verdict was for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $219.88

The case of Ole Anderson vs Ole Asleson; Montague & Bucklen for plaintiff was taken up. No appearance on the part of the defendant. This was an action to recover on a promissory note given by Asleson to Anderson. The court directed a verdict for plaintiff for the amount of the note with interest to date which amounted to $333.18.

Anton Lindem vs town of Bygland was next called. Wm. Watts for plaintiff and E. M. Stanton for defendant. The county commissioners have issued an order for a new road between sections 21 and 22 which will run through the farm of the plaintiff and quite near to his buildings, probably necessitating his moving some of them.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Fred Kimbrick and James O'Brien, who were found guilty by a jury of 12 men of grand larceny in the second degree, were each sentenced to two years in the State prison at Stillwater.

FRIDAY MORNING.

The Lindem vs town of Bygland case was continued this morning, but there being an uncertainty as to where the proposed road would run past Mr. Lindem's buildings, the court ordered that the award and order for the new road be dismissed as defective and the case was dismissed.

The next case in order was Iver Peterson vs Hans C. Sampson and Sam Sorenson. H. Steenerson for plaintiff being sick and unable to attend court and the defendants insisted upon going to trial, the case was dismissed.

A jury was then called in the case of McCormick Harvesting Machine Co., vs Th. O. Grundness. The plaintiff through its agent, Hillstad & Blyberg, sold Grundness a mower for $50. Refusing to give his note at the usual time of settlement suit was brought. The verdict was for the plaintiff in the sum of $50.

A SMALL CASE BUT A BIG FIGHT.

Alfred Wade vs Joseph Miller. Defendant's cattle tresspassed on the plaintiff's wheat and damaged it, he claimed to the extent of $20. The defendant claimed $5. The verdict was for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $20. Ed. George for plaintiff and W. Watts for defendant.

The next number on the program was Kate Wilber vs N. J. Nimisgern, Fritz Gericke and Chas. E. Boughton; Montague & Bucklen for plaintiff and C. E. Boughton for defendant. This is an action brought to recover on some household goods belonging to the defendant and which were stored at Red Lake Falls attached and sold by Nimisgern.

Adjourned till 8:30 Saturday morning.

SATURDAY MORNING.

The Wilbur case was concluded. The plaintiff asked for $250 damages, and the jury, a sympathizing set of men, brought in a verdict for $25 more than was asked for in the pleadings. When his Honor read the verdict a smile crept over his usually stern countenance and the jury were ordered back to make the verdict to conform with the amount of damages asked for. Of course $250 is more than the property taken was worth. Damages were asked for—and received.

There being no other cases ready for trial this morning, court adjourned at 11:45 until 1 p. m.

AFTERNOON.

Felix Fournet vs Martin Swanson and John Norley was called, Montague & Bucklen for plaintiff and no defense. This is an action brought to reccover $334.93 and interest thereon due plaintiff on goods sold to defendants. A verdict was ordered for plaintiff in the sum of $364.20.

Stone & Columbus vs Samuel Bearns came next. Plaintiff sues for $31.20, for one plow, a set of eveners, and some oats sold the defendant. A verdict was rendered for the plaintiff for the amount, $31.20. Ed. George for plaintiff and P. J. Russell for defendant: 30 days stay of proceedings was granted the defendant.

In the case of State of Minnesota vs Jas. Lejamne, the witnesses were dismissed and the case continued till the next term.

Now they are getting to the short rows. The few jury cases on the calendar were moved but some of the attorneys were not ready and needed a day or two to prepare; so a compromise was necessary. They being small cases brought up from justice court some were continued and others will be court cases, by consent of the attorneys.

This settled the jury business and they were thanked by the court for the very efficient and expeditious manner in which they have performed their duty, allowed for a day's pay for Saturday night and discharged.

Court then adjourned until Monday 10 a. m.

During the 15 days the jury were here they sat in twenty-four civil cases, averaging two cases each day and not one disagreement.

The amount of fines turned into the treasury this term was near the $2000 mark, a goodly portion of which came from East Grand Forks.

Only one of the persons indicted by the grand jury and tried was cleared. One was found guilty in a lesser degree than charged. Credit for this good record may be attributed to the grand jury, the county attorney, the judge, the attorneys for the defendants—just as you like. Four young men were sent down to Stillwater, there to reside for the next two years. One was sent to the state reformatory for one year.

MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 12TH.

Court convened at 10 o'clock to try some court cases. Some of the cases were carried over for the adjourned term to be held in August and others were set for the week.

The first case tried was Stone & Taylor vs Euchanit Dupont. Appeal from justice court. Dupont claimed a lien on part of a crop raised by Godfrey Fontaine and upon which Stone & Taylor had a chattel mortgage. The amount involved was about 50 bushels of wheat. Defendant claimed this lien by reason of work he did in harvesting the grain in question. Decision for the plaintiff. Watts and Boughton attorneys.

AFTERNOON.

The case of John R. McKinnon vs Henry Steege was called. This action was brought by plaintiff to recover $100 for water connections put in for the defendant while a tenant in the McKinnon block. Defendant claimed that the connection was to have been with a 2½ inch pipe and the plaintiff put in 1½ inch pipe, which did not, as defendant claimed, give him power enough to run the sausage cutter, for which purpose it was put in. The defendant did not plead damages. The plaintiff moved for judgment on the pleadings with interest on the amount from Nov. 20th, 1890, which was granted by the court.

The case of J. P. Johnson & Co., vs John Dahle and B. T. Johnson was next called. Appeal from justice court. This was an action on a note for $40. Judgment of the lower court was dismissed and defendant allowed $5 for costs.

The Minnesota Farmers's Live Stock Association vs Chas. Lofston, W. Watts for plaintiff and H. Steenerson for defendant was an appeal by the defendant from justice court. This was a suit on insurance policies, for assessments, for about $70. The judgment of the lower court was reversed.

Eva Johnson, who was indicted for keeping a house of ill fame in our city came forward and plead guilty of keeping a disorderly house and paid her fine of $100.

TUESDAY MORNING.

One day with the mercury tickling the neck of the thermometer at the 105 notch seemed to be enough to take the stamina out of everybody, lawyers not excepted, so when court convened this morning a bare quorum were present. The business set for the day was begun, regardless of the small attendance.

The case of Inge Skjegsbad vs Carl F. Hasselton, was first taken up. It was then stipulated that the demurrer be stricken out on payment of $5 to W. Watt,s attorney for plaintiff, within thirty days and the case continued to the next general term.

The case of Julia Fricker vs Christian P. Fricker, a suit for divorce, was dismissed. The case of J. W. Wheeler, assignee of Sylvester & Finseth, vs E. M. Walsh et al was continued till the August adjourned term.

In the case of Dr. A. Nelson vs Town of Reis. The judgment of the lower court was reversed without the instruction of the town board.

In the case William Kelly vs C. C. Christinson and Hans Larson the parties are to stipulate evidence and submit briefs to the court before August 1st.

The case of Jos. Kelso vs Carssen Stuhr was stipulated to be tried at the August adjourned term.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Court convened at Chambers at 10 a. m.

The case of Crookston Improvement Co., vs Annie M. Marshall et al. was continued till the August term.

The case of Michael Brouillette vs Gonyea & Gonyea; P. G. Falardeau for plaintiff and Martin O'Brien for defendant, was next taken up this morning. This is an action brought by plaintiff to recover $40.50 for boarding men and teams for defendant while defendant was digging a a well for plaintiff. Defendants claim nothing was said about board and that it was customary to get their board wherever working for a farmer at digging a well. The case will be concluded this afternoon.

AFTERNOON.

The Brouillette-Gonyea case was concluded. The briefs are to be submitted to the court. Court then adjourned to Aug. 7th at 10 a. m.

THE JUDGE WILL RUSTICATE.

The Judge and Mrs. Ives leave this Thursday evening for Chicago, and from there the judge will go to Wisconsin and Michigan to spend a few weeks in the woods and the streams fishing. As the judge is a pretty good fisherman we expect some good fish—(stories) when he returns. We wish him a pleasant journey.

Movements of the Teachers.

The principal of the high school, Mr. C. J. Chamberlain and seven of the public school teachers closed their labors here with the end of the school year, June 2nd. Mr. Chamberlain left last Thursday for Oberlin, Ohio, where he will visit for a time, and then take a post graduate course in biblogy, in the University of Chicago. His place here will be supplied by Mr. C. E. Corwin, a graduate of Marietta, Ohio college, and a student of Ann Arbor.

The names of the public school teachers who have resigned are Misses Laner, McLeod, Cooper, Alton, Loomis, Ridge and Mrs. Marin.

The names of the new teachers engaged to supply the places of those resigned are Miss Myrtle Williams, principal of the Malvern, Ohio, high school; Miss Maggie Brown of this city; Miss Jennie Walsh, of Fargo, a graduate of Moorhead Normal school; Miss Mary E. Noell, Miss Minnie Tisdel and Miss Lizzie Sullivan graduate of the St. Cloud Normal school, and Miss Minnie Crookshanks, one of the graduates at the recent high school commencement. Miss Crookshanks, has taught four or five years in the county and also a short time in our city schools.

Professor and Mrs. Moore expect to leave about the first of next week for Chicago and after seeing the fair will take a trip through Canada, visiting Toronto and other points.

As to the intentions of the high school graduates, Miss Twedten will teach a school about two miles from the city; Miss Crookshanks is already teaching a short term in the country; Miss Jorgenson will remain at home this summer; Miss Lusian will teach a country school next fall; Miss Copeland goes to Seattle about the first of July, and Miss Ford will go to Chicago to live with a sister for a time.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 10th, 1893.

Mahle, K. G.	Moen, B. O.
Stuart, W. H.	Winge, James L.
White, Joe

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

Wm. B. Dawley, P. M.

Bids for City Printing.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston.

The City Council of the City of Crookston will receive sealed proposals to do the printing and publishing of all ordinances, resolutions, proceedings and other matter required to be published by the city council of the City of Crookston for the ensuing year, all matter to be measured on a basis of solid nonpariel. Said bids to be opened at a regular meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening July 11th, 1893. Bids to be accompanied by bonds in the sum of $500. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

[9-12] E. C. Carruth,
[SEAL] City Clerk.

Estray.

Came on my premises on section 12, Andover, on or about June 5th 1893, one black hog, about six months old. The owner is hereby notified to prove property, pay charges and take the whole hog or none.

[9-11] T. H. Bjoin.

During This Month.

Mrs I. U. Jennings will be prepared to give greater bargains than ever—to reduce stock. The ladies will do well to call. Everything goes at greatly reduced prices. [9-10]

Picnic June 16th.

The Womans Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans will give a picnic at Stone's grove between the N. P. depot and the river. Boating, croquet, swings, ice cream, strawberries and music will be the order of the day. The picnic will be held afternoon and evening on Friday, June 16th. Everybody is invited to attend.

Did you observe W. O. Wilson's cyclone cellar?

Our reporter dropped in at the fashionable millinery parlors of Miss Veronneau on Second street on Tuesday and found that lady as busy as a bee attending to the wants of her customers. She informed us that business is rushing and that for the balance of this month she will offer special bargains—selling all goods at greatly reduced prices. The ladies should make a note of this and call and examine her goods and get prices.

A party of little folks enjoyed a picnic in Darkow's grove on Tuesday.

M. Mossefin has moved his tailor shop from the Peake lot to his own lot south of the Scandinavian hotel.

Wheat seems to be advancing somewhat. The price for a week or so has been abnormal.

A. J. & A. McKinnon have built an elegant three-seated spring wagon for S. L. Collins' livery.

Frank Arnold and wife arrived last week for a visit with the old folks.

D. D. Horton, the Maple Bay merchant, was in the city Tuesday.

Lou Cross and C. A. Tellar came down from Angus on Monday.

Al Vine and George Richings have formed a partnership and purchased the Reckitt block meat market—Vine and Hoch's old stand.

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Sundet Bros. have been fixing up their place—papering, re-painting etc. Austin Bros. old place on Main street.

A Narrow Escape for the Minister.

Henry Irving tells an interesting story in which Miss Terry and a Chinese minister figure. The play was "Hamlet" and Ophelia (Miss Terry) was in the midst of her mad scene. Irving sat on a little wooden seat which had been cut into the proscenium wall, and which afforded an excellent view of the stage from behind. Beside the great actor sat the Chinese minister, who had come behind the scenes to pay his respects.

"Suddenly I missed my Celestial friend," said Irving. "Going in search of him I found him just walking onto the stage. The acting of Miss Terry had so affected him that he was burning to congratulate her on the spot. I was just in the nick of time to hold him back; another half instant and he would have made 'his first appearance.'"—Exchange.

Bound to See Her.

My grandmother, Lady Elizabeth Tollemache, had a house in London, and another Lady Elizabeth lived in the next house, which was exactly like it. My father calling accidentally at the wrong door, asked the servant, "Is Lady Elizabeth at home?"

"Her ladyship receives nobody, sir. She is still in bed."

"Stuff and nonsense! She is my mother."

And rushing past the astonished footman, he ran up stairs to what he supposed to be his mother's bedroom.—

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application to-wit: William O. Wilson, in the two story brick building known as McKinnon block, on first floor of part of said block, situated on part of lots 7 and 8, block 6, of Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookson—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing July 1st, 1893, and terminating July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: A. Brosseau, in the frame building on lot 4, block 12, Fletcher & Loring's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D, 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, city of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application respectfully, to-wit: J. J. Molstad on the lower floor of the two-story frame building situated on lot six of block five of Fletcher and Houston's addition to the city of Crookston in said county.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, in city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL) E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk,

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Medard Mercil, in the south twenty-five feet of the brick building situate on lots 17 and 18, block 8, Flecther & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn., on the first floor of said building known as Fortier Block.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 9th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Edward Gates, on first floor of the two story frame building, No. 19, on the north side of Second street, in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness may hand and seal of said city, this 13th day of June A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-10] City Clerk.

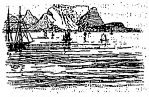
BY STEAM TO AFRICA.

A REGULAR LINE TO THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

How Our Commerce With South Africa Has Grown From Small Beginnings—Development of the Most Interesting Portion of the Dark Continent.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

Truly this is the age of rapid evolution. Five years ago when I went to South Africa it was necessary to take a sailing ship from New York, and 81 days were consumed in the passage to Durban. The only steam route available to the traveler was by way of England, an expensive and roundabout journey. Now the tourist may embark at New York on a comfortable steamer and proceed directly to Cape Town, reaching that picturesque port in about 20 days and Natal five or six days later.



CAPE TOWN AND TABLE MOUNTAIN.

But this condition of affairs is not of particular interest to tourists, as South Africa is out of the itinerary of the globe trotters. The ships of the American and African Steamship line are designed especially for freight traffic, and the sailing of the first steamer of the line, the Worcester, from New York a short time ago marks an epoch in the commercial relations of North America and South Africa. These relations may be said to have begun practically about 10 years ago, when three or four cargoes a year were sent in sailing ships from New York to Cape Town and Port Elizabeth.

Although a majority of the whites of South Africa are natives of England, they have an exalted opinion of Yankee ingenuity and are less suspicious of American products than Englishmen usually are. They are progressive and free from prejudice and are ever ready to adopt new ideas and improved machinery. When I visited the colonies, I found that American agricultural implements were used almost exclusively, and that American mining machinery was in great demand at the goldfields. Canned meats from Chicago were imported in large quantities, and paraffin from Philadelphia was at a premium. American pine, too, was largely used, and hardware, tobacco and Yankee notions made up the miscellaneous cargoes of the sailing craft that found their way from American to South African harbors.

In 1888 American wares were in great demand and hard to get, and it seemed then that lack of enterprise would deprive our merchants of what will eventually develop into one of the finest markets in the world. Nevertheless our commerce has grown steadily until, in 1892 a leading New York firm of shipping agents exported 52,000 tons to South African ports. This amount of business seemed to warrant steam transportation, and hereafter stanch steamers of from 3,000 to 4,000 tons will leave New York regularly each month for Cape Town, proceeding thence up the east coast to Mossel bay, Port Elizabeth, East London, Durban (sometimes called Port Natal) and occasionally to Delagoa bay, Mauritius and Zanzibar. The principal exports of South Africa are wool and hides, diamonds, gold and ostrich feathers, and as there is no market in the United States for these products the steamers will proceed to the East Indies for return cargoes.

Those readers who have derived their impressions of Africa from Du Chaillu's tales of adventure in the jungle and Stanley's stories of explorations in the dense forests of the Congo country and the malarial swamps of the west coast are prone to accept Stanley's term "darkest Africa" as a proper designation of the entire continent. It may interest these readers to learn that the vast territory south of the Zambesi river embraces one of the richest and most beautiful regions on the globe—a land of perpetual sunshine, of lofty mountains and verdant valleys, of mighty rivers and vast plains, with a soil rich in mineral wealth and unexampled fertility, a land of romance and of mystery, replete in relics of a lost civilization and supporting the teeming tribes of a superior race of black men, a race whose origin is lost in the mists of antiquity. This region should be known as brightest Africa, and the manner in which England has seized upon the most desirable territory there shows that she appreciates its value.

MAP OF SOUTH AFRICA.

The principal European settlements in South Africa are in the Cape Colony and Natal, both English dependencies. The Boer republics, Orange Free State and the Transvaal, are prosperous in a pastoral way, but progress is slow, and immigration is discouraged. In the Transvaal, however, English influence has grown rapidly since the discovery of gold, and it will not be surprising if the crown shall sooner or later find some pretext for annexing the country. The newly acquired possessions of the British South African company in Mashonaland are still in the first stages of development, and the Portuguese territory beyond Natal and Zululand is in its primitive state.

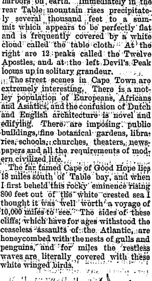
The Cape Colony has an estimated area of 221,311 square miles, of which only about 900 square miles are under cultivation. In 1891 the colony had a population of 1,524,197, of which no less than 75 per cent belong to the native and colored classes. Cape Town has a population of 51,083, Port Elizabeth has 23,052, East London, 6,858, and Kimberley (the seat of the diamond mines), 28,643. Natal has 20,063 square miles. In 1891 the population was 543,913, of which 46,788 were whites, 41,142 Hindoos and 455,983 natives. The principal towns of Natal are Durban and Pietermaritzburg. The former has a population of 9,000 Europeans, and the latter has 9,251. The Hindoos of Natal have been imported from India by the government to work the sugar and coffee plantations. Cape Colony has about 14,000 Malays, who were brought from Batavia many years ago. They are strikingly different in dress, customs and habits from the rest of the inhabitants and form a very picturesque element of the population.

Alone among the savages of the world the great Zulu Kaffir race refuses to retreat before the advances of civilization. They are of a higher type than the American Indians or Australian aborigines and by some have been reckoned superior to the Hindoo and Malay races. The Kaffirs were once very warlike, but under the beneficent influences of white ascendancy they have settled down to the pursuits of peace and are multiplying to an alarming extent. It is said that the Kaffir population from the Limpopo to the sea has trebled itself by natural increase alone within 50 years.

Cape Town is one of the most picturesque places in the world and is unique in its environments. It is hemmed in on three sides by lofty mountains and fronts on Table bay, one of the finest harbors on earth. Immediately in the rear Table mountain rises precipitately several thousand feet to a summit which appears to be perfectly flat and is frequently covered by a white cloud called the table cloth. At the right are 12 peaks called the Twelve Apostles, and at the left Devil's Peak looms up in solitary grandeur.

The street scenes in Cape Town are extremely interesting. There is a motley population of Europeans, Africans and Asiatics, and the confusion of Dutch and English architecture is novel and edifying. There are imposing public buildings, fine botanical gardens, libraries, schools, churches, theaters, newspapers and all the requirements of modern civilized life.

The far famed Cape of Good Hope lies 18 miles south of Table bay, and when I first beheld this rocky eminence rising 800 feet out of the white crested sea I thought it was well worth a voyage of 10,000 miles to see. The sides of these cliffs, which have for ages withstood the ceaseless assaults of the Atlantic, are honeycombed with the nests of gulls and penguins, and for miles the restless waves are literally covered with these white winged birds.



COOLY MARKET WOMAN, CAPE TOWN.

Second in importance as a seaport in South Africa is Port Elizabeth, on the east coast, about 500 miles from Cape Town. This is the nearest port to the diamond fields at Kimberley, and to this and similar advantages of location Port Elizabeth owes its importance. It is situated on Algoa bay, which is little better than an open roadstead and affords most treacherous anchorage during the southeast gales, which frequently prevail on this coast. On Sept. 1, 1888, I saw 11 sailing ships blown ashore and wrecked in Algoa bay, while four steamers rode out the storm. The entire population assembled on the beach, but they could do nothing to save the doomed vessels.

East London is the only port between Port Elizabeth and Durban, a distance of about 400 miles. The steamers sail very close to the wild but picturesque shores of Kaffraria. The water here is very deep, but the coast is strewn with wrecks. Here in the last century occurred the celebrated wreck of the Grosvenor, and only a few weeks ago a steamer ran ashore near Durban, and the passengers and mails were landed with difficulty.

Durban is one of the prettiest towns in South Africa and is so reported by no less an authority than Mr. Rider Haggard, who lived there for several years. His favorite hero, Allan Quatermain, is represented as having fitted out at Durban for many of his famous hunting expeditions. Natal (of which Durban is the only seaport) has a most salubrious climate and is one of the most prosperous of South African colonies.

For centuries South Africa has lain dormant, first under the blighting influence of Portuguese possession; second under the dwarfing domination of the Boers. While America has prospered prodigiously in the possession of unlimited commercial opportunities, South Africa has been hampered by the lack of navigable rivers and good harbors. But at last she feels the quickening pulse of nineteenth century enterprise, and all these disadvantages will be overcome. She has progressed rapidly during the past 20 years and now stands on the threshold of a wonderful material development. Of course our merchants will not be slow to perceive the opportunities in this new field, and we shall soon have many avenues of quick communication with our southern neighbor. But let it be remembered that to the Worcester belongs the honor of being the pioneer in regular commercial intercourse by steam between the United States and brightest Africa.

[illegible] C. HYATT.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

THE HAPPY FACULTY OF LOOKING ON THE BEST SIDE OF LIFE.

Too Many People Allow Themselves to Be Weighed Down by the Daily Cares of Life That Must Be Met and Fail to See the Pleasant Things Near By.

Everything has at least a good side to it, and sooner or later some one will be able to see it. It is a happy fortune to be able easily to see what is good, though I do not believe in shutting our eyes to the evil. I have a friend who never sees the evil until it overwhelms her. She considers all things to be well enough at least and so has no foresight to ward off disaster. This is certainly a curious disposition and not a good one for those who have the care of families. What I do mean is that it is a capital thing to see the good that really is in all things.

I said to my neighbor, who is deaf in one ear, "It is a pity, my dear; is there no remedy?" "I don't think there is," she said, "but then there is a great blessing in it, for I have learned to sleep with my good ear to the pillow, and so no noise can disturb me." It was a curious illustration of how one may use a deprivation and make it a real advantage. It is a great art to find out all the good there is in life. Emerson says, "Do not dilate on your private wrongs and personal ills." But no one ever becomes tedious by dilating on her privileges and joys. The longer I live the more I find that most of our troubles are imaginary.

There are half a dozen things we have to learn, and many never do learn them. One of these is that we have will power to control a vast deal that we sit down underneath. Life has no blessing greater than its antagonisms. Differ as we may from professional faith curists, they have a great truth in store, and I wish they may have vast influence in reconstructing sentiment. There is no need of being an extremist in belief, yet it is a fact that we have cultivated a kind of moral cowardice about our diseases. I believe they are right that we are vastly more powerful than we have supposed ourselves to be.

But I am a broader believer than they, for I am confident we cannot only cry "down and out" to half our physical ails, but to a large proportion of our troubles and what we call our bothers. And that is just the meaning of life—it is a series of defeats or of victories over small affairs. The habit of making much of petty evils indicates defeat. Many a woman is thoroughly whipped by her ordinary household duties, as many a man is whipped out by weeds and thistles. She never can face a day with a smile and a strong will. She does her duty as a task and never as a joy. This hefts our duties down; the opposite way lightens them.

Life everywhere has a better side to it than we are always willing to confess or able often to see. Our choicest gifts and blessings lie just the other side of our saddest moments. It seems like mountain climbing to get a view of a sunrise, but we are willing to toil hard to get to the mountain top. It pays not only at the top, but all the way up. I have a delicious fern bordered glen that every summer I visit and do not mind the bushes that tear nor the extremely hard climbing to get in and to get out. Ah! the lovely brook at the bottom, and the pebbly island in that brook, and the old moss covered beech logs, and the banks of "creeping hemlock." It pays. Every step pays. I come back full of rest, not of weariness, of joys that sparkle and run like the brook itself. Last summer I took with me an enthusiastic lover of nature into my pet ravine, and she being a good scientist found in an hour's search five sorts of salamanders.

If we live widely and think nobly and study what the world is, we find that the cheapest and roughest conceals grand facts that make character and joy for us. The world is a ready spread feast for our senses and intellect. But there are races that will not eat eggs, and there are others that will not use milk. So there is a possibility of not seeing the best things about us and hearing the finest harmonies. The best question one can ask of herself is: Are you getting the best of the world about you? I have heard the narrowest kind of men preaching on the parable of the prodigal son, not knowing that they were themselves feeding on husks—the poorest husks of thought and manhood.

I suppose, in fact, there is a good side to everything, only I am not able to see it on the occasion. The best effect of studying history is to teach us to look back at events some time after their occurrence, when we are almost surely struck by the real advantage that comes out of what at the time seemed totally evil. There is no question but that American character has been made stronger by the great fight with and victory over slavery. There is just as much good accumulating from the fact that intemperance is so hard an evil to eradicate. Harriet Martineau says, "The greatest advantage of long life—at least to those who know how and wherefore to live—is the opportunity which it gives of seeing moral experiments worked out, of being present at the fruiting of social causes and of thus gaining a kind of wisdom which in ordinary cases seems reserved for a future life." This is fairly what any one may reap from life, that apparent evil is or may be made to become good.—Mary E. Spencer in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

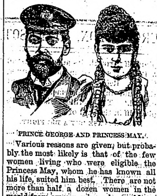
Ninety-two Years In a Workhouse.

The death has been reported to the Sheppey board of guardians of Eliza Humphries, who has been an inmate of Sheppey Union workhouse, Sheerness, for 92 years. The deceased was born in the establishment and remained chargeable until her death, a somewhat weak intellect debarring her from earning her own living. She was affectionately known as the "mother" of the house. Frequently she would ask the visiting guardians whether her long residence had not entitled her to a pension.—Exchange.

THE ROYAL BETROTHAL.

All England Interested In the Approaching Marriage of George and May.

Just why Prince George of Wales, the heir presumptive to the British throne, should have been engaged to marry the fiancee of his deceased brother is something that plebeian mortals can scarcely hope ever to know.



PRINCE GEORGE AND PRINCESS MAY.

Various reasons are given, but probably the most likely is that of the few women living who were eligible the Princess May, whom he has known all his life, suited him best. There are not more than half a dozen women in the world from among whom he could select a wife, and if he broke over the traces and made an undesirable alliance the marriage would be void without the consent of his grandmother, the queen.

The prince is in his twenty-eighth year and is a favorite with the British people, who have nicknamed him "Jolly Prince George." He has always been a model young man, so far as appearances go at least, and has been careful to make no friendships that might embarrass him in the future.

His childhood was spent at Sandringham, and at 15 he and his brother entered the navy as cadets. Two years later he began a three years' cruise around the world on the Bacchante. He is still connected with the navy and devotes considerable time to his duties in connection therewith.

In appearance the prince resembles his father, and there is also a strong resemblance between him and his future wife. They are "second cousins, once removed," as the English put it, so the likeness is not strange. The princess is the daughter of the Duchess of Teck, who was Princess Mary of Cambridge, a favorite cousin of the queen.

Her majesty was present when the duchess was married in 1866 and threw a satin slipper after the bride. Apartments in Kensington palace were assigned the ducal couple, and their four children, of whom Princess May is the eldest and the only daughter, were all born there.

With intervals devoted to travel abroad, the Princess May spent the first 16 years of her life at Kensington, a gloomy old pile resembling a hospital. Then the family removed to the historic White Lodge at Richmond, where they still reside. Here the princess was the constant companion of her brothers in their studies and sports, and it is no doubt largely due to this fact that she is such a clever horsewoman and knows how to handle an oar. She is clever in other respects also, speaking three languages fluently and playing well on the piano.

She dresses handsomely, her toilets at the queen's drawing rooms being always a subject of favorable comment in the press. The Princess of Wales is credited with having designed the bridal dress for her future daughter-in-law, and English women can hardly wait for the eventful July 6, the wedding day, so anxious are they to learn what the dress is like.

DOMESTIC ARTS.

Good Housekeeping to Be Taught at Armour Institute In Chicago.

One of many educational functions included in the work of the Armour institute in Chicago is that to be covered by what is called the department of domestic arts. The special object of this department is to spread abroad a knowledge of the art of good housekeeping, or perhaps it would be better to say the many arts involved in good housekeeping, for, as the curriculum of the department would prove, if every woman did not know it for herself, it takes a knowledge of many things to make a home all that it should be, and the woman who knows the most succeeds the best.

MRS. MARY H. HULL.

Here, for instance, cooking, washing and mending are on the programme, while plain sewing, dressmaking and embroidery have each a class devoted to them. Home decoration will not be neglected, and home nursing and physical culture will be part of the regular course, and Mrs. Mary H. Hull, the director of the department, will deliver lectures on the general topic of "Housekeeping" that are expected to summarize the advantages of the different branches.

There is a model kitchen and a dining room, and the different classrooms are fitted with all sorts of conveniences to facilitate their work. A library of several thousand volumes has been provided for the use of students, and a number of household periodicals are kept on file for their benefit. Besides all this, there will be lectures on special subjects during the year by such well known women as Mrs. Candace Wheeler, Mary Frances Steele and Ellen M. Richards.

The object of the school is not only to train women for household duties in their families, but also to train skilled workers who expect to make a livelihood by household labor, and for these an employment agency will be established as soon as there is any need of it, the school giving the pupil the benefit of its indorsement of her efficiency.

There are to be special courses in fancy cooking, too, and to these men will be admitted. In fact, some are already enrolled. These courses will embrace chafing dish and camp cooking and the preparation of dishes for invalids.

JAMES R. WAITE,
Manager of Waite's Celebrated Comedy Co., Premium Band and Orchestra.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

You will remember the condition I was in five years ago, when I was afflicted with a combination of diseases, and thought there was NO HELP FOR ME. I tried all kinds of medicines, and scores of eminent physicians. My nerves were prostrated, producing dizziness, heart trouble and all the ills that make life miserable. I commenced to take DR. MILES' NERVINE and in three months I WAS PERFECTLY CURED. In my travels each year, when I see the thousands of physical wrecks, suffering from nervous prostration, taking prescriptions from local physicians who have no knowledge of their case, and whose death is certain, I feel like going to them and saying, "GET DR. MILES' NERVINE AND BE CURED." In my profession, where there are so many sufferers from overwork, mental prostration and nervous exhaustion, brought on by the character of the business engaged in, I would recommend "MILES' NERVINE" as a sure cure for all suffering from these causes. JAMES R. WAITE.

HAS CURED THOUSANDS

SOLD ON A POSITIVE GUARANTEE.

TRY DR. MILES' PILLS, 50 DOSES 25 CTS.

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for Cook's Cotton Root Compound, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps. Address Pond Lily Company, No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. J. Durand and druggists everywhere

AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY. WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS
Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year..........$5 00
6 months..........2 50
1 month..........45
Daily only, one year..........3 00
4 months..........1 00
Sunday, one year..........2 00
Weekly Press, one year..........1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.
Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success. Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main Street. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss. City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the city council of said City of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons, and at the following place, as stated in said application to-wit: C. C. Hoch and F. Montague, on the first floor of the front part of the two story frame building situated on lot 9, block 1, original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said applications will be heard and determined by said city council of the City of Crookston, at the city hall in said City of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 5th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: T. O. Sundet and O. O. Sundet, on the whole ground floor of the two-story frame building, situated on lot 2, block 6, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city, this 5th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, city of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st 1894, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application respectively, to-wit: Henry Burkhardt in the two-story frame building situate on lot 12, block 15, original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the City of Crookston, in city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk County, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock P. M., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 10th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of July, 1893, and terminating on the 1st day of July, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Elie Asselin, on the first floor of the southermost store building in that certain brick block, known as the "Vine Block," and now being constructed on the westerly side of Broadway, in block 6, of Fletcher & Houston's addition to said city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Ernest Rolsch, in the one-story frame building situate on the west twenty-five (25) feet of lots 21, 22, 23 and 24, block 16, in original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Hiren & Johnson, in the two-story frame building on lot nine, block three, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 29th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Peter Stull and John Waterstadt, in the two-story frame building, on first floor, situate on lot 3, block 4, in Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of Jue, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Ole G. Iverson deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Gulbrand Iverson, administrator, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon this estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described;

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said Ole G. Iverson deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate or any part thereof.

It is, therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday, the 26th day of June, A. D., 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in the City of Crookston in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Gulbrand Iverson to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessment and liens, and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 31st day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
[8-10] Judge of Probate.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.
Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

A RECONCILIATION.

I do not know
  If I were wrong or you;
It grieves me so
  To think I gave you pain
That I my gift must rue
  And take it back again.

I do not know
  If you or I were right;
Your tears have caused me woe,
  And if you weep again
I shall grow more contrite
  And covet all your pain.

I do not know
  Nor care which one was right,
For when your dear eyes flow
  I cannot speak for pain,
And tear mists blind my sight
  Until you smile again.

So let it go—
  We may have both been wrong,
Or partly so,
  But sin is purged by pain,
And royal souls are strong
  To wound and heal again.

—Ella Dietz Clymer in Harper's Bazar.

The Custom of Collecting "Peter Pence."

The custom of collecting "Peter pence," or "Rome scot," as it is sometimes called, is of ancient origin. If the custom is fairly understood by the outside world, it consists of setting aside one day out of each year for taking up a collection of money (not necessarily pennies) to be sent to the pope at Rome, who is supposed to use it in defraying the expense of the holy see. Chambers' "Book of Days" and Brand's "Popular Antiquities" neither mention the custom, but I have succeeded in tracing it back to the twelfth century for a certainty. One authority even goes so far as to ascribe its origin to Ina, king of the west Saxons, who went to Rome in the year 721 and founded a hospital for English pilgrims to the sacred city, the expenses to be defrayed by "each mayle adult" giving one "small copper coyne each yeare."

This mighty collection of pennies was forwarded direct to the pope. Others claim that the honor of originating the Peter pence scheme is due to Ethelwulf. At a very early date (the most laborious research fails to locate these things as far as the year, month and day are concerned) the copper penny clause was changed until the tribute was understood to consist of a "silver penny" to be contributed by every family who possessed land or cattle of a yearly value of 30 pence. This probably means upon which a yearly tax of 30 pence was levied.—St. Louis Republic.

Fifty cents is a small doctor bill but that is all it will cost you to cure any ordinary case of rheumatism if you use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. The first application will quiet the pain. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

A Snap.

The Red River Valley Loan and Investment Company has for sale a half section of land situated two miles from the city limits, good buildings, artesian well, 80 acres fenced, land all broken except about 10 acres in grove. Been used as a stock farm and admirably adapted for that purpose, as being close to the city it is available as a milk and dairy farm. Improvements upon the farm alone cost over $4,000 and it can be had for $6,400. A cash payment of $2,000 will secure the place and purchaser can have a reasonable time on the balance, or for cash a liberal discount will be made. Owner desires to invest his means in other business. Inquire of August George, opera house block. [1-tf]

If you are looking for a snap in farms call and look over that bargain that the Red River Land and investment Company offers in another column. A good improved farm all ready for business at about the bare cost of improvements is a snap not to picked up every day. For full particulars call on or address August George, Opera house block.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy
Is famous as a
Cure for severe colds.
Famous as a
Preventive of pneumonia.
Famous as a
Preventive and cure for croup
Famous for the relief it affords in
Case of Whooping cough.
Famous as a safe and pleasant
Medicine for children.
Try it. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Fits.

All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $32.55, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

UNCLE SAM'S BIG SHOW.

The Government Building Very Popular at Chicago.

WHERE VISITORS ARE SURPRISED.

Foreigners Have Their Eyes Opened to the Richness and Resources of Our Uncle Samuel—The Various Processes and Departments of Government Graphically Illustrated.

WORLD'S FAIR, June 12.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam is a very popular personage at the World's Columbian Exposition. There is no feature of the fair that attracts a greater number of visitors than his display of the processes and efforts of the federal government. Foreigners who come here are much surprised at the evidence which they find here of governmental activity in this country. They had entertained a general sort of notion that the Americans were violently opposed to paternalism in government affairs, that the government of the United States was about as simple a thing as could be devised. But they are quickly convinced of their error. While they find no evidence of such paternalism as exists in some of the European countries and finds expression in state control of railway and telegraphs, and of franchises in the trades like tobacco monopoly, they do encounter proof that in everything pertaining to the welfare of the people and the development of the resources and fertility of the land our government is alert and energetic.

It is impossible for an American to visit the Government building, and the display of government concerns made in the open air near by, without a distinct sense of pride in his country and its institutions. Nearly all the things Uncle Sam attempts to do he does well, and he attempts a good deal. As an architect and builder he is not perfect, by any means, as the structure which he has erected here for his own use abundantly shows, but he is on the eve of reform in that respect. In a number of departments of his operations, notably the life-saving service and the weather bureau, he has easily led the world, pointing a way of improvement to European nations which they have been glad to follow.

The government has an exposition of its own here, and it is not surprising that it should prove so alluring to visitors. In a building covering three and a half acres of ground it shows every function of government, excepting the making of laws and the reception of office-seekers in the White House. What surprises most visitors is the enormous number of irons Uncle Sam has in the fire. He appears to be in pretty much everything, and after a few hours spent among his display no visitor will have need of further wonder as to what our good, fatherly uncle does with all the millions which we pour into his strong box through the custom houses, internal revenue offices and postoffices. The wonder rather is how he manages to get along without striking us for more.

To describe everything in the Government building would be like writing a handbook of Washington, and that I am not going to do. It will suffice if we take a passing glance at things shown here, pausing now and then for a better view of some of the more interesting features. One of these is the most comprehensive display of seeds ever made. The specimens represent wheat grown in every county in the United States—that is, every county in which wheat is grown, and it is grown in about 2,000 counties. There are also samples of grain grown in all countries, from Japan to Mexico, and from Peace river valley in northern Canada to Patagonia in the southern end of South America. Every seed in this collection was picked by hand, and the varieties are shown in neat glass compartments on which are indicated the weight, nature of soil and climatic conditions.

The truth is, in one or other feature of his big show, Uncle Sam starts somewhere near the center of the earth, comes to the surface, and then sails away toward the clouds. His geological survey exhibits sections of the earth as deep down as any one has ever gone. Here the panorama of volcanoes, earthquakes and glaciers, as well as the constructive and destructive effects of water, are graphically pictured. Almost everything on the face of the earth, the farms, water courses, harbors, lakes, are shown in one way or another, and as if this were not enough Uncle Sam builds a huge model of the earth and sets it up on a pivot for the curious to walk under, around and over. Then he goes up in the air with a balloon and sets off dynamite with which to bring rain, or Gen. Greely, of Arctic fame, flies a balloon designed to show the modern method of military signaling.

In Europe the use of balloons for observation of the enemy's position and strength has been common for many years. The British and French have regular balloon corps, outfitted with all necessary apparatus for the inflation of the airships with hydrogen gas and the manipulation of the balloons after they are filled. Such captive balloons were used very successfully during the Rebellion, and Gen. Greely has had an airship constructed in France for use by the signal corps of the United States army.

Gen. Greely figures in the government display in another role. What the French would call the piece de resistance of Uncle Sam's show is a panorama or model of Ft. Conger, Lady Franklin bay, Grinnell land, which was for three years the home of Greely and his ill-fated expedition. The scene is representative of the return of Lockwood and Brainard from that famous journey in which they made the "farthest north," approaching within less than 400 miles of the pole. Greely has advanced some distance from Ft. Conger to meet and welcome the returning heroes, who with their Esquimaux assistant and their dog team form quite a cavalcade. The figures of Greely, Lockwood and Brainard are well executed, and the animals are exceedingly life-like, being the stuffed skins of Esquimaux dogs. The imitation of ice all around is realistic enough to deceive many visitors, and the members of the expedition who are seen standing on the land in the background, waving their hats with joy, add a bit of spirit to the scene. Near by is displayed the very flag which these brave men planted nearer the pole than any other human beings ever reached.

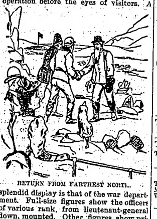
Uncle Sam has won distinction in Arctic work, as he has in almost everything else, and this Farthest North panorama is always surrounded by large crowds of visitors. Many other Arctic relics are shown here. While this scene gives a glimpse of the romance and triumph of the Arctic field, but a few feet away is a collection of articles which speak eloquently of the suffering and death which sometimes follow effort in the frozen north. These are the kettles, pans, cooking stoves, sleeping bags and other paraphernalia of Camp Clay, that dreadful spot where two-thirds of the Greely party perished by starvation.

Another interesting exhibit here is the collection of presents made to General Grant during his tour of the world. It will be remembered General Grant during his financial troubles pledged these to the Vanderbilts for money, and the Vanderbilts generously presented them to the National museum at Washington. The collection includes the presents received from foreign governments, the golden box containing the freedom of the city of London, and many beautiful swords and caskets inlaid with pearls and diamonds.

An instructive exhibit is that illustrative of the life and habits of North American Indians, composed of many full-sized, life-like figures, and innumerable paintings, a great number of the latter being from the famous Catlin collection. The Smithsonian institution and the National museum together make a magnificent display from their treasures, illustrating the development of arts and industries, the history of transportation, of language and religion, of music and printing, of bookmaking, photography and engraving. They show all American animals, birds and reptiles; the methods of the chase employed by the Indians, the Esquimaux and civilized man in North America; the service rendered to man by the various animals and the products of animals.

No exhibit of Uncle Sam's processes would be complete without the postoffice department. In addition to the practical World's fair postoffice, there is shown here a history of the development of the department, from the primitive saddle bags to the modern postal car and fast mail train. There is a collection of old mail coaches used on the California overland route, and they show many a bullet mark as reminder of the thrilling scenes of which they were mute witnesses. In the postal museum, where the curiosities of the dead letter office are present in an imposing array, is an old mailbag which was taken from a pony express by his Indian assassins. To this day the bag shows the stains of the poor fellow's blood. Foreign governments contribute an interesting exhibit, illustrating their postal methods.

The state department sends a collection of historical documents, but the original Declaration of Independence is not here. The department of justice shows portraits of all the chief justices of the United States supreme court. The treasury department makes a magnificent exhibit of coins and mint processes, including machines for stamping coins which are in operation before the eyes of visitors. A splendid display is that of the war department. Full-size figures show the officers of various rank, from lieutenant-general down, mounted. Other figures show private soldiers and cavalrymen. Still others display the uniforms of our history, running back to the colonial period. There are models of camps and barracks, and graphic representations of the operations of an army in the field. An old "army office wagon" shows the clerks at work at their desks. Machines from the arsenals show how cartridges are made. A field farrier's outfit suggests no end of trouble in putting shoes on the feet of the frisky government mule. Many models show the work of the engineering corps of the army in constructing canals and breakwaters, improving rivers and harbors.



RETURN FROM FARTHEST NORTH.

In the exhibit of the bureau of registry (treasury department) the visitor may see specimens of all the bonds and paper money issued by the government prior to the establishment of the bureau of engraving and printing. Samples of the old colonial bonds are given, and there are government bonds which once passed current for money. Here may be seen the original warrants drawn for payment of $15,000,000 in the Geneva award case. The first key used to lock the vaults in the United States treasury is shown, and a big, awkward thing it is. That was long before the era of time and combination locks.

The bureau of engraving and printing has a display which makes one's mouth water. It is a collection of all modern paper money issued by Uncle Sam, in denominations from $1 up to $10,000. Here people who never expect to own a government bond may see what one looks like, and they may see also samples of the wonderful engraving process by which it was produced.

In the field of money the greatest display is that of the National museum, which shows the coins of the world. The collection is one of the most comprehensive in existence, and is valued at a fabulous sum. It includes not only the coins of all nations and all ages, going as far back as 500 B. C., but the various substitutes for coins used in various parts of the world by primitive people. The most novel of these, perhaps, are the bars of salt moulded into bricks and used it is said to this day for making small change in Abyssinia.

Uncle Sam had the means and the organization for the making of a magnificent show here, and he has done it. Leaving out of the count his life saving station and weather bureau, battleship and other outdoor exhibits, he has within his big-domed building a world exposition of itself. Our Uncle Sam is a good deal of a fellow.

ROBERT GRAVES.

The Woman's National Indian association has worked hard to secure better laws for the Indians. It has been organized for fourteen years and has planted thirty-two mission stations. Mrs. A. S. Quinton, president of the society, is in charge of the department in the Woman's building. The South End Flower mission has a small nook from which the members will distribute flowers to the hospitals. All the cuttings from the Horticultural building will be furnished for distribution. This is a Chicago society alone.

If Your Cistern Is Out of Order

or Soft Water is scarce, don't worry yourself for a moment—go right ahead and use hard water with

KIRK'S
WHITE RUSSIAN
SOAP

and you'll never know the difference.

The clothes will be just as white, clean and sweet-smelling, because the "White Russian" is specially adapted for use in hard water.

JAS. S. KIRK & CO., Chicago.

Dusky Diamond Tar Soap. Best Soap for the Hands.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana	FARM LANDS
NEW TOWNS	100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.	LOW RATES
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.	Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth.	In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines. Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetes Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.	Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines	These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
BETWEEN
Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis
AND
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior, 6:40 p.m.
Crookston
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 7:45 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, call on, wire or write any agent N. P. R. R.

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER

ARE OFFERING

SPECIAL PRICES

ON

FARM MACHINERY.

SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER

IS NOW ON DECK

AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,

WITH A FULL LINE OF

PAINTS, OILS, GLASS AND WALL PAPER.

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE

Is still doing business at the old stand and selling

WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.

WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN. C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,

DEALERS IN

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements.

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.

Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

An even mouthful of Climax Plug gives more satisfaction than a bulging mouthful of any other tobacco for the reason that Climax Plug is much the best

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

GOOD judges predict that the highest price for wheat in Chicago next fall will not exceed 80 cents. They say that dollar wheat will not obtain again soon.

NOT the least handsome among the handsome floats in the industrial parade last week was that of Ericsson, Brady & Co. They did get to the front in great shape but then Ericsson is a Crookston boy and Crookston never gets left on anything requiring enterprise and public spirit.

THE display of Wright, Barrett and Stilwell was one of the best in the industrial parade at St. Paul last week. It was one of the most unique in the business and showed that enterprising firm to be right in it everytime. The boys are doing a good business and deserve the success they have won.

THE industrial parade at St. Paul last week was a big thing on wheels and amid the grand display Crookston loomed up conspicuously with her dandy float representing our lumber interests, our grain interests and all the rest of it. The float attracted a great deal of attention and was the object of much favorable comment. It will be worth all it cost as an advertisement.

THE great and only Donnelly bolted—flew the track at the Chicago anti-trust convention last week. He was on the committee on resolutions and because he could not run the whole committee, and ring in one of his peculiar non-effective plans, he got mad and refused to act with them. What a singular fact it is that in these United States there is only one man that knows it all—in his mind, and that man, Donnelly!

ONE of the best if not the very finest display in the great industrial parade last week was that of the St. Paul Fire Department. It occupied one-half an hour in passing the press stand and showed a proficiency unexcelled by any city in the state. We would not blame a St. Paul man a little bit if he was disposed to brag a good deal about that display. St. Paul has a fire department to be proud of.

THE JOURNAL has to confess to a feeling of surprise that Dr. Fish has not as yet 'called' Donnelly's bluff, by instituting a suit for criminal libel. Donnelly publicly charged the doctor with corrupt and disgraceful practices and dared him to bring a libel suit and the doctor owes it to his friends as well as to himself to meet the charges in the only effectual way that it can now be done—in the courts. What's the matter with Doc, is he weakening?

THE city of Fargo will arise from its baptism of fire purified and made better and like Chicago will be better than ever for the fiery trial. All of the new building will be of brick and stone no wooden buildings being allowed even for temporary purposes. The losses sustained are said to be over $3,000,000 with about $1,200,000 insurance. The business men are going bravely to work to repair their losses and the result will be a better class of buildings than ever.

THE JOURNAL man was indebted to J. S. Pinney and John J. Dobson for a seat in the grand press stand whereby we were enabled to get a good view of the industrial parade. At considerable expense they put up a fine stand and invited all of the "Slocums of the county press" to a front seat in the synagogue with the brethren of the city press. The boys all seemed to enjoy the occasion hugely and the JOURNAL desires to publicly thank brothers Pinney and Dobson for the pleasure afforded our representative.

THE latest reports on the progress of the state elevator is to the effect that the site has been selected and that work upon the elevator will be commenced at an early day and the elevator finished in time to handle the coming crop. Although Donnelly's bull-headed bill was sufficient to prevent the building of the elevator the governor and the commissioners were determined that it should be built anyhow and they have discovered a method by which it can be done. And yet in face of such ugly facts there are farmers who still insist that Donnelly is the only great and original farmers' friend.

THERE seems to be a lingering love for royalty among Americans if the appearance upon our shores of some scions of nobility and the obsequious attentions paid to them is a criterion. Take the Infanta of Spain, for instance, every move she has made since she has been in America has been faithfully chronicled and now we read that "the Infanta Eulalie visited the World's fair in the rain, and went first of all through the Midway plaisance." And now every flunkey of the Chicago 400, proceeds to ape royalty by going to the fair in the rain and visiting first the Midway plaisance.

EASY MONEY PREDICTED.

There is probably no better financier in the state than Tom Lowry nor anyone whose opinion is worth more on the financial situation. To the St. Paul Globe Mr. Lowry says:

"The financial situation has improved very materially within the last ten days. The situation has been very unusual, but confidence is being restored and money is plenty in the east. All that is necessary to draw it into active use is the restoration of confidence.

This was the expression that Thomas Lowry made yesterday morning, after an absence of several weeks in the east.

'The good crop reports that the east is receiving from the northwest are having a good effect,' continued Mr. Lowry. 'Good crops means prosperity, whether the price of grain is high or low, and if our crop outlook continues as good as at present it will help us very materially. There is a disposition in the east among the bankers to help all solvent parties in the west, as far as possible. It can hardly be said that bankers have been too conservative because the situation has been very unusual. The restless feeling has not been confined to this country, but it exists all over the world. London is feeling its effects more than we are, and the bank failures in Australia have added to the trouble abroad. There is more money in the New York banks than ever known, there being an excess of $25,000,000 over to reserve. I think the New York bankers have been very heroic. They are meeting and have met every complication with courage. I talked with many of them while in New York, and they all expressed a special desire to help customers. They think money will be easy this summer and that there will be a gradual improvement from now on.'

'Is there any criticism of the policy of the administration of New York?

'The want of a policy by the administration has helped very largely to bring about the present trouble, and this opinion is held quite generally by New York bankers, regardless of party affiliation. The utterances of Secretary Carlisle are regarded as very indiscreet, and the opinion is that the damage had been done before the president's interview was published stating that the parity between gold and silver would be maintained. I think the northwest stands better in the east than in any other section of the west. There is a tendency to resume the buying of commercial paper, and as soon as there is a little more improvement along this line there will be, in my opinion, a prompt restoration of confidence.

'I understand that locally there has been very little trouble. The one or two suspensions that have occurred might easily have been added to had there been many weak spots in Minneapolis. The result of the little flurry that you experienced here shows that the business interests of the city are on a solid footing. I am feeling sufficiently confident to say that the real estate enterprises in which I am interested will be pushed without interruption. If I regarded the situation as serious I might be induced to act otherwise. I believe in Minneapolis, I believe in her resources, I believe in the good sense of her citizens and propose to assist in the work of development that has been prosecuted here during the last few years to the best of my ability. I believe that in a few months, in connection with our plan for the development of Columbia Heights, we shall be able to announce some pleasant surprises to the people here. All that is necessary at the present time is to be sufficiently conservative in business policies to keep credit good. In my opinion there will soon be an easy money market for all legitimate needs."

Speaking of that secret meeting at Red Lake Falls, in relation to county division the Thief River Falls Press says:

"The secret meeting held at Red Lake Falls a week ago for the purpose of putting up a job to divide Polk county, has turned out to be not a secret as was desired. The fact that such a meeting was to be held was known to the Press before it convened, but it, with others thought the scheme not worth noticing and the result has proven their conclusion correct. If the peo of Red Lake Falls, East Grand Forks and McIntosh are silly enough to think that it lies with them to split up Polk county as they see fit, they will hang themselves with their own rope. Crookston, Thief River Falls, Fisher, Fosston, and a number of other towns in the county will doubtless have a word to offer in regard to the proposed plot."

By Moonlight.

When steamboat travel was the only means of reaching the country on the Upper Mississippi, the beauties of Lake Pipin, and its tragic legend of Maiden Rock, were known to all tourists, and celebrated in prose and verse. The coming of the railroads, and passing of our hurrying American passion for light travel has caused these charming scenes to be missed by thousands who would have wondered and admired. In these delightful nights the travelers who are fortunate enough to choose the evening train of the Burlington Route from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago or St. Louis can by consulting the almanac and selecting a moonlight night for the journey- -say the latter half of this month or next- -enjoy one of the lovliests sights provided for the pleasure of man. The grandly turreted shores, casting deep shadows far out on the waters, the ripples glancing silver in the soft radiance of the moon, the villages dimly seen on either side all go to make up a picture never to be forgotten. The lake is reached about ten o'clock in the evening, and the Burlington runs in full view of it for thirty miles. For any further particulars, address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Destroyed By Fire and Again At Work

The Price Baking Powder Company of Chicago, which is known throughout the country for the superior excellence of its Baking Powder, met with a serious loss on the morning of May 18th in the nearly total destruction by fire of its factory and offices. No sooner had the flames been subdued than the work of restoration commenced, and the Company by prudent forethought having had stored in outside warehouses duplicate machinery, labels and supplys of raw materials in preparation for any emergency was by energetic management able to resume manufacturing within a few days after the fire, thereby causing its customers but a trifling delay in the filling of their orders. Had the Company not been so prepared the delay would have been very serious since it would have required months of time to get new machinery.

It is now forty years since the goods manufactured by this company were first placed on the market, to Dr. Price being due the distinction of having prepared the first can of Cream of Tartar Baking Powder ever manufactured in any country. It was a great discovery, superseding as it did the old method of using cream of tartar and soda separately, to say nothing of saleratus, with which the biscuit of early days was embittered.

The Price Company has no connection whatever with any other baking powder company or manufacturers, notwithstanding representations to the contrary made by other manufacturers whose sole aim is to deceive the public and borrow the good name and fame acquired by the Price Cream Baking Powder, which is known all over the world as the purest and "most perfect made."

Are You Nervous,

Are you all tired out, bo you have that tired feeling or sick headache? You can be relievd of all these symtons by taking Hood's Sarsaprilla which gives nerve, mental and bodily strength and thoroughly purifies the blood. It also creates a good appetite, cures indigestion, heartburn and dyspepsia.

Hood's Pills are easy to take' easy in action and sure in effect. 25 cents a box.

Ten Thousand Dollars in Prizes to the Three Best Guesses

A novel idea, and one putting every previous guessing contest in the shade, will be a feature of Sells Brothers' Circus this year. Whoever makes the nearest guess of the combined weight of the huge pair of hippopotami will receive a cash prize of five thousand dollars; to the second best guess three thousand dollars, and to the third best guess two thousand dollars. As Sells Brothers always faithfully carry out every promise they make, and have never been accused of fraudulent advertising, the very announcement that they propose to do this will be accepted as a forgone conclusion and be unquestioned. Every visitor to their show this year will be permitted to participate in the guessing contest free. These huge animals have grown so large that it is extremely difficult to transport them, and this will be their last traveling tour. The proposed National Zoological Garden that will open in Washington next year will be the future home of these celebrated animals. Sells Brothers have offered to donate them to this worthy institute. As they are valued at one hundred thousand dollars, this gift will be appreciated.

Are you insured? If not, now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy as an insurance against any serious results from an attack of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is almost certain to be needed and should be procured at once. No other remedy can take its place or do its work. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Money to Loan

On city property, business and dwelling—at 6½ per cent per annum. For full information call on P. J. Russell, 25 and 26 [illegible] block, Crookston, Minn. [47tf]

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

TWENTY-ONE DEAD.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE IN A GOVERNMENT BUILDING.

The Old Theatre, Where Lincoln Was Assassinated Collapses, Carrying Down Scores of Government Clerks — Twenty-one Dead and About Fifty Injured — A Day of Funerals.

WASHINGTON, June 9. — Another tragedy, less national in character, but involving the loss of many more human lives and much more human suffering, has stained the walls of the old Ford theatre, Washington, where Abraham Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth in April, 1865. It is a coincidence also which will go into history that this second tragedy occurred on the very day when the remains of the great tragedian, whose life was so darkened by his brother's crime that he never visited Washington afterwards, were being laid to rest in Mount Auburn (Mass.,) cemetery. The house in which Lincoln died, on the opposite side of the street from the theatre where he was shot and which is sentimentally kept intact as it was on that fatal night, looked down upon a scene of which even the great crime of 1865 could not parallel.

Agony, Excitement and Grief

There were about 475 persons, mostly government clerks, employed in the building and nearly all of these were at work when the building fell. An excavation for an electric plant was being made in the cellar of the structure, a 3-story affair, and according to the best information obtainable the workmen had dug beneath the foundation supports in front of the building, weakening them to such an extent that the walls gave way before they could be jacked. Men who were in the building say the crash came without warning. Those on the top floor were suddenly precipitated to the floor below, and the weight of falling timber and furniture carried the second and first floors with it. Fortunately, only the forward half of the floors gave way. The outer ends of the floors and the rear part of the structure remained intact. The walls did not fall.

Twenty-one Bodies Recovered.

The work of rescue continued incessantly all day and at 6 p. m. twenty-one bodies had been recovered and taken to the morgue. Four more persons are reported dead whose names are probably confused with those of victims or their bodies confused with some of the bodies through physical resemblance. The number of injured reported is about 50, but many others who were able to proceed to their homes were hurt more or less badly. The following list of dead with the names of the states from which they were appointed contains 24 names including one unknown and one probably a duplication, only 21 bodies having been taken from the ruins:

UNKNOWN MAN, evidently a clerk.
GEORGE Q. ALLEN, Pennsylvania.
GEORGE M. ARNOLD, colored, Virginia.
L. W. BOYD, New York.
SAMUEL P. BAINES, Pennsylvania.
JOHN BUSSUS, District of Columbia.
F. M. CHAPIN, South Carolina.
ARTHUR L. DIETRICH, Kentucky.
JEREMIAH DALEY, Pennsylvania.
J. R. FAGAN, Kansas.
J. B. GAGE, Michigan.
DAVID C. JORDAN, Missouri.
M. M. JARVIS, Michigan.
J. B. JONES, Wisconsin.
F. B. LOFTUS, New York.
F. W. MAEDER.
B. F. MILLER, New York.
H. S. MILLER, Ohio.
J. N. McFELL, Wisconsin.
WILLIAM MULLEDY, Michigan.
E. G. SHULL, Kansas.
WILLIAM SCHRIEVER, Maryland.
H. S. WOOD.
F. M. WILLIAMS, Wisconsin.

THREATENED LYNCHING.

Sensation at the Inquest on the Ford Theater Victims.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—There were two sensational scenes during the inquest being held on the body of one of the victims of the Ford theater disaster. One was in the morning, when a witness testified that the feeling of the clerks in the building was one of abject fear towards Colonel Ainsworth, chief of the department. The statement was received with a clapping of hands by those present, most of whom were clerks in the department. The other was at the afternoon session. While a witness was being examined a man walked up behind Colonel Ainsworth and accused him of murdering his brother, and demanding to know by what right he sat there intimidating witnesses. This accusation was followed by cries of "put him out," and the excitement grew until the cries changed to

"Hang Him! Hang Him!"

The shouts grew louder, but Colonel Ainsworth sat cool and collected. A mad rush had just begun in his direction when Mr. Warner arose, and, standing on his chair, begged for order. The sight of him standing stopped the rush. Dr. Shaeffer directed Mr. Warner to take his seat.

But the Latter Refused, and, raising his voice, managed to make himself heard. His first words brought quiet. "This outburst of feeling must be suppressed," he said, "not by the strong hand of the law, but by the hand of fraternity. I appeal to you to have fair play as American citizens, and not to stain the fair name of the glorious capital of this republic. I appeal to you in the name of the master who reigns above." The crowd fell into Mr. Warner's way of thinking and cried, "Yes." He saw his advantage and appealed to let the question of allowing Colonel Ainsworth to remain be settled by cool heads. When he took his seat, however, there were more threatening mutterings, and at 3:20 p. m. Dr. Shaeffer quickly adjourned the inquest

Good For Another Term.

Lobbyist (confidentially, displaying roll of bills)—Of course money is no object. What we want is to have this bill passed.

Alderman (indignantly)—Bribe me? No, sir! I am really in favor of the passage of the bill, but—but—I'll just hang my overcoat here in the hall before going in.—Truth.

A Friendly Hint.

Postoffice Clerk—See here, boy! No living mortal can read the address on this envelope you just handed in.

Boy—Well, if this 'ere postoffice department wants fine handwritin, why don't you keep better pens at these desks, say?—Good News.

The population of the kingdom of Spain, as reported in last census, taken six years ago, was 17,550,000. As the population is nearly stationary the count for this year would be about the same as that of the year in which the census was taken.

As Japan was the first nation to have her exhibit completed for the World's fair, Major Handy says that that country is the most advanced, businesslike and newspaper sort of nation in the world.

Celluloid is becoming quite popular for numerous fancy articles. It comes in several shades of the delicate colors and is an inexpensive material. The thin transparent sheets are the prettiest.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
Science
MEDICAL SCIENCE
has achieved a great triumph in the production of
BEECHAM'S PILLS which will cure Sick Headache and all Nervous Disorders arising from Impaired Digestion, Constipation and Disordered Liver; and they will quickly restore women to complete health.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

OPERA HOUSE
Hardware Store,
T. H. BJOIN, Prop.
SHELF AND HEAVY——
Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,
SASH AND DOORS.
In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and
——THE PRICES LOW.
Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.
T. H. BJOIN.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor
R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, ≡ ≡ ≡ MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 225 N. Main street, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.
HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Scandia-American Bank,
C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.
Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.
DIRECTORS— C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

BE QUICK!
IT IS A SNAP.
I will sell the west ½ section 29, T. 149, R. 48, a splendid piece of valley land, 8 miles from Crookston, one-third under the plow, all first-class wheat soil, at the low price of
$8.00 AN ACRE.
Sale subject to an incumbrance of $400. This land is easily worth $12 an acre, but it must be sold.
TERMS:—Half cash; balance secured mortgage.
To the man who buys this tract within Ten Days from this date I will make a Reduction equal to twice the usual real estate commission. First to come gets it.
June 8th, 1893.
J. A. TRUESDELL,
Brookland, D. C.
[8-11]

WE SUIT

FASHIONABLE CLOTHIN

Everybody Every Time.
Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits,
Suits that Fit to a T.
LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.
Who Wouldn't be Suited
With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?
That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their
SUMMER SUITS.
Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.
BOSTON - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Lake Burton has floated $13,000 of waterworks bonds.

An unknown man was cut in two by a train at Worthington.

Southern Minnesota Baptists held a threedays session at Brownsdale last week.

Michael Costello of St. Paul was dangerously stabbed in a fight with tramps.

The safe in the postoffice at Pleasant Grove was broken open and about $400 taken.

The Allegory of the War will be repeated at St. Paul for the benefit of Fargo fire sufferers.

While J. Allsup was breaking with five horses at Ellsborough, Murray county, a bolt of lightning killed every horse.

June 20 has been set as the date for the national convention of the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution at St. Paul.

Mankato shippers believe they are being discriminated against and have complained to the railroad commissioners.

A Seattle coroner's jury has decided that Charles Defiel of St. Paul, who was reported to have been murdered, shot himself.

At Chatfield burglars broke into the postoffice and Fairbank & Williams' meat market and secured about $10 and some hams.

A train on the St. Paul and Duluth ran over an unknown man near Rutledge, who lay asleep on the track. His body was horribly mangled.

An interstate meet of wheelmen at Winona on July 3 and 4 has been arranged by the Winona Cycle Track association. Fifteen gold medals will be hung up.

Emil Applehagen of Duluth has received a commission from President Samuel Gompers as state organizer for the American Federation of Labor in Minnesota.

Dr. R. O. Sweeny, superintendent of the United States fish hatchery at Duluth, has been acquitted of the charges of mismanagement made against him some time since.

Fire at Maple Lake destroyed the Osborne & McMillan elevator, 20,000 bushels of wheat, a horse, the Atlantic Elevator company's flathouse, 2,000 bushels of wheat, and a carload of flour and millstuff.

Mrs. Daniel Young, wife of a Winona hotelkeeper, was fatally burned Tuesday evening last. She was subject to fainting spells, and is supposed in one of these to have knocked over a lamp by which she was sewing. She died in a few hours.

Near Hastings two boys, Elmer Moss and Eugene Kenney, sought shelter from the rain under a tree, which was struck by lightning. The Moss boy was instantly killed, and the other boy was rendered unconscious for a few moments and badly burned on his right side and arm.

Olga Beier, aged 15, and her brother Emil, 7 years old. children of August Beier, were killed in Maple Grove township, Hennepin county, during the storm on Thursday. A brother, named Henry, 14 years of age, was with them, but he escaped unhurt. The wind had been blowing hard all day, but its fury increased suddenly, and the children, who were out on the farm, ran behind a shed for shelter. They had no sooner reached the place before a terrible gust blew the shed down.

Governor Nelson has appointed delegates to represent Minnesota in the international congress of charities, corrections and philanthrophy, to convene in Chicago June 12 to 18, inclusive. The delegates are: Mrs. J. P. Gribben, Mrs. G. E. Skinner, Mrs. H. T. Drake, Mrs. C. A. Bigelow, of St. Paul; George A. Brackett, Nelson Williams, George D. Hall and Rev. M. Falk Gjertsen, of Minneapolis; Rev. E. P. Ingersoll, Mrs. Pascal Smith, Rev. S. G. Smith and Judge Willis, of St. Paul.

At the last session of the legislature $10,000 was appropriated for the use of the state auditor in selecting lands to fill the state institution grants, in round numbers about 3,000,000 acres. These grants have to be filled from the state swamp lands by selection from even sections. State Auditor Biermann has sent two cruisers, P. K. Doe of Duluth and P. H. Kirwan of Olivia. The other examiners are Nels Granberg, Emil Moody of St. Paal; Nels Elofson, Grove City; A. Hardole, Dawson; Walter Gibbons, Rosemont; H. Tegrous, Duluth, and M. Smidt, Tower. Work has already begun.

ANNIE MURPHY GUILTY.

The Notorious Female Swindler Convicted of Forgery at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud, Minn., June 13.—Annie M. Doolittle, generally known as Annie Murphy, the most noted female forger in America, who has forged drafts on banks in Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, New York, Alabama and Washington, in amounts ranging from a few hundred dollars to $5,000, was convicted at midnight of forgery in the first degree. The specific case on which she was convicted was the forgery of two drafts on New York on which she secured the cash in St. Cloud. The smallest sentence which can be given the fair forger, who is only 25 years old and very pretty, is 10 years in state prison. Mrs. Doolittle has been twice married, the last nuptial knot having been tied at Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22, last. Her last husband Artuur M. Doolittle, has just been sentenced to serve seven years for forgery at Nashville, Tenn.

HILL IS HONORED.

GREAT PARADE AND CELEBRATION IN ST. PAUL.

In Commmoration of the Completion of the Great Northern Railway to the Pacific Coast—A Gorgeous Affair.

St. Paul, June 7.—No such crowd ever assembled in St. Paul as that which gathered to do honor to James J. Hill for completing the Great Northern railway without government aid from St. Paul to the Pacific coast. When the great parade started at 2:30 p. m. there were at least 200,000 people on the dozen streets through which the parade was to pass. The weather was clear and warm and the crowd good natured.

It was the universal verdict that nothing ever seen in the Northwest can approach in magnificence the street pageant. The variety and originality of the designs, the rich materials with which the floats were decorated and the admirable manner in which they were arranged and managed in the parade have all combined to make one of the grandest pageants ever seen in any part of the country. Every float was designed to represent some particular industry or section of the country along the line of the Great Northern, and every one had its own individuality.

The floats representing the cities west of St. Paul attracted constant applause. Those of Seattle, Everett and Kalispell were particularly noticeable for the pains taken in getting them up and for the diversity of industries represented. The procession moved in ten great divisions and was two hours passing a given point.

The Fire Department.

The parade of the fire department preceded the regular parade by about half an hour, starting from the corner of Sixth street and Broadway. The St. Paul fire department always makes a good showing, and it has never made a better one than on this occasion. Every engine, truck and hose cart in the city was in line. All were profusely decorated with flags, bunting and flowers, and the designs were beautiful. The parade of "the bravest" was well worth seeing, even without the great parade which followed. There was plenty of well deserved applause as they passed. One feature which attracted attention was the the boy's company. They had a full-rigged miniature hook and ladder truck, drawn by about a dozen of their number and led by a dog.

The Parade Proper.

The parade was ready to start with much greater promptness than is usually the case, and the last of the fire department bad hardly been seen when the first division of the historical and industrial parade appeared in sight.

The regular troops from Fort Snelling came with soldierly tramp and bearing to lead the way for the display of Northwestern wealth and progress. Many companies of Minnesota state troops marched past in company front, and were followed by the cadets from the academy at Faribault.

Ancient and modern modes of travel were then illustrated. Early French voyagers sat in their canoe and sang songs of adventure as they paddled over the waters.

The next step in transportation was exemplified by the oldtime Red River carts, with two immense wheels drawn by oxen.

Then the prairie schooner, and stage coaches, and finally the railroad, crude at first, and slow but developing rapidly until the enormous modern locomotive and palace cars were brought to view.

Indian Scenes.

The Indian drags and scenes of Indian life were escorted by the Indian band from Fort Totten, North Dakota, near Devils Lake. The leader wore the native feathers and furs.

The first and last Great Northern engines were shown, and they told of man's advancement during 50 years that could not be better depicted in columns of space.

The first Mississippi steamboat that arrived in St. Paul in the 50's, the Virginia, was shown reduced only one-third.

Then came the displays made by different Northwestern cities.

The manufacturing industries of St. Paul and Minneapolis were then portrayed by nearly 100 enormous and expensive floats.

RECEPTION TO J. J. HILL.

Second Event In the Great St. Paul Celebration.

St. Paul, June 8.—A great public reception was given during the evening to James J. Hill, tendered by the citizens of St. Paul at the Auditorium.

At 9 o'clock occurred the important event of the evening, when Mayor Frederick P. Wright presented to Mr. Hill a souvenir in behalf of the city and citizens of St. Paul. Mr. Wright made a short speech, to which Mr. Hill responded fittingly. There were no other speeches.

Closed With a Banquet.

St. Paul, June 9.—The three days celebration in honor of J. J. Hill closed with a big banquet at the Aberdeen. Like everything else in this celebration it was a big success.

Co-Education at Macalester.

St. Paul, June 13.—At a meeting of the governing board and trustees of Macalester college it was decided to adopt co-education. It is expected the attendance at the college will be increased nearly one-half by the decision of the trustees and governing board to admit both sexes. The new rule is to go into effect at the opening of the next school year.

When Learning Was Despised.

Abraham Fabert, who in the seventeenth century became a marshal of the French army, lived in an age when learning was despised and mere animal courage won the plaudits of court and people. "The king has no need of philosophers in his armies," said one who knew the signs of the times. "He wants soldiers, stirring, active and resolute men. Debaters are only useful in the schools."

It was at this period that the Marquis of Cramail, at a critical moment, addressed his rear guard, imploring them not to ride away from the field, and his eloquence was at once destroyed when some one cried:

"Why listen to him? He has written a book!"

"I mend my pen with my sword," said a noble of the time to a poet, and the retort was prompt:

"Then I am no longer astonished that you write so badly."

But young Fabert, who became a private at the age of 14, was determined to master all the branches of his profession from the simplest to the most complex. He fulfilled all his practical duties perfectly, and at the same time studied with unfailing zeal. He taught himself the rudiments of geometry, fortification and drawing. He read history, studied German, Spanish, Italian and Flemish and was always eagerly seeking to improve his knowledge of geography.

"This," he used to say, "is as necessary to an officer as arms are to the soldier."

The result was that when France needed the service of a trained mind and well disciplined will Fabert was at her service. Moreover, he was the first marshal who rose from the ranks.—Youth's Companion.

A Commencement Costume.

A pretty commencement gown may be made of white embroidered muslin, the tiny flower being done in white, and upon close examination proving that it is a forgetmenot. The skirt, which is full and round, just barely escapes the floor. At the foot it is finished with five narrow "milliner's folds" of white satin. A quarter of a yard above these are three narrow folds, and a quarter of a yard above these is one. The bodice is round and belted in with a broad, white satin belt laid in fine folds like those on the skirt. Just in front, where it fastens, are four white satin ribbon bows knotted in the square style, so that they look like forgetmenots themselves.

The gown is open at the throat, turned over in very broad revers, faced with the muslin and outlined with Irish lace, that has the stitches necessary to keep it in place hidden under folds of the satin. The sleeves are very high puffs of the satin, reaching quite to the elbows, and below them fall frills of Irish lace. The gloves are white undressed kid, and the fan is a white gauze one. The slippers are white satin and the stockings white silk. The hair is parted in the center, drawn back and arranged low on the neck in a loose knot.—Isabella Mallon in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Napoleon of Literature.

The man was as thin as a rail and had the cadaverous look of a poet out of a job. At least that's the way he appeared to the editor as that gentleman raised his eyes from his work to see what it was shuffling across the floor toward his desk.

"Good morning," said the visitor.

"Good morning," responded the editor.

"You are the editor," said the visitor inquiringly, half in doubt. "Yes, I know you are. I can always tell an editor by his intellectual expression. I have here, sir, an article for the press."

"Prose or poetry?" queried the editor, not regarding the flattery.

"Both, sir; a combination effort, I may say."

"Ah, you must be a genius?"

"Well, sir," and the visitor plumed himself, "I am considered by my friends a Napoleon of literature, sir."

The editor didn't like that a little bit.

"Um," he said, looking him over. "Um, I didn't know you were a Napoleon, but I knew you were a bony part of literature. Anybody could see that with half an eye."—Detroit Free Press.

The Government of Spain.

The government of Spain is a limited monarchy, under the constitution which was drawn up and proclaimed in 1876. The power to make laws belongs to the cortes, which consists of a senate and a house of deputies, the senators numbering 360 and the deputies 431. The senators are of three classes—those holding office in their own right, those nominated by the crown and those elected by the civil and ecclesiastical corporations of state. In the election of deputies all male Spaniards may vote under certain restrictions, and deputies are elected in the proportion of one deputy to every 50,000 souls of the population. Both houses of the cortes meet every year, and the ministers are responsible thereto.—New York Sun.

Went After Dinner.

Patrick—It's poor advice ye've been givin me. Didn't ye say th' best toime to ask a fnon a favor was afther dinner?

Bifkins—I certainly did.

"Well, Oi wint to ould Buffers wid th' schmallest koind av a request, and he refused. It was afther dinner too."

"Are you sure he had had his dinner?"

"Faith it's little Oi know about ould Buffers' ingoin's and outcomin's, but Oi had moine."—New York Weekly.

Getting Points From the Savage.

It is said there is a tribe in Africa where speakers in public debate are required to stand on one leg and are not allowed to speak longer than they can stand in that position. With all our boasted civilization we discover every now and then points in which savages surpass us.—Exchange.

The Great Difference.

"There is not much similarity between our ways of earning a livelihood," said the dentist to the paint manufacturer.

"No," admitted the manufacturer, "there is not. I grind colors while you cull grinders."—Indianapolis Journal.

DOINGS OF WHALES.

SEA YARNS SPUN BY AN OLD EX-WHALER OF SOUTH STREET.

Milking She Whales Before Harpooning Them While They Are Asleep on Top of the Water — Whales Very Dangerous When Sleep Mad or Harpoon Mad.

"That's the best reading I've had for many a long day," exclaimed the bronzed old ex-seaman in his dingy little "sailing office" in South street, and his bright eyes twinkled. The reading that pleased him so was the Victoria dispatch giving an account of the attack of an enormous whale on the schooner Mermaid off the Japan coast.

"You don't know what sleep mad is, do you? It's just the kind of mad that big whale had on him, and the same kind of mad that any big whale is sure to get on him when he has just had his dinner and is taking his after dinner nap. The whales of the waters where this schooner Mermaid was cruising are great sleepers. They turn over on their sides on top of the water and let the waves rock them to sleep, especially if they have been dining pretty heavy. They sleep sound, and I have more than once milked a she whale when she was sleeping like that without waking her up, just as you might milk a cow. A good, healthy she whale, with suckling cubs, would give down a barrel of milk, and then we'd have a feast after a hard day's work.

"But suppose that besides being sleep mad this big whale that pitched into the schooner Mermaid had also been harpoon mad. If he had been, The Sun wouldn't have had that story to print, for the schooner or her crew would never have been heard from again.

"Did I ever have any close call from an infuriated whale? Did I? Well, remembering a few of 'em, I think I did! For instance, what would you call this one? Forty years ago I was one of the crew of the whaler Mary Pilgrim of Nantucket. We started in April after sperm whales in the waters around the Cape de Verde islands.

"We picked up a whale now and then, but they were not plentiful, but one day we discovered a tremendous bow head or bone whale asleep close off our port bow. Three boats were lowered. I was the harpooner of the captain's boat, and the mate and second mate were in charge of the other two. We got to the whale without disturbing him, and I gave him the harpoon. That woke him, I can tell you! He was the maddest whale I ever saw, being both sleep mad and harpoon mad. He turned on our boat and came at us with a rush. Instead of striking us head on he passed our bow, and as he was passing struck the boat with his flukes. He cut us square in two and turned the boat bottom side up quicker than ever any boat had been capsized before. My leg became fouled in the harpoon line, and in a second I found myself being towed through the water at about 20 knots an hour and several feet below the surface. The line was wound about my leg just below the knee and had cut deep into the flesh.

"I knew my end was not more than a minute ahead of me unless I got loose from that rushing whale. My knife was in my belt. I got it out, and somehow—but I never knew just how—I managed to reach down and sever the line. The next second I appeared on the surface, popping up in so sudden and startling a manner that I almost scared the mate and his boat's crew into fits, for I came up right alongside of their boat. It seems that just as the whale struck our boat and wrecked it the mate fastened a harpoon in the enraged monster and was being towed by it to the windward, and I had come to the surface just as they were passing that spot. They took me in on the fly, as it were, but I was very little better than dead. The second mate had picked up the captain and the rest of the crew.

"As the whale was tearing along with the mate's boat in tow he discovered our vessel lying to, and making up his mind that there lay the source of all his troubles he turned and charged like a tornado upon it. He hurled himself against the vessel three different times, knocking off the cutwater clear to the wood ends and starting a bad leak. While he was thus engaged the mate's boat got near, and the furious whale turned on it. The mate thrust his lance against the whale's head and threw all his weight upon it as the whale rushed forward, while the crew backed the boat for their lives. At that critical moment the captain, with the second mate's boat, came up. He had a bomb lance and fired it at the whale. The bomb struck the great head of the monster on the bone above the left eye and exploded on the outside, doing no damage except to momentarily stun the whale. He soon recovered and charged on the captain's boat. That boat being free avoided the rush, and then the whale made again for the mate's boat.

"Three different times the captain's boat drew the whale away and saved the mate and his crew. At the fourth time the whale didn't turn aside from his furious rush on the mate, and I thought our fate was sealed. With a less experienced and true handed sailor than our captain it would have been sealed, too, in a very few seconds more. The whale charged right upon us, and his giant flukes were in the air, to swoop down and crush us beneath their mighty and irresistible sweep, but that gave the plucky captain the chance he wanted. He drove the hand lance into the whale clear to its seizing, and the monster fell back in the water between the two boats, neither one escaping by more than a yard.

"The captain's plunge with the hand lance had been true to its mark. Both boats backed away from the struggling whale. He lashed the sea into foam and whirled about in an aimless and bewildered manner. Presently he sent up a spout of water that was red with blood, and a lusty shout went up from a score of throats. Every man knew it was all over with the ugly foe. We had a good two days' work repairing our vessel; but we got 120 barrels of oil and 8,000 pounds of bone out of the whale, and our victory was a great one."—New York Sun.

June 18th,

1893,

Through Passenger Service

BEGINS ON THE ....

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

To Seattle and other cities on Puget Sound and Pacific Coast, June 18th. This new transcontinental route reaches principal points in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington. It Is

125 Miles the Shortest Route

From the East to Puget Sound. This new Line is through a country abounding in agricultural, pastoral, timber and mineral wealth, and offers inducements to investors and home-seekers. For printed matter or further information apply to

W. W. FEGAN, Agent,
Crookston, Minn.

Or address
F. I. WHITNEY, G. P. & T. A.
St. Paul, Minn.

THE CIRCUS

WILL SOON BE HERE—
AND YOU WILL—

WANT TO SEE IT.

How to Obtain the Pange?

WELL, there are several ways to accomplish that result, and among them the best way we know of is for you to trade at the—

General Store
—OF—
Fontaine & Anglim.

Where you can save enough in one month to take the whole family to the world-renowned aggregation.

Yours for Good Goods and Low Prices.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Valley Roller Mills.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS

MADE FROM SELECTED RED
—RIVER HARD WHEAT.—

BRANDS:

Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.

BRAN, SHORTS
AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

Commenced Business October, 1881.

Paid in Capital.........$100,000
Surplus.......................15,500

Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. H. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

John Wyatt

THE UNDERTAKER,

EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.

Besides carrying a full and complete line of
COFFINS,
CASKETS
AND BURIAL SUPPLIES,
has the largest and most complete stock of

Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—

Special discount During the Holidays.

Office 105½ Broadway,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.

G. G. HENAULT.

DESIRE OF HUMANITY

To Get as Near the Skies as Is Possible.

WHAT YOU CAN DO AT THE FAIR.

Elevators Will Take You to the Top of Manufactures Building and Many Other Structures from Which Wonderful Sights Are To Be Seen—The Great Vertical Wheel and the Captive Balloon.

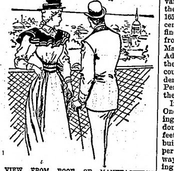
WORLD'S FAIR, June 13—[Special.] We have no Eiffel tower here on which people may ascend a thousand feet above the level of the fair grounds, but there are several points at which a great elevation may be attained and from which splendid views of the Columbian exposition and the surrounding city of Chicago and the waters of Lake Michigan may be enjoyed. The aspiration to rise to high places above the level of the world, to the tops of mountains, towers and high buildings, appears to be almost universal in the human family. Americans of all the peoples of the world seem to have this desire to get near the skies. They are willing to spend their money for the blessed privilege, too. I met here the other day a gentleman who visited the Paris exposition of 1889. He was fond of going up the Eiffel tower, and ascended a number of times. The first platform, he said, was about four hundred feet from the ground, and the cost of riding thither was about two francs. On this platform one heard a perfect jargon of tongues, in which of course the French predominated but where the English could be heard only faintly. At the next platform, 750 feet high, where the charge was four francs, one could occasionally overhear a bit of English and began to feel a little less as if he were among strangers in a strange land. But at the very top, where the charge per passenger was eight francs, English was the predominating language and English with an American accent filled the air.

The Americans are the greatest people in the world for spending money. They pay out more of their earnings for travel and amusement than any other people, twice over. They like to rise to high places, and their desire to do so is so great that they do not stop much to consider the cost. Hence great crowds of visitors may be seen every day at the top of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building, which is the mammoth structure of the exposition. It costs only a quarter of a dollar to ride up here in one of the four elevators, and it is not surprising that so many people avail themselves of the privilege of seeing such a splendid sight at so small a cost. It is a view worth any one's time and any one's money.

The elevators rise out of the middle of Columbia avenue, the broad aisle which sweeps from one end to the other of the great building, with the nations of the world assembled along its front. It is a very queer look these elevators have, so slender and frail they seem, on account of the enormous hight to which they rise without floor or brace on the way. It is 203 feet straight upwards from the floor to the first bit of iron of the great trusses which support the roof. So vast is the extent of the building, and so perfect its proportions, that you do not realize the hight while standing on the floor. There are American flags up under the roof, a long line of them, and they do not appear to be more than six or eight feet in length. But buy tickets and take places in the elevators, and as you rise foot after foot the immensity of everything here will slowly dawn upon your consciousness.

Remember that your journey is like that from the basement of one of Chicago's tall buildings to the twentieth story. Two or three stories up the scene below begins to unfold. There are some extending perspectives. The German pavilion, with the series of palaces, its courts and its towers, seems to be enormous. So does the French pavilion on the other corner, by the clock tower. Columbia avenue is very wide as you view it now, the crowds are very thick.

By this time you are half way up. For the first time the actual size of a thirty acre building begins to dawn upon you. One instinctively opens his lips and inhales eagerly. The eyes part wide. It is a scene which cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the world—a scene which stirs some new corners of the soul and produces some unwonted sensations.



VIEW FROM ROOF OF MANUFACTURES BUILDING.

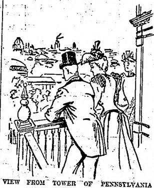
Now you are three-quarters of the way up. The elevator car is entering the electric light corona. Viewed from the floor below that ring of arc lights looked large enough to cover a sidewalk. Now you see it would compass a broad street from building to building. You have reached the lower edge of the flags. To see the upper or starry section you must raise your eyes. These banners are thirty feet long instead of the six or eight they had seemed from below.

Under the roof the elevator comes to a stop. "All out—keep to the left." You walk along a wooden platform suspended 200 feet above the world. The view is sublime. Now Germany and France are mere pigmies. The great towers and arches of these pretentious palaces within a palace are dwarfed into such smallness that you cannot even make out their form. Columbia avenue, now to be seen from the southern end, where Italy is, to the northern, where Japan flaunts her golden ball, is no longer wide and impressive, but a narrow strip up and down which myriads of little black spots may be seen moving. Nothing is large now but the mighty building itself.

This realization of the magnitude of the greatest structure that ever was is worth ten times the trouble and expense required to get here. For the first time one appreciates the majesty of the giant arches, and is able to understand the significance of the figures commonly used to denote the dimensions of things here—such as a thousand cottages each 25x50 feet, could find room within the walls, or a dozen United States capitols at Washington, or 350 long passenger trains with their locomotives, or fifty of the greatest steamships.

If the view within is soul-stirring—inspiring with confidence in the ability of man to work almost any miracle with steel and iron—what shall be said of the view from without? You walk out a door and find yourself on a promenade near the top of the building. It is some twelve feet wide, and it surrounds the building. The distance is half a mile, though this is only one-half the circumference of the structure at its ground line. As you emerge Lake Michigan is before your eyes, with the vast pier now looking like a bridge thrown out into the waters. Steamships are there discharging and taking on passengers. Innumerable steam and electric launches are running to and fro. The strains of music come from the water. Near by the surf is beating rhythmically on the shore. Uncle Sam's white battleship glistens in the sunlight at the left. Off in the lake are many steamships and sailing craft, for both passengers and freight.

Charming as this view is you resist the temptation to sit down on one of the benches which are plentiful up here. There are other panoramas to be seen.



VIEW FROM TOWER OF PENNSYLVANIA BUILDING.

From the north end of the promenade you behold a varied spectacle. The Government building is in the foreground. Beyond, a dazzling array of towers, minarets and domes—the Art palace, the Fisheries building, the foreign and state buildings. To the left the lagoon and the wooded island, now radiant with flowers. The gondolas and launches, miniature indeed from this hight, are flitting about. At the water's edge the Transportation building, with its touch of warm color and its golden entrance; also the vast glass dome of Horticulture and the classic outlines of Woman's building. Beyond all, to the north and west, the black smoke of industrial Chicago, the belching from furnace, factory and boiler room which brought the wealth by which all this scene of beauty and brightness was wrought.

The promenade is crowded with people who have been fascinated by this scene. But walk to the other end of the building and there you may look down upon a scene that is even more sublime. It is the central court of the exposition, the fairy spot. In the foreground the basin, with the golden republic rising from its teeming water. At the left the noble peristyle, here appreciated at its true beauty, surmounted by a half hundred statues and the colossal triumph of Columbus. Directly facing you is the most beautiful building of the whole exposition, that devoted to agriculture and its products. At the right Machinery hall, cathedral like and glorious, and Administration, which is a crown set upon the masterpiece. There is a great concourse of people on the plazza. From one of the band stands swell the strains of music produced by the greatest orchestra ever assembled. The fountains play. Underneath there is a tremulous, rhythmical peal. The chimes in the clock tower are rolling their notes through the vast enclosed space on which you are perched. Soon there is an echo from over the waters. The chimes in Machinery hall are being played in response.

It is not possible to exaggerate the beauty of this scene, the like of which man never before beheld. But there are other places in the exposition where one may obtain a good view from an advantageous hight. Elevators are run to the cupola of the Transportation building, 165 feet high, and the charge is only 10 cents per passenger. The view here is very fine, but of course not as good as that from the roof of the mammoth building. Many visitors ascend the staircases in the Administration building to emerge upon the porticoes there and enjoy a look at the court. Others climb to the belfry of Independence hall, which is the state building of Pennsylvania, Liberty bell itself being on the ground floor.

In the exposition are four great hights. One is the apex of the Manufactures building, 246 feet; another the top of the golden dome of the Administration building, 250 feet; a third the dome of the Illinois state building, 242 feet, and the fourth the upper rim of the great vertical wheel in Midway plaisance, about 250 feet. This amazing engineering work is not yet finished, though it soon will be. It towers above everything else in the that part of the exposition, and on account of its great size and peculiar proportions is even more conspicuous than the roof of Manufactures or the dome of Administration. When it is set in motion it will no doubt create a great sensation, especially at night when electric lights are to illuminate it.

If none of these views from altitude satisfy the World's fair visitor who likes to go as near to the sky as he can get, there remains the captive balloon. It has not yet begun to make ascents, but will soon do so. And when it does you may rise 1,500 feet in the air and view the exposition and Chicago from the edge of the clouds. For this experience you will pay the sum of $2 and be given a photograph of yourself taken in midair.

ROBERT GRAVES.

Cost of Germany's Exhibit.

The value of the German exhibit at the World's fair amounts to $15,000,000, while the expenses for transportation, equipment, installation, and administration sum up $5,000,000. Of this sum the imperial German government donated $1,000,000; the Prussian government appropriated $120,000; Herr Krupp, $500,000; Baron Stumm, $100,000; the united exhibitors of chemicals subscribed a fund of $80,000; the textile manufactures of Saxony gave $60,000, while the balance of the expense is borne by the others of the 6,000 exhibitors

---

THE IMPRISONED ROBIN.

We heard his cry this morning, and his wail
Was like the sad song of a whippoorwill.
It seems that in his prison cage he still
Has memories of the fields, and he recalls the tale,
The lonesome night bird sang at vespers till
He deems it is his own. His joyous thrill
And natural pipings are now all in jail.
How different from the notes when, wild and free,
He sang his happy greetings to his mate
And pleasure seemed the business of his days!
No night bird's acts were mimicked in his ways
When he strode o'er the lawn in pride elate
Or filled the air with melody from a tree.

—Edward S. Creamer in New York Sun.

Not Big Things Only Excite Wonder.

It is not always the things of gigantic proportions that excite the greatest curiosity. Mastodons, elephants, whales and other creatures of monstrous size are and have been wonders indeed. So, too, are the pyramids, the great cathedrals, towers, monuments, etc., the great Corliss engines, the 10-drive wheel locomotive and other triumphs of mechanical skill. But while this is true beyond question, how about the wonders revealed by the microscope and the work of the deft fingered artist, D. A. Vr. Meer, who painted a landscape on the side of a grain of wheat? By the use of a strong microscope only could the wonders of this minute painting be distinguished.

Yet when a good glass was brought to bear upon what appeared to be a spot of variegated paint upon the side of the wheat grain all was changed into a beautiful landscape—a forest, a mill at the side of the river, a miller climbing an outside stairway with a sack of grain upon his back, a tall cliff at the side of the mill and a winding road along which some peasants were trying to drag a refractory pig!—St. Louis Republic.

Gloves to Ruin Husbands and Lovers.

The revival of light kid gloves for wear with walking dress is rather a blow to the thrifty minded. Those who have a limited dress allowance have delighted in the convenient black kid or brown suede, which could be worn quite a number of times without showing signs of being weatherbeaten in any way. But light gray, pale lemon and the new horrific green are soiled in an hour when worn with sealskin, dark cloth or serge. Fortunately four or six button length does very well at present, but there are some indications that in the season sleeves will be short and gloves long. If so, light kid will be atrociously extravagant, even though they will not soil so readily when worn with light colored gowns.—Cor. Chicago Herald.

Marrying by a Formula.

The woman that took part in a late marriage at Newcastle, England, had a mathematical formula to guide her. At 16 she married a man of 32. At 30 she married again and chose a man of 60. To conclude the series, she now at 42 marries a man of 84. Her first husband was a Quaker, the second a Catholic and the present one a Protestant. If she lives much longer and is determined to go on with her mathematical matrimonial ventures, she will have to advertise in the want columns for a centenarian or two and specify a new religion as one of her provisions.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Wardroom "Boy."

The wardroom "boy" on board a man-of-war is often as old as many of those he serves, but the old fashioned title and form of address stick to him. Wardroom boys usually are colored men or foreigners. When a Haytian or Jamaican negro is obtainable, he is regarded as a catch. This is truer still of the Jap. The latter seems to understand by instinct to remember a multitude of details without effort and obey promptly and without question.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Living In the Suburb.

It was several months ago that McTavish, who had never lived in the suburbs, moved with his family out to West Nobtown. The other day one of the old residents said to him:

"Well, Mr. McTavish, how do you like West Nobtown?"

McTavish sighed slightly and then said, "The merciful man is merciful to his suburb!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

'I do not Eat Pastry.'

How often you hear this expression, and the explanation that usually follows: "I am troubled with dyspepsia." The explanation is not far to seek. In the past Lard has been used as the principal shortening in all pastry, the result—dyspepsia. The dyspeptic need no longer be troubled, providing is substituted for lard in the preparation of all food. It is composed strictly of highly refined vegetable oil and beef suet. When used as a shortening, it produces wholesome and healthful pastry. Physicians and expert cooks everywhere indorse it.

COTTOLENE

Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes.

Cottolene is sold in three and five pound pails, by all grocers.

Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

Oh, My Heart!

Palpitation and Rheumatism.

Mr. James S. Jones
Bruce, Wis.

"From my experience I think Hood's Sarsaparilla will do everything it claims and more too. It is surely entitled to my heartfelt thanks. I think it is the best medicine in the world. For 25 years I have suffered with palpitation of the heart and rheumatism. I tried everything I could hear of, but none of the medicines did me any good, in fact I grew worse all the time until for three years

I Could Not Labor Any.

I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and thought I would try it. I have taken four bottles, and I feel like a new man. I have improved so rapidly in health that I am able to work hard now. I recommend this medicine to all who are sufferers. I would not be without it in my house." JAMES S. JONES, Bruce, Chippewa Co., Wis.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st, 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Ole G. Iverson deceased:

Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being this day granted unto Gulbrand Iverson of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court, for examination and allowance, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston on Monday the 13th day of November, A. D. 1893, at 10 a. m.

It is further ordered, that six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented to said Court, or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless, for cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to the day appointed for such examination, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said County.

Dated at Crookston the 31st day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[8-10]

Notice of Final Proof.

LAND OFFICE AT CROOKSTON, MINN.,
May 3d, 1893.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 19th, 1893, viz: Jacob Weidenhoefer, Hd. 12,056, for the ne¼ sec. 33, twp. 151, range 47.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Julius Radi, William Senske, Julius Zachge and George Bassler, all of Fisher, Postoffice, Minn.

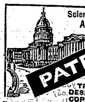
[4-9] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN



Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS,
DESIGN PATENTS,
COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE

North American Review

YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc.

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

FRESH VEGETABLES
RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice Lot of

CANNED GOODS

At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,

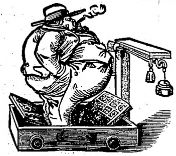
Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,

W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.

ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Price
—OF—
Groceries



HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as

TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,

I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.

Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,

BROADWAY, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BUY A WHEEL
EARLY

And get the benefit of full riding season. The Victor is the leader wherever known. Call and see one. We sell on terms to suit. We also have a line of low and medium priced wheels. We can suit anybody's pocket.

The Rushford Wagon still stands at the head; best material, best finish, best ironing, best paint, in fact it can't be beat.

Our usual line of Buggies, Carts, Harness, and other seasonable goods is complete, and prices right. Call and see.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE WORLD'S FAIR OPENS MAY 1ST.

Are You Going? If so be sure and take out a Membership Certificate in "The Chicago Entertainment Bureau."

It will save you Worry, Time and Money. Respectable and well located rooms at moderate prices guaranteed. Send for descriptive circulars to the

Minnesota and Dakota Headquarters, 618 AND 619 PIONEER PRESS BLDG., ST. PAUL,
N. T. HALL, Manager.

Partial List of References. HON. KNUTE NELSON, Gov. of Minnesota; HON. A. R. McGILL, Ex-Gov. of Minnesota; HON. W. R. MARSHALL, Ex Gov. of Minnesota; RT. REV. W. N. GILBERT, Ass't Bishop, Diocese, Minn., and many other equally well known names.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, June 7.

President Sacasa of Nicaragua will visit the United States.

Rear Admiral Gherardi has assumed command of the Brooklyn navy yard.

At Hammondsport, N. Y. the 4year-old child of A. Hultenschmidt died from the effects of a black spider's bite.

The sum of money given to the pope during his jubilee by bands of pilgrims, by Catholic orders and by individuals, amounts to 9,000,000 francs. The American pilgrims gave 600,000 francs.

William Boyce, one of the most expert burglars and safe crackers in the United States, has been arrested at Detroit, spoiling a well arranged plan for a big series of robberies.

Thursday, June 8.

The Bank of Washburn, Wis., has suspended.

The First National bank of Palouse, Wash., has closed its doors.

United States Minister to Belgium J. B. Ewing has sailed for Antwerp.

The postmaster general has decided that disease germs are absolutely unmailable.

Sixteen persons were injured by a gasoline explosion in a St. Louis grocery store.

Eastern passenger officials have decided to make special excursion rates to the world's fair of one fare for the round trip.

Dan Creedon, the champion middleweight of Australia, has signed articles of agreement calling for a finish battle with Alex Greggains of San Francisco.

Friday, June 9.

The Gross Savings bank at Hudson, Wis., has closed its doors.

James Gordon Bennett was dangerously injured by falling from a coach at Paris.

Milchoir Fox, one of the oldest citizens of Eau Claire, was murdered Thursday night, presumably by tramps.

The infanta and party visited the world's fair Thursday. Eulalie was greatly amazed at the extent and magnificence of the Chicago show.

The Winnipeg Street Railway company's stables were destroyed by fire Friday, together with between 60 and 70 horses which were in the building.

A Chinaman in prison for life in Montana for murder claims that as he could not register he should be deported, according to the Geary law. Habeas corpus proceedings will probably be instituted.

While reviewing a parade of school children at Columbus, O., the brother of the Duke of Veragua was stricken with angina pectoris, and for several moments it was thought he would not recover.

Saturday, June 10.

J. S. Clarkson of Iowa is said to contemplate making the race for senator.

The man who attempted to blow up the Montana National bank at Helena has confessed.

According to the schedules of the Northwestern Guarantee Loan company of Minneapolis the assets are $5,262,514, and the liabilities $3,145,722.

William G. French, who was serving a life sentence for the murder of Gavin M. Steele, has been taken back to Ashland, Wis., for a new trial ordered by the supreme court.

A New York widow who had advertised for a husband under various names and secured money from many gullible Westerners has been arrested by Postoffice Inspector Jones.

Masked robbers held up the Santa Fe train near Cimarron, Kan., Saturday and secured $1,000. Messenger Whittlesey refused to open the door and was shot and seriously wounded.

The Sacred Congregation of the propoganda has addressed a circular to the American Catholic bishops confirming the scholastic policy of Papal Delegate Satolli and of Archbishop Ireland.

Monday, June 12.

John Waugh, Indian agent at Devils Lake, N. D., has resigned.

The cost of entertaining the Spanish infanta at New York was $14,000.

Tom Roe has begun his bicycle race from New York to San Francisco against time. His schedule time is 65 days.

Cardinal Gibbons says that the position of the Catholic churches is that the world's fair should be open Sunday afternoons.

Important changes are to be made in the eight military departments. Some of the division commands are to be re-established, it is said.

Foreign governments are disposed to seek a voice in the control of the Nicaragua canal, which would lead to trouble with the United States.

Tuesday, June 13.

The Viking ships have been sighted off Manhassett.

The thermometer registered 100 in the shade in different cities of North Dakota Monday.

The trial of Whalen for the murder of Gerald Spaulding at Portage, Wis., has begun at Janesville.

On Monday five persons were killed by a boiler explosion at St. Johnsbury, Vt., and two at Peru, Ind.

In Saratoff, Russia, cholera is spreading so rapidly that an appeal has been sent out for physicians and nurses.

Five thousand of the ironworkers and coal and iron miners at Klando, 15 miles from Prague, are out on strike.

Fifty Egyptian convicts tried to escape from a guard. They were fired upon and 39 of them killed, 11 escaping.

Cholera is spreading rapidly in the department of Carde, Southern France. Paris physicians have been sent to investigate.

FARGO IS IN RUINS.

FIRE DEVASTATES THE NORTH DAKOTA CITY.

Block After Block of Business Buildings and Scores of Residences In Ashes. Loss Over $3,000,000, With Light Insurance—Preparing to Rebuild.

FARGO, June 8.—Fargo is in ruins. Fire started about 2:45 p. m. in a building in the rear of the dry goods store at the corner of Front and Fifth streets. A strong south wind was blowing, and despite the efforts of the Moorhead and Fargo fire departments soon crossed the street to McGill & Co.'s warehouse. From there it spread to the Northern Pacific Elevator company's building on Broadway. The flames spread rapidly and soon consumed the Red River Valley National bank, the Fargo Loan Agency, the Opera House block with five stores, the Columbia cafe, the Merchants State bank, the Kelson block, The Republican building, Keeney block and Great Northern depot. Completely Sweeping the east side of the street from Front to the Great Northern track. The Western Union office was burned out, and all the operators are working at Moorhead. The wind blew sparks further east, consuming the Deering warehouse and several other machine warehouses on the north side, a school and dozens of residences. At 4 o'clock a Moorhead alarm was sounded. It was thought the fire had crossed the river, and the Moorhead companies came back, but flames did not cross. The Grand Forks and Detroit fire departments are here. The Casselton, Valley City and Jamestown departments were also telegraphed for. About 6 o'clock The Wind Shifted and the west side of Broadway caught. The loss is estimated at nearly $1,000,000. About 3,000 people are homeless.

Every hotel in the city is burned, except the Headquarters. Only one bank is left in the city—the First National. Rows of solid business blocks, two blocks wide and five blocks long have been destroyed. Several firemen were hurt in the fire, some seriously, who are now in the hospital. J. J. Hill telegraphed to Moorhead to open the Grand Pacific hotel for the use of the Fargo homeless.

SUMMED UP.

Forty Business Houses and Dozens of Residences Destroyed.

FARGO, N. D., June 9.—The homeless people of this city are beginning to come to a full realization of their tremendous loss. Nearly 40 business blocks were burned and more than 200 residences, the total loss footing far above $3,000,000. Three thousand people were made homeless by the great conflagration. The schoolhouses, churches and public buildings left standing were all utilized as places of shelter during the night, and it cannot be said one of the hundreds driven out by the flames suffered for the want of shelter. The good women of the town turned out in brigades and organized To Feed the Unfortunate Ones. During the morning relief trains, with meat, flour and other provisions began to arrive, and it is said Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, Duluth and Milwaukee and other big cities will send liberal contributions of food. Clothing is much needed, although there is no actual suffering for food. All night people were in a panic, as the flames seemed not to diminish, while the sky was lit by the great flames, making the night almost as clear as day. The relief corps organized here received many reports of people who are missing, and without doubt it will develop a number of lives have been lost. The statement is given out that a meeting of insurance men estimated the loss of insured property at $2,800,000, and $500,000 on residences in the outskirts uninsured. Rates have been so high that but little property is insured for over one-third of its value.

RISING FROM RUINS.

Work of Rebuilding Fargo Already Begun.

FARGO, N. D., June 12.—Everything is settling down to business in Fargo. The ruins are still smoking, but at least 400 men are employed in clearing off the debris to commence rebuilding at once. Every building will be solid brick, and constructed just as near fireproof as possible. Many business men formerly on Broadway have tents already here and will open up in them one block further west, which street will be called New Broadway, and will be used until the new buildings are completed on their former sites. Everybody is feeling confident and the outlook is brighter than it has been in many days, as the fire has awakened all the old-time energy in the wide awake men of this city.

SONTAG CAPTURED.

The Notorious Stage Robber In Custody at Last.

VISALIA, Cal., June 13.—After a search extending over 10 months, and after six encounters with different legal posses, the notorious train robbers John Sontag and Chris Evans, finally met four deputy United States marshals, and, as a result of the encounter which followed, Sontag was wounded, possibly fatally, and is now in custody. His companion, Chris Evans, escaped after firing forty shots at his pursuers. Where he made his stand during the night he left his hat and two empty guns, and the ground was found covered with blood, indicating that he, too, is wounded. Being without guns or ammunition it is thought he will soon be captured.

RECIPROCITY CONVENTION.

Closing of the International Meeting at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, June 7.—Three sessions of the reciprocity convention were held during the day, the evening session being an open meeting, the feature of which was a speech by Congressman Springer of Illinois.

Resolutions Adopted.

Chairman E. V. Smalley, of the committee on resolutions, reported the resolutions adopted by the committee. They are as follows:

In the opinion of this convention the policy unanimously approved by the first international reciprocity convention at Grand Forks, and now reaffirmed, of removing the tariff restrictions upon our international trade so far as can be done consistantly with a due regard to the revenue requirements and other interests of the two nations, may be most advantageously carried into effect by a treaty providing for the free interchange of those classes of the products both natural and industrial of each one, that are the most generally in demand or usually find the readiest sale in the markets of the other. Such a policy in the circumstances of the United States and Canada is capable of being applied to many classes of industrial products, as well as to natural products generally. It would result in giving to Canada a market now denied it for much of its produce, with a compensating advantage to the United States, and that without affecting a large part of their respective customs revenues.

Resolved, That any reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada should provide for the free and common use, by the people of both countries of all canals now built or hereafter to be built to facilitate commerce between the great lakes and the ocean, and should also provide for free and open competition between the railway systems of the two countries, in order to reduce the cost of transportation from the interior to the seaboard to the lowest possible figure consistent with the efficiency and reasonable prosperity of the roads.

Resolved, That the cheapest possible transportation is a matter of prime importance to the interests of the whole Northwest, Canadian as well as American, and that we favor the improvements of existing waterways and the construction of additional channels of communication between the great lakes and the ocean of sufficient capacity to allow a free passage of ocean vessels, and which should be free of all tolls.

Officers Elected.

The officers who will serve the ensuing year are as follows: President, James Fisher, Winnipeg; vice presidents, A. H. Burke, Fargo; Frederick Driscoll, St. Paul; Captain J. C. Reno, Minneapolis; F. Winsor, West Superior; F. W. Strobart, Winnipeg; D. F. Burke, Port Arthur; Charles Braithwaite, Portage La Prairie; secretaries, D. R. McGinnis, Grand Forks; S. A. Thompson, Duluth; C. N. Bell, Winnipeg; J. H. Beck, St. Paul.

The next international reciprocity convention will be held at Duluth in October.

EDWIN BOOTH IS DEAD.

The Noted Tragedian's Long Struggle With Death at Last Ended.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Edwin Booth, the great tragedian, quietly passed away at his apartments in the Players' club at 1:15 a. m. At his bedside at the time were Mr. and Mrs. Grossman, his son-in-law and daughter; his physician, Dr. St. Clair Smith; Superintendent McGynigle, William Bishpan, an intimate friend, and Charles Farrell. The death of the renowned actor, which had been expected at any time the past two days, was very peaceful, being scarcely noticeable to the anxious watchers at the bedside.

BY ACCLAMATION.

McKinley Nominated For Governor of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—The Republican state convention renominated Governor McKinley by acclamation, and with great enthusiasm. No other condidates were before the convention. The balance of the state ticket was also renominated by acclamation, with the exception of dairy and food commissioner. Governor McKinley was escorted to the hall and made a speech of acceptance. The Duke of Veragua and party were interested spectators.

Annie Murphy's Sentence.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., June 13.—Annie Murphy Doolittle was sentenced by Judge Searle to four years in the penitentiary for forgery. She nearly fainted when sentence was pronounced upon her.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 13, 1893.

HOGS—Steady and active. Range of prices, $6.42½@6.45.

CATTLE—Steady, but quiet; little offered. Prime steers, $4.00@4.35; good steers, $3.50@4.00; prime cows, $3.00@3.50; good cows, $2.50@3.00; common to fair cows, $1.50@2.40; light veal calves, $3.00@4.25; heavy calves, $1.75@3.00; stockers, $2.25@3.25; feeders, $2.75@3.50; bulls, $1.75@2.75.

SHEEP—Market steady. Good shorn muttons, $4.50@5.00; lambs, $5.00@5.65; stockers and feeders, $3.00@4.50.

Receipts: Hogs, 10; cattle, 10; sheep, 5.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 13, 1893.

WHEAT—July, opening, 60⅛c; highest, 60¼c; lowest, 59¾c; closing, 59¾c. September opening, 64¼c; highest, 64¼c; lowest, 63⅝c; close, 63⅝c. On track—No. 1 hard, 61c; No. 1 Northern, 59c; No. 2 Northern, 57c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, June 13, 1893.

CATTLE—Steady.

HOGS—Strong, 5@10c higher. Heavy, $6.70@7.00; mixed and medium, $6.60@7.00; light, $6.65@7.00.

SHEEP—Steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 15,000; hogs, 23,000; sheep, 12,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 13, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 67¼c; September, 71⅝c.

CORN—July, 39¼c; September, 41¼c.

OATS—July, 28¼c; September, 25⅝c.

PORK—July, $20.15.

LARD—July, $10.15; September, $10.62½.

SHORT RIBS—September, $9.75.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—June, 64⅝c; July, 66c; September, 70¼c.

CORN—June, 38⅝c; July, 39⅝c; September, 41c.

OATS—June, 29⅝c; July, 28⅝c; September, 25⅝@25⅞c.

PORK—July, $20.00; September, $21.00.

LARD—June, $9.95; July, $10.15; September, $10.65.

SHORT RIBS—July, $9.67½; September, $9.67½.

The Glorious Sun of the Amusement Firmament

Shedding its effulgence and Benign Influence Over the Whole Universe.

SELLS BROS.'

MONSTER MONOPOLY

OF ALL THAT IS WORTH SEEING IN THE TENTED FIELD.

Magnificent 3-ring Circus, Royal Roman Hippodrome, Huge Elevated Stages, Five Continent Menagerie, African Aquariam, Aurtralian Bird show, Arabian Caravan, Spectacular Pegeants, and Trans-Pacific Wild Beast Exhibits.

Will Exhibit at Crookston

Saturday, June 24th.

INTERIOR
SELLS BROTHERS
FIVE CONTINENT MENAGERIE

The Sempiternal Sponsors of the World's Greatest Sensations.—Its promises are staple ans as current as gold.—Its visits are hailed with delight at home and abroad.—The highest standard of value the world over.—In America it stands pre-eminent and alone.—In Australia it was the theme of universal praise.—in Canada it stood on the very pinnacle of prominence.—In Mexico it astonished all beholders.—As permanently fixed as the stars.—As popular and welcome as knowledge itself.—As perfect as the universal laws of nature.—As true as the needle to the pole.—As firm as Gibralter in public favor;—

IT IS THE LARGEST TRAVELING SHOW ON EARTH.

It is so admitted by all disinterested people.—Other shows privately admit it, although for policy's sake they may publicly deny it.—It has more people in its employ. This is never denied.—It has the most noted performers. This is universally conceded.—It uses the most cars to transport it. All Railroad men know it,—It is as superior to other shows as the Columbian Exposition is to an ordinary pumpkin and quilt fair.—It has the finest parade ever seen on any public streets in the world.—It has the finest horses. All horsemen admit it.—It has the best music.—It has the handsomest women.—It has the bravest men.—It has the prettiest ponies.—Is has the grandest Spectacle.—It has the richest Pageants.—It has the only pair of—

MONSTER BEHEMOTHS

Spoken of in the Songs of Job. They are the rarest, costliest and most interesting animals ever captured.

What other show can approach it in character, in size, in merit, in management, in morality, in every worthy featues? What other show has a whole school of Sea Lions and Alaskan Seals, taught to perform feats so wonderful as to defy description. They play on banjos, mandolins, drums, cymbals and bells, fire off guns, drill like soldiers, play base ball, walk on tight rope, sing and are actually endowed with reason, and do everything but talk.—What other show has a flock of full grown Ostriches?—What other show has five giant Royal East Indian Tigers?—What other show has three rings, two stages, twelve tents, four hundred horses, one hundred ponies, one thousand men, women and children?—What other show has three hundred circus celebrities? What other show has one hundred beautiful Ladies in Amazonian marches, ballets, choruses and spectacular displays.—What other show has fifty Clowns appearing at one time?—What other show has Oriental Pageants resplendent with the most extravagant and costly paraphernalia, housings and gold-trimmed wardrobe, faithfully portraying the triumphal scenes in the Pilgrimage of the Mohammedans from Medina to Mecca?—What other show has a monster Unicorn?—What other show has two elevated stages, filled with the most exciting and wonderful performances?—What other show has one hundred acts in its Amphitheater?—What other show has 50 exciting Races in its Hippodrome?—What other show has a curiosity one-half so wonderful as Jo-Jo, the remarkable human Sky-terrier, an intelligent man with the head of a pet dog?—What other show has ten kinds of music?—What other show has a genuine Japanese Circus?—What other show has one hundred emblazoned Chariots, Floats and Tableaux in its Grand Free Street Parade?—What other show has tons of Ivoried Mammoths?—What other show has Zebras broken to work in harness?—What other show has a family of playful Baby Tigers?—What other show has Elands, Elks, Moose, Water Buffaloes, Midget Cattle, Hairless Horse, Llamas, Bison, Antelopes and Ostriches, led and loose in the magnificent Pageant Entre?—What other show has always exhibited every advertised feature?

SELLS BROTHERS Are mighty in being always fair to the public and generous to rivals. They are the creators of the show that bears their name, have personally managed it continuously for twenty-two years, and have the proud distinction of introducing more legitimate character and responsibility into the show business than was ever known before. They do not borrow the cast-off plumes of dead men to masquerade in. They do not travel under dead men's names.

SELLS BROTHERS

Are alive and will be at their respective posts to welcome their millions of friends who honor them with a visit this year. You can rely on seeing just what is promised. Others have copied our advertisements and stolen our title, but our show is too big, too great, too magnificent, to well known, to be successfully imitated. You will not regret your visit to Sells Brothers' Shows and its pleasant memories will endure for years.

$10,000 to be Given Away Free.

Who Can Make the Best Guess?

The pair of Hippopotami, which have formed the central figure in our Menagerie, are now on their farewell American tour, and Sells Brothers have decided to give away Ten Thousand Dollars to the ones who make the nearest guesses of their combined weight.

$5,000 to the one guessing nearest to their actual combined weight.

$3,000 to the one making the second best guess.

$2,000 to the one making the third best guess.

This offer is open to all patrons of Sells Brothers' Show during the World's Fair season. A box will be placed in front of the Hippopotami cage, and every visitor will be supplied with a card upon which the person making a guess writes his or her name and post-office address and the weight guessed. At the close of the season the prizes will be awarded. We promise to faithfully carry out this proposition. SELLS BROS.

Be in town early and secure good places where you can see the mightiest, Richest, Longest and most novel

Street Parade

Ever seen in any city in the world. Two performances daily at usual prices, and although it is worth ten times as much it costs no more than to see an ordinary show.

Crookston, - Saturday, - June - 24th.

GREAT NORTHERN

Railway

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday,
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily
For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Ashland, Duluth, Chicago, and for all points South, East and West.........at 6:40 p. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north, ...at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c
Eggs, per dozen	12½c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	80c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	54
1 Northern	52.
2 Northern	49.
3 Northern	41.
Rejected	28.

'Round Home.

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

Mrs. O. Rosaaen was up from Halstad on Monday.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Mrs. Dr. Chapin came down from Euclid on Monday.

The Crookston Belle—Kœppe's new cigar, is as fine as silk. Try it.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

S. L. Collins has received a fine canopy top surrey for his livery. Every body call for the surrey.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor:

Monday was said to be the hottest day of the season; 103 degrees in the shade reported.

Those rooms need papering. Let S. A. Wallace figure on the paper. Medical hall. [6tf]

Farmers, bring your dressed hogs during the summer months to the Crookston Packing House and we will tell you the truth how you can realize the most money out of them.
[4-11] ROBERT STANTON.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fegan attended the Hill celebration in St. Paul, and Mrs. Fegan staid over till Sunday to visit friends.

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

If you are going to paint that house or barn this year it will pay you to get prices on paints of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. [6-tf]

A wild man from Euclid, affected by the heat, or spirits of some kind took a large-sized desire to fight on Monday evening. He met his "Corbet" and very quickly got over his desire to fight.

Mayor Stephens returned Sunday from St. Paul.

Mrs. Henry Lewis and family went below last week for a visit with relatives and friends.

Miss. Julia Bloom has engaged to teach the school in the Sands district, town of Northland for three months.

Geo. M. Swift was in from Mentor on Tuesday. Says the hot winds of Monday had a bad effect on grain.

The weather prophet Hicks says that if we do not get some rain very soon there will be a long-continued drouth.

Miss Frankie Bearns and Miss Irene Harris returned from a pleasant visit to the twin cities on Sunday morning.

Will Peterson, Will Walker, F. Markham and Carl Reidesel took S. L. Collins' elegant new top surrey for a drive to Fisher on Tuesday afternoon.

Such fine, growing weather as we are now having is the pride and boast of Minnesota. Nothing but a general blight can prevent an excellent yield.

A. K. Austin has bought out the Scandia Furniture Co., and will move the stock back into the opera block in the room formerly occupied by the concern.

Frank Mattson, a brother of Editor Mattson, of the Warren Sheaf, was in the city last Friday on his way home from a month's trip to Chicago, Michigan and the southern part of the state.

Charlie Misner says he has more young chicks than anybody—100 at last count and a dozen or so hens yet to report. Figures on some "brilers" soon.

The Red River Valley Elevator Co., and the Northern Pacific Elevator Co., appear to be in hot water. A receiver in each case has been or will be appointed.

Casper Sands has sent his stallion out to the farm near Warren. Five teams came down on Sunday after lumber for a large stock barn. The Sands Bros., have finished seeding a larger area than ever before and report their grain looking nicely.

Mrs. Rev. O. H. Elmer of this city, Mrs. Capt. Walker of Argyle, Miss McCrea of Warren, Mrs. J. M. Palmer of Angus, were a delegation which left Tuesday evening for Detroit to attend a womans' missionary meeting of the Red River Presbytery.

Inspector Maine, who represents the Insurance Company of North America and the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Co. was in the city last Saturday looking over his companies' risks at this point. These two companies lose $105,000 by the Fargo fire.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arnold, Miss Mabel Arnold and Mr. Sigourd Elstad drove out to Maple Lake Saturday and returned Monday. They report having had a pleasant trip and some of the party enjoyed a sail on the lake, with the wind blowing about 40 miles an hour.

Halvor Grundesen, clerk of Bygland township, and Knute K. Knuteson, chairman of said township, and Asper Olson, also of Bygland, were in the city last Friday attending court as witnesses in the suit of Anton Lindem against Bygland township for damages.

Auditor Webster informs us that $2,575.44 worth of seed wheat was given out by the commissioners to farmers in the northeast and eastern portions of the county—Poplar River and Grove Park townships receiving most aid. These towns seem to be subject to hail to a considerable degree.

Last week practically wound up the seeding operations in the valley, but one or two—who had some spring plowing to do for barley were seeding on Monday and Tuesday. Potatoes are beginning to show up quite prominently and with everything else making rapid growth.

The Great Northern is now running the new mugul engines on this end of the road. There are now 25 of them in use on the Great Northern. They are powerful engines, and are warranted to draw a train of 12 coaches at the rate of 60 miles an hour against a strong wind. They have 6 six foot driving wheels and weigh 108 tons without a load.

The citizens of Moorhead have subscribed liberally to the fund for the relief of the Fargo sufferers. Among those who put up $500 each were S. G. Comstock and A. A. White. Subscriptions ranging from $50 to $500 were numerous. Moorhead, being herself in danger can appreciate the situation fully and this offering partakes the nature of a thankgiving offering.

Such days as Monday and Tuesday of this week the city could well afford to employ two water carts, as it is an utter impossibility for one to cover ground enough to prevent dust from blowing everywhere. The ground to be covered by one is so extensive that before the cart gets around the place of beginning is as dry as a bone. Two carts are as much of a necessity as one.

Ole Bang came back from his fishing trip to Duluth on Thursday of last week via St. Paul where he took in the big parade of Wednesday. He reported having had an elegant time—caught 100 trout the day that he spent in whipping a Wisconsin trout brook. Said that by the time he reached home those trout would have cost him one round dollar each. He sent 25 fine large trout to Halvor Steenerson from Duluth. Ole says he hasn't had so much fun before since he quit farming.

Through the kindness of our old-time friend W. H. Box, of Tacoma, a copy of the Examiner, published at San Francisco lies on our table. This particular issue is called the Worlds Fair issue and contains only 120 pages of matter—not including a highly colored illustrated cover. We have only had half a day to examine it so can not give a complete synopsis of its contents but we propose to take a week's furlough at an early day and review it for publication.

When one contemplates the vast amount of feed our feed stores have sold to farmers this spring one is led to wonder why it is that these farmers have not raised feed enough to supply their own demand. Some of this feed, of course, has been raised by Polk County farmers but by far the most of it has been shipped in from outside points. Indications, however point to a change in this particular as very many farmers have largely reduced their wheat area and sowed more barley and oats than ever before. This is as it should be.

Chris. Houston:—"This everlasting howl that I hear about the hot wind of Monday ruining the grain makes me exceedingly weary. I don't believe it damaged the crops ten cents worth in the whole county. If you want to see the grain looking fresh and bright all you have to do is to get up in the morning at four o'clock, as farmers do, and then you will see that the grain is all right. One habit of human nature I don't like pretty much—the habit some have of howling before they are hurt."

On Tuesday about one o'clock while Harry Halvorson and Tollef Mikelson were driving a broncho hitched to a road cart the animal got frightened near Herb's corner and turning suddenly pitched Mikelson out upon the ground with great force cutting and bruising his face up a good bit. The other man managed to stay in the cart and control the horse but one spoke was broken from the cart and Halla came near losing a barkeeper.

It seems that when Collins and Mike went up to Tabor and vicinity last week they did a little missionary work by way of visiting several district schools—evidently imagined they were superintendent of public schools. Among the schools visited were those of Miss Maud Leguee and Miss Nellie McGuire and they report those young ladies as having excellent schools and good success. At any time Superintendent Lommen should require an extra assistant superintendent he should not fail to remember Collins and Mike.

Comparing business on the coast with buisiness here, John McLean, who has been at South Bend, Wash., for there years or more, says that he considers that we of Polk county have no reason to complain. Business of all kinds there is extremely stagnant just now but people are living in hopes to see an early revival and while the "boom times" may not come again soon they hope for great improvement. Their chief resources—lumber and minerals seem inexhaustible and fruits will also cut a large figure but as for cereals they are not in it to a very large degree as the really good agricultural lands are exceedingly scarce. They have boundless forests of timber which will supply any quantity of lumber and shingles for years. John says he can see no reason why a man in this country who has a quarter section of good land, paid for, need be worrying much about hard times.

G. Moen, a resident of Woodside, died on Tuesday at the age of about 75 years.

Judge Benson was out to his farm over Sunday.

J. W. Peterson took in the great doings in St. Paul last week.

J. S. Stadsvold has moved his stock into Fred Durand's drug store.

Attorney Wm. Watts took in the great celebration in St. Paul last week.

Children's Day was generally observed in the various city churches on Sunday.

A shower or two now and then would not come amiss to brighten up vegetation a bit.

W. H. Averill and Lewis Lohn were down from Fosston on court business last week.

I. I. Hillestad was in the city from Fosston on Thursday shaking hands with his many friends.

Wm. Anglim took formal possession of the office of receiver at the Land office last week.

O. H. Thorson, of East Grand Forks, gave this office a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

Frank Bivins is having an artesian well sunk on his lot on the corner of Ash and Robert streets.

Mrs. Copeland and the girls intend to start for their new home in Seattle about the first of July.

The JOURNAL is informed that Mrs. E. E. Bangs has opened a large millinery store in Stockton, California.

Union temperance services will be held in the M. E. church on Sunday evening. Rev. J. G. Smith will preach.

A number of Crookstonites went out to Maple Lake on Saturday via the bicycle route returning Sunday afternoon.

Casper Sands has broken up housekeeping in the city and on Monday moved his family out to his farm near Warren.

More than twenty horses are being trained at the driving park which shows that Polk county is right in it for trotters.

Adolph Rauch goes to Wabasha next week to join his wife who is visiting there and together they will go to Chicago to attend the World's Fair.

Rev. Saugstad's team ran away on Thursday of last week and colliding with a wire fence were badly cut up. Dr. Warninger was called to attend them and found a good bit of sewing up necessary.

Wouldn't an ice cream festival be a capital antidote for this hot weather? The good ladies of the First M. E. church are preparing to meet this much-felt want on Friday evening in the church parlors, corner of Broadway and Fletcher. Let everybody attend and have a refreshing time.

A call at the pop factory on Saturday convinced our reporter that J. H. Peterson knows how to sustain the reputation of that institution—judging from samples. He is doing a large business and is prepared to put up any and everything in his line that can be thought of. He is prepared to fill all orders for any amount at anytime.

The Methodist Social Union will hold its semi-annual business meeting for the election of officers and hearing of reports, in the auditorium of the First M. E. church, on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. A short musical and literary program is being arranged, and a good social time is expected. Ice cream will be served by the ladies during the evening in the church parlors.

Herb Newland has been papering the express office which now looks as neat as wax.

Nup Christianson came down from McIntosh on Saturday evening returning on Tuesday morning. Says crops look nicely out there.

Drinking water is at a premium in these days. It seems as if Nature was trying to make up for the past several months by a super-abundant supply of caloric.

Somebody remarked that the weather on Sunday was extremely hot—but it was only a hundred or so in the shade.

Tollef Farden—the only original Tollef was in the city last week and did not fail to give this office a lively, friendly call. Tollef is a hustler from way back.

S. L. Collins has painted up his office and will do business in style. By the way he is doing lots of business.

Tom McDonald and F. McSherry, who have been working for H. F. Brown for the past year left for Fargo on Sunday.

Frank Farnum's chair was turned toward the wall on Monday and on inquiry of the cause thereof barber Misner informed our scribe that Frank was off for his first furlough of a day or so—gone to Fargo to see the sights.

R. B. Gates and wife returned on Friday from there Rochester trip after an enjoyable visit of a few days duration.

Earnest Ralsch received another consignment of stuffed animals and fowls last week. Among them was a flying squirrel, a white rat, a mud hen and two lively specimens of the duck family, (whose "botanical" name we forget just now,) that are worth a trip to his place to see. If he would keep the specimens he gets it would not be long before he had a regular circus.

Farmers who have had barley and oats to sell this spring are not kicking much at "hard times." There has been a good cash market for those grains all this spring and very much more money in them than wheat. Add to these articles a little beef to sell now and then, a hog or so to turn off at gilt-edged prices, butter and eggs enough to supply the market and farming in the Valley will line up with other business with the profit on the right side.

Ole Hanson, Lewis Lohn and Attorney Averill drove down to Hillsboro last Friday where they took the train for Fargo to survey the ruins. They returned on Sunday morning and report that it was the most desolate sight they ever saw. The fires were not all out when they came away and the sites were not sufficiently cooled to admit of any preparations for re-building. As soon as possible, however the work of clearing away the rubbish will be commenced upon many sites and then new buildings will go up rapidly.

Tom Torgerson was in from Erskine on Monday arranging for a grand Fourth of July celebration at Erskine, July 4th. Says they are going to have a big turn out there. He has fixed up a fine sail-boat for the lake which he will rent to parties with or without a driver.

M. Leguee was down at Fisher on Monday doing some veterinary work. While there he received a shock that he will not recover from for a time or so. It was all because a committee of fifteen waited on Tom Erwin in behalf of some division scheme. He said they had planned, in case Crookston should refuse to allow the east end of the county to peacefully go to pieces, with a county seat at McIntosh, Erskine, Tilden, Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire, Wylie and Shirley, to go in cahoots with East Grand Forks for a county seat there, one at Mallory and one at Fisher which plan would leave a margin of about six rods around Crookston which would be Polk county. Mike says this committee has things so arranged that the rest of the people 'aint in it—they admit that themselves. It is possible, however that the question may have to be voted upon in which event the plan of the "committee" may get warped somewhat.

Badly Hurt.

The following item from the Moorhead Daily News of Monday, May 29th, will be read with regret by the many friends of the worthy couple to whom this item refers:

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Daniels while driving a team away from the Minneapolis and Northern elevator Saturday afternoon were thrown from the wagon and severely hurt. The horses crowded out from the road and the wagon was overturned and both Mr. and Mrs. Daniels thrown out and severely hurt. Dr. Darrow was called and found that Mrs Daniels had two ribs broken and several bruises on the body, while Mr. Daniels' right shoulder blade was broken. The doctor set the broken bones and the injured parties were removed to their home.

Julius Berg was down from Euclid on Monday to see if he could find that wife of his who has failed to report for duty for several days. Julius has an idea that she has gone with a handsomer man.

Pay the Price of the Royal for Royal only

Royal Baking Powder is shown by chemical tests absolutely pure and 27 per cent. greater in strength than any other. Many second-class brands of baking powder are urged upon consumers at the price of the high-cost, first-class Royal. These powders, because of the inferior quality of their ingredients, cost much less than the Royal, besides being 27 per cent. less strength. If they are forced upon you, see that you are charged a correspondingly lower price for them.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

RECKITT BLOCK
MEAT MARKET,
VINE & RICHINGS, Props.
FRESH AND SALT MEATS,
—Constantly on hand.
GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
—In season.
Highest price paid for
FAT CATTE, HOGS, = = =
= = = SHEEP and POULTRY.

RED RIVER VALLEY
LOAN AND INVESTMENT COMPANY.

MONEY TO LOAN
ON REAL ESTATE.

FARMS AND LANDS
For Sale in nearly all the Towns of Polk County.

=CITY LOTS=
In Crookston and Thief River Falls.
List your Lands and Lots with us and effect quick sales.

OFFICE IN OPERA HOUSE BLOCK.

A. G. GALLASCH, Pres.
J. W. WHEELER, Vice Pres.
W. H. MATHEWS, 1st Vice Pres.
A. F. GEORGE, Sec.
O. H. LUCKEN, Treasurer.

Historical Society

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1893. NO. 10

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor	Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor	David M. Clough.
Secretary of State	F. P. Brown.
Attorney General	H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.	Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist.	E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.	John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court	Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District	Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court	Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor	C. U. Webster
Treasurer	J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds	John Amundson
Attorney	A. R. Holston
Sheriff	Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate	C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools	A. A. Lommen
Surveyor	O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r	W. H. Averill
Coroner	Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District	John E. Oppegaard
Second District	Anton Linden
Third District	M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District	C. P. Demers
Fifth District	A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Nerl A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Any style of pattern in wall paper and any price you want you will find at Medical hall. You can save money by allowing S. A. Wallace to quote you prices. [6tf]

Dr. M J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May, while in Des Moines en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhœa. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhœa Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliabiliy, he procured a 25 cent bottle, two doses of which completly cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhœa. Every one should procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. For sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

If it's wall paper you want don't fail to see S. A. Wallace's large and complete stock. Prices the lowest on record, this spring. At Medical hall. [6-tf]

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of the Brgular Meeting of the Council Held June 13th.

Sewer Contract Let—the Landslide at the Railroad Crossing Discussed.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening, June 13th, 1893.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll Call.

Aldermen present:—Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen absent:—Walker, Norrie.

Minutes of previous meetings read and approved.

The committee on city printing reported that they had looked into the matter of facilities of each paper bidding on the work, and reported that they were all competent to do it, and as regarding circulation the Times has the largest, in their estimation, while the JOURNAL followed with the Tribune last. On motion the report was accepted and the committee discharged.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the following bills.

T. H. Bjoin, rent	$ 10 00
Mrs. Wyatt, burial expenses	13 00
Edward Allard, board	15 00
Fontaine & Anglim, merchandise	4 62
S. A. Wallace, medicine	12 15
Ed. Allard, board poor	15 50
D. F. McDonald, labor in First ward	133 87
D. F. McDonald, labor in Second ward	101 15
D. F. McDonald, labor in Fourth ward	120 88
D. F. McDonald, labor in Fifth ward	78 37
D. F. McDonald, general labor	57 50

On motion the report was accepted and the bills reported upon favorably, ordered paid.

The committee upon furniture for the engineer's office asked for further time, which was granted.

The matter of damages and injuries to a horse owned by A. D. Lytle was referred to the attorney with the request to report at the next meeting.

The committee appointed to look into the matter of putting a sidewalk into the police office door reported in favor of putting in a five foot walk and recommended that it be done at once. Report accepted.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Simmons, that Sargeant Bros. be permitted to put in a stand pipe on Second street near the First National Bank, at their own expense, providing that this authority may be rescinded by the council at any time that it may see fit. Carried.

Bill of L. Laframboise for $5.00 was presented and on motion ordered paid.

W. H. Norrie asked that he might put in a driveway between Third and Fourth streets near his wood yard, at his own expense. Granted on the condition that he would keep it in good condition.

The city engineer passed in a report on the Front street sewer.

TO THE HONORABLE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CROOKSTON.

GENTLEMEN:—I have made no movement whatever in the Front street sewer construction as upon critical examination of the ground I fear and predict the same trouble there that has prevailed with the Third street outlet. I deem it highly unsafe to proceed with the construction of so expensive a piece of work upon such a hazardous piece of ground and especially so when a slight change in the plans will give equally as good if not more favorable results at a less cost and upon a secure foundation. I respectfully submit the matter to you for action.

Respectfully,
W. F. ARNOLD,
City Engineer.

The city engineer sent in a report upon the cost of a sidewalk on Eighth street.

TO THE HONORABLE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CROOKSTON.

GENTLEMEN:—In the matter of a sidewalk from Main to Broadway streets along the north line of Eighth street, referred to me by your honorable body for an estimate of cost I would respectfully report an estimate of ninety-nine dollars and seventy cents ($99.70)

Lumber, 4,100 feet 1st com. @ $17	$69 70
Nails	20 00
Labor	10 00
Total	$99 70

Apprtioned as follows:

	Lot	Block	Front.	Am't.
Owner unknown	1	10	140	$46 50
City of Crookston		Alley	20	6 70
Owner unknown	24	10	140	46 50
				$99 70

Respectfully submitted,
W. F. ARNOLD,
City Engineer.

On motion the reports were accepted.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Morrisey, that all bids for publishing notices, ordinances, resolutions and other matters of the city be rejected, and that the clerk be instructed to again advertise for bids for the work. Carried.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston, held the 13th day of June 1893, Alderman Watts offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Morrisey.

Resolved: That the bid of the Crookston Tribune for job printing of the city for the ensuing year be accepted and the contract for doing such job printing be awarded to said Crookston Tribune.

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative; Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Watts, Morrisey, Marlette, Simmons, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of council.

Passed this 13th day of June 1893.
JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 14th day of June 1893.
A. D. STEPHENS, Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston, held the 13th day of June 1893, Alderman Anderson offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Morrisey.

The city council of the City of Crookston does hereby resolve, that there be and hereby is assessed upon and against the lots or parcels of land hereinafter described situate in the City of Crookston in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota the respective amounts set opposite each separate lot or parcel of land, lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 hereinafter named are in block ten, and lots 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18 are in block seven in Fletcher & Houston's addition to the City of Crookston.

This assessment is levied to pay the expenses of the City of Crookston in constructing a sewer along Broadway from its intersection with Fletcher street to the man-hole at the intersection of Broadway with Loring street and said lots and parcels of land are assessed on a basis of an equal sum per front foot along the line of such improvement.

Owner's Name.	Lot.	Blk.	Front	Dol.
M. E. Church	13	7	50 ft	$26 00
Caroline Anderson	14	7	50 ft	26 00
Fred Anderson	15	7	50 ft	26 00
A. Chabot	16	7	50 ft	26 00
D. N. Taylor	17	7	50 ft	26 00
Mrs. Pierce	18	7	50 ft	26 00
S. W. Vance	6	10	50 ft	26 00
Geo. Q. Erskine	5	10	50 ft	26 00
Geo. Q. Erskine	4	10	50 ft	26 00
Nor. Luth Church	3	10	50 ft	26 00
O. O. Christianson	2	10	50 ft	26 00
O. H. Lucken	1	10	50 ft	26 00

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of council.

Passed this 13th day of June 1893.
JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 14th day of June 1893.
A. D. STEPHENS, Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

A petition was presented by residents and property owners living on State street in Jerome's addition asking that it be opened and graded.

On motion the matter was referred to the city engineer with the request to bring in a report as to the cost of work, etc.

Bids for building the construction of sewers were opened.

Two bids were received.

TO THE HONORABLE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CROOKSTON.

GENTLEMEN:—I beg leave herewith to submit the following bid: For construction of a sewer on Second street from Broadway to Ash street and on Ash from Second to Third street, for three dollars ($3.00) per running foot and one hundred dollars ($100) each for man-holes and sixty dollars ($60.00) each for catch basins.

If given the contract will furnish sufficient bonds for efficient and faithful performance of the work according to said plans and specifications.

T. H. BANG.

Dated Crookston, Minn., June 13th 1893.

TO THE HONORABLE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CROOKSTON.

GENTLEMEN:—I beg leave herewith to submit the following bid: For construction of a sewer on Broadway from Fletcher to Loring streets according to plans and specifications on file in the office of city engineer, for one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per running foot and seventy-five dollars ($75.00) for the man-hole. If given the contract will furnish sufficient bonds for efficient and faithful performance of the work according to said plans and specifications.

T. H. BANG.

Dated Crookston, Minn., June 13th 1893.

Moved by Alderman Anderson seconded by Alderman Morrisey that the bid of T. H. Bang for constructing the sewer on Broadway be accepted and the contract let to Mr. Bang, he to furnish bonds to the amount of three hundred dollars ($300) the contract to be completed inside of 60 days.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marlette, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None. Declared carried.

The liquor bonds of Hoch & Montague were referred back for correction, also that A. S. Gates.

The following applications for selling liquors were received. Hiren & Johnson, Earnest Rolsch, Sundet Bros. Hoch & Montague. Stuhl & Waterstadt, Henry Burkhardt, W. O. Wilson, M. Mercil, J. J. Molstad, A. S. Gates, Eli Asselin, A. Brosseau.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey, seconded by Alderman Anderson, that when we adjourn it be to meet again on Friday 30th at the usual hour. Carried.

The bid of T. H. Bang for sewers on Ash and Second streets were laid

An ordinance relating to the use of bicycles on sidewalk was presented and laid over.

An ordinance relating to a telephone company was read.

An ordinance relating to a gas plant was read.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Morrisey, that Wm. Cunningham be elected as poundmaster for the ensuing year. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Anderson, that the resolution passed at the last meeting relating to a sidewalk on Loring street be reconsidered. Carried.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 13th day of June 1893, Aldermen Jennings offered the following resolution which was seconded by Alderman Anderson:

Resolved by the city council of the city of Crookston that a sidewalk be constructed along lots one and eighteen in block seven in Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston, on the north side of Loring street between Broadway and Main street, six feet in width and made of white pine plank two inches thick surfaced on one side and well nailed with 20-penny spikes upon three stringers of 3 by 6 inch dimension timbers. All lumber to be used in constructing said sidewalk to be of at least as good quality as first common white pine timber and such sidewalk is directed to be laid on the line and grade as established by the city engineer.

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 13th day of June 1893.
JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 14th day of June, 1893.
A. D. STEPHENS,
Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

The sewer committee reported that the slide at the railroad crossing was again causing trouble, and they had been compelled to put in a curbing about 6 feet square down to the connection of the old sewer and the new so as to be prepared to repair it if necessary.

On motion council adjovrned.

E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Wanted.

Smart young man or lady to canvas at Farm Institute at Crookston. Address, Wool and Mutton, box 969, Minneapolis. [10]

Estray.

Came on my premises on section 12, Andover, on or about June 5th 1893, one black hog, about six months old. The owner is hereby notified to prove property, pay charges and take the whole hog or none.

[9-11] T. H. BJOIN.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 18th, 1893.

Jordal, Karie A.
Marcotte, Moise
Ramage, Sarrah
Soderquist, Julia
Vestad, Beathe
Klien, G. D.
Paulin, Napolin
Schultz, C. A.
Torgerson, Knute

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

The Crookston Ft. Stevenson & Montana Railroad.

This railroad which has lain dormant for so long seems about to be revived and built. The officers of this road are John McLean, president and M. R. Brown, Felix Fournet, John Cromb, A. M. Stewart, Lewis Ellington and Senator Henry Burkhardt, directors. This road is intended to run east from Crookston to some point on the Duluth & Winnipeg road, thus giving us direct communication with Duluth and easy access to the lumber and mineral regions and west to Fort Stevenson running about midway between the N. P. and the Great Northern railroads, thus giving us direct connection with the great coal fields of the west. The benefits of this system are too obvious to need discussion the only question of interest being the ability to build it and it is thought that the Canadian Pacific can be induced to take hold of the project in which case the road could be built.

A Large Drop in Rates to the West.

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 18th inst. with sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 per cent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced first-class from $60.00 to $35.00; to Helena and Butte from $40.00 to $25.00, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets, both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost about one-half of that of the older transcontinental lines, and is therefore prepared to do correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Does Farming Pay?

Well, that question depends so much upon circumstances that a universal answer would not fit every case. We know of instances where it does not seem to make the individual rich but we also know of cases that seem to indicate that it may be made to pay as well as other kinds of business. Here is a case in point. A few years ago Jos. Laframboise bought a half section in the town of Fairfax for which he paid $2500. The first crop of wheat he took off netted him $2200 and he had 800 bushels of oats besides. That fall he refused a cash offer of $4000 for the place. He has never met with a crop failure on the place and it has paid him already many times the purchase price. Besides this place he has worked his home farm near Gentilly and recently he added a half section to that. Does farming pay?

To Puget Sound June 18th, 1893.

Beginning June 18th, the Great Northern begins through service on its new short line from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Seattle, Everett, Fairhaven, New Whatcom, Blaine and other Puget Sound cities. The route is 123 miles the shortest from the east to Pacific tide-waters. It opens up a territory offering fine inducements to investors and housekeepers. It is also an attractive route for tourists. [10]

Bids for City Printing.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston.

The City Council of the City of Crookston will receive sealed proposals to do the printing and publish ing of all ordinances, resolutions, proceedings and other matter required to be published by the city council of the City of Crookston for the ensuing year, all matter to be measured on a basis of solid nonpariel. Said bids to be opened at a regular meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening July 11th, 1893. Bids to be accompanied by bonds in the sum of $500. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

[9-12] E. C. CARRUTH,
[SEAL] City Clerk.

Found $25.

$25. has been found by us to be sufficient to pay a full tuition in telegraphy and all railroad office business, if paid before August 1, 1893.

This is a chance of a lifetime.

Write for our special June offer to the Austin Telegraphic Inst' and Railroad Business College, Austin, Minn.

COUGHING LEADS TO C NSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

DAVIS' PATENT.

He Thinks he has a Railroad Tie now that Beats the World.

Many of our citizens, who were here in the eighties, will remember the patent railroad tie invented by E. C. Davis, which was considered at the time perfection itself. It was a good design, but the expense of producing an iron tie, at that time proved an insuperable barrier, when taken in connection with the fact that the necessity for something to replace wood for ties was then not as great as it is now becoming. When Mr. Davis met defeat in his first project he at once set to work to remedy the objection and produce a tie that could be made cheaply and the device that he has originated and patented would indicate that he can now shout "Eureka." The tie complete weighs 125 lbs and can be made for 50 to 75 cents. It is so constructed that the spikes are keyed in and locked, rendering it absolutely impossible for a spike to spring or to pull and the rail is always firmly fixed to the iron tie, which will last four or five times as long as a wooden tie. In case a rail becomes worn out and has to be replaced the operation is more simple and more quickly performed than now and as to spreading of rails it is an impossibilty. That lumberman's excursion accident, caused by spreading of the rails could not have occurred on the Davis tie. Not long ago we had occasion to walk along a railroad track a few miles and for a distance of a quarter of a mile or so we noticed that many of the spikes were drawn out from an inch to two inches, and while no doubt the section foreman had exercised due watchfulness this fact seemed to have escaped his notice. With the Davis tie this would be utterly impossible. It has also many advantages too numerous to mention here which readily suggest themselves to the practical mind upon examination. The time is not far distant when an iron tie will come into active demand, in fact some roads are already seeking them and the Davis tie seems to be the very thing to meet the demand. We trust that it will prove successful and that our fellow-townsman will reap the reward he so richly deserves.

The Fourth of July.

As Crookston has taken no steps as yet to provide for a celebration of the ever glorious we presume it is safe to say that there will be no doings of any account but the average citizen need not go without his regular celebration all the same as Fosston advertises the biggest kind of a celebration on wheels and McIntosh comes to the front and center with the remark that Fosston won't be in it beside her celebration, while Erskine is all on a broad grin to think the these two suburban villages will have the presumption to think they can get up any kind of a show in the year that Erskine thinks of celebrating and puts forth the gigantic efforts that she has to induce the eagle to scream. And then comes Maple Lake and laughs to scorn the efforts of her less pretentious neighbors and announces that she intends to lay over everything in the line of a celebration this year if she don't lay up a cent. And Thief River Falls, sitting serenely upon her pine-clad hills "sees" the raise and "goes one better" while she mildly invites the earth and all the rest of mankind to come up and see how such things should be done in due and ancient form. So, with several other enterprising towns and villages yet to hear from it would seem that we will not be entirely at a loss for a place to go to for a bit of a celebration even if Crookston don't wake up and let the eagle scream. No doubt each place will do its best to entertain its guests. You pays your money and you takes your choice in localities.

LOST—On the road between Crookston and Maple Lake, a pocket book and order book. Return to Minneapolis Brewing Co., Crookston, and receive liberal reward.

[10] C. PROBST.

Don't You Know

That to have perfect health you must have pure blood and the best way to have pure blood is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and strength builder. It expels all taint of scrofula, salt rheum and all other humors, and at the same time builds up the whole system and gives nerve strength.

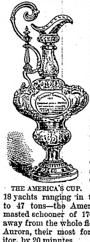
Hood's Sarsaparilla may be had by mail for 25 cents of C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

IN YACHTING BRITANNIA DOES NOT RULE THE WAVES.

How the International Trophy Was Won and Has Been Successfully Defended Seven Times by Yankee Yachts—The Valkyrie and Our Four Cup Defenders.

It is six years since swift yachts representing Great Britain and the United States have met in a grand struggle for the possession of the America's cup—six years since the fleet Yankee Volunteer showed her heels to the Scotch Thistle and an American yacht for the eighth time demonstrated Uncle Sam's right to the international trophy representing the world's yachting championship. In October of the present year, however, the swiftest Yankee yacht will be called upon to meet Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie and defend the famous cup that was won by the gallant old America away back in August, 1851, and has remained on this side ever since despite the repeated attempts of English yachtsmen to prove that Britannia rules the seas.



THE AMERICA'S CUP.

In 1851 the yacht America, designed and built by George Steers and commanded by J. C. Stevens, sailed across the Atlantic and arrived at Cowes in time to enter the regatta for all nations and contest for the cup offered by the Royal Yacht squadron. The owners of the America knew nothing about the cup until they arrived at Cowes, but they possessed true Yankee sporting blood, entered the America against 18 yachts ranging in tonnage from 392 to 47 tons—the America was a three masted schooner of 170 tons—and ran away from the whole fleet, defeating the Aurora, their most formidable competitor, by 20 minutes.

When won, the cup was practically only a regatta prize, but in 1857 the America's owners presented the trophy to the New York Yacht club as a perpetual international challenge cup. On Aug. 8, 1870, James Asbury's yacht Cambria came over after the cup and was the first and only English yacht to sail against a fleet for the trophy as the America had done. The Yankee Magic won, and the Cambria was beaten by nine American yachts.

Asbury came again after the cup in August, 1871, and his Livonia is the only British challenger that ever even won a single trial race for the cup, and her victory was largely due to the fact that the Columbia broke her steering gear and parted her flying jib stay.

In August, 1876, the Canadian yacht Countess Dufferin was twice beaten by the Yankee Madeline in races for the cup. In the second race the old America, although not an actual contestant, went over the course and also worsted the Canadian challenger.

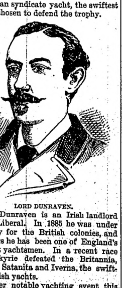
In November, 1881, the Canadian yacht Atalanta met the American yacht Mischief for the cup, but was beaten twice in succession by the Mischief, and also by the Gracie, which was not an actual contestant.

In 1885 the Royal Yacht squadron and Royal Northern Yacht club dispatched the Genesta after the cup. She was defeated in September by the Puritan, which was the creation of Edward Burgess, General Charles J. Paine and J. Malcolm Forbes of Boston. The Puritan won the first race by 16 minutes 47 seconds and the second by only 1 minute 38 seconds.

The Galatea, commanded by Lieutenant Henn, was the next British yacht to cross the Atlantic. The Mayflower, owned by General Paine and designed by Burgess, defeated the Galatea Sept. 7 and 11, 1886, by 12 minutes 2 seconds and 29 minutes 0 seconds in two races.

The last race for the cup occurred in September, 1887, between our Volunteer and the Scotch Thistle. The visiting yacht was no match for the Volunteer and was beaten by over 19 minutes in the first race and by nearly 12 minutes in the second. The Volunteer was also the creation of Burgess and Paine.

Of the four Yankee yachts now being built, the Archibald Rogers syndicate yacht Colonia, the Boston syndicate yacht Pilgrim, the unnamed boat owned by General Paine and the unnamed E. D. Morgan syndicate yacht, the swiftest will be chosen to defend the trophy.



LORD DUNRAVEN.

Lord Dunraven is an Irish landlord and a Liberal. In 1885 he was under secretary for the British colonies, and for years he has been one of England's foremost yachtsmen. In a recent race his Valkyrie defeated the Britannia, Calluna, Satanita and Iverna, the swiftest English yachts.

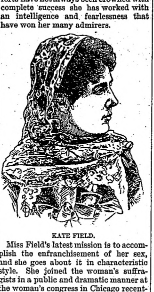
Another notable yachting event this year will be the attempt of Royal Phelps Carroll's American yacht Navahoe to win from British yachts the Cape May and Brenton's Reef cups.

EARLE H. EATON.

A WOMAN SUFFRAGE RECRUIT.

Kate Field Joins Miss Anthony In the Battle For the Ballot.

Kate Field has had many missions in her day. She has been a journalist, a lecturer and an actress, she has been an apostle of dress reform and an advocate of viticulture, she has undertaken to abolish the duty on art and to exterminate the Mormons, and although her efforts have not always been crowned with complete success she has worked with an intelligence and fearlessness that have won her many admirers.



KATE FIELD.

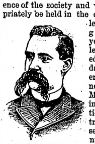
Miss Field's latest mission is to accomplish the enfranchisement of her sex, and she goes about it in characteristic style. She joined the woman's suffragists in a public and dramatic manner at the woman's congress in Chicago recently. Miss Anthony was taken by surprise, but received the recruit with pride and thanksgiving. Like many of Miss Field's new departures, her action was wholly without warning and astonished her auditors. She said she was tired of seeing uneducated foreigners coming into this country and making our laws and demanded equal rights for American women. She states that she never advocated universal suffrage and never believed in it. She favors "a restricted suffrage based on education and character. The suffrage belongs only to those who have earned it."

Kate Field first distinguished herself 20 years ago as a correspondent in London and Paris and has since had an active and many sided career, with which the reading public is reasonably familiar. Her latest and not least successful venture is the publication of a paper in Washington. Concerning this enterprise she says: "When I thought of establishing my magazine, I looked about and talked to some men. They wanted so much that I asked one of them if he would not take my watch. Just at this time two Vassar girls came to me. They said they had just sold a paper which they had bought for $212.50 at $7,500. I said: 'Well, girls, let us start together. The three of us will be as good as one man.' And do you know I really think we are?"

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Preparing For the First International Conference of the Organization.

The meeting of the Epworth league which is to open in Cleveland on June 29 will be the first international conference of the society and will very appropriately be held in the city where the league was organized four years ago. The league was formed by the consolidation of five other societies connected with the Methodist church in different sections of the country, whose representatives, 27 in number, met in Cleveland May 15, 1889, and after considerable discussion adopted a plan of coalition that seemed to promise better results than could be achieved by the scattered forces of the separate societies.



BYRON E. HELMAN.

The new organization was called the Epworth league in honor of the birthplace of John Wesley in Lincolnshire, England. The plan of government adopted for the subordinate chapters was the same as had been in vogue with the Oxford league, one of the societies uniting to form the new organization, and was known as the "Ohio plan," or the "Cleveland plan." It was the invention of Byron E. Helman of Cleveland, and its adoption by the Epworth justly entitles him to the honor of being called the father of the league.

The plan divides the work of the chapters into six departments—spiritual, charitable, social, literary, correspondence and finance—and there is a vice president in charge of each department. The scheme is symbolized by what is called the "Epworth wheel," the six spokes representing the different departments. The plan was found to work excellently, and the rapid growth of the league has been attributed to its popularity. The organization now has a membership of over 750,000, with 10,500 chapters scattered all over the world, and with the junior league, especially instituted for children, and of which there are about 3,000 chapters, it is probable there are now nearly 1,000,000 members entitled to wear the cross of the Epworth league.

A conference of representatives of such a vast organization must be a great event, and it is expected that more than 10,000 delegates and visitors will be in Cleveland to attend it. There will be delegates from 15 foreign nations and colonies, besides a large representation from Canada. The programme that has been prepared embraces a number of topics of great interest to members of the league, and they will be discussed by the most eminent divines and laymen of the Methodist church.

The carat, used in estimating the weight of gems, is a grain of Indian wheat.

RIDING PRETTY HARD.

An Old Wartime Engineer Tells About an Eventful Railway Journey.

Bivouacked around a campfire one evening were a party of officers, busily engaged in roasting goobers in the ashes and washing them down with the contents of their canteens. "Never heard tell o' the time I got lost in the mountains with a engin', did ye?" asked a tall, lanky, good humored comrade, who strolled up and helped himself to a handful of the goobers.

Every man present expressed his bitter regret at never having had the opportunity of hearing the story.

"Waal," said the tall man, seating himself on an upturned bucket, "I mout's well tell ye, long's ther's time afore taps. I wur runnin an engin' fur the guv'ment doorin the war down in Ferginny. She wur an ol hookmotion Rogers an smart enuff to clim' a tree ef she'd 'a' got toe holt onto it.

"I had a nigger fireman as was afraid of his shadder, w'ich didn't prevent him goin to sleep at any minute, day or night, whilst he wur standin up lookin ahead, 'parently wide awake. But I wuz goin to tell ye about gettin lost. Ye see, 'twas this way: They started us out one dark night over a branch that we didn't know, and we had to go to it blin. The track wur in turr'ble shape, an 'twould hev puzzled ye to say when we wuz on the rails an when we wuzn't. I should say we everidged 'bout half and half. We was plowin 'long 'bout so so, when all of a suddent I saw by the headlight thet we was a-goin into a tunnil.

"I giv Zeb a kick and hollered, 'Zeb, is ther' a tunnil on this line?'

"'Can't tell for shuah, boss,' said he; 'mighty cur'us doin's these days. 'Twasn't so 'fo' de wah.'

"'Waal, keep yer eye skinned fer snags,' I sung out, an as I wuz sort of sleepy myself I snoozed off an on, mostly on, I guess, fer a spell, till finally the old gal giv' a snort an stopped dead. We both on us waked up to wunst.

"'Twas so dark I couldn't see Zeb to kick him fer goin to sleep, but I cussed him fer lettin us hit a snag. 'Git down ther', ye coon, an see if we're on the rails,' sez I.

"He took the torch an clim'ed down an wallered roun awhile. Fust I knowed he wus back ag'in, his face white's a sheet.

"'Well, what's the matter now?' I asked him.

"'Fo' de Lo'd, boss,' he sez, 'we's in de tun'l yit, an dere ain't a rail in sight!'

"Jest ez I was gittin down to 'vestigate, long comes the conductor. 'What in thunder do you mean,' says he, 'by running this train six miles into a cave?'

"Shore enuff, those Johnnies had taken up the rails and turned 'em into that cave, and that ol hook motion kept on a goin with us till we struck the end of it. I 'member thinkin she was ridin pretty hard, but I s'posed she hed got off the ties onto the roadbed, which wasn't graded very well."—Kate Field's Washington.

Artificial Features.

Artificial noses are now made of aluminium, and they are so perfectly shaped, colored and adjusted as to defy detection. The aluminium is first covered with some light cloth—muslin generally—and is then painted, and the color of the skin is so closely adhered to that it is impossible to tell which is the false nose and which the true until you pull it. The materials formerly used for this purpose were vulcanite, wax, celluloid, wood and porcelain, but for many reasons aluminium is the superior of them all, it being lighter as well as stronger. Aluminium ears have become quite as fashionable as aluminium noses.

There are more of these false noses and ears on the street than one would suppose until one deliberately looks into the subject. Scores of people wear these deceptive noses and ears, and so artistically are they made that it is impossible to tell the false with the naked eye. I have said that the best way to tell a real nose from the false member is to give it a jerk. Yet I must admit that if one were to go about jerking the noses of friends or strangers just to detect the false noses life might be made decidedly unpleasant for that one.—Chicago Tribune.

Yankee Sententiousness Saving Salt.

In our opinion sententiousness is rarely effective without a considerable dash of humor. How much more telling Emerson's sententiousness was than that of most of his contemporaries (Goethe, for example, or Carlyle), just because Emerson was seldom sententious without a smile, while Carlyle was most sententious when he was least humorous. A Yankee, indeed, seldom gives advice without a little irony pointed to himself for giving it, but Germans and Englishmen are sententious in grim earnest and are very apt to be quite as self important as they are earnest. Very few of the so called wise sayings of Goethe and Carlyle are free from this fault of ponderosity.—London Spectator.

Steam Vessel First Used as a Transport.

There is a curious fact that may have been overlooked—that troops withdrawn from Canada upon the close of the American war of 1812–15 for the purpose of joining the army intended to crush Napoleon after his return from Elba were transported down the St. Lawrence by a Canadian steamer. This was probably the first occasion on which a steam vessel was used for purposes of military transport.—Toronto News.

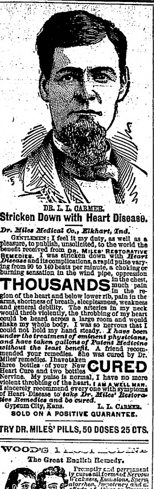
A Sensible Prayer.

"And now, parson," said the editor, "will you ask a blessing before we dine?"

"Good Lord," said the parson, "have mercy upon this man and open his eyes that he may see and understand that greens are not greens without bacon, and that grace without grits is dead!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The Real Mother Goose.

"Mother Goose," who is probably more familiar to children than any other personage in story books, was a real person. Mrs. Goose, for that was her real name, lived with a family named Fleet who kept a little store in Pudding lane, Boston.—New York Sun.



DR. L. L. CARMER.

Stricken Down with Heart Disease.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I feel it my duty, as well as a pleasure, to publish, unsolicited, to the world the benefit received from DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE REMEDIES. I was stricken down with Heart Disease and its complications, a rapid pulse varying from 90 to 140 beats per minute, a choking or burning sensation in the wind pipe, oppression in the chest, much pain in the region of the heart and below lower rib, pain in the arms, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, weakness and general debility. The arteries in my neck would throb violently, the throbbing of my heart could be heard across a large room and would shake my whole body. I was so nervous that I could not hold my hand steady. I have been under the treatment of eminent physicians, and have taken gallons of Patent Medicine without the least benefit. A friend recommended your remedies. She was cured by Dr. Miles' remedies. I have taken three bottles of your New Heart Cure and two bottles Nervine. My pulse is normal, I have no more violent throbbing of the heart, I AM A WELL MAN. I sincerely recommend every one with symptoms of Heart Disease to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies and be cured.

THOUSANDS CURED

Gypsum City, Kans. L. L. CARMER.

SOLD ON A POSITIVE GUARANTEE.

TRY DR. MILES' PILLS, 50 DOSES 25 CTS.

WOOD'S [illegible]

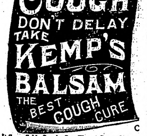
The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps.

Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crooksten by A. G. Anderson, A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.



It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY. WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS

Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year.....$5 00
" " 6 months..... 2 50
" " 1 " 45
Daily only, one year..... 3 00
" " 4 months..... 1 00
Sunday, one year..... 2 00
Weekly Press, one year..... 1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.

Address THE PRESS, 38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE

Marvelous success.

Insane Persons Restored

Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it. Yours Respectfully, C. E. MISNER.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Scandia-American Bank,

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

BE QUICK!

IT IS A SNAP.

I will sell the west ½ section 29, T. 149, R. 48, a splendid piece of valley land, 8 miles from Crookston, one-third under the plow, all first-class wheat soil, at the low price of

$8.00 AN ACRE.

Sale subject to an incumbrance of $400. This land is easily worth $12 an acre, but it must be sold.

TERMS:—Half cash; balance secured mortgage.

To the man who buys this tract within Ten Days from this date I will make a Reduction equal to twice the usual real estate commission. First to come gets it.

June 8th, 1893.

J. A. TRUESDELL, Brookland, D. C.

[8-11]

WE SUIT

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING
COPYRIGHT 1893

Everybody Every Time.

Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits,
Suits that Fit to a T.

LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.

Who Wouldn't be Suited

With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?

That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their

SUMMER SUITS.

Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.

BOSTON - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss. City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the city council of said City of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons, and at the following place, as stated in said application to-wit: C. C. Hoch and F. Montague, on the first floor of the front part of the two story frame building situated on lot 9, block 1, original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said applications will be heard and determined by said city council of the City of Crookston, at the city hall in said City of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 5th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

[8-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: T. O. Sundet and O. O. Sundet, on the whole ground floor of the two-story frame building situated on lot 2, block 6, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city, this 5th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

[8-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, city of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st 1894, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application respectively, to-wit: Henry Burkhardt in the two-story frame building situate on lot 12, block 15, original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the City of Crookston, in city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk County, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock P. M., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 19th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

[9-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council, of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of July, 1893, and terminating on the 1st day of July, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Elie Asselin, on the first floor of the southernmost store building in that certain brick block, known as the "Vine Block," and now being constructed on the westerly side of Broadway, in block 6, of Fletcher & Houston's addition to said city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

[8-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Ernest Rolsch, in the one-story frame building situate on the west twenty-five (25) feet of lots 21, 22, 23 and 24, block 16, in original townsite of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

[8-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Hiren & Johnson, in the two-story frame building on lot nine, block three, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 29th day of May, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH. City Clerk.

[8-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application to-wit: Peter Stull and John Waterstadt, in the two-story frame building, on first floor, situate on lot 3, block 4, in Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of Jue, A. D, 1893.

(Seal) E. C. CARRUTH. City Clerk.

[8-11]

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Ole G. Iverson deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Gulbrand Iverson, administrator, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon this estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described;

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said Ole G. Iverson deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate or any part thereof.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 26th day of June A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m, at the Probate office in the City of Crookston in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Gulbrand Iverson to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased for the porpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessment and liens, and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 31st day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court, C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.

[8-10]

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.
Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

AN AVALANCHE OF WONDER AND FUN.

Sells Brothers' Teeming World of Entertainment.

Here we have a regal Roman hippodrome, a five-continent menagerie, three big circuses, a wild moorish caravan, performing doves of wild and domestic beasts, a huge tropical aquarium, aviary, royal Japanese troupe, Arabian nights entertainment, spectacular pilgrimage to Mecca, and splendid free street parade, rolled into one tremendous alliance, for but one price of admission; or, more properly speaking, roaring, rushing, racing, marching, dancing, gliding, tumbling, soaring, diving and disporting under some ten acres of tents.

The pair of huge hippopotami, unquestionably the largest living animals on earth, and which have contributed so largely in drawing crowds to this show, are too cumberance to make another tour after this season. Arrangements have been made to place them in a National Zoological Garden which will be established at Washington City next year. As a fitting testimonial to their worth as an attraction, Sells Brothers have decided to give ten thousand dollars in three prizes to the persons who make the nearest guesses of their weight. Five thousand dollars to the second, and two thousand dollars to the third. This is free, and all visitors are entitled to one guess.

Fifty cents is a small doctor bill but that is all it will cost you to cure any ordinary case of rheumatism if you use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. The first application will quiet the pain. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy
Is famous as a
Cure for severe colds.
Famous as a
Preventive of pneumonia.
Famous as a
Preventive and cure for croup
Famous for the relief it affords in
Case of Whooping cough.
Famous as a safe and pleasant
Medicine for children.
Try it. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] John Scheffer.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. Sharkey,
[3 tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Fits.

All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $32.55, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. Sharkey,
[4tf] Agent.

A Literary Sensation.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" has certainly "broke loose!" The copyright on this most famous of American novels, by Mrs. Stowe, has recently expired, which frees its publication from the monopoly of the high-priced publishers, and though in anticipation of this fact they have within a few months greatly reduced its price, now that it is really "unchained" the consequences are something surprising. John B. Alden, publisher of New York, issues several editions, selling them only direct (not through agents or book sellers;) one in good type, paper covers, for 5 cents, sent post-paid, or the same bound in cloth for 10 cents with postage 7 cents extra; also an excellent large-type edition, on fine paper, handsomely bound in cloth for the price of 25 cents postage 10 cents. Surely a copy of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will soon be found in every home where it is not already. Mr. Alden sends a 32 page phamplet describing many of his publications free, or a catologue of 128 pages of choice books, a veritable "literary gold mine" for book-lovers, for 2 cents. Address John B. Alden, publisher, 57 Rose St., New Pork.

Devils Lake Chautauqua.

The first summer assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, secretary, Devils Lake, N. D., for programs and other information. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing. [10]

THE MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

Again Looking After the Alum and Ammonia Baking Powders.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.—A bill for an act in relation to the manufacture and sale of baking powders, to prevent fraud and preserve the public health has been introduced in the legislature at St. Paul. The bill is intended to prevent the adulteration of baking powders with Alum or Ammonia, imposing proper penalties to inforce the law, etc.

This shows an earnest desire on the part of our state representatives to protect their constituents.

The Chicago Tribune, referring to the question of legislation on Alum and Ammonia bakings powders, says: "It deals in a direct manner with an evil that must be cut down."

Dr. Chas. W. Drew, chemist for the Minnesota State Dairy and Food Commission, in his elaborate report of 1892, gives a list of one hundred and seventy-three different brands of Alum baking powder alone—sold in Minnesota.

Following is the list of the more widely known brands that Dr. Drew, as well as other chemists of high standing, have examined and found to contain Alum, and some of which caintain both Alum and Ammonia. Many of the Alum and Ammonia powders are labeled and advertised as "absolutely pure" to mislead the public.

"Calumet." "Forrest," "Grant's Bon Bon," "Globe," "Puritan," "Snow Ball," "Government," "Palace," "Loyal," "Columbia," "Home," "Monarch," "Unrivaled," "Chicago Yeast," "Echo," "Zipp's Crystal," "Perfection," "White Rose," "Hatchet," "Crown."

In addition to above list, there is a multitude of brands sold with a prize. It is safe to reject all baking powders sold with a prize as the tests show they are composed largely of Alum and cost but a few cents a pound. Also refuse any baking powder sold for twenty-five cents a pound, or less; it is sure to contain Alum.

Surely nothing but their cheapness could induce the public to experiment with these impure powders at the risk of health. Aside from the question of the health or wholesomeness of the condemned powders, and viewed from this standpoint of economy alone, a pure cream of tartar baking powder like Dr. Price's from its greater known strength and unquestioned purity will prove more economical to the user in every way.

How Squire Bond Was Fooled.

Squire Bond, whose descendants are foremost in Springfield affairs, kept a general store in the early part of the century out on the borders of Worcester county, and like all storekeepers of the period he sold rum. One old tippler whose credit was very weak got badly in arrears, and Mr. Bond got wary about trusting him. The tippler came in one day with his jug half full and wanted it filled clear up, as he was going away. The liquor was poured in until it came up to the cork, but when the squire asked for the money it was not forthcoming. No pleas could induce him to trust any longer, so he poured out as much as he had put in and the tippler went away. The liquid which had half filled the jug beforehand was not rum, but water.—Springfield Homestead.

Phillips Brooks as a Schoolteacher.

It is related that the first attempt of Phillips Brooks to begin a career was a discouraging failure. After he left college he became a tutor in the Boston Latin school, but the principal was so little impressed with his capacity that he asked for his resignation. When young Brooks then decided to enter the ministry, the pedagogue predicted his failure on the ground that he had never known any one to succeed in anything else who had failed in schoolteaching.—Chicago Herald.

Consoling the Widow.

Parson Whangdoodle Baxter—Sistah Snowflake, yer shouldn't go on dat way about de deff ob yore late husband. Remember how much better off he is now he is dead.

"Dat's meant as a disreproach for me. Is dat de way you consoles de widders and orphants? Git out, niggah, 'fore I scalds you!" retorted the dusky widow. —Texas Siftings.

A Puzzled Youngster.

Harry is the youngest of the family, the only boy among several girls, and sometimes the superior advantages of girls seem to weigh heavily on his youthful mind. The other day we heard him say thoughtfully to himself: "Women always first. I wonder why God didn't make 'em first, but he didn't. He made Adam first."—New York Tribune.

The Woman to Be Pitied.

The woman who must earn money and at the same time keep house, nurse babies, sew up seams, manage servants and attend to the complex affairs of an establishment is to be pitied. She has far too much for one pair of hands to do. —Harper's Bazar.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A mad dog was killed at Montgomery Thursday. Nobody was bitten.

Mgr. Satolli will spent his summer vacation with Archbishop Ireland at St. Paul.

Burglars made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the safe in the mill at Rush City.

A special pension examiner has been sent to St. Paul to look after frauds in Minnesota.

Minneapolis is to have a new city hospital building to cost $100,000 exclusive of the site.

Minnesota firemen held their twenty-first annual convention at South St. Paul last week.

Railway yardmen of the United States held their annual convention at Duluth last week.

Dennis Pickens, wanted for the murder of a fellow waiter in St. Paul, has been located in Chicago.

The wife of General Merritt, commander of the department of Dakota, died at St. Paul last week.

Directors of the Minnesota Iron company have declared an annual dividend of 6 per cent, payable quarterly.

The Duluth board of trade has appointed a committee to establish a grain clearing house for the business of the board.

O. O. Ostrum was arrested at Elbow Lake for sending a defamatory letter to a Miss Paulson. Bound over to United States court.

The Minnesota Epworth League held its state convention at St. Paul from Thursday to Sunday. Nearly 400 delegates were present.

Minnesota Sons of Veterans held their ninth annual encampment at Alexandria last week. The total membership is 1,618, a gain of 23 for the year.

Ex-Governor Burke of North Dakota will go into the grain receiving business at Duluth, and has made application for membership on the board of trade.

The fever patient, John Knowles, who mysteriously left a hotel in Merritt in November last, was found dead in the woods near the town. He has relatives in Tower.

Frank Arnith, electrician for the Twin City Rapid Transit company, was killed at Minneapolis Wednesday night while changing the circuits at the power house switch.

There is a rumor afloat that in due time both the Great Northern and Milwaukee roads will convert their lines into electrical railways between St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The Minnesota state saengerfest, which takes place June 23, 24 and 25, at St. Paul, promises to be a great German gala occasion. There will be a grand procession on Sunday, June 25.

The report of the secretary of the Minnesota Epworth League, as presented to the state convention in session at St. Paul last week, shows a membership of 13,694, as against 5,455 in 1891, and 8,890 in 1892.

At the 146th commencement at Princeton Guy Allen Tawney of Winona had one of the honorary orations, received the prize for oratory, was awarded the mental science fellowship and the biological fellowship.

Edward A. Dunsmore has been appointed by Governor Nelson to represent Minnesota in the so-called interstate north and south railroad convention that is to be held in Lincoln, Neb., on the 28th of this month.

Homeopathic physicians of the state met at St. Paul last week and selected a faculty to recommend to the state university regents for the homeopathic department of the state medical college. Nearly all the old faculty were selected.

Flyer No. 4, on the Chicago and Northwestern, going east, collided with a coal car at Belle Plaine, completely wrecking the engine and train. Fireman Wallace Leakan of Clinton, was instantly killed. No passengers were injured.

Will Mack, aged 14, was herding cows on the Pelican branch of the Great Northern. He went to sleep with his head on the rail. The trainmen did not see him in time to stop. His head was cut badly, the engine pushing him along instead of running over him, and he will recover.

Sons of Veterans at their encampment at Alexandria elected the following officers: Commander, W. A. Mullen of Madelia; senior vice commander, George F. Whitcombe of Alexandria; junior vice commander, W. G. Young of Montrose. The camp council is: B. S. Sheire of St. Paul, H. A. Kohlsadt of Minneapolis, and C. I. Ray of Leroy.

The army of caterpillars which infested the vicinity of Mankato two or three years ago seem to have migrated to the Des Moines river, and at Jackson, 60 miles southeast of there, they are more numerous than they ever were in that particular section. They are there in myriads and have stripped the forest trees, whose leafless branches stand out as bare as in winter. They are everywhere present, covering sidewalks, entering houses and rendering everything unpleasant by their unwelcome presence.

Amateur Rainmaker Killed.

Minneapolis, Kan., June 20.—A fatal accident occurred here during the bombardment of the heavens by a number of rainmaking enthusiasts. Several discharges had been made successfully, when one of the cannons in use exploded, instantly killing S. F. Redmond and fatally injuring Rufus Preston. Redmond was captain of a company in the state militia at this point.

Sentenced a Horsethief.

Hastings, Minn., June 19.—C. W. Colton, the horsethief, has been sentenced by Judge Crosby to one year in state prison.

Kitchen Extension.

University Extension is good, but Kitchen Extension is better. Wider knowledge of better cooking processes means better health and comfort for everybody. Science can never do us better service than by the multiplication of the cooking schools which make healthful means and methods available for even the most modest home.

Cottolene

The vegetable substitute for lard, is science's latest gift to the kitchens of the world. Every woman who has ever cooked a meal, knows that lard is disagreeable in use and unhealthy in its effects.

Cottolene is a most satisfactory substitute—clean, delicate and far more economical. At your grocers.

Sold in three and five pound pails.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
Crookston, - - - Minn

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
BETWEEN
Chicago, St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

The YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.
Leave Crookston Daily — For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior, 6:40 p.m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 7:45 a.m.
have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, call on, wire or write any agent N. P. R. R.
Chas. A. Sharkey,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
Chas. S. Fee,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

ALDERMAN
&
SYLVESTER
ARE OFFERING
SPECIAL PRICES
ON
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS
AND
WALL PAPER,
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.
WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN,
C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

See That LUMP?
That's Lorillard's CLIMAX PLUG.
It's Much the Best.
Sold everywhere. Made only by the
P. LORILLARD COMPANY.
The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America, and the largest in the World.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE railroads are slow in getting down to a reasonable rate on World's Fair traffic but the prospects are that they will get there after awhile.

IN view of the fact of the second accident to the mouth of the sewer it would seem to be the part of wisdom for the council to suspend all additional extensions until the question as to whether the present outlet can be used permanent is settled. This is a question that may require more money to settle than the city can spare if we build additional sewerage to add to the expense.

A MILLION dollar fire is reported on the Mesaba range, near Duluth. Several villages are said to be entirely wiped out and others sadly devastated. Hundreds of homeless and deststute people are flocking in to Duluth and here is another call for the exercise of charity on the part of our people. Hardly had the work of raising funds for the afflicted at Fargo begun when this new call comes, as loud and imperative as the first.

THE acting mayor of Duluth has authorized the expenditure of $1000 to supply the pressing wants of those who were burned out and lost everything in the Mesaba range fires. For some days great apprehensions were felt for the safety of the villages owing to the existence of fire in the surrounding forests. The full extent of the damages are not yet ascertained but it is said that several lives were lost and thousands rendered homeless and something over one million dollars worth of property destroyed. These villages are all new having been built since the iron excitement began.

REPORTS reach us that a fearful drouth prevails in England and France, grass is said to be so short as to afford but slight pasturage and it is said that there will be very little hay to cut. Grain and vegetables of all kinds are said to be in a precarious condition and the prospects of extremely short crops. If this state of things exists in anything like the proportion it is said to, there must of necessity be an active demand for all our surplus breadstuffs before another crop matures.

The following item from the National Economist shows how well these populist editors love one another.

"Dr. Fish is the name of the lying scoundrel that Ignatus Donnelly has recently exposed for receiving boodle from the republican party while he was posing as a people's party reformer. The evidence of his guilt is conclusive, and he is one of the deepest-dyed villians and scoundrels that ever disgraced any movement."

How does the Economist know that Dr. Fish is a scoundrel? It has only Donnelly's unsupported word for it and there are some in this state who have less confidence in Donnelly than in Doc. By the way, somewhere we have seen the statement that the editor of the Economist is not wholly incorruptible. And so it goes until, if one believes all these populist papers say of each other one is forced to the conclusion that there is not an honest man in the lot.

NOT long ago the Indians at Leech Lake Reservation received their annuity and quickly procured a supply of whiskey and then the music commenced. Dr. Walker, the physician in charge, in attempting to take some whiskey from a drunken Indian accidentally shot the Indian whereupon there was a large-sized row at once. The Indians made a prisoner of the doctor and for several days had great larks, threatening him with all kinds of dire vengeance until troops arrived from Fort Snelling and rescued him from their hands. The moral of all this is perfectly plain. If liquor cannot be kept from the Indians in any other way the government should not trust them with a cent of money but buy for them such things as they need and distribute annuities in that way. It does seem as though there was a way to prevent them obtaining whiskey if the government was in earnest. Without whiskey the Indians are tractable enough and they cannot get it unless they have money to buy it with, ergo the government should shut off the supply of money.

In the last issue of the Tribune appears an article anent the city printing, the writer of which betrays ignorance or unscrupulousness—perhaps both. One would think from reading the aforesaid article that the city printing was a large contract in which there was room for a huge steal. Well, let's see. The JOURNAL has been the official city paper for the past year, and has received from the city between June 20th, '92, and June 20th, '93 the munificent sum of $103 for publishing the proceedings and all matter required to be published by the council, and for printing the city stationery. Mr. Holston, or any person, can verify this statement by the city treasurer's books. Now, any one can see at a glance that there must be a big steal somewhere when a city of 5,000 people pays its city printer the exorbitant price of $103 during a year.

In regard to the silly statement made by the Tribune that the council was delaying the awarding of the printing for the ensuing year to allow the JOURNAL to print the financial statement at a price three times what they would have paid had the Tribune bid been accepted, it is only necessary to say that the JOURNAL gets 1¼ cents per folio more than the Tribune offered to do the work for, and as there were 140 folios in the statement, the city would have saved $1.75 by giving it to the Tribune. This can be proven by the records in the city clerk's office.

A few weeks ago, when Mr. Holston took hold of the almost lifeless Tribune, it didn't have 200 subscribers all told, and it is hardly probable there has been any perceptible increase since, and now he wants the council to go into partnership with him and help to build it up by making it the official paper. Wouldn't the council be serving the citizens better by making their publications in a paper which has a large bona-fide circulation and is read by the people?

The gall of the Tribune in claiming to be the official paper is certainly refreshing. The fact is that the Tribune's bid was not in accordance with the council's call for bids, and that body would have been justified in rejecting it and awarding the contract to the next lowest bidder. But all the bids were rejected and new ones asked for, and this gives the Tribune an equal chance with the rest—which it don't deserve.

Until the council makes a contract with another paper the JOURNAL will continue to be the official city paper.

IN its last issue the Hallock Enterprise makes the assertion that no drainage will be done under the drainage bill, because, it says, Mr. Hill has absolutely refused to put up a dollar for the purpose. After reading that article we took the pains to look up the matter and find that so far from having lost all interest in the matter Mr. Hill is as much interested as ever. He spent three hours of his time in consultation with the drainage committee at their last meeting in St. Paul as to best methods to pursue, where to commence, etc., and instructed his engineer to see that the dredger was in readiness to be shipped at a moment's notice to the place of beginning. The JOURNAL is authorized to say that Mr. Hill is very enthusiastic over the work that he has for years tried to see done and that he will not only put up the $25,000 the bill calls for but will add to it if necessary. The object of the Enterprise in making such statements seems to be more for the purpose of getting a whack at Capt. Donaldson, whom it dislikes, than for any other purpose.

THE jury in the case of Lizzie Borden, accused of murdering her father and step-mother, after being out one hour and twenty minutes, returned a verdict of not guilty. This seems to have been a case wherein the authorities, not knowing who committed the crime, imagined hat Lizzie Borden might have done it and were determined to convict her of the crime, whether she did it or not. The jury, however, in the absence of sufficient testimony to convict, took a different (and the proper) view of the case.

THE coroner's jury in the Fords theatre case holds Col. Ainsworth, Contractor Dante, Supt. Covert and Engineer Sasse guilty of criminal carelessness. They are held to answer with bail at $10,000 in each case. The responsibility of the government in continuing to use a building long ago pronounced unsafe must be shifted off onto other shoulders and these victims seem the most available just now.

FOR some time there has been a large sized row brewing between the ladies on the woman's board at the World's Fair, and it is said that the matter will be referred to the governor and the board of commissioners in St. Paul for settlement. The question is as to whether Mrs. Hunt or Mrs. Stebbens shall be chief.

THREE men, supposed to be the Harris murderers, have been arrested in Otter Tail county, and sent to Minneapolis. It is said that one of the men had Mr. Harris' gold watch in his possession when arrested and all seem to answer the description given of the men wanted.

A KICK FROM NICHOLS.

He Wants to Know About those Railroad Tax Suits.

FERTILE, Minn., June 17th 1893.

EDS. JOURNAL:—Will you please allow me a small space in your paper. I have a few words for our tax-payers to consider. Railroad land tax, and why did our county commissioners pass resolutions requesting our county attorney to drop the proceedings, brought before our court for taxing same? Were they afraid the farmers would kick against the railroads paying taxes on the land adjoining their farms which they are by their improvement helping to increase in value, or that the farmers were afraid it would cost our county a few dollars for a test case carried to the supreme courts, or has Mr. Hill's agents been working them? Have 3 men a right to take such action in a case where the people especially the farmers to a man, were anxious to see the case tested? The day after the resolution was passed the three commissioners were seen grip and silver tip umbrellas in hand making long strides toward the Great Northern road. Mr. DeMers, our noble alliance member with a celluloid collar, keeping his swelled head in position, with a 15 cent Havanna filler between his ruby lips all bound for St. Paul to help the Hill blowout, no doubt free passes in their pockets and sleeping berths reserved. Now, I am a tax-payer and I am no bonanza farmer; I work for what I get and I for one shall not tamely submit to our officers running this county in such loose way. Let our farmers protest and at our next spring term see that our railroads help pay the land tax of this county.

Yours,
JOHN S. NICHOLS.

Visitors to the Twin Cities.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

[10]

Great Scients.

Great men in any department of human knowledge are like the mountain peaks of the world, conspicious by being so far above the general level, and are likewise few in number. Euclid in mathematics, Archimedes in mechanics, Kepler in astronomy, Newton in natural philosophy, all were conspicious discoverers, and those who came after have done little more than to amplify what the masters found. On the 20th of April 1882, there died in England one of these pioneers and original discoverers in the field of natural science—Charles Darwin. Not all the details of his theories have stood the test of criticism—he himself confessed to a "missing link" in the orgin of man—but in the main his doctrines of "Evolution," "Natural Selection" and the "Survival of the Fittest," are subscribed to by men of science. The logic of events in every department of the world's work and life demonstrates that the "survival of the fittest" is a true theory. In the early history of railroads the companies were almost innumerable—now those which were the fittest have swallowed the others. More than forty different railroads have been merged in the great Burlington system to make the 7,000 miles of railroad which now link together the more important cities and towns in ten of the best states of the west. For tickets over this great line, or any information, apply to any agent of the Burlington route or connecting lines, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

With the third part of "Omega," the work of the French astronomer Flammarion, which appears in the Cosmopolitan for July, the reader is able to grasp something of the great purpose of the author. "Omega" is declared by those who have read the entire work to be one of the most remarkable writings of the century. While pretending to be a novel, it is a work having a deeply philosophical purpose, as is more fully developed in later chapters. It is something that no fairly intelligent person can afford not to read, and is surely destined to become a classic. An interesting article on the "City of Brooklyn," by Murat Halstad; the peculiar games of the New Mexican Indians, by Chas. F. Lummis; "Sorosis," by Margaret Manton Merrill; the fight of the Cumberland and Merrimac, told by Capt. Thos. Selfridge, one of the survivors; a paper on "The Deserted Homes of New England; an account of the Brussels Monetary Conference, by one of its most distinguished members; a curious story of the southwest, by Opie Read, and a contribution by Mr. Howells, are among the many important papers of the June issue.

A VICTIM OF SPEAKING TUBES.

Sad Fate of a Man of Peace Who Is Situated Midway on a Vocal Route.

There is a man in this town whose work keeps him sitting at his desk all day. He thinks himself fortunately situated, for his employers are considerate in their requirements and liberel in the matter of pay, and his work is enjoyable. The others who work in the same room are busy men. They seldom speak, but when they do have something to say it is of a pleasant nature. His modest home has been all that heart could wish, so far as comfort and contentment go. All these things are sources of grateful satisfaction to him, for he is a man of middle age and is no longer consumed by youthful ambition to possess the unattainable. He is of a placid disposition and is, above everything else, a lover of peace. Thus situated he ought to be one of the happiest of men, but he is not. He is wasting away, the helpless victim of continuous and violent contention.

Close to his desk, inclosed by a thin wooden sheathing, are some tin speaking tubes that run from an upper story of the building to a lower story. These stories contain departments of the same business, and the tubes are in almost constant use. The tubes are cracked at about the altitude of this man's desk, and the wooden sheathing is split in places. The cracks in the tubes give a curious querulous sound to every voice that ascends or descends through them. A feud of long standing exists between the office boys and others who speak from the upper floor and those who speak from the lower story. A pleasant word never ascends or descends. All the harshness of infection that accompanies the harsh words is strangely multiplied by the cracked condition of the resonant speaking tubes, and this man of naturally peaceable inclinations has to sit and hear it all.

Unfortunately his is a somewhat sensitive and sympathetic nature. It is impossible for him to remain undisturbed when this continuous war of words is going on through the speaking tubes. A provocative voice from above causes him to side with the floor far beneath him, and the reply that comes up grieves him, and he thinks that the upper floor has been assailed with unpardonable violence. Then there is a rattling exchange of warlike expressions in angry tones—made more angry to the ear by the cracked speaking tubes—and the man of peace groans and sighs for the quiet of a lodge in some vast wilderness. He has heard these savage exchanges so long and so continually that his conception as to the sound of the male human voice is like that which comes to his ears through these diabolical speaking tubes.

This has been going on year after year, and the feud shows no signs of abatement. Its effect on the helpless man of peace is deplorable. He feels constantly as if he were a party to a never ending quarrel. He goes out to his luncheon feeling like a man who has just been engaged in a riot, and he does not enjoy his food. He scolds his most obliging waiter without cause and gives him an increased tip by way of apology. When he goes home, he kisses his wife and children in a perfunctory way and is irritable at the dinner table. His wife says sadly, "My dear, you are working too hard." He is not working too hard, but he is ashamed to tell what ails him, for he knows that it would be difficult for even his considerate helpmeet to understand the effect of the continuous speaking tube strife on his nervous system. So he changes the subject and endeavors to make amends by his best behavior. His wife notices that his playfulness is forced and is a sorry imitation of the genuine article, and this is more alarming to her than his irritableness.—New York Sun.

The Charm of Dickens.

Perhaps the dominant charm of Dickens' novels lies in the secret of his ability to portray with skill the workings of an affectionate heart. The Cheeryble brothers send out warm sunny rays of loving kindness on every reader of "Nicholas Nickleby." Little Dorrit, God bless her memory, with her sweet, unselfish devotion to her complacent father and thoughtless brothers and sister and witless Maggie, wins the sympathy of every one. Dear old Pegotty, redarmed, a genuine lover; honest Ham and his father; poor little Em'ly, Agnes and Dora (the juxtaposition does not harm them); the pinched face and willing hands of the Marchioness; Ruth Pinch and her brother—and hosts of other faces shine out with genial warmth from the novelist's pages and become tender household memories.

Wherever such hearts are found, in poetry or fiction, in the pages of the novelist or in the busy streets, their power is recognized as unique, beneficent and enduring.—Harper's Bazar.

What a Little Girl Would Do.

A little girl I know is possessed of a peculiarly pugnacious and rebellious nature. One day, being in a neighbor's yard, she noticed some heavy wool socks hanging on the clothes line and inquired of a lady of the house to whom that unusual footgear belonged. The lady told her that they were the socks furnished by the United States government for the use of soldiers and belonged to her son, who had then just enlisted in the signal service. The child gazed at the uncouth objects with curling lip.

"Does he have to wear them?" she inquired.

"Yes," answered the lady, to keep up the fun, "he is obliged to wear them."

The child's eyes flashed fire.

"I wouldn't wear 'em!" she declared. "I'd sass the government!"

And so she would.—Washington Star.

Insects Used For Medicine.

The cochineal insect is in some cases recognized as a medicine, and at one time had a reputation for wonderful virtues. Honey and wax, often used in pharmacy, are insect products, while galls, used in medicine for their astringent proprieties and the gallic and tannic acid they furnish, are also the work of insects.—London Tit-Bits.

A BLUEBIRD'S SONG.

To simple souls, ofttimes in simplest ways,
Come sweet surprises that—we scarce know why—
Make glad with sudden brightness dreary days
Or set a rainbow in a stormy sky.
A smile perhaps from some dear passerby
A word, unsought, of sympathy or praise,
A wayside flower, a flowerlike butterfly—
The veriest trifle has its spell to raise
Some drooping heart to whom God bids it speak.
And I—who heard but now all unaware
That bluebird's rapture thrilling on the air—
I know its meaning is not far to seek:
To me, faint hearted, fearful, once again
The Father sends a message—not in vain.
—Mary Bradley in Harper's Bazar.

What They Knew About Washington.

An Everett schoolteacher whose little charges range in age from 5 to 7 years determined to celebrate the anniversary of the natal day of the father of his country by asking a few questions. This was the interrogatory which she propounded, "What can you tell me about George Washington?" And these are a few of the individual answers:

"He was the savior of us all."

"He was the owner of the soldiers."

"He was the man who can shoot straight."

"He discovered this country."

"He was the first man in the world."

"He was the man who never bragged."

"He is the only man in the world who never told a lie."—Boston Journal.

He Had Gone Prepared.

"Ask father," she whispered softly, and he kissed her as he headed for the library. Ten minutes later she glided in and there found the old gentleman nursing his great toe and freighting his groans with whispered oaths. Then she knew that the destiny of her sweet young life was yet in abeyance, and she took a quiet sneak without uttering a word.—Detroit Free Press.

Alabama boasts a woman who was struck by lightning seven years ago, has never spoken since, and whose eyes grow luridly brilliant at the approach of a thunder storm.

In portions of the south the old time negro still lingers, preserving toward the white race the exact relations of 40 years ago, so far as outward deference goes.

Wedding Invitations.

Wedding invitations are always engraved on note paper. All figures, including dates, are written out in full, except the number of the house. There are no abbreviations. An invitation should never give the effect of being in a hurry. A matter of social function to be done elegantly must be done leisurely.—Philadelphia Times.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

Science
MEDICAL SCIENCE
has achieved a great triumph in the production of
BEECHAM'S PILLS which will cure Sick Headache and all Nervous Disorders arising from Impaired Digestion, Constipation and Disordered Liver; and they will quickly restore women to complete health.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place, at stated in said application, do-wit: Fred Reyer, in the one-story frame building situate on lot 7 block 2, in original townsite of Crookston, Polk County, Minn.
Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, Minn., on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.
Witness my hand and seal of said city this 14th day of June, A. D. 1893.
(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[8-10]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, city of Crookston ss.
Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application respectfully, to-wit: J. J. Molstad on the lower floor of the two-story frame building situated on lot six of block five of Fletcher and Houston's addition to the city of Crookston in said county.
Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, in city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m.. of that day.
Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.
(SEAL) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[9-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application to wit: Medard Merell, in the south twenty-five feet of the brick building situate on lots 17 and 18, block 6, Flecther & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn., on the first floor of said building known as Fortier Block.
Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.
Witness my hand and seal of said city this 9th day of June, A. D. 1893.
(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[9-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Edward Gates, on first floor of the two story frame building No. 19, on the north side of Second street, in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.
Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.
Witness may hand and seal of said city, this 13th day of June A. D. 1893.
(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[9-11]

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court.
In the matter of the guardianship of Lena O. Tommerdal, insane.
On reading and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Solibakke, guardian of the above named insane person, it is ordered, pursuant to the prayer of said petitioner, that a time be fixed for examining and allowing the account; that said account be examined and petition heard by the Judge of this court on the 17th day of July, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in said county.
Ordered further, that public notice be given to all persons interested of the time and place of examining said account by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.
Dated at Crookston this 17th day of June, A. D. 1893.
By the Court: C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.
[10-12]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Young & Huot, on the first floor of the story and a half frame building on Broadway, on lot 18, block 16, in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.
Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.
Witness my hand and seal of said city this 10th day of June, A. D. 1893.
(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[10-12]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application to-wit: William O. Wilson, in the two story brick building known as McKinnon block, on first floor of part of said block, situated on part of lots 7 and 8, block 6, of Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.
Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.
Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.
(SEAL) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[9-11]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing July 1st, 1893, and terminating July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: A. Brosseau, in the frame building on lot 4, block 12, Fletcher & Loring's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.
Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.
Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.
(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.
[9-11]

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal. Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.
Office in McKinnon Block.

OPERA HOUSE
Hardware Store,
T. H. BJOIN, Prop.
SHELF AND HEAVY—
Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,
SASH AND DOORS.
In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and
—THE PRICES LOW.
Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.
T. H. BJOIN.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor
R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, ≡ ≡ ≡ MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston. Minn.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.
HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

CATCHES THE CROWDS.

Midway Plaisance at the Big World's Fair.

IT IS THE PARADISE OF SHOWMEN.

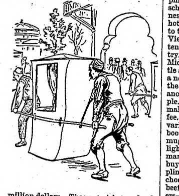
A Torrent of Humanity Constantly Pouring Through the Avenue of Cosmopolitans—The Irish Village and Blarney Castle, the Beauty Show and Many Other Attractions To Be Seen on the Plaisance.

WORLD'S FAIR, June 19.—[Special.]—Of course the Midway plaisance catches the crowds. This is not to be wondered at. It is a wonderful place. Imagine a strip of territory a mile long and as wide as a couple of city blocks in which the smartest showmen of the world have massed their attractions. Imagine a thoroughfare in which the representatives of all nations, their customs and costumes, their music and their means of transportation, and many of their industries and processes of manufacture are to be seen or heard. In the center of this, mightily overshadowing it all, place one of the greatest of all engineering marvels, the vertical wheel; and through this avenue of the cosmopolitans, this paradise of showmen, this apotheosis of all that is queer and spectacular, pour every hour of the day a torrent of humanity—humanity traveling afoot and on the backs of donkeys, horses, dromedaries and occasionally an elephant; humanity riding in wheel chairs of the western world and sedan chairs of the orient; humanity from every clime, in all sorts of uniforms and an immense variety of headgear. And this strange mixture, this condensation of a world of civilization and savagery into one street, is the Midway plaisance, the sideshow feature of the World's Columbian exposition.

There is no need of my giving you a catalogue of the strange things that are to be seen here. The list is too long. I will only mention some of them in passing. Among the first things to attract your attention will be the Irish Village, where Blarney Castle has been cleverly reproduced, and where the bonnie Irish lasses make lace, butter and cheese, and Irish lads sell you trinkets fashioned out of bog oak, and genuine blackthorn walking sticks. But there are two Irish villages here, and both are managed by women. Lady Aberdeen is the mistress of one and Mrs. Hart of the other. Both are doing a good business, and their profits are to be devoted to the support of Irish industrial schools.

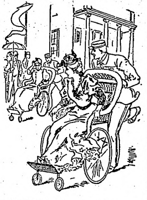
Across the way is the Beauty Show, a large building in which twenty or thirty comely young women, gaily attired in the costumes of the countries whence they came, sit on elevated benches and try to look pleasant while crowds of visitors stand and look at them and pass criticisms upon their faces and figures, for which privilege the visitors have paid the sum of 25 cents each. I am not surprised that this is about the only one of the sideshows that made money during the month of May. This concern paid a 10 per cent. dividend June 1, and at that rate will enrich its owners before November. The chief trouble the managers have is in keeping their girls. Even now they are advertising for more beauties to take the place of those who have deserted. One is not surprised to learn that the girls quickly become tired of the life. It must be very, very trying upon the nerves to sit there under the electric lights all day long, painted and powdered and dressed in finery, with shoals of men and women staring them in the face. A girl without any fine sensibilities might endure it, but one with pride and self-esteem would go insane in a month.

One beautiful, vivacious American girl was offered a fine salary to pose here as the representative of her country, and accepted. In three days she resigned, and said she would not sit there a month for a million dollars. The next girl stayed only one day. In six weeks at least a dozen American girls have tried this way of earning a living, and given it up in disgust. The saddest, most forlorn creature I have seen in the whole fair is the little mite of a Chinese woman who poses on the stage as the representative of the Celestial kingdom. She never smiles, and apparently does not know by experience what it is to laugh. All day she appears to be thinking of her home on the other side of the world. She reminds one of some gentle animal shut up in a cage and pining for liberty. So far she has not talked of throwing up her contract, for in a month here she earns more money than she and her father and mother and brothers and sisters together could earn in a year in China. Besides, she is treated very well by the managers of the show, as all the girls are. But some day, no doubt, she will run away and marry a rich Chinese laundrymen or tea merchant. Several of the foreign girls who came over to pose as representative beauties have already found husbands—and let us hope good ones—in free America.



How one's sympathies do go out to the poor sedan-chair men from Turkey. There are at least thirty of the poor fellows here, and some of them are old, gray-haired men. It is hard work, this sedan-chair carrying. The chair itself must weigh seventy-five pounds. Put within it a 200 pound American man or woman—the women appear to be particularly fond of this method of transportation—and it is a pretty heavy burden for two men to carry at the rate of three miles an hour under a broiling sun. Each Turk puts a strap over his shoulder and grasps the handles of the contrivance. Then they start off at a pretty good pace, and with a gait that is all their own. It is a sort of cross between a waddle and a totter. The older men tremble as they walk, as if their legs were giving way. Perspiration rolls from their brows as their sandals slap, slap along over the shining road ways of gravel or asphalt. Now and then they pause to wipe their faces on dirty old handkerchiefs, to chatter and to light cigarettes. It may not be as hard work as it looks, but I can't see how humane men or women can derive pleasure from such a journey. The owners of the chairs get 75 cents an hour from passengers, 40 cents for half an hour, or 25 cents for "a little ride." It would be interesting to know how much the carriers get for their services, but probably not more than $10 a month and their board.

Compared with the American wheel chairs the sedan chairs look like cruelty to animals. A slender young collegian will take a 200 pound passenger and roll him from one end of the grounds to the other without much effort. These chairs have rubber tires, like a bicycle, and roll very lightly. Comparing the sedan chairs of the Orient with the wheeled chairs of the Occident on the basis of amount of power employed, and the ratio is about ten to one. But the wheel chairs probably wouldn't do at all over the sandy roads of the lands whence the sedan chairs come. So, after all, it is every country and every people to those means of transportation best suited to their requirements.



The villages from Java, from Dahomey, from Germany and the street in Cairo are all very interesting. It looks as if all these enterprises would make money by the cart load during the remainder of the summer. In the German village there is always a great crowd, and it costs 25 cents to set foot within the gates. Once in, there is nothing to see, nothing to do, save to take seats, order luncheon, wine or beer and hear the bands play. The music is very good. A German military band can play a waltz that would tempt a man with one leg, and that full of gout, to look for a partner and a bit of oiled floor. Yet multitudes of people are eager to pay their 25 cents each, and pretty good prices for everything else, that they may enjoy the music. I had forgotten one other attraction in the German village—the fraulein who serve the ice cream and in some of the pavilions the steins of beer and other refreshments. It does one good to look upon the rosy faces, the bright eyes, the natural manners of these maidens from fatherland.

Throughout all the foreign restaurants in the Midway an effort has been made to preserve original costumes and furnishings, and to have the serving done by actually imported waiters. But this is not always possible in practice. In the Moorish cafe, where everything is dirty and uninviting, as one might expect in any eating house with which the Moors have to do, only five or six of the waiters ever saw the waters of the Mediterranean. Thirty or forty waiters, Germans, Irish, American what-not, are attired in gorgeous Moorish outfits, with plenty of gold braid and yellow stuff, and they pass very well for swarthy Moors. Any one may pass for a Moor in Chicago unless he be careful to make vigorous application of soap and water five or six times a day.

The Centennial exposition at Philadelphia, you may remember, was a good school for Americans in the bread business. It taught us to give up the use of hot breads and of heavy breads and to take to the light, flaky but flavorsome bread of Vienna. The Vienna bakery at the Centennial caused a revolution in this country. There is a Vienna bakery here in the Midway plaisance, but it attracts very little attention. Vienna bread is no longer a novelty in America. But it looks as if the Chicago exposition were going to work another revolution in the diet of our people. The cocoa and chocolate people are making a desperate effort to supplant coffee. In the Agricultural building and various parts of the grounds they have booths at which they give away not only mugs of fragrant cocoa or chocolate, but light cakes as well. There are people who manage to spend a day at the fair without buying any luncheon at all. By "sampling" a few cups of cocoa, two or three of chocolate, a couple of plates of soup and beef tea—also given away by manufacturers—and for dessert concluding with the fruit given out to all comers by generous Californians, one may survive the day at no expense whatever to his pocketbook. The cocoa and chocolate people say they are going to spend a lot of money in an effort to break up the Americon habit of drinking coffee all the time, nothing but coffee. Americans are the greatest coffee drinkers in the world. During the period of the World's fair the cocoa and chocolate firms expect to give away decoctions of their goods literally by the ton, but I don't believe even this heroic treatment will make much of an impression upon the coffee-drinking habit of the Americans.

One of the great curiosities of the day in Chicago is to be found in a building on the plaisance. It is spun glass. An enterprising firm has erected here complete glass works, where the visitor may see every stage of the process, from blowing and moulding to the manufacture of cut glass and the weaving of glass fabrics. One would naturally think a fabric made of glass would be hard, brittle and unsatisfactory. But, to the contrary, it is exceedingly soft and pliable. It is much like silk. As you may imagine, it is very beautiful, with a sheen and richness which even silk does not possess. But it is also very costly—$60 a yard I believe is the price. It works up charmingly in curtains, portieres, lamp shades and other decorations. One advantage which it possesses is that it may not only be dusted but may be washed, or be sponged off as often as desired, and made as cleanly as when first put up.

The glass cloth, and all the processes of glass making and decorating, make up a show which is very alluring to the crowds. Midway plaisance from one end to the other is filled with just such attractive novelties.

ROBERT GRAVES.

The Taste For Display.

I am often reminded of how unwisely some wives spend money when shopping, but never more vividly than the other day when I watched a family in a Sixth avenue store. The occasion was important, that was easy to see, for even the father had left his work to take part in the selections. The mother, with a baby in her arms, was poorly dressed and with little attention to details. She wore no gloves, her shoes were slipshod and her choker unfastened. The father led a small boy who was rather gayly attired, but the chief object was a girl of 12 or 14 whom they were fitting out.

They had been on the second floor, as appeared in the new dress and new jacket, a very light, delicate affair in the height of fashion, which was bound to show wear very soon unless kept far more carefully than there was any likelihood of its being. Now they were trying on a bit white leghorn hat turned up in the back with a ribbon bow. The brim was edged with lace, while two large white plumes ornamented the crown.

Never once during the interval of indecision did the mother glance toward the array of black or brown straws. Lizzie must have a big white hat, and of course the saleswoman was only too glad to show the expensive models. The father seemed proud of the new "rig," and from his soiled and greasy pocketbook gladly paid the money for the inappropriate hat just selected. The looker on could not but imagine its condition a few weeks hence, when, bedraggled and soiled, it would look so mean. In fact, there were quite a number of interested spectators slyly watching the scene, doubtless led by the contrast of such finery with the general appearance of the family. It seemed such a pity that the sum spent that morning should not have been for more serviceable apparel, but who would venture to interfere?—Brooklyn Eagle.

Seeing the Beautiful.

Franklin tells a story of a man whose two legs were very unlike—one handsomely turned, the other deformed. When any one who visited him looked at the ugly leg and commented on it, he held the man to be looking for the bad side of things and folk. But if the visitor saw his handsome limb and commented on its beauty he held the fellow to be worth esteem, for he looked at the good side of things and probably would see the best in his neighbors and friends. Is it easier to see other people's virtues than their faults? I have at last come to see that folk are far better than they get credit for being.

When Carlyle and Emerson walked London and saw the horror of gin palaces and the miseries of poverty, the former said, "What do you think now of the Saxon stock?" Emerson answered, "The more I see of the English people the more I admire their power and wonder at their progress." A story is told of Jesus that he was walking with some of his friends when they came on the carcass of a dog. They turned up their noses in horror, but Jesus stooped down, and looking said, "But behold what beautiful teeth he has."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Won His Way With Logan Carlisle.

Every official in Washington just now is besieged by people in quest of office, and the treasury department has probably more than its share of them. Officials know how it is themselves, however, and their good nature is almost superhuman. Among the extra well balanced ones is Logan Carlisle, chief clerk of the treasury, and to him came a youth from Indiana, who wanted to know about a place that he had in view.

"It's this way," said the young man after some talk. "I'm like the young man who had his leg cut off by a locomotive."

"How's that?" inquired Logan.

"I'm in need of immediate attention.

"Oh, in that case," laughed Logan, "you'd better go to the Emergency hospital."

"Well," exclaimed the youth, making a low bow, "here I am." And Logan agreed on the spot to attend to his needs at the earliest opportunity.—Washington Cor. Chicago Herald.

Mrs. Stanford's Jewels.

Apropos of jewels, the handsomest in Washington is the collection owned by Mrs. Leland Stanford, wife of the millionaire senator from California. Her diamonds are second only in value to the Russian and English crown jewels. They are of all tints—one pink, another yellow, one blue, besides the pure white stones, and the aggregate value is estimated as being over $2,000,000. In Mrs. Stanford's safe of steel, with time-proof burglar locks, which, as she seldom wears her jewels, is kept at a safe deposit company, are 50 diamond rings, each worth about $500. She cares for no other stones, so there are only diamonds in her collection.—Washington News.

"Assistant Pastor."

"Assistant pastor" is a new title for a woman and seems to be so far held by only one under this name. The pioneer in this field finds her home and work in Brooklyn, where, at a salary of $400 a year, she relieves the pastor of many routine duties that in a large city parish unwarrantably consume his time and energy. The office might better be called "pastor's wife's assistant," for its work is taking a direct burden from the shoulders of those long suffering women.—New York Recorder.

An Infantile Philosopher.

A pretty little nonentity who has a brilliant mother exasperates her parents almost beyond bearing by such wise remarks as this, uttered after profound reflection upon some case of want and woe, "Well, when one thinks of it, it does not seem, does it, as though riches were evenly divided?"—Philadelphia Press.

An Explanation.

"I admit that I married for money"—began Hicks.

"Why, John!" ejaculated Mrs. Hicks.

"I mean matrimony of course, my dear," explained Hicks.—Harper's Bazar.

When Learning Was Despised.

Abraham Fabert, who in the seventeenth century became a marshal of the French army, lived in an age when learning was despised and mere animal courage won the plaudits of court and people. "The king has no need of philosophers in his armies," said one who knew the signs of the times. "He wants soldiers, stirring, active and resolute men. Debaters are only useful in the schools."

It was at this period that the Marquis of Cramail, at a critical moment, addressed his rear guard, imploring them not to ride away from the field, and his eloquence was at once destroyed when some one cried:

"Why listen to him? He has written a book!"

"I mend my pen with my sword," said a noble of the time to a poet, and the retort was prompt:

"Then I am no longer astonished that you write so badly."

But young Fabert, who became a private at the age of 14, was determined to master all the branches of his profession from the simplest to the most complex. He fulfilled all his practical duties perfectly, and at the same time studied with unfailing zeal. He taught himself the rudiments of geometry, fortification and drawing. He read history, studied German, Spanish, Italian and Flemish and was always eagerly seeking to improve his knowledge of geography.

"This," he used to say, "is as necessary to an officer as arms are to the soldier."

The result was that when France needed the service of a trained mind and well disciplined will Fabert was at her service. Moreover, he was the first marshal who rose from the ranks.—Youth's Companion.

A Commencement Costume.

A pretty commencement gown may be made of white embroidered muslin, the tiny flower being done in white, and upon close examination proving that it is a forgetmenot. The skirt, which is full and round, just barely escapes the floor. At the foot it is finished with five narrow "milliner's folds" of white satin. A quarter of a yard above these are three narrow folds, and a quarter of a yard above these is one. The bodice is round and belted in with a broad, white satin belt laid in fine folds like those on the skirt. Just in front, where it fastens, are four white satin ribbon bows knotted in the square style, so that they look like forgetmenots themselves.

The gown is open at the throat, turned over in very broad revers, faced with the muslin and outlined with Irish lace, that has the stitches necessary to keep it in place hidden under folds of the satin. The sleeves are very high puffs of the satin, reaching quite to the elbows, and below them fall frills of Irish lace. The gloves are white undressed kid, and the fan is a white gauze one. The slippers are white satin and the stockings white silk. The hair is parted in the center, drawn back and arranged low on the neck in a loose knot.—Isabella Mallon in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Napoleon of Literature.

The man was as thin as a rail and had the cadaverous look of a poet out of a job. At least that's the way he appeared to the editor as that gentleman raised his eyes from his work to see what it was shuffling across the floor toward his desk.

"Good morning," said the visitor.

"Good morning," responded the editor.

"You are the editor," said the visitor inquiringly, half in doubt. "Yes, I know you are. I can always tell an editor by his intellectual expression. I have here, sir, an article for the press."

"Prose or poetry?" queried the editor, not regarding the flattery.

"Both, sir: a combination effort, I may say."

"Ah, you must be a genius?"

"Well, sir," and the visitor plumed himself, "I am considered by my friends a Napoleon of literature, sir."

The editor didn't like that a little bit.

"Um," he said, looking him over. "Um, I didn't know you were a Napoleon, but I knew you were a bony part of literature. Anybody could see that with half an eye."—Detroit Free Press.

The Government of Spain.

The government of Spain is a limited monarchy under the constitution which was drawn up and proclaimed in 1876. The power to make laws belongs to the cortes, which consists of a senate and a house of deputies, the senators numbering 360 and the deputies 431. The senators are of three classes—those holding office in their own right, those nominated by the crown and those elected by the civil and ecclesiastical corporations of state. In the election of deputies all male Spaniards may vote under certain restrictions, and deputies are elected in the proportion of one deputy to every 50,000 souls of the population. Both houses of the cortes meet every year, and the ministers are responsible thereto.—New York Sun.

Went After Dinner.

Patrick—It's poor advice ye've been givin me. Didn't ye say th' best toime to ask a mon a favor was afther dinner?

Bifkins—I certainly did.

"Well, Oi wint to ould Buffers wid th schmallest koind av a request, and he refused. It was afther dinner too.

"Are you sure he had had his dinner?"

"Faith it's little Oi know about ould Buffers' ingoin's and outcomin's, but Oi had moine."—New York Weekly.

Getting Points From the Savage.

It is said there is a tribe in Africa where speakers in public debate are required to stand on one leg and are not allowed to speak longer than they can stand in that position. With all our boasted civilization we discover every now and then points in which savages surpass us.—Exchange.

The Great Difference.

"There is not much similarity between our ways of earning a livelihood," said the dentist to the paint manufacturer.

"No," admitted the manufacturer, "there is not. I grind colors while you cull grinders."—Indianapolis Journal.

June 18th,
1893,
Through Passenger Service
BEGAN ON THE
GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY
To Seattle and other cities on Puget Sound and Pacific Coast, June 18th. This new transcontinental route reaches principal points in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington. It is
125 Miles the Shortest Route
From the East to Puget Sound. This new Line is through a country abounding in agricultural, pastoral, timber and mineral wealth, and offers inducements to investors and home-seekers. For printed matter or further information apply to
W. W. FEGAN, Agent,
Crookston, Minn.
Or address
F. I. WHITNEY, G. P. & T. A.
St. Paul, Minn.

THE CIRCUS
WILL SOON BE HERE—
AND YOU WILL—
WANT TO SEE IT.
How to Obtain the Pange?
WELL, there are several ways to accomplish that result, and among them the best way we know of is for you to trade at the—
General Store
—OF—
Fontaine & Anglim.
Where you can save enough in one month to take the whole family to the world-renowned aggregation.
Yours for Good Goods and Low Prices.
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

RECKITT BLOCK
MEAT MARKET,
VINE & RICHINGS, Props.
FRESH AND SALT MEATS,
——Constantly on hand.
GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
——In season.
Highest price paid for
FAT CATTE, HOGS,
SHEEP and POULTRY.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
Commenced Business October, 1881.
PAID IN CAPITAL........$100,000
SURPLUS............15,500
Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. H. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED
——RIVER HARD WHEAT.——
BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.
BRAN, SHORTS
AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
Besides carrying a full and complete line of
COFFINS,
CASKETS
AND BURIAL SUPPLIES,
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
——AND——
Picture Framing Material
——In the city.——
Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 105½ Broadway.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINNESOTA

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor,
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.
CALL IN.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skillfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, June 14.

The supreme lodge of the Royal Arcanum will meet at Detroit next year.

Four persons were killed and two fatally injured in a sweater shop fire in New York.

Officials of the Irving Savings institution, New York city, are short to the extent of $79,000.

The cowboy race from Chadron, Neb., to Chicago, has begun. There were nine starters.

A. B. Wood, city editor of the St. Paul Dispatch, was married at Winnipeg to Miss Louise Atwood, a daughter of Colonel P. H. Atwood of that city.

At Dayton, O., a motor car of the White Line street railway was struck and demolished at a railroad crossing. Martin Rudolph, an inmate of the Soldiers' home, was killed, and William Harkerrider, the motorman, was seriously injured.

Thursday, June 15.

Paid admissions at the world's fair Wednesday were 83,532.

"Railroad Jack," the noted dog traveler, died at Albany, N.Y., Wednesday.

The body of Herman Schaffner, the missing Chicago banker, was recovered in Lake Michigan Wednesday.

Arrangements are being made for the biggest celebration in the history of the country at Jackson park, July 4.

Near Parkersburg, W.Va., Mrs. Kate Kerch threw two of her children into a well, poisoned two others and suicided.

Two sleds jumped the track on the ice railway at Midway Plaisance, and several persons were severely injured, two fatally.

Friday, June 16.

The new gunboat Machias, on her trial trip, made 15 knots an hour, 2 knots more than required by the contract.

The late Professor Richard Proctor, the astronomer, is buried in a borrowed grave in Brooklyn, and his daughter is trying to raise funds to buy a lot.

Indiana and Arkansas dedicated state buildings at the world's fair Thursday. Ex-President Harrison spoke for Indiana.

It is reported Marie Wainwright, the actress, is leaving the stage to marry a Pacific coast millionaire.

The indictments against the De Lesseps and others convicted of bribery in the Panama canal matter in Paris have been quashed and the defendants liberated.

Saturday, June 17.

Calvert B. Cottrell, the well known printing press manufacturer, is dead.

A Moscow church has been robbed of a large amount of treasure by monks.

James Ambridge was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and to serve 50 days in the penitentiary for killing fish in the Mohawk river with dynamite.

The Grand Duke Alexander, nephew of the Czar of Russia, and Mr. Shutles, an official of the Russian fleet, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor at Fercliff.

Professor Edward Everett Hale, Jr., of the Iowa university was married Thursday to Miss Rose Perkins at New London, Conn. Rev. Edward Everett Hale performed the ceremony.

The Great Northern has increased its capitalization to $45,000,000, of which $25,000,000 is preferred stock. A certificate to this effect has been filed in the office of the secretary of state of Minnesota.

Monday, June 19.

Hans Peter Holst, the Danish poet, is dead at the age of 82.

Fire at Chicago Sunday morning caused a loss of $500,000.

New York banks suffered a loss in deposits during the past week of $12,389,200.

A small cyclone struck Laredo, Tex., Friday. Considerable damage to property but no lives lost.

The British house of commons has unanimously adopted a resolution in favor of international arbitration.

Senator Stanford of California, is said to contemplate resigning his seat because of increasing physical infirmities.

An attempt of Kansas Farmers' Alliances to regulate wages of farm hands was frustrated by threats of prosecution under the anti-trust law.

As a result of a quarrel of long standing over a line fence, William Kuykendall, a Missouri farmer, killed W. H. Smith and then shot himself.

Commissioner Miller has prepared a statement which shows that the total sugar bounty for the fiscal year ending June 30, will be $9,403,989. The amount actually paid is as follows: On cane sugar, $8.697,994; on beet sugar, $531,363; on sorghum sugar, $19,817; on maple sugar, $60,119. Total, $9,309,293.

Tuesday, June 20.

About 20 persons were overcome by heat on the world's fair grounds Monday. All will recover.

In Germany the Social Democrats and Richter Radicals will work together in the reballotings.

Felix Borden, mentioned as the possible murderer of Lizzie's parents, has proven an alibi.

A bad wreck of two freights occurred at the junction or the Great Northern and Eastern Minnesota roads at Milaca, Minn.

M. Clemenceau challenged M. de Roulede and M. Millevove to a duel on account of language used in the chamber of deputies. Both refused to fight.

Mrs. Fordman Sherbert of Renville county, Minn., was driving into Redwood Falls with her daughter, 16 years old. While approaching the city the girl leaned over on her mother's knee and expired. It is supposed the cause was heart affection.

RIOTERS SHOT DOWN.

Bloody Conflict In Berne Between Swiss Workmen and the Police.

BERNE, June 20.—About 50 Swiss workingmen attacked a gang of Italians who had been imported to work in the streets. The police arrested 15 of the attacking party and locked them up. In the evening a turbulent crowd gathered in a street near the jail. When the police attempted to disperse them the men made a rush for the jail to release the prisoners. The police fired upon the rioters but were unable to drive them back until 14 had been killed and 40 wounded. Later 1,000 men were gathered to attack the jail. A detachment of artillery was brought up to drive them back and is now stationed in front of the jail.

GERMAN ELECTIONS.

Opponents of the Army Bill Have a Slight Majority.

BERLIN, June 17.—The election returns are virtually complete. The returns from 10 districts are all that are missing. The candidates elected number 215; of these 101 will vote for the next army bill and 114 against it. Reballots are necessary in 181 districts. As was expected the latest returns have increased steadily the list of members upon whom the government can rely for support. While the victories of the Social Democrats have been regarded with alarm, their immediate effect upon the fate of the army bill will be more than offset by the losses of Richter Radicals.

DE LESSEPS GET LIBERTY.

Court of Cassation Declares Panama Swindlers Illegally Convicted.

PARIS, June 16.—Considerable excitement has been caused by the decision of the court of cassation on appeal of Charles de Lesseps and the other defendants convicted of fraud in connection with the Panama Canal company. The court has handed down its decision, quashing the sentence on the ground that the statue of limitations covered the offenses charged, and that the indictments on which prisoners were tried were irregular.

PLEADING FOR A LIFE.

Governor Robinson Makes His Address for Lizzie Borden.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 20.—The day of the arguments in the Borden case brought out a terrific jam at the courthouse. The jury was polled promptly on the opening of court, and almost immediately Governor Robinson began his argument. He held that the fearful crime of which Lizzie Borden is accused was the work of a maniac, and it is impossible that she should have committed it.

Governor Robinson finished at 8 o'clock and District Attorney Knowlton began his address for the prosecution.

Railroads Retaliate.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 20.—The railroad companies have begun the fight of retaliation they threatened last winter, when the maximum rate bill was up for consideration. Last week President Perkins of the Burlington paid a visit of inspection to all lines in Nebraska, and immediately upon his return ordered a new time card. By this new card several passenger trains on branch lines will be discontinued.

Commerce and Finance.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The general congress of commerce and trade began with a session in the Hall of Columbus at 8 o'clock p. m. C. C. Bonner delivered an address of welcome to the delegates which was responded to by Lyman J. Gage, general chairman of the congress. Then followed responses on behalf of the various subordinate congresses.

Strike Off at Washburn.

WASHBURN, Wis., June 20.—The strike on the Northwestern Fuel company's dock has been declared off.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 20, 1893.

HOGS—Market a shade lower and active. Quality medium to fair. Range of prices, $5.90@6.90.

CATTLE—Quiet. Moderate demand for fat cattle, but prices weak, with general decline Prime steers, $3.75@4.15; good steers, $3.50@3.75; prime cows, $3.00@3.35; good cows; $2.50@3.00; common to fair cows, $1.50@2.50; light veal calves, $3.00@4.25; heavy calves, $1.75@$2.75 stockers, $2.00@2.75; feeders, $2.50@3.75; bulls, $1.75@2.50.

SHEEP—Dull and lower. Good shorn muttons, $4.00@4.75; lambs, $5.00@5.50; stockers and feeders, $3.00@4.50.

Receipts: Hogs, 300; cattle, 50; sheep, 100; calves, 5.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 20, 1893.

WHEAT—June closing, 59⅝c; July opening 59⅝c; highest, 59⅝@59¾c: lowest, 58⅝@59¼c; closing 59⅝c. August closing, 61⅞c. September opening, 61⅝@64⅞@65c; highest, 64⅞@65c; lowest, 64⅛@64¼c; closing, 64⅞c. On track—No. 1 hard, 63c: No. 1 Northern, 61c; No. 2 Northern, 59@59½c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, June 20, 1893.

CATTLE—Weak.

HOGS—Firm, 5@10c higher. Heavy, $6.45@6.60; mixed and medium, $6.30@6.60; light, $6.45@6.60.

SHEEP—Weak, 10c lower.

Receipts: Cattle, 17,000; hogs, 25,000; sheep, 15,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 20, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

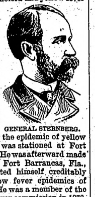
WHEAT—July, 66⅛c; September, 71c.
CORN—July, 41⅛c; September, 43c.
OATS—July, 30c; September, 26¾c.
PORK—September, $20.60.
LARD—July; $10.05; September, $10.52½.
SHORT RIBS—July, $9.45.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—June, 65½c; July, 66⅝c; September, 71¼c.
CORN—June, 42⅛c; July, 42¾c; September, 43⅞c.
OATS—June, 30⅛c; July, 30¼c; September, 27⅜c.
PORK—July, $20.35; September, $20.95.
LARD—June, $9.85; July, $9.95; Septemberr, $10.55@10.57½.
SHORT RIBS—July, $9.25; September, $9.57½.

AN EXPERT ON EPIDEMICS.

The Record of Surgeon General Sternberg of the Army.



GENERAL STERNBERG.

It is reassuring to know that George M. Sternberg, the new surgeon general of the army, is a cholera and yellow fever expert and that in case of a serious epidemic he is well qualified by experience and education to act with promptness and intelligence. During the cholera epidemic of 1867 he distinguished himself by his successful work at Fort Harker, Kan., and during the epidemic of yellow fever in 1871 he was stationed at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. He was afterward made post surgeon at Fort Barrancas, Fla., where he acquitted himself creditably during the yellow fever epidemics of 1873 and 1875. He was a member of the Havana yellow fever commission in 1879, and in 1885 was a delegate to the international sanitary conference at Rome. He was then detailed to make investigations relative to the causes and prevention of yellow fever and in pursuance of this duty visited Brazil, Mexico and Cuba.

Surgeon General Sternberg was born June 8, 1838, in New York city, and in 1861 was appointed assistant surgeon in the army with the rank of first lieutenant. During the war he was brevetted captain and major and achieved the actual rank of captain and assistant surgeon. In 1875 he was made major and surgeon. In 1891 he was appointed deputy surgeon general with the rank of lieutenant colonel. In addition to the performance of his professional duties General Sternberg has found time to write a number of articles on the general subject of public hygiene and sanitation.

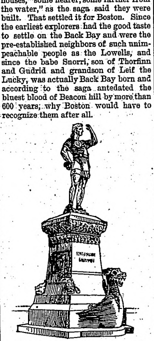
Ex-Surgeon General Charles Sutherland, the predecessor of General Sternberg, served for 40 years in the army and made an honorable record. He was appointed surgeon general on Dec. 23, 1890, and has now been retired for age.

LEIF THE LUCKY.

Miss Whitney's Statue of the Norse Explorer at Boston.

Boston may now be considered as thoroughly committed to the theory that Norsemen antedated Columbus 500 years in the discovery of America. It took the Hub a long time to come to this conclusion, for she had formerly frowned on the theory. The Massachusetts Historical society condemned it, and Historian Bancroft declared there was nothing in it. But in 1872 Ole Bull, the Norwegian violinist, declared his belief in the story of the discovery narrated in the saga of Eric the Red and wanted a monument erected to the Norse discoverers by the Scandinavians in the United States. Still Boston frowned and even refused a gift of $40,000 offered for the purpose by Thomas Appleton.

Then Professor Rasmus B. Andersen, Edward Everett Hale, Longfellow and Lowell gave the movement a helpful shove, and Professor Eben Norton Horsford, guiding himself entirely by the narrative of the saga, sailed up the Charles river and into Boston's sacred Back Bay, and there, near Gerry's landing and beyond Lowell's house in Cambridge, came upon the remains of five log houses, "some nearer, some farther from the water," as the saga said they were built. That settled it for Boston. Since the earliest explorers had the good taste to settle on the Back Bay and were the pre-established neighbors of such unimpeachable people as the Lowells, and since the babe Snorri, son of Thorfinn and Gudrid and grandson of Leif the Lucky, was actually Back Bay born and according to the saga antedated the bluest blood of Beacon hill by more than 600 years, why Boston would have to recognize them after all.



MISS WHITNEY'S STATUE OF LEIF ERICSON.

And she did, and erected a monument to them in Back Bay park in 1887 and has not since repented. Rather she has become prouder of it and has sent a copy of the statue to the World's fair, as though in insistence upon her right to be the first place discovered, though she would not press the claim during a celebration in honor of another place and later date.

Miss Whitney's statue of Leif the Lucky represents him as he might have looked sailing into Boston harbor, strong, handsome, with a noble face, frank eyes and long hair sweeping back from a high forehead. At the base of the pedestal are the idealized prow and stern of a viking ship, and on the sides are bronze reliefs, one representing him setting his foot on the new land and the other showing him narrating his adventures at a yuletide feast.

San Francisco is the banner city for saloons. It has 1 such institution to every 98 persons. Albany comes next with 1 to every 110 persons, and New Orleans 1 to every 121 persons.

Mrs. S. A. Morrow
Doud's, Iowa.

Hives

Like All Other Blood Diseases, Are Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I have been a sufferer for several years with hives, and have tried everything I could hear of, from friends, or ordered by physicians, but nothing cured. In fact, I

Seemed to be Getting Worse

Finally I read about hives being cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and decided to try this medicine. Before half a bottle was gone I was almost cured, and now, being on the second bottle, I am entirely cured and take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to all who suffer from this distressing affliction. Hood's Sarsaparilla has also helped me in many other ways. It is a good medicine." MRS. S. A. MORROW, Doud's, Iowa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache.

THE NEW NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana	FARM LANDS
NEW TOWNS	100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.	LOW RATES
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.	Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth.	In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetes Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.	Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines	These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st, 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Ole G. Iverson deceased:

Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being this day granted unto Gulbrand Iverson of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court, for examination and allowance, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston on Monday the 13th day of November, A. D. 1893, at 10 a. m.

It is further ordered, that six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented to said Court, or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless, for cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to the day appointed for such examination, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said County.

Dated at Crookston the 31st day of May A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[8-10]

Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE

North American Review

YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, he Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc.

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year.
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

FRESH VEGETABLES RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice Lot of

CANNED GOODS

At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,

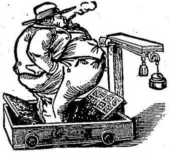
Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,

W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.

ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Price —OF— Groceries



HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as

TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,

I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of

Groceries, Crockery, Etc.

Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,

BROADWAY, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

BUY A WHEEL EARLY

And get the benefit of full riding season. The Victor is the leader wherever known. Call and see one. We sell on terms to suit. We also have a line of low and medium priced wheels. We can suit anybody's pocket.

The Rushford Wagon still stands at the head; best material, best finish, best ironing, best paint, in fact it can't be beat.

Our usual line of Buggies, Carts, Harness, and other seasonable goods is complete, and prices right. Call and see.

MERIT WINS.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Next to Merchants' Bank.

TOWNS DESTROYED.

MESABA RANGE SWEPT BY DESTRUCTIVE FOREST FIRES.

Virginia and Biwabik Wiped Out and Other Towns In Danger—A Million Dollars Loss Caused and Thousands of People Homeless.

DULUTH, June 19.—The result of a a year of enterprise on the Mesaba range has been wiped out in a single day. Advices received indicate that the towns of Virginia and Mountain Iron have been destroyed and that Diwabik was partially if not entirely wiped out. It is impossible to estimate the loss but it will approximate $1,000,000 and several thousand people are homeless. For three weeks the range has been in danger. Forest fires have been burning on all sides of the new mining towns and only by the greatest efforts has the disaster been so long averted.

TWO TOWNS DESTROYED.

Virginia and Merritt Wiped Out and, Other Towns Slightly Damaged.

DULUTH, June 20.—Accurate news of the fire on the Mesaba range shows the usual exaggeration in the first reports, but the money loss will be greater than first estimated. The first stories regarding Mountain Iron and Biwabik were untrue. At Biwabik only a few detached buildings were burned and at Mountain Iron only six buildings. At Virginia the situation is as serious as reported. The entire business portion of the town is destroyed. About 30 houses are standing and 840 were burned. Merritt is only 16 buildings now remaining in the town. It is impossible to reach Merritt as the woods are still burning about the village. It was the only town the newspaper men were not able to visit and see the exact situation for themselves. The condition of the sufferers at Virginia is particularly unfortunate. Most of them are without shelter, clothing is scarce and food, despite the supplies that have been sent from Duluth, is still scanty. Everything possible is being done for them and railroads reaching the range are carrying all supplies and provisions free. On the whole range about 3,500 people are for the time being dependent on charity. In a large measure the women and children have been brought to Duluth.

Nearly Wiped Out,

Work of Relief.

At a citizens' meeting a general relief committee was appointed and it was decided not to appeal for outside aid. Between $5,000 and $6,000 has been subscribed for the work of relief and clothing and provisions are coming in on every hand. Trouble is feared at Virginia from the character of the populace. As in all mining towns the men are, many of them, hard characters, and lawlessness is anticipated. Police Sargeant Smollett and a squad of officers have been sworn in as deputy sheriffs and sent to Virginia. The total loss, as estimated by those best qualified to know, is put at $1,500,000. The insurance is about $300,000. Fires are burning all along the range still and a change of wind will cause more damage.

FORESTS IN FLAMES.

Great Damage Being Done in Northern Wisconsin.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., June 20.—The forest fires are still burning along the Eastern Minnesota and South Shore railways and millions of fine standing pine is being consumed. The Northern Pacific train which arrives from Ashland at 7:20 did not arrive until nearly 10 o'clock and all trains on the South Shore railroad have been abandoned until further notice. Dispatches from Iron River state that the fire is under control but that all around the city the forest is burning and several of the saw mills are in danger. The firemen sent from Ashland and the citizens are Still Fighting the Fire, and should the wind change the village still stands a good chance of burning. All along the South Shore from Middle River to within a few miles of Ashland is like a sea of fire. All the towns along the road are fighting the fire and trains have stopped running. At Sanborn the big wooden bridge, which is 40 feet high, caught from the burning timber and was soon a mass of smoking ruins. When the Northern Pacific train arrived it was covered with cinders and paint on the cars was raised in great blisters from the intense heat. Boylston, on the Eastern Minnesota, caught during the afternoon and the train which left Superior about noon

Had Great Difficulty

in getting through. A special train was sent out from this city with a number of section men and others to fight the flames, and the village was saved.

Sanborn, a small lumbering town on the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic,

Is Entirely Wiped Out.

Two children of a homesteader near there perished. At White River over 1,000 acres of standing pine is ablaze, making a regular sea of flames. Fourteen cars of charcoal were burned on the track at York's siding. Railroads all sent out special trains with men to fight the flames.

The fire near Washburn is approaching that city rapidly and they have sent for help. The weather has been very dry, and forest fires were never known to burn as rapidly.

Whalen Is Sane.

JANESVILLE, Wis., June 17.—The jury, after two hours' deliberation, decided Whalen was a sane man and brought in a verdict accordingly. Arguments on the murder issue will be heard by the same jury.

STRIKERS SUCCESSFUL.

St. Paul and Minneapolis Street Car Lines Tied Up For a Day.

ST. PAUL, June 19.—It is the unexpected that always happens, and the old saying was again verified Sunday morning when the 700 and odd men in the employ of the Twin City Rapid Transit company in this city and the 1,200 employed in Minneapolis went out on a strike.

There had been some talk among the men on Saturday night about the action of the company in requiring its employes to sign a new contract, but neither the company officials nor the men had the least idea that the strike would occur until after the last car was housed for the night. The strike originated in Minneapolis, the decision to go out having been arrived at about 3:30 Sunday morning. Delegates from the Minneapolis meeting at once came to this city and succeeded in getting all the conductors and motoneers to go out. With the exception of five cars on the East Seventh street and Selby avenue cable lines, manned by barn employes, not a car was moved. In Minneapolis the strikers were even more successful, not a single car leaving the barns.

Conference Held.

Meetings of strikers were held in both cities during the morning and committees appointed to wait on the company officials and attempt to settle the controversy. Mayor Eustis of Minneapolis took a hand in the matter and a meeting was finally arranged between the committee and Messrs. C. G. Goodrich and W. J. Hield of the Twin City Rapid Transit company. The meeting was held in the mayor's private office, and every door leading thereto was carefully closed. The meeting continued from about 11:30 to 1:30, and all were as cool as cucumbers when it broke up. The peaceful and quick settlement of the trouble, which for a long time looked as if it might extend over a long and trying period, was not accomplished without several exciting and thrilling scenes, for the men were in and would have secured their end if they had had to fight it out all summer. The settlement was reached at 2 p. m., and the first car to turn a wheel in Minneapolis after the declaration of the end of the embryo strike moved from an East Side barn 20 minutes afterward amid the cheers of the men and the applause of every sympathizer. In this city, however, matters were much slower in getting into shape and it was nearly 7 o'clock when the meeting of strikers in Labor hall adjourned. The men at once reported to the barns and in less than an hour cars were running on all the lines.

No Mood to Be Trifled With,

The Obnoxious Contract.

The order of the company which caused the tie-up of its lines is in substance as follows:

"All street railway conductors and drivers will be held responsible hereafter, not only for breakage to their cars, windows, trolleys, etc., but to vehicles broken in collisions in accidents due to the negligence of the conductor or motorman."

In addition to this the strikers asked that the portion of the application which they are compelled to answer whether or not they belong to a labor organization be stricken out and a standing board of arbitration from among the men be recognized by the company. The company acceded to the demand in regard to the contracts and agreed to arrange the other matters to suit the men.

Typhoid Epidemic Increasing.

MILWAUKEE, June 17.—A special to The Journal from Ironwood, Mich., says: This village is suffering the worst epidemic of typhoid fever ever known to Michigan. There are 400 cases now and the public buildings are turned into hospitals. Thirty to 50 new cases daily, and 50 to 60 deaths a week are reported.

To Consolidpte Land Offices.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—It is said to be the intention of the interior department to consolidate a number of land offices in the Northwest. It is not yet known whether Minnesota will be affected, but there is talk that Taylor's Falls and St. Cloud will be made one. In Wisconsin the office at Menasha will be closed up and moved to Wausau.

Justice Blatchford Stricken.

BOSTON, June 20.—A special to The Herald from Newport, R. I., says: Associate Justice Samuel Blatchford of the United States supreme court has been stricken with paralysis at his cottage on Greenough Place. It is said that he cannot move and his family have been told to prepare for the worst.

Ainsworth and Others Guilty.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The coroner's jury holds Colonel Ainsworth, Contractor Dant, Superintendent Covert and Engineer Sasse guilty of criminal negligence in connection with the Ford's theatre disaster. Their arrest will follow.

Quiet at Leech Lake.

PARK RAPIDS, Minn., June 1 .—The latest from Leech Lake is that Indians have quieted down and there is no further danger of trouble. The troops have gone into camp at Leech Lake. Dr. Walker was released from arrest and has returned home.

Expensive Building.

FARGO, N. D., June 20.—B. Hagaman of Chicago announces that he has decided to rebuild the Chapin & Hagaman 8-story brick block on Robert street, at a cost of $100,000.

For Mayor of Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, June 20.—Garrett Dunck has been nominated for mayor by the Democratic city convention, receiving 112 out of 198 votes.

AN OPEN SUNDAY.

VEXED QUESTION DEFINITELY SETTLED BY THE COURTS.

Chief Justice Fuller Reads the Decision, Which Holds That the Local Directory Control and That the Government Cannot Interfere.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The decision of the United States circuit court closing the world's fair on Sunday has been reversed. The government is declared to have no exclusive right or authority in the control of the World's Columbian exposition.

These are the two salient points of the decision rendered by the United States court of appeals, a decision moreover rendered noteworthy by the fact that it reversed the unanimous concurrence of all the sitting justices, while the decision reversed was dissented from in the circuit court by one of the judges then sitting on the case.

Fuller Read the Opinion.

Chief Justice Fuller, who read the opinion, first devoted his attention to the contention of counsel for the government that the court of appeals had no jurisdiction in the premises, and after reviewing the arguments at some length, declared the motion to dismiss the appeal overruled. Coming down to the main question, the court took the ground that the appropriation of $2,500,000 in souvenir coins by the United States government could not possibly be constructed as a charity, or as a charitable bequest. It was for the assistance and benefit of the corporation. As to the right of the United States' possession and control of the grounds, the court held that the local corporation was in actual and lawful possession, and that this fact had been recognized by acts of the national legislature. The court repudiated the idea that the United States had any exclusive rights or authority in the premises, and concluded with the declaration that no tenable grounds had been shown for excepting the case under hearing from the ordinary rules governing a court of chancery.

Simply an Appropriation

"Therefore," concluded the chief justice, "the order of the circuit court is reversed, and the case is remanded for any further proceedings not inconsistent with this ruling.

PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

Goodly Batch of Registers and Receivers of Land Offices.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The president has made the following appointments:

To be registers of land offices: Joseph W. Jamieson, of Missouri, at Boonville, Mo.; George Kuentz, of Wisconsin, at Ashland, Wis.; Andrew J. Taylor, of Minnesota, at Duluth, Minn.

To be receivers of public moneys: Clarence Dennis, of Wisconsin, at Ashland, Wis.; Jacob H. Robbins, of Oregon, at Legrande, Or.; Frank P. Buckle, of Colorado, at Denver.

Peemiller For Marshal.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Otto Peemiller has been appointed United States marshal for South Dakota, Israel P. Hunt, postmaster of Bismarck, James W. Murphy internal revenue collector for the first district of Wisconsin, and August Ross collector of customs at Milwaukee.

Detailed Army Officers.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The president has detailed twenty army officers to act as Indian agents in Western states.

REPUBLICAN HEADQUARTERS.

The Republican League Committee Chooses Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The National Republican League executive committee, in session at the Grand Pacific Hotel, has selected Chicago as national headquarters, by a vote of 10 states for Chicago, 4 for St. Louis, 3 for Washington and 1 for New York.

Murdered by Burglars.

MINNEAPOLIS June 16.—J. R. Harris, formerly one of the most prominent citizens of Wilkin county, and well known throughout the Red River valley, was murdered by burglars at his home in Minneapolis early Friday morning. He awoke while the burglars were in his room, and at once attacked them. He was shot twice—in the hand and just above the heart. Mayor Eustis and Governor Nelson have each offered a reward of $500 for the capture of the murderers.

Receiver for the St. Paul Globe.

ST. PAUL, June 17.—Judge Otis has appointed Hon. Charles E. Flandrau receiver for the Globe Publishing company of this city as a result of a suit brought by the St. Paul Trust company. The publication of The Globe will continue as usual.

Will Retain Briggs.

NEW YORK, June 17.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Union Seminary, it has been decided that Professor C. A. Briggs, D. D., will continue his work in the department of Biblical theology as hitherto.

To Issue Loan Certificates.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Clearing House association have decided to issue 6 per cent loan certificates to tide those banks which need help over the present financial troubles.

South Dakota Democrats.

YANKTON, June 16.—The Democratic state central committee met here and issued a call for a convention to be held at Scotland on Sept. 6 to nominate judges of the supreme court.

Viking Ship at New York.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The Viking ship was sighted about 10 miles from City island at 12:45 a. m.

The Glorious Sun of the Amusement Firmament.

Shedding its effulgence and Benign Influence Over the Whole Universe.

SELLS BROS.'

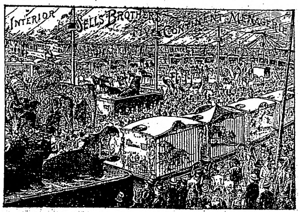
MONSTER MONOPOLY

OF ALL THAT IS WORTH SEEING IN THE TENTED FIELD.

Magnificent 3-ring Circus, Royal Roman Hippodrome, Huge Elevated Stages, Five Continent Menagerie, African Aquariam, Aurtralian Bird show, Arabian Caravan, Spectacular Pegeants, and Trans-Pacific Wild Beast Exhibits.

Will Exhibit at Crookston

Saturday, June 24th.



INTERIOR SELLS BROTHERS FIVE CONTINENT MENAGERIE

The Sempiternal Sponsors of the World's Greatest Sensations. Its promises are staple ans as current as gold.——Its visits are hailed with delight at home and abroad.——The highest standard of value the world over.——In America it stands pre-eminent and alone.——In Australia it was the theme of universal praise.——In Canada it stood on the very pinnacle of prominence.——In Mexico it astonished all beholders.——As permanently fixed as the stars.——As popular and welcome as knowledge itself.——As perfect as the universal laws of nature,——As true as the needle to the pole.——As firm as Gibralter in public favor;——

IT IS THE LARGEST TRAVELING SHOW ON EARTH.

It is so admitted by all disinterested people.——Other shows privately admit it, although for policy's sake they may publicly deny it.——It has more people in its employ. This is never denied.——It has the most noted performers. This is universally conceded.——It uses the most cars to transport it. All Railroad men know it,——It is as superior to other shows as the Columbian Exposition is to an ordinary pumpkin and quilt fair.——It has the finest parade ever seen on any public streets in the world.——It has the finest horses. All horsemen admit it.——It has the best music.——It has the handsomest women.——It has the bravest men.——It has the prettiest ponies.——Is has the grandest Spectacle.——It has the richest Pageants.——It has the only pair of——

MONSTER BEHEMOTHS

Spoken of in the Songs of Job, They are the rarest, costliest and most interesting animals ever captured.

What other show can approach it in character, in size, in merit, in management, in morality, in every worthy featues? What other show has a whole school of Sea Lions and Alaskan Seals, taught to perform feats so wonderful as to defy description. They play on banjos, mandolins, drums, cymbals and bells, fire off guns, drill like soldiers, play base ball, walk on tight rope, sing and are actually endowed with reason, and do everything but talk.——What other show has a flock of full grown Ostriches?——What other show has five giant Royal East Indian Tigers?——What other show has three rings, two stages, twelve tents, four hundred horses, one hundred ponies, one thousand men, women and children?——What other show has three hundred circus celebrities? What other show has one hundred beautiful Ladies in Amazonian marches, ballets, choruses and spectacular displays.——What other show has fifty Clowns appearing at one time?——What other show has Oriental Pageants resplendent with the most extravagant and costly paraphernalia, housings and gold-trimmed wardrobe, faithfully portraying the triumphal scenes in the Pilgrimage of the Mohammedans from Medina to Mecca?——What other show has a monster Unicorn?——What other show has two elevated stages, filled with the most exciting and wonderful performances?——What other show has one hundred acts in its Amphitheater?——What other show has 50 exciting Races in its Hippodrome?——What other show has a curiosity one-half so wonderful as Jo-Jo, the remarkable human Sky-terrier, an intelligent man with the head of a pet dog?——What other show has ten kinds of music?——What other show has a genuine Japanese Circus?——What other show has one hundred emblazoned Chariots, Floats and Tableaux in its Grand Free Street Parade?——What other show has tons of Ivoried Mammoths?——What other show has Zebras broken to work in harness?——What other show has a family of playful Baby Tigers?——What other show has Elands, Elks, Moose, Water Buffaloes, Midget Cattle, Hairless Horse, Llamas, Bison, Antelopes and Ostriches, led and loose in the magnificent Pageant Entre?——What other show has always exhibited every advertised feature?

SELLS BROTHERS Are mighty in being always fair to the public and generous to rivals. They are the creators of the show that bears their name, have personally managed it continuously for twenty-two years, and have the proud distinction of introducing more legitimate character and responsibility into the show businessth an was ever known before. They do not borrow the cast-off plumes of dead men to masquerade in. They do not travel under dead men's names.

SELLS BROTHERS

Are alive and will be at their respective posts to welcome their millions of friends who honor them with a visit this year. You can rely on seeing just what is promised. Others have copied our advertisements and stolen our title, but our show is too big, too great, too magnificent, to well known, to be successfully imitated. You will not regret your visit to Sells Brothers' Shows and its pleasant memories will endure for years.

$10,000 to be Given Away Free.

Who Can Make the Best Guess?

The pair of Hippopotami, which have formed the central figure in our Menagerie, are now on their farewell American tour, and Sells Brothers have decided to give away Ten Thousand Dollars to the ones who make the nearest guesses of their combined weight.

$5,000 to the one guessing nearest to their actual combined weight.

$3,000 to the one making the second best guess.

$2,000 to the one making the third best guess.

This offer is open to all patrons of Sells Brothers' Show during the World's Fair season, A box will be placed in front of the Hippopotami cage, and every visitor will be supplied with a card upon which the person making a guess writes his or her name and post-office address and the weight guessed. At the close of the season the prizes will be awarded. We promise to faithfully carry out this proposition. SELLS BROS.

Be in town early and secure good places where you can see the mightiest, Richest, Longest and most novel Street Parade Ever seen in any city in the world. Two performances daily at usual prices, and although it is worth ten times as much it costs no more than to see an ordinary show.

Crookston, - Saturday, - June - 24th.

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:45 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	7:15 a m
2:57 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:55 p m
4:45 a m	"	Glyndon	"	10:10 p m
6:50 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	8:05 p m
7:50 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	7:05 p m
9:13 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:55 p m
11:40 a m	"	Devils Lake	"	3:40 p m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:15 a m Arrive 7:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday,
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily
For St. Paul. Minneapolis, Superior, Ashland, Duluth, Chicago, and for all points South, East and West.........at 6:40 p. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north, ...at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co,]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c
Eggs, per dozen	12½c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	80c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	54
1 Northern	52.
2 Northern	49.
3 Northern	41.
Rejected	28.

'Round Home.

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

A. A. Miller has gone for a visit to the great World's Fair.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

The refreshing rains of Wednesday night and Thursday of last week did world's of good to the crops.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor:

Those rooms need papering. Let S. A. Wallace figure on the paper. Medical hall. [6tf]

The cellar for Braley's new house is being excavated and pretty soon you will see a neat and tasty residence up on Ash street near Burr's.

Farmers, bring your dressed hogs during the summer months to the Crookston Packing House and we will tell you the truth how you can realize the most money out of them.
[4-11] ROBERT STANTON.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

If you are going to paint that house or barn this year it will pay you to get prices on paints of S. A. Wallace at Medical hall. [6-tf]

The Great Northern road announced a great reduction in the passenger tariff to the coast and the Northern Pacific promptly met the cut. These new rates took effect on the 18th. The rate, first-class is the same as the second-class rate was and the second-class rate is proportionately reduced.

The city council of Grand Forks appropriated $1000 to the Fargo fire sufferers.

Geo. Carpenter spent a couple of days in Fosston last week in the interest of the firm.

Fred Durand's residence is receiving the finishing coat of paint and loses that yaller expression that an otherwise handsome house has worn all spring.

Commissioner Rhinehart went up to Thief River Falls last Friday. He says he is attending strictly to farming now, and that crops along the Red river are looking fine now.

The kid base-ball club are to play the Red Lake Falls club on the old ball grounds today. The boys feel confident of their ability to win this heat.

John Crawford & Son now have a handsome delivery wagon for their bakery. This in addition to the new brick oven which they recently added, places them in position to feed the world—at least this portion of it.

At all of the churches in the city next Sabbath collection will be taken for the Fargo sufferers. Every true American citizen should attend and chip in his mite to aid the good cause.

The crops seem to be getting plenty of rain to keep them in excellent growing condition. From all that we can learn the crops are farther advanced and in far better condition than last year at this time.

Lots of hay on the market for any price you are a mind to pay up to $6. Damaged hay sells as low as $3.50 per ton. It will soon be time for new hay and that article will be plentiful this year from all present indications.

W. C. Andrew, Wright, Barrett & Stilwell's traveler dropped down upon us like a blessing on Monday evening. If there is any one thing that we prefer more than a good shower in a drouth it is one of these periodical genial visits.

The morning train on the Great Northern now arrives at 6:50 and the evening train for St. Paul departs at 8:05. The time on the St. Vincent branch has also been changed, the train now leaving Crookston at 7:15 a. m. and returning at 7:30 p. m.

The ladies committee having in charge the matter of collecting clothing and articles needed by the sufferers from the Fargo fire report great success. A carload or so of such things will go from here. They accept everything that is offered and guarantee that it will be placed where it will do the most good.

And now Bugg has got it. Not the fever again but the bicycle mania and you ought to see him breaking his broncho bicycle to ride! He has only been at it since Saturday but he does first rate—you would think him an expert. By the way Mrs. B. has caught the prevailing craze and does nicely with only a few days practice.

The Great Northern road is having more trouble with that land-slide, north of the depot, that caused so much trouble last winter. The main track sank about six feet and the city sewer was wrecked again. The piling put in does not seem to have remedied the difficulty and the road is now filling in with stones inside of the piling.

J. P. Foote:—"If I was a farmer and had one of those farms in western Polk County I should consider myself independent. Almost every farm has a wood lot of sufficient size and the soil is of the best—but they do need a railroad down there. With railroad facilities they would have no more to wish for in this country. If this Crookston and Fort Stevenson railroad we hear of is to be built it should be built through that country, it would be a good thing for the road and for the people."

Joseph Laframboise, who went to Montana in May with a carload of stock for sale writes home that owing to dull times out there he is not meeting with his usual success in selling, besides having a little bad luck with a stallion that he took along. The animal was taken sick on the road and came near dying but recovered and is getting all right again. He writes that he is in hopes to close out his stock and return home soon.

Ed. George will soar the American Eagle at Fertile on the 4th.

John Miller, mine host of the Germania house is confined to his bed with lung fever.

Dalrymple Bros. were up on Sunday to see doctor Leguee about some sick horses.

Rev. J. G. Smith went down to Barnesville to attend the Congregational conference.

Ed. Barrette and wife and E. Asselin and wife spent the Sabbath with friends at Red Lake Falls.

A. Sture and family went up to the old farm at Black River to spend the Sabbath.

Chris. Greenhalgh, who has had a severe siege with typhoid fever, is able to be about again.

The base ball club hired a rig of S. L. Collins on Tuesday and went down to Fertile to clean out the Fertile club.

Al Kaiser and Mr. Lee of Fosston came down on Saturday and took one of Collins' rigs to go over to Belmont.

For the best mower inquire of S. L. Collins & Co. They handle the Champion. Be sure to see it before you purchase.

E. B. Himmelsbach brought in three head of fat cattle on Monday and went home with his pockets full of money.

M. B. McClellan, Bishop's genial raveling man was interviewing the boys on Monday in the interest of his firm. Mac is one of the jolliest boys on the road.

Mrs. E. D. Schreader has the most unique delivery rig in the business. Words fail to give an accurate pen picture—it must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Full sheet posters, announcing the Polk County Fair on July 26th to 28th inclusive have just been printed at this office. The fair is held thus early to accommodate farmers, who are generally too busy in the fall to attend fairs.

Ole Bang informs the JOURNAL that, in company with Eli Steenerson and several others he will build a boat to run on the Red River in the freight trade. Ole would make a jolly captain when he gets the hang of the business.

Bridge builder Lohan on the Great Northern road came down from Red Lake Falls to spend the Sabbath with his family in the city. He is at work re-constructing the railroad bridge at that place. It is to be placed higher this time than before and will be 75 feet above low water mark.

A rear end freight collision at the N. P. depot on Sunday evening wrecked a caboose and a car of machinery. The wrecking car arrived about 10 o'clock and soon cleared the wreck. The cause of the collision was the failure of the air brakes to work promptly.

J. S. Nichols does not agree with Chris. Houston's statement that grain was not hurt by the hot winds that prevailed a week ago Monday and says they need rain down in his neighborhood. We have an idea that both are right in their assertions as we personally know that in the neighborhood of Houston's farm the grain has not been materially injured as yet.

J. P. Foote went out to McIntosh on Saturday last and while there took time to remark that grain of all kinds was looking nicely. On Monday he went to Neby and south from there several miles and says that he saw some of the finest farms and best crops that he has ever seen in Polk County—the grain is evenly sowed, rank and as fine as could be. Says he thought well of the eastside farms until he saw those on the west side of the county.

J. W. Wheeler returned from his Chicago trip this week very well pleased with his outing. He says the World's Fair is an immense thing and that he saw no evidences of the great extortions practiced that he has read of so much about, on the contrary he thinks one can live in Chicago as cheaply now as ever. He says that it would be impossible to convey an adequate idea of all the things one can see and learn—in fact to see and study it all—one could employ all the time yet remaining of the big show. He was well pleased.

The Fosston Thirteen Towns gives an account of the loss of a man who wandered away, evidently in a fit of mental abberation one day last week. It seems that Dr. A. Gilmour and two others were away on an expedition and the man was taken crazy, ran away from his companions into the woods and when they tried to prevent him, threatened to knife them and succeeded in eluding capture. His name is Jens Storgaard of the town of Lessor, this county, and he is about 45 years of age. Editor Lanman of the McIntosh Times, who was in the city Tuesday last, reports that the missing man has been heard from and is subsisting on provisions furnished by the squatters living between Red Lake and Fosston.

Geo. O. Buhn is having his residence treated to a coat of paint.

Prof. Casey has been in the city a few days from Ted Lake Falls.

Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Battey went to Barnesville on Monday evening's train to attend to some church business at that place.

J. O. McWaters, from Buffington, reports crops in that neighborhood exceedingly weedy and he says he does not expect to see as good crops there as last year.

The fence around the ball park has been taken down and taken over to the JOURNAL farm to enter into the construction of a barn and barnyard fence. The boys would have liked to maintain the park but having to practically re-build the fence every spring was discouraging— as somebody kept stealing the boards every winter.

Hot did you say? Oh, well it is hotter down south where they seldom get a cool refreshing breeze such as we get every day almost. It is such weather as we are now having that produces the wheat and corn and the potatoes and all that sort of stuff and if heat is any criterion for big crops we ought to have big ones this fall for sure.

Baker Crawford appeared on the streets on Saturday with one of the finest delivery rigs it has been our pleasure to see in some time. The fact that it was built by A. J. & A. McKinnon ought to be a sufficient evidence that it is an A 1 rig and it is. The boys have a faculty of turning out not only elegant rigs but they are all solidly built of the very best material to be had.

Rev. R. H. Battey shipped ten barrels of lime to Mentor on Tuesday morning for the church at that place. The building put up several years ago will be moved down to the village and placed upon the lots that A. D. Stephens has given to the church society for that purpose and when the job is completed the society will have a building and location all its own. The money for the purpose has been subscribed and the church can start in its new location free from the incubus of debt.

An interesting contest case was commenced before the U. S. Land office last week. One Timothy Moore gave notice of a final proof whereupon one Alexander Fyfe brought contest alleging that the aforesaid Timothy was under contract to sell the land as soon as final proof was made, that the other party had furnished all the money so far and had made all the improvements that had been made upon the claim. Ed. George is attorney for Moore and R. J. Montague for Fyfe. After having considerable testimony the case was adjourned till July 7th.

Tom Harris has the Central house nearly ready for the brick foundation. It was no slouch of a job to raise that big building up sufficiently for the purpose.

Chief Gonyea's new house begins to assume handsome proportions and will be just as slick as grease when finished. The chief will be too tony for any use when when he gets into that shanty.

Mr. E. Lanctot and wife have gone for a visit to the old home in Canada and will visit the World's Fair on the trip. Mr. Lanctot is one of our leading farmers and will be prepared to enjoy this trip to the utmost.

C. H. Saake has received word from the patent office that his patent for a car coupler was officially allowed on the 16th inst. Mr. Saake will make a practical test of the coupler as soon as he can get one made.

The fine, refreshing, steady rain of Wednesday did lots of good as it soaked the ground thoroughly which was very much needed by late sowed barley especially. On Tuesday other localities in the Valley were visited by plenteous showers thus making the visitation general. In some localities it was needed more than in others.

Tom Young's big grey team took a notion to run away on Monday and started up Broadway towards home from the neighborhood of Arries & Lancaster's livery stable. When they reached court house hill and began the ascent that looked to be too much like business so they came down to a trot and from that to a deliberate walk and walked home—and Tom has the audacity to call that a real live runaway!

During the rain storm, at about 12:15 on wednesday, the Sherman house was truck by lightning doing no more serious damage than to knock off some lath and plaster and knock the clerk down. He was blacking the stove when the shock came and the next thing he knew he was trying to pick himself out from amongst a lot of lath and plaster but fortunately he was not hurt at all. The damage done the building is trifling considering the circumstances.

The ladies will do well to call at the millinery parlors of Miss Veronneau on Second street and obtain her prices. This lady is well known to be one of the most artistic milliners in the Northwest and her goods are always the most fashionable to be found, and now she announces that, in order to dispose of the balance of her stock in time for the fall styles, she will make such prices as are bound to sell them. In fact price is no object. Call and see.

A union temperance meeting was held in the First M. E. church last Sunday evening, and a large audience listened to an interesting address by Rev. J. G. Smith.

Spring medicine and Hood's Sarsaparilla are synonymous terms, so popular is this great medicine at this season.

C. A. Johnson and family came in from the farm near Thief River Falls on Wednesday morning. Charlie will try city life for awhile. He says that there are lots of weeds in the grain up there and the crops—in some instances do not look overly well on account of late sowing. Says that country needs draining very much and will never amount to very much until that is done. His town has a New Era grader and ditcher but does not use it as much as they should.

During This Month.

Mrs I. U. Jennings will be prepared to give greater bargains than ever—to reduce stock. The ladies will do well to call. Everything goes at greatly reduced prices. [9-10]

Warren Register:—It is fast becoming fashionable nowadays, to jump on the old soldiers who are drawing pensions. A certain class of modern patriots, who never had sand enough to face anything more dangerous than a sick calf, are wrenching their intellects in the endeavor to show that a very large number of pensions are frauds and cheats, and are receiving aid from the government to which they have no right. Not a single veteran who did his duty in suppressing the rebellion wants to see a single dollar paid to any ex-soldier who does not deserve it, but he is not willing that the matter of purging the pension list shall be placed in the hands of those who have no sympathy with the cause in which he fought and suffered untold hardships and privations. Patriotism will have reached a very low ebb, when the Union veterans are regarded as the enemies of their country, instead of its saviours. They are fast passing away, and will not be here long to vex the righteous souls of the latter day economists, who regard them as nuisances to be thrust aside and left to die on the highways or in the poor-houses of the country they saved from anarchy, and which they made rich and powerful by their patriotism, their courage, their endurance and their blood.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

If you wish the lightest, sweetest, finest cake, biscuit and bread, Royal Baking Powder is indispensable in their preparation.

THE ROYAL Baking Powder surpasses all others in leavening power, in purity and wholesomeness, and is used generally in families, exclusively in the most celebrated hotels and restaurants, by the United States Army and Navy, and wherever the best and finest food is required. All teachers of cooking schools and lecturers upon culinary matters use and recommend the Royal.

Chicago Health Authorities Certify.

"I find the ROYAL BAKING POWDER superior to all the others in every respect. It is purest and strongest.

"WALTER S. HAINES, M. D.
"Prof. Chemistry, Rush Medical College,
"Consulting Chemist, Chicago Board of Health," etc.

Made from pure grape cream of tartar, and the only Baking Powder containing neither ammonia nor alum.

DR. PRICE'S
Cream Baking Powder.
The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1893. NO. 11

Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor……Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor……David M. Clough.
Secretary of State……F. P. Brown.
Attorney General……H. W. Childs.

COngressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist….Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist……E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.….John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court…..Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District……Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court……Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor……C. U. Webster
Treasurer……J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds……John Amundson
Attorney……A. R. Holston
Sheriff……Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate……C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools……A. A. Lommen
Surveyor……O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r……W. H. Averill
Coroner……Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District…… John E. Oppegaard
Second District……Anton Linden
Third District……M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District……C. P. Demers
Fifth District……A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden.	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Dr. M J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May, while in Des Moines en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhœa. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhœa Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliability, he procured a 25 cent bottle, two doses of which completly cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhœa. Every one should procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. For sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Estray.

Came on my premises on section 12, Andover, on or about June 5th 1893, one black hog, about six months old. The owner is hereby notified to prove property, pay charges and take the whole hog or none.

[9-11] T. H. BJOIN.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

W. J. Peterson went to Fisher on Tuesday.

Jno. O. Buhn, of Mentor took in the big circus doings on Saturday.

The Misses Edith and Eunice Copeland visited at Maple Lake last week.

I. W. C. Misner was down from Euclid to interview the circus on Saturday.

Mrs. Hugh Thomson and Miss Lulu Thompson have returned from a pleasant visit in St. Paul.

Mayor Stephens made a flying trip to Chicago and the World's Fair last week. He says it is indeed a big thing.

Reports from the different localities in the county indicate fewer potato bugs than usual. This augurs well for a good crop of potatoes.

As usual on circus day the city was well filled with people. Everybody had to bring the children "to show them to the animals."

The Northern Pacific has issued three elegant folders for use at the World's Fair which shows that road to be fully alive to the material interests of the country traversed by its lines.

Every farmer who attends the farmers institute, on Friday morning July 7th will be presented with a book of 368 pages, devoted to his business. No farmer should miss this opportunity.

Dr. A. Holte, a graduate of the Medical College at Minneapolis, was looking over Crookston last week with a view to locating here. He decided to cast his lot with Crookston and will be back to stay about July 15th.

Geo. Carpenter informs the JOURNAL that he intends to start for Lake City this week to visit old friends and will go via the bicycle route. We are risking dollars to doughnuts that he changes his mind and invests in railroad fare before he rides that bike a thousand miles.

Anton Erickson has sold a half interest in his business to his brother-in-law, Anton Morberg. They will make a speciality of confectionery. They also keep a full line of tobaccos and cigars, stationery, etc. The new firm will aim to be able to supply the needs of their customers at any and all times and invites a call.

IT is said that some insurance companies decline to write up insurance in Fargo on account of the fact that so much waste paper is thrown into the streets and alleys. Fargo is not the only city that has this bad habit and if this rule should become universal it might have a better effect than laws or ordinances. The danger from this source in wooden towns is greater than many seem to imagine.

Rev. O. H. Elmer has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Presbyterian church having accepted a call to Hamline. This is no surprise to the average citizen as the fact that he contemplated doing so has been public property for some time, howbe-it all who know the genial gentleman hoped all the while that something would transpire to prevent, as he is well liked by all who know him. The writer first heard of Mr. Elmer in 1872, when he was a resident of Glyndon and Mr. Elmer was pastor of one of the first churches at Moorhead and has known him personally during almost all of that time and we shall regret his going as much as any whom he leaves in his own church. As a pastor he is unexcelled—as a citizen one that this city can illy afford to spare at this time and that he will leave many warm and sincere friends here goes without saying. He carries with him the most earnest wishes of the JOURNAL for his future prosperity.

Of a former Crookston boy the Sauk Center Avalanche says:

"A very quiet wedding took place in this city last Saturday morning at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Clark, being the marriage of their daughter, Minnie May, to Melville Milne, of Duluth. The groom was a former Sauk Center boy, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Milne, will be well and favorably remembered by a majority of our readers, and who now reside at Duluth. Melville has long been engaged in the "art preservative," and at the present time is connected with the Duluth Commonwealth. He is a young man of refinement, enterprise and excellent character, and has hosts of warm friends. The bride, Miss Clark, was born in our city, and has grown to womanhood in our midst. She has been a pupil in our public schools, and possesses those excellent qualities of heart and mind that have won for her friends among all classes. The young couple left on Monday for their future home in the Zenith City, and our citizens join with the Avalanche in wishing for them a married life of peace, plenty and prosperity."

C. O. Felland and E. M. Lancaster will canvass the county in the interest of the Polk County fair,—selling stock in the association and talking up the fair.

The Crookston Business College will open the summer term on July 5th. The principal feature of this term will be penmanship, but instruction will be given in other branches if desired. Prof. R. S. Knudson will have charge of this term. Low rates. Inquire of B. A. Strawbridge for further information.

Chas. Seeley, the press agent for Sells Bros. circus knows how it is himself when it comes extending courtesies to the newspaper fraternity. He always shows up in the morning to liquidate the advertising bills and see that the boys are well supplied with the best they have in the shop. The show was handicapped while here, having lost its new tent and, owing to the high wind did not dare to put up its old one so had to do without. It was a good show however.

With the present price of pork it seems easy to make money raising hogs and yet how many of our farmers are able to tell how much they make on the grain they feed? And then, when pork is cheap, how many of them know how to feed so as to make a profit? Mr. Theodore Lewis has made the hog a life study and what he knows about hogs ought to be worth big money to our farmers to find out. Hear him tell what he knows about hogs at the institute on Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th.

A petition will go before the council on Friday evening asking that all of the sidewalks in the business portion of the city be forbidden to bicycle riders. This petition has received the signatures of all of our business men who could be seen and many other citizens, and is about the proper thing to do under the circumstances. Then, if the common law is not sufficient, pass an ordinance making bicycle riders responsible for all accidents that arise from their use upon sidewalks not included and you have the thing about right.

Growing.

St. Hilaire is building a house this summer, the Spectator says.

Cut Rates to the Coast.

The Great Northern has made another cut in western passenger rates. The first-class fare from Crookston to Puget Sound points is only $25.00 second-class $18.00.

Right You Are.

Speaking of the new Davis railroad tie, the Grand Forks Herald says:

"E. C. Davis, of Crookston, has patented a new railroad tie made of iron to which the rails are fastened in such a manner as to make it impossible for the rails to spread. With iron at the present prices the cost would be but little more than wood, and the iron ties would be practically indestructible by time. Such accidents as that which ditched the Great Northern train at Rugby a few days ago, will not occur where the new tie is used."

Governor Nelson at Fosston.

The Fosston people never do anything by halves. When they decided to have a 4th of July celebration, an invitation was sent to Gover Nelson to deliver the oration. The governor accepted the invitation, with the proviso that he would attend if executive business would permit. Word was received from Fosston Tuesday by the JOURNAL that the governor had written that he would positively attend and deliver the oration unless something unforseen should occur to prevent. Arrangements have been made to hold the train six hours to allow visitors to hear the oration and witness the horse races, the bicycle races and the game of base ball.

Notice.

Several parents have requested that their children might be christened on Children's Day; and notice is hereby given that on Sabbath, July 2nd, at 11 o'clock, in connection with the Children's Day exercises at the M. E. Church, the christening ceremony will be observed. Parents who would like to avail themselves of this opportunity are cordially invited to do so.

L. W. SQUIER,
Pastor 1st M. E. Church.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

Farmers Institute.

Every business man acts upon the presumption that he knows all about his own business, yet that does not prevent him from attending business meetings in his line to discuss his business with practical business men. The farmers institute to be held in this city on Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th, is a farmers' business meeting conducted by practical farmers, who have made farming a life study. There is not a farmer in Polk county to-day so dull that he cannot learn something of benefit to him at these sessions. If there is one who thinks he can't learn anything more about his profession—that man is not a farmer—he is either an egotist or an ignoramus.

At the Farmers Institute, we can learn how all plants grow, which applied to the grains grown on our farms, will be a valuable lesson to all farmers. We urge all our farmers to attend. It will pay to know many of the things to be learned there. It is all free.

At the Farmers Institute we can learn how to kill out wild mustard, wild oats and quack grass. This may be a valuable lesson to many. Come out and hear how it is done.

No man who is interested in sheep husbandry would miss the State Farmers Institute if he knew how much information he could get there on the subject. Come early and get all there is of it.

Collar boils and fistula in horses will be so clearly explained at the Farmers Institute that no farmer can afford to miss it, and the proper remedies will be of importance to all horse owners.

At the Farmers Institute we can learn why the horse needs feeding oftener than the cow, which may be of great advantage to all would-be good feeders. Come early.

The right preparation of the soil for a sure seed-bed to guarantee a bountiful crop will be carefully represented at the Farmers Institute for the benefit of all present. Be sure to be there.

The important points in dairy stock will be accurately explained at the Farmers Institute. Who can afford to miss this state work?

At the Farmers Institute on July 7th and 8th, we can learn how valuable the "little busy bee" is to the successful melon, squash and pumpkin raiser. This may seem trivial to many, but when we know how it is, there is a valuable lesson in it. Should we ever get too old to learn? Come to the institute and gather all the information possible from these old experienced farmers.

The State Farmers Institute is only a farmers school where all who are willing can get a valuable instruction from those who have had the experience and can tell us where we will make a success and where the failures come in.

Come to the Farmers Institute at McKinnon's Hall, Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th, and learn how to know, "don't you know." Be there and don't let any of this valuable information get away from us. Come early so as to not miss any of it.

The State Farmers Institute don't get up this far north often, and we must encourage them to come oftener by showing that we want to be in the front ranks of the improved agriculturist by being on hand early and stay till the "last dog is hung." Let's "get plenty while we are a gettin." The state pays the bills but we are entitled to our share.

The hog product has raised more mortgages in Wisconsin, than any other product of the farm, why don't it do it in Minnesota when we know to handle the American hog? Come to the Farmers Institute and get your information from the best authority in all this broad land.

Who would be anything but a farmer, when the state sends the best and most experienced of her workers to our very doors to show us how to do the work to make a success and how to avoid failures? This is no "buncombe" but genuine business and don't stay at home these two days, Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th, but come here and enjoy this feast of information when you have such an opportunity. Come.

Base Ball Notes.

The game between the Crookston junior club and the Red Lake Falls club on Thursday was interrupted by the rain but the kids had got away with their guests so bad that they were not in it any more.

The Crookston senior club will cross bats with the Fertile club at the driving park in this city on Friday afternoon of this week.

Wedding.

On Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, Miss Gertrude Wright was married to H. E. Follansbee, of River Falls, Wis., at the residence of the bride's mother, the Rev. L. W. Squier performing the ceremony. The happy couple left on the evening train for a brief visit with friends in Minneapolis whence they will proceed to their future home in River Falls. Miss Wright has been for several terms a teacher in our schools and leaves many friends in this city whose best wishes will accompany her to her new home.

Bids for City Printing.

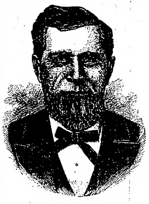
State of Minnesota, County of Polk,
City of Crookston.

The City Council of the City of Crookston will receive sealed proposals to do the printing and publishing of all ordinances, resolutions, proceedings and other matter required to be published by the city council of the City of Crookston for the ensuing year, all matter to be measured on a basis of solid nonpariel. Said bids to be opened at a regular meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening July 11th, 1893. Bids to be accompanied by bonds in the sum of $500. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

[9-12] E. C. CARRUTH,
[SEAL] City Clerk.

Sells Bros. Circus.

Well, the circus has come and gone and if everybody in Polk County did not see it we do not know who he was. Early Saturday morning the teams began to pour into town and by the time the afternoon performance began the city was well filled. The high winds of Friday destroyed the big circus tent-covering also that of the menagerie and as they had only an old one they feared to put that up and the result was that Crookston enjoyed the novel experience of attending a real live circus entirely out of doors—but, although some of the leading features had to be omitted it was a good one. The performing seals was a novel and unique feature never before attempted here. Chas. Seeley, the press agent informed the JOURNAL that they were very much annoyed by fakirs and hangers-on of all descriptions who follow them and make a practice of burglarizing houses while the inmates are attending the circus and while they do all they can to prevent it these things will occur. The Sells Bros. show has lost none of its entertaining features since its last visit and if there be a change it is for the better.



Governor
Nelson

Has written that unless something unforeseen should occur, he will positively be in

FOSSTON

July 4th,

And Deliver the Oration.

THE TRAIN
WILL BE HELD

Three hours extra, arriving at Fosston at 11 a. m. and leaving at 6 p. m. This will give ample opportunity to Hear the Orators,

And see the Horse Races,
Bicycle Races,
and Base Ball Games.

W. H. AVERILL, - - Secretary.

T. R. F.

Stands for

THIEF RIVER FALLS

One of the Most Attractive and Wide-Awake towns in the Northwest.

It will Celebrate

The Glorious Fourth,

And invites everyone to come and join them.

The leading features will be

Parade, Music, Speaking, Indian Village and Dance, Steamboat Excursion, Base Ball, Races, Games, Dances, Etc.

Everyone Come

And Enjoy a Gala Fourth.

J. H. SANDERS, Marshal. P. S. WARE, Pres. of Day.

☞ For further particulars see large bills.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Barnesville is to have a new flour mill.

A steamer has been launched on Lake Crystal.

Fire destroyed two stores at New Prague.

The State Medical association was in session at Minneapolis last week.

Dr. C. E. Munn, Chinese inspector at Duluth, has been asked to resign.

The state sangerfest was held in St. Paul Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The yearly meeting of the Free Will Baptists of Minnesota was held at Winona last week.

The Order of Royal Clans of the United States and Canada held its annual convention at Duluth last week.

The G. A. R. encampment at Madelia closed a three days' entertainment with a sham battle. There were 3,000 people in attendance.

Crack oarsmen from Cornell and Pennsylvania universities have begun training at Lake Minnetonka for the regatta there next month.

Lewis Hallett was convicted of highway robbery at Buford. He, in company with one Riggs, robbed an old man near Monticello last fall.

Brainerd is excited over the finding of a Chinaman's corpse on the floor of a rival's laundry. He had been horribly butchered. Three Chinamen are under arrest.

Minnesota postmasters: P. A. Shaughnessy, Assumption, Carver county; E. A. Thoele, Gaylord, Sibley county; Gertrude Haverstead, Wangs, Goodhue county.

Judge Brill of Ramsey county has decided that the killing of a man by another does not preclude the recovery on a policy of an accident insurance company.

The robber who went through the Northern Pacific sleeper between Wadena and Perham has been caught at Frazee. He was taken to Fergus Falls for a hearing.

By the time Minnesota grain is ready to cut the prison binding twine factory will have manufactured not less than 2,000,000 pounds, and many orders have already been filled.

The Minnesota Iron company, operating the Chandler and Minnesota mines, near Tower, has laid off 800 men. Depression in the iron market and no sales of ore are the causes.

The state railroad and warehouse commission have selected a site for the new state elevator at Duluth. It will be upon Minnesota Point and facing the elevators already there.

Six sons of respectable and well to do Minneapolis people have been arrested for theft. They formed a gang which has committed many small burglaries. It is said that they have confessed.

The Hennepin county grand jury has been stirring up the Minneapolis fire department, and its report thereon is a most scathing document and a severe rebuke of the methods of the present management.

Not long ago a dog at Newport, near St. Paul, terrorized the inhabitants and bit several cows and other domestic animals. Thursday four of these cows thus bitten went mad, and the excitement has been intensified by this latest development.

Seth Clear Eyes is dead. He was the young Sioux Indian on his way from Philadelphia to his native home in Montana, who cut his throat at the Union depot in St. Paul some months ago. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where he has been ever since. He died of consumption, superinduced by the wound in his throat.

A decision of considerable interest to sportsmen has been rendered in the Ramsey county district court. Judge Otis refused to grant an injunction at the suit of Uri L. Lamprey against Edward Heimbach and others, who shot ducks from boats and decoys on the property of one Arth. Although Mr. Lamprey owns most of the land about the lake, the court holds that that does not give him exclusive privileges in the game thereabouts, as the waters of the lake are public property, and others have privileges therein.

At Mankato Thursday night a son of President Searing of the Normal school shot a man whom he supposed was a burglar. It turned out afterward that he had perforated the cheek of the hired girl's best fellow, who was standing at one of the windows. It was the girl herself who told young Searing that a burglar was below. The victim claims he had remained until 10 o'clock with the girl, and being of a jealous disposition, thought some other fellow was after his sweetheart, and hid in the bushes near the house to await developments, and was standing at the window when the girl up stairs first saw him.

FARM MORTGAGES.

Statistics For Minnesota From the Census Bureau.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The results of the investigation of mortgage indebtedness in Minnesota by the census office show that 15.25 per cent of the farm families hire and 84.75 per cent own the farms cultivated by them; that 46.39 per cent of the farm owning families own subject to incumbrance and 53.61 per cent own free of incumbrance. Among 100 farm families 15.25 per cent hire their farms, 39.31 own with incumbrance and 45.44 without incumbrance. On the farms of the state there are liens amounting to $37,709,574, which is 31.61 per cent of their value, and this debt bears interest at the average rate of 8.18 per cent, making the average annual interest charge $67 to each family. Each incumbered farm on the average is worth $2,574, and is subject to a debt of $814.

SILVER TAKES A DROP.

The Price of the White Metal Reaches the Lowest Point on Record.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The market price of silver has reached the lowest point in the history of that product. On Saturday the London price, which guides the director of the mint in his purchases for the government, was 37 1-2 pence, or about 81.8 cents in this country. Yesterday morning the price in London was 36 pence, or about 78.8 cents in New York, a drop of 3 points. The cause of this depression was assigned by Mr. Preston, the acting director of the mint, as due to the fact that India, one of the largest silver consuming countries, has closed her mints to the white metal. The highest price ever attained by silver in the United States was at the time of the passage of the Bland silver bill, Feb. 28, 1878, when the price was $1.22 per ounce.

The Silver Dollar

was then worth 93 cents. At no period since then has the silver dollar been worth so much. When the Sherman act went into effect, August, 1890, there was a spurt in the price of silver and it went up to $1.21 per ounce. In the time between the passage of the Bland law in 1878 and the passage of the Sherman law in 1890, silver went to 92 cents per ounce, which was a minimum price during that period. Since August, 1890, the price has gradually declined with fluctuations until June 26, 1893, it has reached the lowest point on record. At Monday's price of 69 cents per fine ounce the silver dollar is worth 60 1-2 cents as bullion.

Since 1835 India has coined silver free. During the last calendar year the Indian government coined 46,000,000 ounces. Since the passage of the Bland and Sherman acts the United States has coined $426,000,000 of silver. Of the amount of silver purchased under the Sherman act, 127,000,000 ounces remained uncoined in the vaults of the treasury.

Causes of the Drop.

LONDON, June 27.—Telegrams received from Calcutta by the Anglo-Indian banks here say that the Indian government has stopped the coinage of silver at the Indian mints. In the house of lords the Earl of Kimberley, lord president of the council and secretary of state for India, stated that the Indian council had passed an act for the immediate closing of the Indian mints to free coinage of silver.

GET THE CASH.

Olney's Decision Regarding World's Fair Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Attorney General Olney has decided that the several appropriations made by act of congress approved Aug. 5, 1892 in aid of the world's fair, Chicago, including the appropriation made for a government exhibit "are as available now as before the decision of the court of appeals permanently opening the world's fair on Sunday, with the single exception that no money ought to be paid to the Illinois corporation, know as the World's Columbian exposition."

SENATOR STANFORD DEAD.

The California Senator Expires Very Suddenly.

MENLO PARK, Cal., June 21.—United States Senator Leland Stanford died about midnight. He passed away peacefully at his residence in Palo Alto.

Senator Sanford was in the best of spirits during the day. He took a drive around his stock farm and seemed as well as ever. He retired shortly after 10 o'clock, and about midnight his valet, going into the senator's room, discovered that he was dead.

Mutchler Died Suddenly.

EASTON, Pa., June 24.—William Mutchler, Democratic member of congress from the Eighth Pennsylvania district, died here of heart disease. He had been in poor health of late, and was taken ill at a country fishing resort with heart trouble. He recovered, came home and had been able to be out, but still suffered from his stomach and heart.

Van Wyck Slowly Sinking.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 26.—Reports from the country home of ex-Senator Van Wyck, who suffered a paralytic stroke a month ago, are to the effect that he is slowly sinking.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, June 27, 1893.

There was no trading.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 27, 1893.

WHEAT—June closing, 59⅝c; July opening 58¾c; highest, 59⅛c: lowest, 58⅝c; closing 59⅝c. August closing, 61⅞c. September opening, 63; highest, 64⅝; lowest, 63; closing, 64⅝c. On track—No. 1 hard, 61¼c: No. 1 Northern, 59¼c: No. 2 Northern, 56@56½c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, June 27, 1893.

CATTLE—Steady.

HOGS—Weak, 5@10c lower. Heavy, $5.95@6.20; mixed and medium, $5.95@6.20; light, $5.95@6.20.

SHEEP—Weak, 25c lower.

Receipts: Cattle, 12,000; hogs, 40,000; sheep, 14,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 27, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 65⅛c; September, 69⅝c.

CORN—July, 40⅛c; September, 41⅛c.

OATS—July, 29c; September, 26⅛c.

PORK—September, $20.00.

LARD—July, $9.72½; September, $10.15.

SHORT RIBS—July, $8.80; September, $9.20.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—June, 65⅛c; July, 66¼c; September, 70⅝c.

CORN—June, 41⅛c: July, 41⅛c: September, 42½.

OATS—June, 29¼c: July, 29⅛c; September, 26⅛c.

PORK—July, $18.90; September, $19.91.

LARD—June, $9.9; July, $9.62½; September, $10.15.

SHORT RIBS—July, $8.60; September, $9.30.

SHIP WENT DOWN.

MOST APPALLING NAVAL DISASTER OF MODERN TIMES.

The Warship Victoria Sunk In the Mediterranean by the Camperdown. Four Hundred Sailors Lost—Both Were First Class Battleships.

LONDON, June 24.—A tragedy of the sea, without parallel in the naval annals of recent times, is reported. The British battleship Victoria, the flagship of the Mediterranean squadron, has completed a checkered career by sinking off Tripoli, after a collision with the Camperdown, a sister ship of the squadron. This tragedy, resulting in the loss of 400 men, including the vice admiral of the squadron, had not been equaled in fatal results since the sinking of the Royal George in 1789, when 600 souls found their shroud in the ocean's waves. The accounts of the disaster are very meager and the responsibility for this woeful loss of life has not been fixed. Some of the ships of the squadron were maneuvering when the powerful ram of the Camperdown struck the Victoria forward of the turret on the starboard side. Through the enormous hole made by her sister ship the water poured so rapidly that she was sinking before an effort could be made to man the boats. Even in the face of impossibility, the sailors strove to close the break, but in the midst of their labor of desperation the mighty hull turned completely over and went to the bottom.

The Victoria was a twin screw battleship of 10,470 tons and 14,000 horse power. She mounted 15 guns.

The Camperdown is also a first-class twin screw battleship. She is of 10,600 tons and 11,500 horse power and carries 10 guns. Admiral Sir George Tryon was commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean ships.

The injury to the Camperdown has not yet been fully ascertained, but it is serious and will necessitate her going on dock for repairs.

THE VICTORIA DISASTER.

Official Statement of the Loss of Life Thereby.

LONDON, June 27.—A number of questions were asked by members of the house of commons during the day regarding the foundering of the Victoria. Replying to these questions, the Rt. Hon. U. K. Shuttleff, secretary to the admiralty, said there was reason to hope, from telegrams received from the British consul general at Tripoli, that the number of persons drowned by the sinking of the ship would be under the estimates at first made. Some of the men belonging to the Victoria had been detached temporarily from that vessel and detailed for duty on other vessels of the fleet during the maneuvers. These men had, of course, escaped. So far as now ascertained the lost numbered 360, comprising 22 officers and 338 men. The saved number 287, including 26 officers and 261 men.

Will Be Courtmartialed.

LONDON, June 26.—It is understood that Rear Admiral Markham will be courtmartialed with the officers of the Camperdown as that vessel carried his flag as second in command of the squadron when she collided with the Victoria.

HOTEL COLLAPSES.

A Seven-Story Building at Fort Scott, Kan., Wrecked.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., June 27.—The Tremont hotel in this city, a 7-story brick structure, collapsed about 10 a. m. without a sound or sign of warning to the 100 occupants of the house. At first it was reported that a score or more of persons had been killed, but as soon as the excitement had quieted down it was found that all were accounted for, though it is possible that some transient's body may be still in the ruins. A number of the inmates were seriously injured.

CYCLONE'S WORK.

Fourteen Killed and Three Fatally Injured in Kansas.

TOPEKA, June 23.—About 7 p. m. one of the worst cyclones that ever visited Kansas swept over a section of Jefferson county one mile wide and 60 miles long, completely destroying houses, buildings and instantly killing 14 people. Three others were fatally injured and half a dozen seriously. The bodies of all those killed were shockingly mangled.

May Escape Cholera.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Surgeon General Wyman of the marine hospital service, referring to the outlook for cholera in the United States during the present summer, said: "We have an even chanch of escaping cholera altogether this year. Should it arrive it will certainly not become epidemic."

Eulalie Goes Home.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Princess Eulalie and her husband, the Prince Antoine d'Arco Orleans, and suite, sailed for Spain on the French liner La Touraine, by way of Havre. The princess and her suite have cabins on the promenade deck in almost the center of the ship.

Leave It to Civil Authorities.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Secretary Lamont has issued an order dissolving the military court of inquiry ordered in connection with the Ford theatre disaster, and will leave the civil authorities to deal with the case.

Hundreds of Deaths Daily.

LONDON, June 27.—A despatch from Mecca states that there were 455 deaths from cholera in that city Sunday.

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

Seven Killed and Many Injured at River Falls.

RIVER FALLS, Wis., June 22.—Seven people dead and a number of others seriously shocked is the result of a stroke of lightning which struck one of the tents of Ringling's circus during the storm. The circus proper had just finished its performance, and as the concert was about to begin a number of people who did not care to attend the latter were making their way through the menagerie tent, when a terrific bolt of lightning struck one of the center poles of the menagerie tent, and more than 50 people were prostrated.

Seven Were Killed Instantly,

a few more were injured, and the balance are now regaining the normal use of their limbs, which had been temporarily paralyzed by the shock. The scene of consternation which followed when the survivors realized the extent of the fatality surpasses description, when men and women surged toward the scene, and it was only by the exercise of rare presence of mind on the part of Messrs. Ringling and their employes that a most serious and probably fatal stampede was averted.

These Are the Dead:

When order had been somewhat restored it was found that stretched on the ground were four men and three boys, all dead. They were: O. A. Dean, boomer, married, Kennikinnick township; Eugene Reynolds, unmarried, a carpenter; 14-year-old son of Curtis Aldridge; J. A. Glendenning, married, town clerk of Oak Grove; Clark Mapes, married, a farmer of Clinton township; a 12-year-old son of Wallace Smith, and a 12-year-old son of J. A. Glendenning.

Mrs. Glendenning and another son are seriously injured. Patrick Collins, a farmer, unmarried, seriously injured, and now at Gladstone hotel, and two strangers, supposed to be railroad graders, are also at the hotel badly injured.

LIZZIE BORDEN FREE.

Jury In the Famous Murder Case Declares Defendant Not Guilty.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 21.—The jury in the Borden case, after being out a little over an hour, returned a verdict of not guilty. After the verdict had been received the district attorney moved that the other cases against Miss Borden be nolle prossed, and the order of the court was to that effect.

The scenes at the close of the trial were in contrast with those that preceeded it. Heretofore everything had been decorous and in keeping with the most dignified court in the country. But when the verdict of "not guilty" was returned which might have been heard half a mile away through the open windows and there was no attempt to check it. The stern judge looked straight ahead at the bare walls. He was powerless to wield the gavel which lies ready for his use and not once during the tremendous excitement, which lasted fully a minute, did he make the slightest sign of having heard it. He never saw the people rising in their seats and waving their handkerchiefs in unison with their voices because his eyes were full of tears and were completely blinded for the time.

A Cheer Went Up

Miss Borden heard the verdict standing at the bar and tears came where they had not been for many a day. When the spectators had finally gone Miss Borden was taken to the room of the justices and allowed to recover her composure. At the expiration of an hour she was placed in a carriage and driven to the station, where she took a train for Fall River.

NORTHERN PACIFIC CUT.

All-Rail Rates to San Francisco Reduced to $45.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The Northern Pacific has announced an all-rail route from San Francisco to St. Paul of $45 first class and $40 second class. This is a cut in the first class rate of $10, and $7.90 in the second class. It is now more than likely that serious troubles will grow out of the present condition of affairs and that a war will be the inevitable outcome. The Southern Pacific has requested its Eastern connections to join it in making rates equal to those put into effect by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and if it succeeds in winning them over to its way of thinking the Union Pacific will be dragged into the row, and it will then be almost an impossibility to prevent the demoralization from spreading east of the Missouri river.

An Alleged Confession.

WAUPACA, Wis., June 27.—A sensation was produced here when it was rumored that Bill Hanscomb had signed a confession telling about the Mead murder. Whether the deposition went into the details of the murder or only of his ride to Iola with Prior is not known.

Fitzsimmons and Choynski.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Articles for a contest between Bob Fitzsimmons and Joe Choynski for a purse of $15,000 have been signed by the latter's manager, and it only remains for Fitzsimmons' consent to consummate the match.

Berry's Wonderful Ride.

DEKALB, Ills., June 27.—John Berry, the cowboy rider, arrived here at 9:55 p. m. Berry made a wonderful ride from Freeport. He left there at 9:30 a. m. and came 69 miles in a little more than 12 hours. Berry left Dekalb at 10:40.

Christian Endeavorers.

CINCINNATI, June 27.—The eighth annual convention of the Ohio Christian Endeavor Union is in session here. There are 2,000 delegates from all over the state and about 500 visiting members are expected.

LOUIS D. VANDERVERE,
One of the best known business men in Chicago, representative of the great Bradstreet Co.

HEADACHE, SLEEPLESSNESS, NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost flesh and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness. Your Nervine was highly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved. I soon gained twenty pounds. All this occurred after learned and well known physicians had failed. My wife is taking the Nervine with the best of results. LOUIS D. VANDERVERE.

CURED THOUSANDS

SOLD ON A POSITIVE GUARANTEE

TRY DR. MILES' PILLS, 50 DOSES 25 CTS.

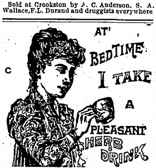
Cook's Cotton Root Compound

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for COOK'S COTTON ROOT COMPOUND, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps.

Address Pond Lily Company, No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by A. C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F.L. Durand and druggists everywhere



THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS
Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year......$5 00
" " 6 months...... 2 50
" " 1 " 45
Daily only, one year...... 3 00
" " 4 months...... 1 00
Sunday, one year...... 2 00
Weekly Press, one year...... 1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.

Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE [illegible] TING FRAUDS.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas), administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK

WE SUIT

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING

Everybody Every Time.

Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits.

Suits that Fit to a T.

LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.

Who Wouldn't be Suited

With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?

That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their

SUMMER SUITS.

Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.

BOSTON - - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Scandia-American Bank,

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

BE QUICK!

IT IS A SNAP.

I will sell the west ½ section 27, T. 149, R. 48, a splendid piece of valley land, 8 miles from Crookston, one-third under the plow, all first-class wheat soil, at the low price of

$8.00 AN ACRE.

Sale subject to an incumbrance of $400. This land is easily worth $12 an acre, but it must be sold.

TERMS:—Half cash; balance second mortgage.

To the man who buys this tract within Ten Days from this date I will make a Reduction equal to twice the usual real estate commission. First to come gets it.

June 8th, 1893.

J. A. TRUESDELL,
Brookland, D. C.

[8-11]

Fifty cents is a small doctor bill but that is all it will cost you to cure any ordinary case of rheumatism if you use Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. The first application will quiet the pain. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy
Is famous as a
Cure for severe colds.
Famous as a
Preventive of pneumonia.
Famous as a
Preventive and cure for croup
Famous for the relief it affords in
Case of Whooping cough.
Famous as a safe and pleasant
Medicine for children.
Try it. 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.55 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Fits.

All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $32.55, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

Novelties in Ladies Outing Costumes.

At this time of the year when so many ladies are planning their prospective trips to the country, the question naturally arises in regard to an appropriate traveling costume, which experience teaches is an indespensable garment for every woman tourist to possess. Moreover a well ordered wardrobe presupposes in addition, an outing costume. The selection of the latter is a problem of no mean importance, for it consists in finding a model both stylish and comfortable and which may, at the same time, prove a judicious economy. On the other hand lovers of out-door pastimes are in quest of novel designs for garden parties and tennis costume, while for those who prefer the fasionable watering resorts, a bathing suit is of course, de rigueur. Now, since all the above essentials of a summer outfit follow the dictate of Fashion, and since there is, nowadays as much style in a bathing or tennis suit as in a traveling or outing costume, one is obliged to conform to the current modes. The McDowell Fashion Magazines are precisely calculated to give the desired information on these matters, for they contain the best and largest variety of new models direct from Paris. "La Mode de Paris" and "Paris Album of Fashion" each cost $3.50 per annum, or 35 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" is $3.00 a year or 30 cents a copy. "La Mode" costs only $1.50 per annum or 15 cents a copy. All of these magazines include much more valuable information besides. They can be subscribed for or purchased at any newsdealer or by applying directly to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4, West 14th Street, New York.

"From the Atlantic to the Pacific," a most interesting illustrated article by Jos. P. Reed, makes one of the attractions of the July New Peterson, "Old Valenciennes China" is a most delightful article with appropriate illustrations Ruth M. Stuart begins a brilliant novelet entitled "Cæsar." Octave Thanet contributes a delightful sketch styled "A Noiseless Revolution," and concludes her "Shelf Full of Western Books" begun in the June number. "Ouray Jim's Partner," by Mary E. Stickney, is a very dramatic story of California life. "At the Sign of the Star," by Rachel Carew, is a delcious sketch of life in a German boarding-house. "Memories," by Minot J. Savage, is an absorbing bit of philosophic dreaming. The contributions we have cited are a proof of the variety of the number's contents and the names of the authors a warrant for its excellence. Our readers should send for a sample copy of this ably conducted nonthly. Address The Peterson Magazine Co., Philadelphi, Pa.

Summer Weakness.

And that tired feeling, loss of appetite and nervous prostration are driven away by Hood's Sarsaparilla like mist before the morning sun. To realize the benefit of this great medicine, give it a trial and you will join the army of enthusiastic admirers of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Sure, efficient, easy,—Hood's Pills. They should be in every traveler's grip and every family medicine chest. 25 cents a box.

Wonderful Jerusalem.

Jerusalem! What a world of thought is awakened by a single word spoken. Jerusalem—the loved, the hated, the idolized, the despised; destroyed and rebuilded again and again; the scene of the Savior's triumph and tragic death. The cradle of the Christian faith; the inspiration of humanity. How wonderful is thy history! What a theme for the poet and the painter. Every hill and valley so rich in tender associations, the very nerve center of religious history. Fortunately the ancient city and all the surrounding country has been reproduced by the painters' art in a great Cyclorama, showing the city in its glory under Herod, and at the time of the crucifixion of the Savior. The view upon Calvary is a triumph of religious conception and artistic painting. The whole scene is bathed in a weird twilight atmosphere that adds greatly to the intense realism of the whole. Its connection with this great Cyclorama is the famous painting, Christ's Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. These two superb historic works are on exhibition at the corner of Wabash Ave. and Hubbard Court, Chicago, just two blocks south of the Auditorium. No advance of price, we are informed, will be made during the World's Fair and one ticket admits to both exhibitions. Intending visitors to Chicago should make a note of them.

Farmers, bring your dressed hogs during the summer months to the Crookston Packing House and we will tell you the truth how you can realize the most money out of them.

[4-11] ROBERT STANTON.

Found $25.

$25. has been found by us to be sufficient to pay a full tuition in telegraphy and all railroad office business, if paid before August 1, 1893.

This is a chance of a lifetime.

Write for our special June offer to the Austin Telegraphic Inst' and Railroad Business College, Austin, Minn.

What Drumlins Are.

Professor Barton of the Institute of Technology gave a half hour talk before the students of the Chauncy Hall school the other morning on "Drumlins." It is only within a few years that any extended research has been made into the history of drumlins. The investigations in this state have been conducted largely by Professor Barton himself. A drumlin, as the speaker explained, is a mound of material projecting upward from the surface of the earth to a sufficient height to be called a hill. This mound or hill is made from loose bits of earth and rocks torn from ledges at the time—some thousands of years ago—when this part of the earth was covered with a sheet of ice at least 4,000 feet in thickness. As this vast sheet moved off to the southward it carried with it quantities of earth and small fragments of rock, which were deposited in valleys or heaped into drumlins.

The reason for the depositing of the matter in valleys is an easy one to explain, but how it came to be piled into hills has never yet been discovered. The professor is at the present time making this the subject of a special study, and he hopes to solve the mystery before he concludes the work of making a map of the state of Massachusetts, showing the location of the 1,500 drumlins within its borders.—Boston Transcript.

A Monster Advertisement.

The largest advertisement that has ever been thrown out for wondering humanity to gaze upon is that of the Glasgow News, made of flowerbeds on the side of a mountain back of Ardenlee, Scotland. The words "Glasgow News" can be seen and plainly read at a distance of four miles. The length of each letter is 40 feet, the total length of the line 323 feet and the area covered by the letters 14,845 feet. The borders of the bed are sown with white flowers; the centers with red and purple. The effect from a distance is said to be very grand. —St. Louis Republic.

Matthew Arnold's Brutality.

"Do you take sugar and cream?" a hostess asked Matthew Arnold from behind the breakfast urn.

"Neither," he replied. "I only take cream when the coffee is nasty."

The feelings of the hostess may be imagined after this statement to have her guest taste the beverage and direct the waitress to bring him sugar and cream.—New York Times.

A Suggestion For an Epicure.

We have always believed that much might be done by the scientific treatment of the kidneys of rabbits. Were they as rare as the tongues of nightingales or even the bosoms of redbreasts they might have made the fortune of one of the cooks of a Heliogabalus or a Lucullus.—London Saturday Review.

The largest city in Spain is the capital, Madrid, which has a population of 472,000. The next largest cities are Barcelona, Valencia, Seville and Malaga, after which there are 20 cities the population of which ranges from 98,000 to one-third of that number.

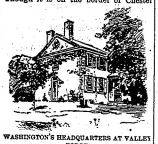
It is a little thing to speak a phrase of common comfort which by daily use has almost lost its sense, and yet on the ear of him who thought to die unmourned it will fall like the choicest music.—Talfourd.

HISTORIC VALLEY FORGE.

It Has Changed Very Little Since the Memorable Winter of 1777-8.

The Pennsylvania legislature having appropriated $25,000 to buy the 250 acres of land including old Valley Forge and Fort Washington, the state's commissioners have done their work, and there is a great revival of interest in the place. The reports are surprising. The region at the end of 115 years is even less improved, or rather more heavily wooded, than when Washington's army left it in the spring of 1778, and a vast amount of work will be required to fit it for a state encampment ground, as intended.

The land is high, well watered and yet well drained, and when it is properly cleared no finer place for a national guard encampment can be found. Though it is on the border of Chester and Montgomery counties and but 20 miles or so from Philadelphia, it is very secluded, the scenery is romantic, and a visit to the camp will be a delightful excursion. There are the gorge and narrow valley where the original forge was located, in 1777 the only forge in the state north of Philadelphia, and thence the slope is gentle to the Schuylkill. But the fort and most of the old camp are covered by a dense and tangled growth of brush and vines, and one may go within a few rods of some well preserved landmark and not see it.



WASHINGTON'S HEADQUARTERS AT VALLEY FORGE.

Unfortunately all the big trees of any value were cut down a few years ago by local proprietors, and an oak stump 8 feet across the top is all that remains of that magnificent forest monarch which stood in the southeast corner of Fort Washington. The remains of the fort, however, are remarkably well preserved. The people living near by are not at all proud of their predecessors, for it is a painful fact that the farmers thereabout in 1777-8 were nearly all Tories. They would not sell to the army, and when troops were sent out for forage the owners often burned it.

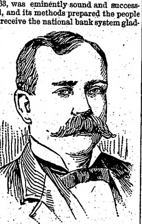
A clump of trees in a plowed field marks the site of Fort Huntington, and the main redoubt there is still almost as it was when the revolution closed. The rifle pits also are well preserved, and to this extent the growth of vines and brush has been a great advantage, binding the soil and preventing the washing. In the middle of a plowed field owned by a Mr. Pierson and sacredly preserved is the grave of one of Washington's men, the headstone bearing only this inscription, "J. W., 1778." The G. A. R. decorates his grave every year, but who "J. W." was no man knows. The old Potts house—headquarters of Washington—is still in good repair, and when the old camp is cleared no doubt many an old relic of the sad winter of 1777-8 will be brought to light.

HERE IS ZIMRI DWIGGINS.

The Gentleman Whose Financial Methods Are as Peculiar as His Name.

Zimri Dwiggins is a thorough Hoosier, but his family was originally French. The legend runs that the name was De Wiggins (and the Wiggins certainly does not look Frenchy), and that the uncultured pioneers cut it down to Dwiggins. Possibly the original was D'Ouiggennes or something of the sort. In the olden times there were many institutions in the west known as "coonbox banks" and a little later many so called free banks, whose bills were popularly known from the pictures on them as "red squirrel," "steel plow," "blue pup," "sick Indian" and "smooth monkey."

All these went to everlasting smash in the bank panic of 1854, and a sound system of state banks succeeded. The Bank of the State of Indiana, of which Hugh McCulloch was president from 1856 to 1863, was eminently sound and successful, and its methods prepared the people to receive the national bank system gladly. The Dwigginsonian method was too much like the old way. He first figured as a small banker in Attica, Ind., and formed a partnership with George W. Wiggs and J. M. Starbuck under the musical title of Wiggs, Dwiggins & Starbuck.



ZIMRI DWIGGINS.

They organized the United National bank of Chicago, capital $50,000, which in some way not yet explained they swelled into the Columbia National bank, with an alleged capital of $1,000,000. The examiner hints that it was really founded on a deficit of $300,000, all the actual cash having been lost in mining speculations in New Mexico. Nevertheless they went on organizing small banks all over the country and induced many good men to put in money and lend their names. All these little banks have collapsed, and startling revelations are promised.

That Pie

I had for dinner was the best I ever ate.
Thanks to COTTOLENE, the new and successful shortening.

ASK YOUR GROCER
FOR IT.

Sold in three and five pound pails.

Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes, prepared by nine eminent authorities on cooking.

Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
BETWEEN
Chicago, St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena. Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior. 6:40 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 7:45 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, call on, wire or write any agent N. P. R. R.
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER
ARE OFFERING
SPECIAL PRICES
ON
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS
AND
WALL PAPER.
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.
WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN, C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

Every Body Who Chews, Should Chew Climax Plug For it is so Much the Best
Sold everywhere. Made only by The P. Lorillard Co., The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America and the largest in the World.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE president still continues to appoint the southern brigadiers to office, very evidently understanding the source of his elevation to the office for the second time. He does not seem to be half so considerate of his northern friends.

THE democrats were howling about 60 cent wheat before election—wanted to be placed in power so that there would be a change. Well, they were placed in power and there was a change sure enough! Wonder how the farmers enjoy the change—48 cent wheat?

WITH singular unanimity the populist papers unite in heaping all the abuse they know how upon any who do not happen to think that there is salvation for the country save in the peculiar doctrines they advocate. According to their avowed notions all of the virtue in the country is within their party lines and everybody who thinks otherwise is the worst kind of a knave. Such bigotry is amusing and yet some are even fooled thereby.

FRANK ROBERT is being boomed by St. Paul papers for Judge of Probate. Frank has been employed in that office going on twenty years and ought to have experience enough by this time to know how to run the office, and he does. He is very popular also and if he should be nominated it would take a mighty smart man to beat him. Frank used to claim Crookston as his home and his parents reside near this city.

THERE is a large-sized kick among the faithful over the dilatory tactics of Post-master General Bissel in the matter of appointments. In the inspection department there are some democratic candidates who have had previous experience and there is no good reason why some of them are not appointed at once and yet the P. M. G. hesitates. The horrid rumor has obtained that Bissel is a mug-wump!

THE democratic party seems to be making haste slowly toward carrying out its pledges, made before the election. Let's see, one of those pledges, we believe was "a reduction of the war tariff." You never hear a word from them about that now but whenever they do say a word about convening congress, it is for the purpose of "repealing the Sherman silver act." Not a single word about that "robber tariff" though! It seems to us that they did promise a change in the price of wheat and we have got that—from 65 cents to 48 cents per bushel. That promise they seem to have faithfully kept. But the "robber tariff business?" Oh, that's no good only in a campaign and they have probably put that question on ice to await another campaign!

THE republicans of Ohio have nominated Gov. Wm. McKinley as their candidate for governor this fall. As no democrat in Ohio will stand a ghost of a show of election over McKinley his re-election is a foregone conclusion already, and his re-election will place him in the lead for presidential candidate of the republican party for the next campaign. Should McKinley be the next presidential nominee his election would be as sure as it has been in Ohio. As he is popular in Ohio, so is he getting to be all over the union. His increasing popularity was evinced the other day when he ran in to Chicago to attend the World's Fair. His visit there was a perfect ovation; the signs of the times indicate his nomination and triumphant election as president of the United States. Mark this prediction.

FARGO is being rebuilt, and by fall there will be several brick blocks and a large number of residences completed. But it will take several years to put the city in as good condition as it was before the awful fire of June 7th. The closeness of the money market precludes the possibility of borrowing much money this year, and consequently those who are unable to build without borrowing will have to wait for another year. Many of the business men have put up small wooden buildings outside the fire limits, and are doing business. Others have put up tents in the burned district and are accommodating their customers. A large force of men are clearing off the ruins and this will occupy several weeks. The city is enlarging and extending the sewerage system, and this gives employment to all the idle men. Liberal contributions of money, clothing and provisions have been received distributed among the needy sufferer, and the people generally are cheerful and hopeful.

IN the last issue of the Great West Doc. Fish rakes up the Congressional record of Donnelly and follows him down to the campaign wherein he, (Donnelly) pulled off of the labor ticket and took the stump for the republican party. If the doctor has anything near like diagnosed the case Donnelly is more tricky than the circus mule that you read about.

J. W. CUPP, who was on the JOURNAL staff in '91 is now running a newspaper of his own at Galion, Ohio—and it goes without saying that it is a good paper. It is true-blue republican and supports McKinley for governor, who, Cupp says, "is good enough for Ohio." Many of our readers will remember J. W. and will unite with the JOURNAL in best wishes for his future prosperity.

ONE theory that we have heard advanced has a grain of comfort in it to all who are interested in seeing a good price for wheat next fall. It is the idea that the present low price of wheat will cause England to buy up a sufficient quantity to reduce the surplus to a minimum basis which would allow us to go into the marked with an active demand. If the lessons of the past few months have demonstrated anything it is the fact that there has been too much wheat raised in the world to supply the natural demand.

THE railroads seem to have reached the maximum of speed and now the question is to obtain a track that will be safe. The iron tie invented by E. C. Davis, of this city, seems to provide absolute solidity and safety for the highest imaginable rate of speed. In our estimate of the cost of building this tie, Mr. Davis informs us that we placed the cost of building too low, as at the present cost of iron the expense would be from $1.50 to $1.75 but with the fact that the iron tie will outlast at least ten wooden ties, is more cheaply handled and provides absolute safety the iron tie is by far the cheapest in the end.

THE revival of the Crookston and Fort Stevenson railroad company would be the biggest thing that ever happened for this country if it should result in the building of the road. The west side is in great need of a railroad and we need a road to give us access to the pine and mineral lands to the eastward. With direct communication with Duluth and the iron mines many of our agricultural products that now find no profitable market would have access to a market that would add very greatly to our resources and be an immense help. By all means let us have the road.

As long as Grover I intends to call an extra session of congress to repeal the Sherman silver law why don't he get at it at once and not keep the whole country on the tenter-hooks of suspense in regard to the outcome? If congress will repeal the act at all it will repeal it just as well now as it will in September and much valuable time would thus be saved and the business of the country sooner resume its usual gait. It is said that Grover has been waiting to ascertain whether congress would repeal the Sherman law before deciding to call that body together but as he has decided to call it in September he must be satisfied that they will, so why wait so long?

THOSE who have made the subject of the financial conditions of the country a close study say that these crises, such as we have just passed through, occur once in about 20 years. The last one seems to have been the result of inflated and unnatural real estate prices, more particularly in relation to cities—known better as "booms," taken in connection with the usual timidity of capital in view of as radical a change in the administration as was the past. It was extremely fortunate for the country that it came as early in the spring as it did and did not wait until the fall crops have to be moved.

EVER since it was founded, the JOURNAL has ever felt a deep interest in the welfare of the farmers of Polk county, believing agriculture to be basis of our prosperity as a people. It has always advocated such things as it believes to be to their true interests and has fought the schemes of political demogagues who seek only their own selfish ends. We are confident that the meeting of the farmers Institute to be held in McKinnon's hall in this city in Friday and Saturday July 7th and 8th is an event that no progressive Polk County farmer should miss. There is no man living so well posted in his business that is impossible for for him to learn anything more and business men in other lines recognize this fact and eagerly improve every opportunity to acquire more knowledge.

IF you democrats are sincere in your professions of interest in the welfare of the country why don't you encourage Grover to get a hump on himself and convene congress early in July? And while you are tinkering the silver business you might work up a little campaign thunder by monkeying with the tariff—but maybe you'd better let well enough alone there.

DR. J. C. CURRYER, who was in the city from Saturday until Tuesday morning, advertising the farmers institute, is editor of the Minnesota Horseman, the only paper in Minnesota devoted entirely to the horse. He has made the horse a life-long study and he is making the Horseman an invaluable aid to breeders. Every farmer should have it.

THAT PRINTING.

"THE Tribune demands it (the city printing) because there was no clause in the notice published in the JOURNAL reserving the right to reject any and all bids."

The above item appeared in one of the schoolboy-like effusions of the Tribune last week, and ought to prove to the people the unscrupulous character of the individual who is writing the slush for this so-called newspaper. When a man will publish such a deliberate falsehood as this—in spite of the fact that the aforesaid clause WAS in the notice published by the council, and appeared in two issues of the JOURNAL exactly as it now appears elsewhere in this issue—it ought to prove the utter unreliability of such a man. He will say or do anything.

Mr. Holston, or whoever is editing the Tribune—is now trying to bulldoze the council by calling them names and intimidating and threatening to visit his awful wrath upon the members should they refuse to give the printing to his paper.

At the last meeting of the council the city attorney gave as his opinion that the city council, in awarding the printing, had a right to consider the standing and circulation of the papers bidding. And immediately Mr. Holston—who is always on hand trying to work the council—thereupon jumped up and began arguing the matter without even the courtesy of asking permission to do so. For pure and unadulterated gall this man Holston takes the cake—in fact the whole bakery. With his county attorney business, his law practice and his boarding house, Mr. Holston should be able to make both ends meet. But his desire for fame is not satisfied, and he must have an organ, and as that organ is scarcely self-sustaining he is trying to bulldoze the council into making it the official city paper, with the mistaken idea that this would build it up. It is purely a business matter and those aldermen who decline to go into partnership with the Tribune have the true interests of the city at heart as is shown by their action in this matter. On the real point at issue the Tribune is strangely silent. That point is the fact that their bid did not comply with the requirements of the notice for bids, and so far from his being "entitled to the business" as he says, he is really not entitled to any consideration in the matter, but, upon his line of argument the JOURNAL is entitled to the work because its bid was the lowest legal bid before the council. The council exercised its right to "reject any or all bids," by rejecting all and calling for a new deal. In doing so they showed Mr. Holston far more consideration than he deserved, and he has no occasion to kick. The work should have been awarded to the JOURNAL and we have far more reason to kick than any others.

Euclid Items.

EUCLID, June 26, 1893.

S. Currie took a run over to Larimore on Friday.

C. E. Sawyer, wife and daughter came up and spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Misner.

L. F. Bergh, a collector for some machine firm, has been around giving the farmers a call.

Miss Anna Hancock intends to attend school at Detroit this summer.

The Euclid church is coming out in a brand new summer dress of paint.

All of the public spirited citizens of Euclid and vicinity turned out in a body and laid out roads and set trees and shrubbery, etc., at the Prairie View cemetery, so that now it has a very neat appearance.

Michael Biever is reported on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Ghoosen took a drive down to the Queen City, Friday.

Rev. W. T. McAltioner and daughter took a run down to see Rev. Mr. Elmer before the latter gentleman takes his departure for his new field of labor.

Mrs. Knox of Wahpeton, North Dakota, and a second cousin of Miss Frances Willard, gave a very motherly talk to a good sized and appreciative audience on Monday evening.

A strawberry and ice cream festival was held at the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening.

The Misses Lulu and Olie Tiedt are visiting their former school-mates during vacation.

H. C. Misner and son went down to see the elephant Saturday.

Those who attended the dance at Cottage Grove farm report having had a good time.

The township is doing some fine work with the new Austin road machines.

E. Taylor & Co. have started to tear down their Keystone warehouse and will rebuild at Euclid.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Chapin of Warren, spent several days this week with friends here.

Mrs. S. J. McGillian and daughter came down and spent Sunday with friends.

S. Crookshanks had the misfortune to stick a knife into his hand which makes a very dangerous and painful wound.

The Glorious Fourth.

The anniversary of the Declaration of Independence is the one American national holiday not yet fallen into "innocuous desuetude." Probably becouse it affords a yearly opportunity for our innumerable budding orators to let loose their pent-up eloquence upon audiences which endure in thoughts of the well-filled lunch basket to follow. The day no doubt will be celebrated in every village from one ocean to the other, but the grandest of all will occur at the World's Fair grounds, Chicago when the exposition managment backed by the great city, will make a stupendons effort to surpass all the gatherings hitherto held on that day. Can you observe the day more fittingly, or more profitably than by spending it in viewing what has been accomplished by our country in the way of educational, materal and artistic progress since the foundation of the republic? Here will be the United States in miniature, as represented in the productions of the factory, the field and the mine of every state in the sisterhood. If you go from anywhere in the Nortwest or in the Mississippi Valley, you can make your journey safe, comfortable and delightful by purchasing your ticket via the Burlington Route. Call on your home agent for a ticket by this line, or address W. J. C. Kenyon Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Free Homesteads.

Thousands of people are rushing into the Beautiful Saskatchewan Valley and taking up homesteads there. From Dakota, Montana, Michigan, and in fact from nearly every state in the union farmers are leaving in considerable numbers for the Canadian Northwest where they can find splendid land with plenty of wood for fuel and building purposes, and also good water. Only $10.00 is charged for filing and this sum comprises all a settler has to pay, nothing being charged for proving np. The farmers in the Edmondton and Prince Albert districts have been getting 65 cents per bushel for wheat all winter. Cattle sell much higher than they do here in Minnesota, and in almost every particular the farmer is better off there than he is here.

There are good railway facilities, oceans of hay and the climate is good: For particulars apply to

MUNSON & MCCREA,
Crookston, Minn.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 24th, 1893.

Avery, E. W. 2
Harryson, Hary
Morvig Olga
Sbully, T. A.
Bannsan, John
Mellen, Cary
Satra Andrea's E.

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

Wm. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

A Repentant Lover's Awful Mistake.

Archibald Augustus Darrow stood gloomily in the dock, the wreck of a well dressed man about town, and when it came time to make excuses for his woe he said:

"Your honor, I am the victim of another man's mistake. A few days ago I was the happiest of men. Fortune and love both smiled. I wooed and won one of the city's fairest but most exacting maids. Then I was persuaded to take part in the Circus Maximus festivity as Demetrius Propulsius, one of the myrmillones.

"The rehearsal for my exacting and heroic role took all my time. I neglected my lady love until I grew fearsome of my fate. Then I said to myself, 'I will make amends.' So I sought a florist.

"'Make the most beautiful floral offering your taste and skill can arrange,' I said.

"'What shall it be?' he asked.

"'Oh, anything. But make it large and fine and send it to this number. With this I gave him tho location of my lady's home.

"That night I stole a moment from rehearsal to seek my sweetheart's bower and ascertain how my gift had been received. Her mother, frowning, stern and awful, met me at the door. Pointing with dramatic finger to the parlor table, she said:

"'What is this insult heaped upon your neglect? Go, base ingrate! Go, and never return!'

"I looked in the direction indicated by her finger, and there upon the table, full in the glare of the chandelier, was an enormous floral pillow, on which was embossed in flaming marigolds the one word 'Rest.' I fled the house, and since that time I haven't known whether I was a myrmillo or a mousetrap."—San Francisco Examiner.

A Useful Leg.

In the human body, at least, art never replaces nature with better work, but when false teeth refuse to ache and wooden legs save men from drowning one is tempted to make some exceptions. An Alabama duck hunter had a curious adventure one day while on the water in a skiff. He had lost a leg in a railroad accident and wore a cork substitute, useful for ordinary purposes, but preventing him from following game except in a boat.

On this occasion, as he was an expert marksman, he had almost loaded the skiff with ducks when, in reaching after a particularly fine bird, he overreached and upset the boat.

Down went the birds, the gun and the hunter, and as there was a swift current at that point the boat drifted away before he came to the surface. Being unable to swim, the hunter clutched wildly for a support, but found none, and would certainly have been drowned had it not been for his cork leg.

It kept him afloat, and at first he was overjoyed; then he became apprehensive. The cork leg had a tendency to invert him in the water, but after struggling against this for some time he managed to unstrap the limb and use it as a float.

It was then easy to paddle ashore, and the hunter was saved, although he lost nearly everything else but his life.—Youth's Companion.

Her Chat With the Emperor.

Mrs. Flyer had just returned from Europe. Of course the "Woman's club" was eagerly watching for her arrival, and just as soon as she got back a reception was tendered to her. The room was crowded, and Mrs. Flyer became the center of a group of interested listeners. Everybody wanted to know just what she had done and how she had done it, whether she got her gloves and silks in all right, etc. At last Miss Perkins said, "And did you go to Berlin?"

"Oh, yes. And really I did have the most delightful time. I was at a reception one night and met the emperor."

There was a silence. The magnitude of the thing astonished the club. But curiosity conquered, and Mrs. Flyer went on:

"Yes, he was there with all his officers, and I did have such a delightful conversation with him."

"Oh, tell us about it. Did you talk long?"

"No, you see my German isn't very good, and I was a little bit flustered, so I only asked him a question or two."

"And what did you say?"

"Oh, I just smiled and said 'Sprechen sie Deutsch?'"—Boston Budget.

Comforts and Dangers.

Many of the comforts of modern life can only be enjoyed at the risk of serious accidents. Leaking gas pipes cause explosions, and the death roll for which that new agent, electricity, is responsible is already considerable. Each severe frost brings its crop of boiler accidents. Paraffin lamps continue to explode. Every day or every night there are fires, many of which lead to frightful accidents and often death.

The large masses of people gathered together in a huge city like this are exposed to constant attacks from those insidious enemies, the bacteria. The dust and soot and fog foster these enemies of human life. The ground under London is honeycombed with drainage pipes, large and small, measuring thousands of miles. Each mile of drain is charged, sometimes at high pressure, with poisons sufficient to kill hundreds of the healthiest men. It is enough to make us shudder to think that only a few feet divide us from a gigantic, death dealing octopus. So that it appears if we give up traveling we run an almost equal peril in staying at home.—"Suffering London."

THE CONJURE WOMAN.

Dat ole Aun' Tempy, she wot live
Yander in de grove, she give
Sumpin to ou' muley cow,
An no soul cain't milk her now,
An we all's hawgs, dey runs an squeals
Lak some un chase 'em thoo de fiel's,
An more'n dat dah's ole Unc' Saul
Cain't sca'cely use his laigs at all
An say she's cunjered him, he know.
Ya-a-ap'm! dat's so!

An wunst dey was a 'oman, too,
Heerd all 'bout what Aun' Tempy do,
An she gwine ax her, so she sayed,
To kyore de risin in her haid.
Aun' Tempy mighty mad dat day;
She nuvver had a wu'd to say,
But gin a cur'ous kin' o' cough,
Dat 'oman's head hit fell smack off
An rolt across de cabin flo'.
Ya-a-ap'm! dat's so!

Wunst me an Uncle Isham's Bill
We clumb up to de window sill
At ole Aun' Tempy's an peeped in,
An dah dat pizen 'oman been
A-cookin sumpin in a pot;
Smelt mighty bad, I dunno wot.
She spat 'er hands toge'r, like dat,
An 'gun a-talkin to de cat!
Den we lit out to'ds home for sho'.
Ya-a-ap'm! dat's so.

Two Clever Statesmen.

The author of "Twenty Years In Parliament" says that Lord Palmerston had a natural buoyancy which his opponents called audacity, but which seldom failed to jerk him over a dangerous rut in the road, not always without splash, but generally without harm.

One crisis in his ministerial life illustrates the absolute good humor which may prevail even when political enmity is at its worst. Lord Derby, the father of the present earl, had made an attack upon him in the upper house with such energy and eloquence that the odds against him seemed overwhelming. But he defended himself and his policy from the dusk of one day to the dawn of another with such tact, dexterity and force of appeal to the national sense of honor that he was acquitted of all blame by a majority of fourscore.

Next day, in passing through the corridor leading from an anteroom to the upper house, one swing door opened to his hand, and at the same moment the other to that of Lord Derby. They were opponents, but they were also manly and sweet natured men. They smiled.

"I was just thinking," said Palmerston, "what a clever fellow he was who so nearly put me in a hole!"

"Ah!" was the rejoinder. "But nothing like the cleverness of the fellow who got you out of it!"

RECKITT BLOCK

MEAT MARKET,

VINE & RICHINGS, Props.

FRESH AND SALT MEATS,
——Constantly on hand.

GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
——In season.

Highest price paid for
FAT CATTE, HOGS, = = =
= = SHEEP and POULTRY.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, June 26th 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Waren Hillard formerly Gunderson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Martin Hillard administrator setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate of which said deceased died seized.

And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administrator to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell the whole of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday the 31st day of July 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 26th day of June A. D. 1893.

By the Court.
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[11-18]

Congress

WILL NOT BE IN SESSION
UNTIL SEPTEMBER,
——BUT——

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

WILL BE IN SESSION
RIGHT ALONG

To help regulate the financial condition of Polk County with the

BEST GOODS
——AT THE——
LOWEST PRICES.

CONFIDENCE

In the ability of the government is what is now most needed, and Confidence in Our Ability and Methods is Already Established.

You can make money by trading with Fontaine & Anglim.

THE BIG FERRIS WHEEL

It Is the Chief Sensation of the World's Fair.

INVENTOR DECLARED A GENIUS.

When He First Broached His Plans to the Directors of the World's Fair They Thought He Was Crazy—A Description of the Wheel as It Stands in Midway Plaisance.

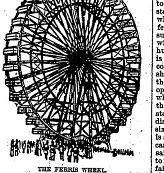
WORLD'S FAIR, June 28.— [Special.] — There is nothing in the World's Columbian exposition that compares in genuine novelty and sensationalism with the great vertical wheel which stands in the very center of Midway plaisance. In these letters I long ago predicted that this giant structure would be the chief sensation of the World's fair, just as the Eiffel tower was the chief sensation of the Paris exposition, and my prediction has been verified. Though the wheel has been in operation to the public but a few days, vast crowds of people constantly surround it watching its movements, and thousands more pay their half dollar apiece for the privilege of going around upon it.

Considered from the engineering standpoint as well as from that of popular interest this is a greater marvel than the Eiffel tower, which earned a great reputation for its builder and a small fortune for its owners. Whereas the Eiffel tower was simply a bridge a thousand feet long erected upon a strong foundation and placed on end, a simple construction like a couple of Chicago's tall steel buildings stood one upon the other and resting upon a tall foundation of sufficient strength to hold them, the vertical wheel is a bridge 825 feet long, 30 feet wide and constructed of steel, twisted into a circle and hung upon an axle round which it revolves by means of the force given it by powerful steam engines. The Eiffel tower involved no new engineering principle, and when finished was a thing dead and lifeless. The wheel, on the other hand, has movement, grace, the indescribable charm possessed by a vast body in action.

What the genesis of the vertical wheel was in the brain of its inventor is an interesting thought. Undoubtedly it had its origin in the horizontal merry-go-round, and that started in the whirligig which country boys used to make with a post and a plank set across the top of it, pinioned at its middle. From the whirligig to the flying horses or merry-go-round was but a step. The merry-go-round has had its greatest development at the sea shore resorts of Coney island and Atlantic city. At the latter place the owner of the merry-go-round owns also a good share of the town. The nimble nickels flowing into his coffers in an uninterrupted stream all summer long have enabled him to buy no end of corner lots and erect brick blocks thereon.

Some one saw that the horizontal wheel was coining money and concluded to go it one better by building a vertical wheel. There are vertical wheels at the sea shore, and some of their kind have been brought to the World's fair and may be seen outside the fair gates taking passengers round at the old rate of a nickel a ride. These small vertical wheels must have been the suggestion to Ferris, the bridge builder and engineer. He said he would build a wheel that would astonish the world, and by the side of the little wheels of the sea shore be as the ocean itself to a mill pond.

He prepared his plans and came to Chicago to ask permission to erect his wheel within the World's fair grounds. At first the fair directors only laughed at him. They thought he was crazy, that he was a crank. Then they granted him a concession, but without any thought that he would ever build his wheel. After a time they concluded that it was not wise to bother themselves further with such a visionary individual, and they cancelled the concession. They were not going to have a wild-eyed man with wheels in his head lumbering up the center of the plaisance with his contraptions. But Ferris, confident of success and backed by ample capital, stuck to the scheme and induced the directors, after a time, to again reconsider their action and again permit him to go ahead. This is the brief history of the struggle this genius had to secure recognition even from such progressive and wide-awake men as the directors of the World's fair. Such has been the history of genius ever.



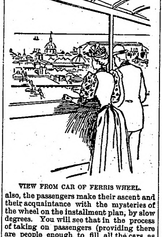
THE FERRIS WHEEL.

It is almost impossible either by picture or description in words to give you an idea of what this wheel is like. A mere statement of its dimensions, 250 feet in diameter, 825 feet in circumference, 30 feet broad and weight more than 4,000 tons, does not mean much to the average mind. It may help the reader to understand what the structure is like if I say that the highest point of the wheel is as far from the ground as the top of one ten-story building would be if it were put on the roof of another building of equal hight.

When you look at this wheel as it stands on the plaisance you are struck by the resemblance it bears to some mighty bicycle. It has the same sort of a hub, the same rods and struts running therefrom to the periphery, the same light airiness of model. In truth, it seems too light. One fears the slender rods which must support the whole enormous weight are too puny to fulfill their office. One cannot avoid the thought of what would happen if a high wind should come sweeping across the prairie and attack this structure broadside. Would the thin rods be sufficient to sustain not only the enormous weight of the structure and that of the 2,000 passengers who might chance to be in the cars, but the pressure of the wind as well? Engineer Ferris says the wheel is strong enough to do all this. Other engineers, some of them men of eminence in their profession, say the same thing. Therefore the public seems content to take it for granted that the wheel is not only the greatest novelty of the age, but that riding upon it is as safe as riding over a bridge that is placed horizontally on masonry piers.

There are thirty-six cars on the wheel. Each is 27 feet long, 9 feet high and 13 feet broad. It is like an enormous bird cage. Human beings are to be the inhabitants. The doors are closed when the passengers are within, and locked. The windows are covered with a strong wire netting. There is a conductor to each car to look after the comfort of passengers. No crank will have an opportunity to commit suicide from this wheel, no hysterical woman shall jump from a window. From platforms built on the ground six cars are loaded at one time. Each car will seat, on revolving chairs, forty passengers. Therefore the thirty-six cars will seat 1,440 passengers. But with standing room occupied the wheel has a capacity of 2,000 persons.

As soon as the first six cars are loaded the man in charge gives the signal and the steam is turned into the cylinders of the thousand horse-power engine which moves the vast machine. Slowly, with just enough trembling and oscillating to make the nerves of passengers quiver, the wheel revolves far enough to bring six more cars to the loading platforms. Thus the loading goes on, six cars at a time; and thus, also, the passengers make their ascent and their acquaintance with the mysteries of the wheel on the installment plan, by slow degrees. You will see that in the process of taking on passengers (providing there are people enough to fill all the cars, as there generally are) the wheel must make one entire revolution. By this time the occupants of the coaches have become somewhat accustomed to their novel situation. They have ceased to think of possible danger and are occupied with the beauty of the panorama which lies far below them.



VIEW FROM CAR OF FERRIS WHEEL.

Now comes the most interesting feature of the trip. The wheel is set in motion at a more rapid pace, though still not very fast, and is not stopped until a complete revolution has been made. It is an indescribable sensation, that of revolving through such a vast orbit in a bird cage, that of swinging in a circle far out over the plaisance in one direction, then turning in the other direction, and still higher, and finally beginning the descent from such a great hight. People wonder what would happen if the pinions which hold the cars through their roofs should break, or refuse to revolve. They wonder how they would get down if the machinery should break and the engineer be unable to further revolve the wheel, thus leaving them dangling in mid air. While they are thinking of these things the movement ceases, then starts up again, and finally it becomes their turn to step out on the wooden platform and down again to mother earth.

I have no desire to advertise the wheel when I tell you a trip upon it is worth taking. You cannot advertise the wheel, anyway, any more than you can advertise the fair, or the Atlantic ocean. They are all too big. They are their own advertisement. The novel sensation, the opportunity to study a great engineering work, the beauty of the scene presented from the great altitude, all combine to make the trip on this structure fully worth the time and the cost.

As yet there is not the slightest reason to fear the safety of the machine. The steel towers which support the vast bicycle wheel are bedded and bolted into thirty feet of concrete. They are calculated to support five times the weight and the wind pressure produced by a tornado of a hundred and fifty miles an hour. Motion is imparted to the mass by means of huge cogs in which a link belt fits. If anything should break and it be desirable to stop the machinery there is a powerful brake operated by compressed air. The axle which runs from the top of one tower to the other, 140 feet in the air, is the greatest steel forging ever made, being 32 inches in diameter and 45 feet long, weighing fifty-six tons. How Ferris ever got it up there is a mystery to me, but he did it. The cars are so attached to the wheel, it is said, that it is impossible for one of them to fall, and equally impossible for them to fail to turn so as to preserve the center of gravity.

What is the principle, the chief principle, on which the wheel is constructed? It is that of a bicycle wheel, as I have said, except that this wheel does not rest upon the surface but depends from the steel axle. The lower half of the wheel simply hangs from the mighty axle, and this lower half supports the upper half by means of the steel framework of its two rims. That is the whole thing in a nut shell. The wheel, though apparently rigid in its construction, has just enough elasticity to make this method of support possible, and yet not enough elasticity to produce any appreciable trembling or slipping effect.

Now the World's fair directors are glad they changed their minds and decided to recognize this genius. Not only have they thereby secured the greatest sensation of the fair, but without a dollar of outlay on their part have made certain of an enormous revenue. The exposition gets one-half the earnings of the wheel, and it is estimated the total receipts will average something like $10,000 a day during the remainder of the summer. The cost of the wheel, complete, was about $250,000. Engineer Ferris is likely to reap a rich reward for his boldness and enterprise.

ROBERT GRAVES.

German Wine Exhibit.

Germany's exhibit of the products of the Rhine and Moselle is installed in a pavilion in the southeast corner of the Horticultural building. The interior is a reproduction of a German wine cellar with Gothic columns.

ANARCHISTS OUT.

FIELDEN, SCHWAB AND NEEBE SET AT LIBERTY

By Order of Governor Altgeld, Who Granted Them an Unconditional Pardon, Taking Opportunity at the Same Time to Give the Trial Judge a Roast.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 27.—Governor Altgeld has pardoned Fielden, Schwab and Neebe, the anarchists. Practically ever since the bomb was exploded in Des Plaines street on the night of May 4, 1886, the three men just pardoned have been in prison. With the exception of Parsons, who gave himself up to death by returning during the trial, all the men finally convicted of conspiring were apprehended within a short time after the riot. The details of the trial are too well remembered to demand recounting. Spies, Fielden, Parsons, Fischer, Lingg, Schwab and Engel were sentenced to death and Neebe, whom many thought innocent, to 15 years in the penitentiary. The case was carried up and fought with great desperation in the supreme court of the state by the prisoner's counsel, but the court finally confirmed sentence of the lower court and the Sentence Was Carried Out

with respect to Spies, Parsons, Fischer, Engel and Neebe. Louis Lingg killed himself with a fulminating cap in the jail on the day preceding to save hanging. A determined attempt to secure a commutation of the sentence was made before the execution, especially in behalf of Parsons, who was well known and popular, and it might have been granted if that wild fellow had consented to recant in his faith. Fielden and Schwab made terms and their sentence was cut down to life imprisonment. Spies, Parsons, Fischer and Engel were hanged from the same gibbet in the north corridor of the jail Nov. 11, 1887. The others were quickly taken to Joliet penitentiary. Since that time an agitation, growing in strength and vehemence, has been directed towards the release of the prisoners. As it grew it was joined by many men of prominence. Some of them sympathized with the men in the beginning and believed that they had been convicted on a narrow construction of the law and with an inadequate opportunity for defense. The majority of signers, however, were men who had been originally bitter in their denunciation of the agitation but believing that anarchy had suffered its death blow from the hanging there was no good in keeping these men in jail.

Altgeld's Statement.

Governor Altgeld's statement accompanying his pardon of the anarchists contains 17,000 words. The governor reviews the history of the Haymarket meeting of May 4, 1886, in detail and says the basis of the appeal for pardon was the petition signed by several thousand merchants, bankers, judges, lawyers and other prominent citizens of Chicago.

Speaking of the charge that the trial judge was prejudiced the governor says: "It is further charged with much bitterness by those who speak for the prisoners that the record of the case shows that the judge conducted the trial with that in examing the state's witnesses he confined counsel for the defense to the specified points touched on by the state, while in the cross examination of the defendants' witnesses he permitted the state's attorney to go into all manner of subjects entirely foreign to the matters on which the witnesses were examined in chief, also that every ruling throughout the long trial on any contested point was in favor of the state, and, further, that page after page of the manuscript contains insinuating remarks of the judge made in the hearing of the jury and with the evident intention of bringing the jury to his way of thinking."

Malicious Ferocity;

TOOK OVER TWO THOUSAND.

An Unkown Man Robs A Moorhead Bank in Broad Day Light.

MOORHEAD, Minn., June 27.—About noon a man presented himself at the cashier's window of the Merchants' National bank, pointed a revolver at the head of Assistant Cashier Van Vlissengen and demanded the money, which was refused. The cashier then went to the rear door and as he did so the robber followed him outside the railing and compelled him at the point of the revolver to walk back and give him the money lying on the desk. The cashier told him to take it. The robber grabbed about $2,000, jumped in a buggy and drove rapidly down a back street to the Jay Cooke stable and fled to the river, which he swam. He left $40 in gold in the buggy. A large posse is scouring the woods on both sides of the river for him.

Starr Gang Did It.

LITTLE ROCK, June 26.—Passengers arriving here on the southbound Missouri Pacific report that another attempt was made by the Starr gang to rob the train at Illinois station, in the Indian Territory.

Guilty of Murder.

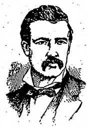
MADISON, Wis., June 27.—A jury in the United States court has found Kozini and Moneypenny, two Chippewa Indians from the Bad River reservation near Ashland, guilty of murder in the first degree.

Its First Year's Work Ended.

WAHPETON, N. D., June 27.—Red River Valley university has closed its first year's work. Examination of students and other exercises of the last week showed that excellent work had been done.

"THE CHINESE MUST GO."

Denis Kearney Started the Warcry Which Is Echoed Throughout the Land.



DENIS KEARNEY.

Denis Kearney has been alternately laughed at and abused, but he is a success. In 1875 he began to rouse the workingmen of San Francisco with vituperative harangues on his great warcry, "The Chinese must go." The city needed no conversion. The state was soon converted, all the far west followed, and now the nation, through its supreme legislature, says "the Chinese must go."

Dennis Kearney was born in Oakmont, County Cork, Ireland, went to sea when a small boy, reached New York as a sailor at the age of 11, and at 19 was captain of a sailing vessel. Evidently such a man had a good deal in him. His education was such as he could acquire while at sea, his strong point being a marvelous command of vituperative rhetoric. His ideas of English may be judged from his favorite expression, "lecherous bondholders." He pronounced it "leecherous" and took it to mean having the nature of a leech.

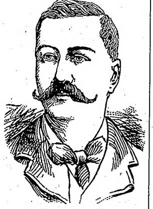
In 1877 he led in organizing the Workingmen's party, which carried the state a year or two later and embodied its views in that peculiar organic law familiarly known as the "Denis Kearney constitution." He is far from attractive in personal appearance and has very little of what is called magnetism, but he talks to plain people in a way they understand, not always sparing profanity. In July, 1878, he opened in Boston his famous eastern campaign. After making many addresses in various cities he returned to San Francisco and once more became "the agitator of the sand lots."

But his second campaign was an apparent failure, and in 1880 the workingmen deposed him from the presidency of their organization. In 1883 he went to New York, but the workingmen voted against having him speak for them. It was in 1868 that he arrived in San Francisco as captain of a sailing vessel and soon after became a drayman, and in 1885 it was reported that he was again a drayman and silent in politics. But in 1888 he was in Washington working for the passage of the Chinese exclusion bill, and now it appears that he is again a power in San Francisco. Be his faults as many and as great as is charged, still he must be credited or charged with giving the initial impulse to the movement which has resulted in excluding the Chinese.

HE THREATENS TO BOOK US.

Prince Roland Bonaparte Will Write About His Experiences In America.

Prince Roland Lucien Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte, after declaring himself delighted with his tour in America, has returned to France with the fell purpose of writing a book about us and our country. The prince is a grandson of the Lucien who was a brother of the great Napoleon and a son of that Pierre Bonaparte who shot Victor Noir. Prince Peter, as that Pierre was called by Americans in Paris, was the black sheep of the Bonaparte family and was the only one of them forbidden access to the Tuileries by his cousin, Louis Napoleon.



PRINCE ROLAND BONAPARTE.

Prince Peter lived many years with a modiste who formerly kept a shop in Bond street, London, and their two children, Roland and Jeanne, were born some years before their parents concluded to marry. After the death of the prince, his widow, known as Princess Peter, lived in poverty till she succeeded in marrying her son Roland to Mlle. Blanc, daughter of the proprietor of the gaming tables at Monte Carlo. She died a few years ago, and Prince Roland is rich.

He is only a prince by title, however, as the Bonapartes hold no rank in France. He was even compelled to resign his lieutenant's commission in the army, but did not have to leave France, as many other princelings did. He is a handsome and stalwart man, six inches taller than his great-uncle, the famous Corsican, and made a favorable impression on all he met in America. He crossed the continent, went up to British Columbia and returned by way of Winnipeg and Chicago.

In New York and Chicago alike Prince Roland took a deep interest in social studies. He read a very interesting paper before the international congress of anthropology on Surinam and made a short address on the Laps, among whom he had traveled two months. He also presented to the American Academy of Anthropology copies of his books to the number of five. He has no political aspirations whatever and is wholly devoted to science.

Summer Comfort For Lazy People.

The big piazza rocking chair comes this season with a patent fan attachment. While you rock the fan sways.

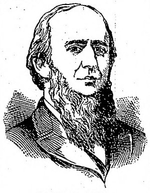
AMERICAN HISTORY.

THE COMING CONVENTION OF ITS LEADING EXPONENTS.

Increased Interest In the Study of History In American Schools and Colleges and Improved Methods of Teaching—The Influence of Professor White.

Authors and readers alike look eagerly for the reports of the July conventions at Chicago, whither writers, librarians, philologists and dabblers in folklore are now taking their course from all parts of the civilized world. Naturally Americans will be most numerous, and of gatherings which may be called exclusively American by far the most important and interesting will be the ninth annual meeting of the American Historical association.

No other organization has gained in general interest more rapidly than this has in its nine years of existence, and little wonder, as its membership comprises such men as Dr. Andrew D. White, formerly of Cornell; James B. Angell of Michigan university, Justin Winsor, Charles K. Adams, Hon. George Bourinot, Hon. John Jay and many others scarcely inferior in reputation, the total making nearly 700 of the most thorough scholars and earnest searchers after truth in the world. And of all these Dr. White is probably entitled to the first honor for having led the way in making history a science in American colleges.



DR. JAMES B. ANGELL.

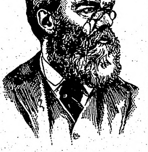
At the sixth annual meeting of the association, held in Washington city in 1889, President Charles K. Adams of Cornell rendered a high compliment to his predecessor by a simple statement of the admitted facts that down to 1857 the study of history in colleges was no more than a dry and formal textbook affair and that in 20 years thereafter it took high rank among the independent courses.

In October, 1857, the students at Ann Arbor, Mich., were surprised and not a little amused to see seated among the professors a very young and fair gentleman of strikingly modest mien whom one of them had just addressed on the campus with the current satirical questions: "Going to enter freshman, eh? Classical? Well, look out for old Boise (Greek professor)! He's your toughest pill."

It was the new professor of history and literature, Andrew Dickson White, who had been graduated from Yale in 1853, had passed three years in Europe, first at Paris and Berlin as a student, and then at St. Petersburg as an attache of the American legation, and had then devoted a year at Yale to historical studies. He was even then but 25 years old and so very youthful looking that the sophomore who "chaffed" him declared that he took him to be "17 or thereabouts." In five years he had made history the favorite study in the University of Michigan.

About 1870 all the colleges seemed moved with a desire to raise history to a higher rank in their curricula, and in 1881 Cornell for the first time gave the entire service of one professor to that subject, Professor Moses Coit Tyler being the man. At Cambridge seven professors and teachers are now employed, and eighteen courses are offered; at Yale two or three professors are engaged in this work and at Cornell four. At Johns Hopkins a different system was adopted, the plan being to encourage independent work. Finally, in 1884 the present association was organized, and its progress has been phenomenally rapid.

Dr. James Burrill Angell, president of the association, also president of Michigan university, was born in Scituate, R. I., Jan. 7, 1827, and was graduated from Brown university in 1850. Since that date he has divided his time almost equally between university work and the life of a literary man and a diplomatist.



DR. JUSTIN WINSOR.

Dr. Justin Winsor, a former president of the association, has survived the rather savage attacks made on him for denying originality of design to Columbus and has proved to his critics that they have no small man to deal with. He is among the most learned of bibliographers and as editor of a "Narrative and Critical History of America" has a high rank among historians. The eminent George Bancroft was also president of the association.

J. H. BEADLE.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

STOP THIEF.

Dyspepsia is stealing the roses from many ladies' cheeks, and making many men's faces blanch.

BEECHAM'S PILLS will arrest the rascal, and restore health, vigor and color; they will cure Sick Headache, acting like a charm on the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys.

Covered with a Tasteless and Soluble Coating.

New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.

Office in McKinnon Block.

OPERA HOUSE

Hardware Store,

T. H. BJOIN, Prop.

SHELF AND HEAVY—

Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,

SASH AND DOORS.

In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and

—THE PRICES LOW.

Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.

T. H. BJOIN.

P. J. RUSSELL,

Attorney-at-Law

Reckitt Block, - Crookston, Minn.

John Wyatt

THE UNDERTAKER,

EMBALMER AND

FUNERAL DIRECTOR.

Besides carrying a full and complete line of COFFINS, CASKETS AND BURIAL SUPPLIES.

has the largest and most complete stock of

Pictures, Picture Frames,

—AND—

Picture Framing Material

—In the city.—

Special discount During the Holidays.

Office 105½ Broadway,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT

Practical Dentist,

SECOND STREET,

CROOKSTON, - - MINN

OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.

G. G. HENAULT.

Valley Roller Mills.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS

MADE FROM SELECTED RED —RIVER HARD WHEAT.—

BRANDS:

Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.

BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS,

Always on hand at reasonable prices.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor

R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.

CLEVELAND HOUSE,

CROOKSTON, - - MINN.

This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston, Minn.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, June 21.

Work on the break in the levee at Magnolia, Miss., has been abandoned.

The Kentucky house has decided that Frankfort will remain the state capital.

Nine stowaways were found on the steamship Arizona during her trip from Liverpool to New York.

Ten federal officials in the Puget sound country have been removed for complicity in Chinese and opium smuggling.

The Adams, now at Honolulu, may be sent to Samoa, as the crisis there is causing the administration some uneasiness.

Max Clayton, an insane ex-theatrical manager escaped from the asylum at Amityville, N. Y., but was recaptured in a New York theatre.

David S. Hulbert, a wealthy Ohio man, who disappeared three years ago, has been found in Texas, his mind having been a blank all that time.

Thursday, June 22.

The great Ferris wheel at the world's fair grounds has been started.

A shipment of nearly a million dollars in gold is on the way from London to this country.

Henry Villard's resignation as chairman of the Northern Pacific board has been accepted.

The postoffices at North Sioux Falls, Pipestone county, and Star Lake, Otter Tail county, will be discontinued June 30.

The letter from Pope Leo on the school question in the United States has been made public. Ireland and Satolli are endorsed.

Friday, June 23.

The Liberty Bell was successfully cast at Troy, N. Y., Thursday.

An international anarchistic conspiracy is said to have been discovered in Madrid.

Ashley Apperly of Louisville was elected grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

The pension fund will show a surplus of $1,500,000 at the end of the fiscal year.

A statue of the Fort Dearborn massacre was unveiled in Chicago Thursday, ex-President Harrison being the orator.

The Canadian Pacific, gossip says, is to meet the reduced rates of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

One of the first matters of importance that will be presented to the next congress will be a bill, already framed, providing for the establishment of a national board of health, with headquarters at Washington.

Saturday, June 24.

The last of the Chinese lepers, on North Brothers island, is dead.

The bail of ex-Commissioner Charles F. Peck of the bureau of labor statistics of New York has been declared forfeited.

Secretary Carlisle has appointed John W. Kinzey of New Philadelphia, O., superintendent of construction of the postoffice building in Washington.

A minister in Grand Rapids, Mich., created a sensation by declaring that he thought Edwin Booth stood a better chance in heaven than would Rev. Dr. Talmage.

B. J. Doran, a prize fighter of some note, suicided at Rochester, N. Y., Friday, after killing his young babe. He also attempted to murder his wife but failed.

The Missouri supreme court has declared the statute respecting the sale of persons for vagrancy unconstitutional.

Monday, June 26.

Margaret Manton Merrill, the well known newspaper writer and lecturer, is dead.

Cardinal Vannutelli has resigned as secretary of the Vatican. He opposes the pope's policy.

John S. Johnson, the Minneapolis bicyclist, made a mile in 2:09 3-5 at Pittsburg Saturday.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis and Mrs. U. S. Grant met Saturday at West Point. The two ladies had a long talk.

The Royal Arthur, the new flagship of the British squadron in the North Pacific, has arrived at Esquimault.

President Cleveland has accepted an invitation to attend the centennial celebration of Williams college in October next.

Dr. McGlynn arrived from Rome Sunday on the steamer Werra. He traveled incog. and refused to be interviewed.

The American Derby, worth $50,000 to the winner, was run at Chicago Saturday and captured by J. E. Cushing's Boundless, with St. Leonards second and Clifford third. The time was 2:36 Fifty thousand persons saw the race run.

Tuesday, June 27.

Boston banks will issue clearing house certificates.

Cornelius Herz of Panama canal fame is dying at Bournemouth.

It is stated China will ask for a new treaty on account of the Geary law.

The New Hampshire building at the world's fair was dedicated Monday.

The second trial of Alderman McKee of Brooklyn, charged with fraud, has begun.

At London Sunday night a murder was committed very much resembling those of "Jack the Ripper."

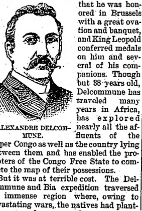
Louis Dreyfus, a Long Branch business man, worried over being robbed of $600 until he committed suicide.

Frank Coleman, known by several other names, an escaped convict, wanted on charges of murder and robbery, was captured at Hackensack, N. J.

A boy playing with matches started a fire in the town of Gibson, N. B., which destroyed the place and left 180 families homeless.

COMPLETED THE CONGO MAP.

The Results of Alexandro Delcommune's Explorations In Africa.



ALEXANDRE DELCOMMUNE.

Alexandre Delcommune is the last great explorer of Africa who has returned to Europe, and so important were his contributions to geographical knowledge that he was honored in Brussels with a great ovation and banquet, and King Leopold conferred medals on him and several of his companions. Though but 38 years old, Delcommune has traveled many years in Africa, has explored nearly all the affluents of the upper Congo as well as the country lying between them and has enabled the promoters of the Congo Free State to complete the map of their possessions.

But it was at terrible cost. The Delcommune and Bia expedition traversed an immense region where, owing to devastating wars, the natives had planted no crops for two or three years, and general famine prevailed. Captain Bia died last August. Captain Stairs died soon after reaching the coast. His companion, Captain Bodson, was killed, as were Captain Hakansson and his contingent of 12 men, and of the total company nearly half died of fatigue and starvation. Their most important discovery perhaps is that the great province of Katanga, which lies 5,000 or 6,000 feet above sea level, is remarkably fertile and healthful for Europeans and contains valuable gold mines as well as copper deposits, which were evidently worked many centuries ago.

The true source of the Congo was found to be in the highlands near Lake Tanganyika. Thence flows the river Chambesi into Lake Bangueolo, and out of that lake runs the main head of the Luapula, which, says Captain Delcommune, is the Congo, being twice as large as its largest affluent. For nearly three years he has been exploring that region, and various supposed streams and lakes are henceforth to be omitted from the map and the real ones substituted. In getting down from its highland sources the Lualaba, main tributary of the Luapula, or Congo, descends 2,000 feet in 50 miles through a great canyon much like that of the Colorado.

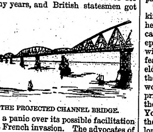
While Captain Delcommune traversed the intermediate country Captain Bia stuck to the streams and mapped out their course. One of their most pleasant duties was to present to Chief Chitambo the presents sent by the Royal Geographical society for his kindness in aiding the transportation of Livingstone's body to the coast. They also set up the tablet furnished by Livingstone's daughter at the place where her father's heart was buried.

THE CHANNEL BRIDGE.

Revival of the Project to Connect England and France.

The great international bridge between England and France is to be 20 miles long, be supported by 90 mammoth piers, cost about $245,000,000 and be 12 years in course of construction. All this if it is ever built, of which many good people have their doubts, though the best engineers have pronounced it practicable, and the Channel Bridge and Railway company, now well organized, declares that the money will be forthcoming.

It is a very old scheme. At first the proposition was laughed at as a mere chimera. Next a few engineers advocated it and were thought to be joking. It was even charged that they had stolen the idea from Munchausen's description of his bridge to Africa and were perpetrating a huge hoax on the British public. A tunnel was then talked of for many years, and British statesmen got into a panic over its possible facilitation of a French invasion. The advocates of a bridge went quietly on, however, and in 1889 presented the results of their completed survey.



THE PROJECTED CHANNEL BRIDGE.

Their plan was for a bridge 24 miles long, from Forkestone to Ambleteuse, with 118 piers and a maximum depth of 178 feet. Continued surveys have shown a much better route—from Foreland, near Dover, to Cape Blanc Nez, near Calais. The bridge there need be but 20 miles long, with piers as aforesaid and greatest depth of 116 feet. The spans will measure respectively 350 and 800, 700, 1,000, 1,200 and 1,600 feet, and intermediate lengths, the longest over the deepest water to facilitate navigation, and the piers bordering the ship channels will be illuminated at night to guard against accidents. Through all its central sections the bridge will be 200 feet above the water.

It is estimated that at least half the travel and traffic now crushing the channel would at once seek the bridge, making 6,000,000 tons and 1,000,000 passengers yearly and that it would pay from the start. The system of construction is to be the same as that of the famous bridge over the Fith of Forth. The company was organized in 1884, and as all the difficulties interposed by government are now overcome the promoters promise speedy progress. Of course it will be by far the greatest bridge in the world.

The First Aluminium Ship.

The first aluminium ship is being built in the dockyards of the Loire. It is a cutter which would weigh, if made of the usual material, 4,500 tons, instead of its actual weight of 2,500 tons.

Taking Down a Drummer.

A few years ago a number of us were stopping at the Henry House in Abilene, Kan. Among the guests was a plug-hat-silk-umbrella clothing drummer from Boston. He had no desire to make up or affiliate with the "boys," but was a crowd all to himself, so we concluded to initiate him. About six miles west of Abilene was a water station called "Sand Springs." As soon as Mr. "Boston" was within earshot, one man said, "Well, I got in one nice order yesterday from Jones at Sand Springs." "Yes," said another, "I fixed him with his boots and shoes." "And I," said another, "sold him a splendid order of notions." Another one said, "I heard him wish a clothing man would come along." Mr. "Boston" at once pricked up his ears, went into the ticket office and asked the agent, "Where is Sand Springs?" The agent told him, "The first station west." He purchased a ticket and had his seven big trunks checked to "Sand Springs."

When the train arrived there, the baggageman rolled his trunks out on the prairie. Mr. B. inquired of the burly Irishman who ran the pump engine, "Where's the town, sir?" "Be jabers, it's meself and this water tank is all there it uv it." "Why," said B., "is there not a Mr. Jones starting a large store here?" "Divil the bit," said Pat. It soon dawned upon the Bostonian that he had been the victim of a cruel joker. He had to skirmish around and paid a farmer $3 to haul his baggage back to Abilene. When he returned, one of the boys gave him the "grand hailing sign" and told him why it was done. He "set 'em up" in fine style and said he would ever after be ready to extend the hand of fellowship to a worthy brother whenever he should find him.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Lost In a Small Town.

In his delightful record of "An Embassy of Provence," Mr. Thomas A. Janvier relates how he was lost in the mazy streets of the little town of Vers. The place was strange to him. His pony, being tormented by flies, ran away with the carriage or buggy. But "the ponette" did not run too madly to respond to the rein, so Mr. Janvier turned this, that and the other corner and flew past startled old women, children, dogs and hens, till he did not know his way back to the main road. He says:

"A brave old man rescued us. While I held the ponette hard he seized her bridle, and when he had calmed her by brushing away the tormenting flies and I had explained that we were lost and had begged him to guide us to the highway he smiled gently and in a moment led us out from that entangling maze.

"The distance to the highway proved to be less than twoscore yards, but then he knew what turns to take in that marvelously crooked town.

"In my gratitude I offered the old man money. He refused to accept it. 'I cannot take monsieur's silver,' he said politely. 'Already I am more than paid. In all the 70 years of my life here in Vers monsieur is the very first who has been lost in my little town. It is most interesting. It is enough.'

"In this position he was firm. I thanked him again warmly, and we drove away. When we had gone a short distance, I looked back. He was standing in the middle of the road gazing after us. His face was wreathed in smiles."

Germany's Royal Children.

All the children of the imperial family have been baptised in water from the Jordan, according to a custom long established in the royal house of Prussia. The empress has of late received innumerable requests to stand as sponsor to the children of all classes of people in all parts of Germany, so many in fact that she has found it impossible to accede to even a tithe of the applications. She has therefore made it a rule to act as godmother only when one or other of the parents is personally known to her.

The empress always prepares some kind of celebration for the birthdays of her children. One of these anniversaries came along at the time of the Bismarck episode. The kaiser, who was playing with the children at the little family feast, was astonished to hear from the eldest of his offspring this comment on the event which had just astonished the world: "Father," piped out the crown prince, "they say that you will now tell the people what to do all by yourself. You will like that better, won't you, father?" The conversation was not prolonged.—Arthur Warren in Ladies' Home Journal.

Flushing Fresh Water Pipes.

A vegetable growth in the water mains at St. Paul has been the cause of some trouble. The first case was discovered by the superintendent in one of two service pipes in a single trench supplying a double house. A complaint was made of bad water, which flushing failed to improve. One of the pipes delivered pure water, and one supplied a muddy liquid that was of no use. These facts led to the conclusion that one of the services was foul, and the remedy applied on this supposition proved effective. The boiler of a portable engine was connected with the faucet of the kitchen sink from which the muddy water came and a steam pressure of 70 pounds forced against the 35 pounds water pressure for 30 minutes—thereby driving the water out of the pipe.

Since that time the pipe has always delivered clear water, and 12 similar cases have been successfully treated in the same manner. Great care has to be taken that there are no leaks in the service pipes and that none of the fittings are open during the steaming process.—Engineering Record.

A Matter of Locality.

First Tourist (to companion who has just cracked a very senseless joke)—Do you call that wit?

Second Tourist—Certainly.

First Tourist—Well, I don't.

Second Tourist—But you forget we're in England now.

First Tourist—Oh, yes! Sure enough! Beg pardon. Ha! ha! ha! ha!—Truth.

HOW CHOLERA IS SPREAD IN INDIA.

Through Lack of Sanitation and the People's Peculiar Habits.

A plain story of the conditions that prevail in India for the spread of the cholera was related at the New Century club by Dr. Pauline Root of the Woman's Medical college, who has lived for eight years in southern India. Dr. Root began by describing the conditions under which people live in southern India, in order to show exactly what circumstances generate the cholera. There is absolutely no sanitation there as we have it. Drainage, with the exception of a fever breeder in the way of an open sewer, is unknown. In the village people live in low mud huts, where all the family congregate in one room, the dimensions of which are likely to be 4 feet by 10 or 12 feet. As there are no outbuildings at all, there is no way in which persons can protect themselves against the cholera if it once appears in such a household. Sometimes, if the well runs dry, stagnant water must be used. A high caste personage will not allow a low caste to use his well.

Commonly people go to the river for water. As the water is frequently not on the surface, a "tub" is dug in the river bed and the water allowed to collect. At this tub or at the well all the functions of bathing are performed. First the jar is filled and the water being dashed over the person soon trickles back to its source. In the case of certain religious enthusiasts, water is poured over the body 50 times. Next the seely, the single piece of silk or cloth which is worn as a garment, must be washed. This is dipped into the pool. Finally the jar is refilled and carried home. The quality of the water by the time the jar is refilled is promising indeed when cholera is in the air.

In these river tubs the clothes are washed. The cattle are taken there to drink. Dr. Root said that in sending a man to the river to fetch water there was never any certainty that he would not fill his jar with the water standing in one of the pools instead of digging a fresh hole. The very cleanliness of the people—and they are extremely clean—tends to the spread of cholera because their method of bathing is so unintelligent. In southern India there is always more or less cholera. It is often prevalent after a certain religious festival—of the the marriage of two divinities—which is celebrated by an encampment in the river bed for four or five days.

As for facilities in caring for the sick in India, Dr. Root graphically showed how forlornly poor these are by describing her experience in the house of the vice president of the municipality of Madua, a wealthy man, who arrayed himself resplendently when he came to ask her to visit his wife, thus showing his solicitude for his wife's condition. Undoubtedly he meant to do the best he could for the sick woman, for the doctor found her in a room adjacent to her husband's—a position of honor. The woman was badly crippled and only able to crawl down from her cot. Beyond playing with the children and polishing the jewels nothing relieved the monotony of her day. She was entirely uncared for. A hole in the wall for refuse was cleaned only once a day. The woman died of blood poisoning. And this is the way a sick person fared in one of the better houses!

Usually a sick person is placed in a room that is reached from the house by crossing a court and passing through an alley. The alley usually has black, slimy water in it. The room is 7 feet square. In the court are often found the cow, chickens and a number of persons. No wonder that under such conditions cholera spreads like wildfire. But cholera is always brought. It never starts of itself.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Marechal Niel Rose.

Although many flowers owe their names to famous people, there is only one instance known when a man and a flower received a title at the same moment. When Niel, a brave French general, was returning from the scene of his victories in the war between France and Austria, he received from a peasant who wished to honor the hero a basket of beautiful, pale yellow roses. One of the stems, which happened to have roots clinging to it, the general took to a florist in Paris, in whose care it remained until it became a thriving bush covered with blossoms. Niel then took the plant as a gift to the Empress Eugenie. She expressed a great admiration for the exquisite flowers, and on learning that the rose was nameless said significantly: "Then I will name it. It shall be the Marechal Niel," and at the same moment she bestowed upon the astonished general the jeweled baton that betokened his promotion to the high office of marshal of France.—Drake's Magazine.

Singular Hallucination.

George Smith of Stockton-on-Tees was charged at Holywell with being a wandering lunatic. Smith, who is a skilled workman and respectably connected, had some months ago been employed on special work at Mostyn iron works, when he complained that a young woman from that neighborhood had put him under a spell and had taken out his eyes and put her own in their place. He was then taken in charge by his friends, but afterward went back to Mostyn for the purpose of claiming the return of his eyes. He was ordered to be sent to the asylum at Denbigh.—London Tit-Bits.

A Cordial Invitation.

Miss Elderly (with girlish enthusiasm, joining a group of young people who are discussing an expedition through the mountains)—May I go with you? I should so love to.

Young Spriggins (with great cordiality)—Delighted to have you. We were just wondering where we could get a chaperon.—Texas Siftings.

Wealthy English Brewers.

The personality of Sir Andrew Barclay Walker, the Liverpool brewer, was sworn at £2,876,781. There have been 25 other wills of brewers and distillers in the past six years each exceeding £200,000.—Exchange.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!

Of the following line of First-Class Goods which we handle, and when you are ready to buy call and get our prices.

CHEAP GOODS ARE DEAR AT ANY PRICE.

WE SELL

DEERING BINDERS, AND MOWERS,
The best on earth for money,
chalk or marbles.

HOLLINGSWORTH AND DEERE RAKES,
8, 10 and 12 feet.

JOHN DEERE PLOWS.
WESTERN ROAD MACHINES,

ADVANCE THRESHERS AND ENGINES.

A fine line of Buggies, Carts and Harness of all styles. Rushford Wagons, good timber and bone dry—too well known to need more than mentioning. We also sell a nice line of bicycles, the Victor being our leader. It needs to be seen to be fully appreciated. In these, as well as everything else, merit wins. It pays to buy good articles. We sell as cheap as the quality of our goods will admit, and guarantee everybody the worth of their money.

Larsen. Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

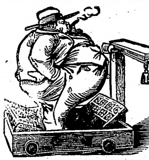
FRESH VEGETABLES
RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice lot of
CANNED GOODS
At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,
Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.
ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Price
—OF—
Groceries



HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as

TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,

I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.,
Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, - - - CROCKSTON, MINN.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

AS TO YOUR VACATION

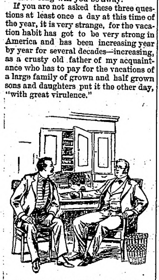
THREE QUESTIONS THAT ARE IN ORDER AT THIS SEASON.

Growth of the Vacation Habit—Change the One Thing Needful—Sensible Vacations and Otherwise—Advantages of a Sea Voyage—A Log Cabin Outing.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

"When do you take your vacation?"
"Where are you going this year?"
"How long will you be away?"

If you are not asked these three questions at least once a day at this time of the year, it is very strange, for the vacation habit has got to be very strong in America and has been increasing year by year for several decades—increasing, as a crusty old father of my acquaintance who has to pay for the vacations of a large family of grown and half grown sons and daughters put it the other day, "with great virulence."

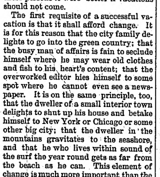


INCREASING WITH GREAT VIRULENCE.

Time was when the three questions I have quoted would have been preceded by "Are you going to take a vacation?" but that time has passed. All the world takes a vacation nowadays, or at least the exceptions are so rare that they may be spoken of as "proving the rule."

Judging from present indications, the growth of the habit this year will be quite up to the annual average. The newspapers are filled with attractive advertisements setting forth the merits of resorts by the seashore, by the side of the still waters of lakes, in the mountains and in the forests. Town and country are being flooded with hand bills and folders and handsomely printed, artistically illustrated little volumes descriptive of the delights of this railroad or that steamer route as a means of getting to the place where you propose to make your summer sojourn. For weeks hotels and cottages and boarding houses have been in process of preparation for vacationers and are now beginning to fill with summer folk. Rowboats on interior lakelets have been put in order, stagecoaches that are idle all the rest of the year have been furbished, the gentle theological student has found a place to "wait"—in short, the vacation season is here; here, with all its genuine pleasure, its healthful rest, its sound sleep, its rowing and sailing, its tramping and riding, its fishing and shooting; here, likewise, with all its rush and worry, and sham and heartburnings, for there are vacations and vocations. There are persons who take their vacations sensibly, who get some real benefit from them, and who return to their daily occupations refreshed and better able to grapple with the problems of existence, and there are other persons who do not understand the real object of vacations—persons to whom the vacation is the hardest time of the year, who return tired and dragged out and cross. To these persons it were better if vacations should not come.

The first requisite of a successful vacation is that it shall afford change. It is for this reason that the city family delights to go into the green country; that the busy man of affairs is fain to seclude himself where he may wear old clothes and fish to his heart's content; that the overworked editor hies himself to some spot where he cannot even see a newspaper. It is on the same principle, too, that the dweller of a small interior town delights to shut up his house and betake himself to New York or Chicago or some other big city; that the dweller in the mountains gravitates to the seashore, and that he who lives within sound of the surf the year round gets as far from the beach as he can. This element of change is much more important than the element of rest. It not infrequently happens that the vacationer is on the go during the entire time of his absence from his regular haunts, but returns greatly improved.



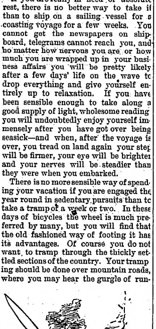
A SOCIETY MOTHER AND MARRIAGEABLE DAUGHTERS.

It is likely that the greatest sufferers from the vacation habit are the society women who have marriageable daughters and determine to use the outing season for the purpose of hunting up husbands for the girls. To these worthy women this season must be a terror indeed. And if the eligible young men for whose delectation these society mothers deck out their daughters in gorgeous attire, and for whom all sorts of alluring entertainments are prepared, do not enjoy life to the full during the summer months—why, then, these young men haven't a great deal of good sense, that's all.

The fact that Chicago is holding a big World's fair this year has a tendency to disturb the normal flow of vacation travel. The regular weeks at the shore and in the mountains will be omitted in some cases, and of course this carries with it a diminution of the amount of money that will be expended in the regular way. It seems likely, however, that this diminution will be greater in the direction of the summer schools than the resorts that have no educational features or the quiet country places. In fact, several summer schools have decided to suspend their sessions this year because of the World's fair, their conductors realizing that the educational significance of the exposition is so great as to be likely to draw largely from their constituencies. But while it is undoubtedly a good thing to go to the World's fair it is not likely that a trip thither will afford any one the rest and recreation that are needful at vacation time. True, the element of change will not be lacking, but those who attend will do well to reserve at least a week of the time they can afford to be away from their business to rest after visiting the fair before returning to work.

If you are really in need of absolute rest, there is no better way to take it than to ship on a sailing vessel for a coasting voyage for a few weeks. You cannot get the newspapers on shipboard, telegrams cannot reach you, and no matter how nervous you are or how much you are wrapped up in your business affairs you will be pretty likely after a few days' life on the wave to drop everything and give yourself entirely up to relaxation. If you have been sensible enough to take along a good supply of light, wholesome reading you will undoubtedly enjoy yourself immensely after you have got over being seasick—and when, after the voyage is over, you tread on land again your step will be firmer, your eye will be brighter and your nerves will be steadier than they were when you embarked.

There is no more sensible way of spending your vacation if you are engaged the year round in sedentary pursuits than to take a tramp of a week or two. In these days of bicycles the wheel is much preferred by many, but you will find that the old fashioned way of footing it has its advantages. Of course you do not want to tramp through the thickly settled sections of the country. Your tramping should be done over mountain roads, where you may hear the gurgle of running water and the roar of an occasional cataract, where you may sometimes walk for miles in the shade of mighty forests and where your eyes may at times be greeted by grand and beautiful vistas of hill and valley. If you are dyspeptic when you start out and possessed of little appetite, you will soon miss the first and find the second, and the simple fare you will be able to get at the houses where you stop for meals will help to bring back tone to your system. Take my word for it, if you decide to pass your vacation in this way you will never regret it. But you must wear solid, easy shoes, you must dress for comfort and not for looks, you must be prepared for physical weariness, and you must not expect that your meals will be cooked by French chefs.



KENTUCKY JEANS AND COWHIDE BOOTS.

A lawyer of my acquaintance who was born in a log house and has built up a large practice in a big eastern city, always passes his vacation in a remote place, where he has had a log cabin built on the side of a forest covered mountain. He goes there every year early in July and stays till the last of August. He tells me that while there he wears Kentucky jeans and cowhide boots and spends his time making and renewing acquaintance with his few hillside neighbors and fishing. "I never catch anything to speak of," he says," and I fish with a worm and a hook. I do not use a bamboo rod, but a pole which I cut for myself. As a matter of fact, I don't care very much to catch the fish, but if I have a fishpole on my shoulder and a box of bait which I have dug myself in my pocket I feel that I have a nominal reason for tramping along the banks of the mountain streams, and when I meet another fisherman or a countryman he sees what I am out for, and I don't have to answer too many questions. My wife alway goes with me to my summer log cabin, and she enjoys it as much as I do."

The amount of money that is annually put into circulation by the vacation habit is very large. In fact, in some localities where farming is greatly run down more money is taken in during the outing season than during all the rest of the year. To offset the fact that this is the harvest time of the people who live there is the other fact that this is also their time of hard work; that they are worried and worn and tired just at the time when vacationers are care free and jolly and gay.

I. D. MARSHALL.

DOUBT AT THE LAST.

EVIDENCES BY WHICH PHYSICIANS DETERMINE DEATH.

Mankind Has Always Had a Horror of Being Buried Alive, and the Cremation of the Ancients May Have Been Due to This Fear—Some Peculiar Cases.

So deceptive are many of the ordinary evidences of death that medical science has given to this subject a great deal of attention. It used to be supposed that people were often buried alive through accident, and writers of romance have dwelt upon this species of horror with much unction. During the war of the rebellion many soldiers were said to have been interred while living who were merely in a lethargy or stupor arising from loss of blood, exhaustion, cold and fear. Bodies have often been found turned over in coffins, as if the occupants had waked up and tried to get out. In numerous other cases of a similar sort the tongue has been discovered protruding from the mouth, as if from suffocation, and there have been stains from bleeding on the burial clothes.

Now, such facts as these were amply sufficient in former days to convince the most skeptical that the persons concerned had been interred alive. But it is now known that such phenomena are exhibited by dead bodies under conditions wholly normal. The turning of a corpse in its coffin is brought about by the expansion of the gases of putrefaction. The projection of the tongue from the mouth is an effect of the same cause. Bleeding often occurs after death. In fact, such a hemorrhage is known to have taken place eight days after death. In this instance the bleeding was from wounds inflicted during life.

The stoppage of the heart's beating is not regarded as a satisfactory evidence of death. In some cases on record that organ has apparently ceased to perform its function for as much as 15 minutes, and yet the person has revived. Tidy, the great English authority, speaks of the instance of a certain Colonel Townshend, who was seemingly able to die at will and to come to life again when he chose. On a number of occasions he had deliberately suspended his own vital processes for a short time. Finally he consulted physicians on the subject, deeming his ability to do this a sufficiently abnormal symptom to be somewhat alarming. In the presence of the doctors he voluntarily lapsed into a state of torpidity, his heart stopped and his breathing also, a mirror held at his mouth showing no dimness.

This case was apparently unique. At the same time the peculiar faculty developed by Colonel Townshend—who died that same night for good and all—bears a seeming likeness to the peculiar power exhibited by certain fakirs of India. For centuries it has been a familiar trick for certain of these fakirs who possessed the accomplishment to permit themselves to be buried alive for months, coming to life again after being dug up. That this remarkable feat is wholly bona fide has been satisfactorily demonstrated. It has been repeatedly performed in the presence of most skeptical witnesses under circumstances which preclude all possibility of deception. It is an artificial suspension of vitality, bearing some relation to the natural hibernation of bats and other animals.

If the finger of a person in whom the vital spark still lingers be tightly bound with a piece of string, the end of the finger will soon become red and then bluish. But if the individual be dead no such effect will be produced by the application of a ligature. If during life a clean and bright needle be thrust into the muscles of the body, the steel rapidly rusts on being withdrawn. After death no such oxidation takes place, it is said. However, the certainty of this latter test is disputed. One of the most familiar methods of determining absence of life is that of producing a blister by heat, as with the flame of a candle. If the skin beneath and around the blister becomes red, the individual lives; otherwise he is dead.

One of the most reliable tests of this question is made by holding the hand of the supposed cadaver between the eye and the light of a candle or lamp. When thus examined, the hand of a living person has a rosy color between the fingers. This is not the case with a corpse. Only a few days ago a woman was found dead in bed at a hotel in Chicago with a pistol in her hand and a bullet hole in her temple. A man who is supposed to have left her a few hours previously was accused of having murdered her, but the coroner's jury decided that it was a case of suicide. So far as the newspaper reports indicated, the jury did not pay any attention to one most important point in the evidence. If the revolver was tightly grasped in the dead woman's hand, she must have committed suicide. It is not possible for another individual to tighten the relaxed grip of a dead person upon a weapon.

If the person has committed suicide, the weapon will be found rigidly grasped with fingers stiffened by the rigor mortis. But after death the fingers cannot be made to take a grip firmly. This is regarded as a most important point from the medico-legal standpoint. It has determined the fate of an accused prisoner in many a trial. Army surgeons say that the expressions on the faces of soldiers killed in battle reveal the causes of death. Those who have perished from sword wounds have a look of repose, while there is an expression of pain on the countenance of those slain by bullets. It is rather an odd fact that the heart of a dying man ordinarily continues to beat for four or five minutes after breathing has ceased.—Washington Star.

Modern Spanish Literature.

The Spanish literature of our times is of high quality, as was that of other times. Spain has today, as it has had for hundreds of years, many eminent scholars in all branches of learning. The Spanish romancers, novel writers and poets of this generation deserve very high praise.—New York Sun.

TO AMATEUR MUSICIANS.

Some Hints Which, if Followed, Will Be Found Quite Advantageous.

The following is a series of hints to young singers and would be singers which have been received from one of Boston's well known musicians:

Start under the right instruction. It is far better to begin right in middle life than wrong in youth.

Study everything carefully, for "what's worth doing at all is worth doing well."

Cultivate refinement in all things. The tastes, inclinations and tendencies of the singer, whether refined or coarse, are unavoidably made manifest in the interpretation of the music she sings.

Keep up with the events of the world in a general way, but while studying music live in an atmosphere of music. Concentration is the secret of many a singer's success.

Sing everything as the author wrote it, for one should be as truthful in music as in history.

Plan your mode of living and hours for eating, sleeping and exercising according to the manner in which they affect your singing.

Throw your whole soul into your singing. Live in the song while you sing it. The sympathy and interest of an audience are most frequently gained by the sincere, soulful and truthful rendering of a selection.

Cultivate animation, warmth of spirit and coloring in rendering your songs.

Train yourself to be cool headed and collected when singing.

Sing without notes when possible. You can produce better dramatic effects and hold your audience better by so doing.

Don't try to study music, art and science all at the same time. Select one and do that well.

Don't think of making music your profession unless you have a more than ordinary talent for it. The musical profession is always crowded with performers, except at the very top, where there is always plenty of room.

Don't think of making music your profession unless you have plenty of money to give yourself the best possible musical education.

Don't think that training in execution and technique of the voice only is sufficient. The professional singer should be a perfect reader and well schooled in counterpoint and harmony.

Don't think the life of a successful singer is easy. The more successful the singer the more she becomes a slave to her profession.

Don't make a practice of humming. It tires the voice.

Don't practice long at a time, especially if you are just beginning. It is much better to practice little and often.

Don't eat just before singing. A hearty meal several hours before and a light stimulating refreshment just before you sing are much better.

Don't drink wine for a stimulant. It is not only drying to the throat, but is too strong a stimulant. A person needs to be especially self composed when singing.

Don't indulge in mannerisms and catchy originalities in rendering your selections. A natural manner and sincere singing are much more pleasing and desirable.—Boston Journal.

A Mean Lot of Bridegrooms.

One of our city clergymen tells this: "I have had some funny experiences with grooms who have failed to pay me anything. One man came to me one day and asked me how much I charged. I told him that we charged nothing, but he could give me what he liked. I married him, and he promised to pay me, but never did. Not long after another couple, who had been sent by the others, came in, and I married them, the groom promising to give me a fee, but nothing came of it. Some time after there came still another couple who had been sent by the previous one. The groom declared he was dead broke. I told him how the others had treated me, but he promised faithfully to pay me in the future, and I tied the knot. That has been some time ago, and he has not yet fulfilled his promise. I have had a good many such cases."

Another minister in this city says: "The only fee that I remember not to have received was after I had married a man who was well able to have given me a good one. I do not think he was to blame, however, for I have always suspected the best man as having appropriated it for his own services in the affair."—Baltimore Herald.

The Ceremonial Use of Tobacco.

Since the worldwide diffusion of the tobacco habit its earliest and perhaps original use has been in a great measure overlooked. With the aborigines of America smoking and its kindred practices were not mere sensual gratifications, but tobacco was regarded as an herb of peculiar and mysterious sanctity, and its use was deeply and intimately interwoven with native rights and ceremonies.

With reasonable certainty the pipe may be considered as an implement the use of which was originally confined to the priest, medicine man, or sorcerer, in whose hands it was a means of communication between savage man and the unseen spirits with which his universal doctrine of animism invested every object that came under his observation. Similar to this use of the pipe was its employment in the treatment of disease, which in savage philosophy is thought to be the work of evil spirits.—John Hawkins in Popular Science Monthly.

High Prices For a Violin.

A violin dated 1734 and said to have been made by Stradivarius in his ninetieth year was sold in London lately for £800. During the last 20 years this violin has changed hands three times, on the first occasion being bought for £400 and on the second for £600.—London Tit-Bits.

Judging by Appearances.

Old Lady (in courtroom)—What a murderous looking villain the prisoner is! I'd be afraid to get near him.

Her Husband—'Sh! That isn't the prisoner; it's the judge.—Truth.

Hood's Cures

Miss Edna Kyle
Chamberlain, South Dakota.

Works Like Magic

Rheumatism—Internal Pains and Aches—Perfectly Cured

"I must say that Hood's Sarsaparilla works like magic. I have for two years been very seriously troubled with rheumatism, suffering intense pains and aches. I tried all the remedies I could get, but all failed, until, having heard so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, I thought I would try it. The very first bottle did me a great deal of good, and I thought I must continue. I have been using Hood's Sarsaparilla regularly, and am now as well as anyone." Miss EDNA KYLE, Chamberlain, South Dakota.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.

HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.

All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE NE
NORTHWES

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana. — FARM LANDS.

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. — LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. — Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands, New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetes Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. — Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE
North American Review
YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, he Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year,
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

Commenced Business October, 1881.

PAID IN CAPITAL.........$100,000
SURPLUS......................15,500

Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss.
In Probate Court.

In the matter of the guardianship of Lena O. Tommerdal, insane.

On reading and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Sollbakke, guardian of the above named insane person, it is ordered, pursuant to the prayer of said petitioner, that a time be fixed for examining, and allowing the account; that said account be examined and petition heard by the Judge of this court on the 17th day of July, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in said county.

Ordered further, that public notice be given to all persons interested of the time and place of examining said account by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston this 17th day of June, A. D. 1893.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.
[10-12]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,
City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: Young & Huot, on the first floor of the story and a half frame building on Broadway, on lot 18, block 16, in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 19th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH.
[10-11] City C

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
City of Crookston—ss.
Notice is hereby given been made in writing to city of Crookston, and ing for license to se
the term commenc
minating on July son and at the application t
two story b block, on f on part Housto
Polk c
Said
by s
th

No.
been made in city of Crookston, an ing for license to sell the term commencing J nating July 1st, 1894, by and at the following place a plication, to-wit: A. Brossea building on lot 4, block 12, Fletcher addition to the city of Crookston, Polk Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-11] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,
City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place, at stated in said application, to-wit: Fred Royer, in the one story frame building situate on lot 7, block 2, in original townsite of Crookston, Polk County, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, Minn., on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 14th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(Seal.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[8-10] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,
city of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application respectfully, to-wit: J. J. Molstad on the lower floor of the two-story frame building situated on lot six of block five of Fletcher and Houston's addition to the city of Crookston in said county.

Said application will be heard and determined by said City Council of the city of Crookston, in city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 13th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-11] City Clerk,

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,
City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application to wit: Medard Mercil, in the south twenty-five feet of the brick building situate on lots 17 and 18, block 8, Flecther & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn., on the first floor of said building known as Fortier Block.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 9th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-1] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,
City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to wit: Edward Gates, on first floor of the two story frame building, No. 19, on the north side of Second street, in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Friday, the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness may hand and seal of said city, this 18th day of June A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[9-11] City Clerk.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

GREAT NORTHERN

Railway

TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:45 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	7:15 a m
2:57 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:55 p m
4:45 a m	"	Glyndon	"	10:10 p m
6:50 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	8:05 p m
7:50 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	7:05 p m
9:13 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:55 p m
11:40 a m	"	Devils Lake	"	3:40 p m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:15 a m Arrive 7:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE. Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday.
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily
For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Ashland, Duluth, Chicago, and for all points South, East and West.........at 6:40 p. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north, ...at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

... weekly by the Crookston Hay and ... Co.]

...AIL PRICE.

..........$6.00@$10.00
.......................15c
......................12½c
.$6.00@$7.00
.......4c@5c
2½c@4½c
....80c
$1.25

... ...than ever ...ore.

...ook a business trip ...Monday morning.

...the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Special prices in millinery still reign at Miss Veronneau's.

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Halvor Steenerson went down to Hillsboro on Sunday evening to defend in a stabbing case.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Dave Lusian left on Sunday evening to join his family at Charles City, Iowa, where he will make his future home.

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.
A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

Those rooms need papering. Let S. A. Wallace figure on the paper. Medical hall. [6tf]

Ed. Martin has just been having his shop painted up in fine style and intends to have things look attractive about the place.

For the best mower inquire of S. L. Collins & Co. They handle the Champion. Be sure to see it before you purchase.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.
NEW YORK STORE.

Frank Hertz moved his laundry outfit from the Commercial, where he has been since the fire, to his new location just east of the First National Bank on Second street. He has now a fine roomy place.

Will Peterson went out to Thief River Falls on Wednesday.

Mrs. W. A. Hammond is visiting friends in Bismarck, N. D.

Braley is getting his lumber on the ground ready for the new house.

H. C. Misner and son of Euclid, took in the great circus on Saturday.

A bit of a shower on Monday helped out the late sown grain in great shape.

H. I Hanscome, a Crookston old-timer, arrived in the city from California on Wednesday.

Sundet Bros. are getting their place on Fletcher street ready for occupancy by July 1st.

Frank Jerrue of Warren, was in the city on Monday to get a shave at Misner's barber shop.

W. E. Walker went down to Fisher on Tuesday to put in some bar fixtures for Rasmus Johnson.

Henry Funk succeeds Nick as landland of the Minnesota house and takes possession right away.

A number of our people seem to have urgent business in Grand Forks to-day. Ringling's circus is there.

Charlie Thomas arrived from St. Paul on Tuesday morning. He has accepted a position in Charlie Misner's barber shop.

Sundet Bros. have been papering and painting Austin Bros. place on Main street preparatory to taking possession on July 1st.

The Fisk Jubilee singers that appeared at the Grand on Wednesday evening seem to have lost none of their vivacity since their last visit to our city.

S. L. Collins had the contract for supplying hay and oats for the circus. Says he never was used better by any circus management he ever dealt with.

Everything indicates good fair crops so far, if the prospects for good prices were as encouraging everything would look all right for farming interests.

W. D. Wilson went down to Duluth, Superior and St. Paul last Friday returning with only one day out of the store. He gives this instance as a record breaker.

Andrew Eiken and family returned ... Duluth on Tuesday morning. ... go into business here. ...s that he notes many im...ovements in our city since he was last here.

Max Ericsson started from New York last week for a three months visit to Germany. Max had been threatening to take this trip so often that his friends began to think he never would go.

The Congregational Ladies' society served lunch during circus day in the Fournet block and ice cream and cake in the evening. Considering the fact that they were not very well advertised they did very well.

Vine's new block is being rapidly finished. It is expected that the corner room will be ready for occupancy by Eli Asselin by Saturday and the other two rooms soon thereafter. It will be a neat building when completed.

W. F. Arnold:—"The crops around Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire are looking exceedingly fine but some of them very weedy. About Warren and in Marshall County they don't seem to have had as much rain as we have had here."

C. H. Saake departed for Sauk Centre on Tuesday evening to show his car-coupler to Senator Henry Kellar and try to get the Senator to take hold of the manufacture. Kellar is a whole team and if he takes hold of it, it is bound to win. Saake no doubt has a valuable thing if it is properly handled and the Senator is just the lad who can do that if he will.

Tollef Farden came in from Tilden on Wednesday morning with his wife and daughter. Says the crops out his way need rain very badly—are beginning to head out while the straw is very short. He tells of an exciting experience his boy had with a cow moose on Tuesday. The boy was out in a piece of woods when he encountered the animal and in someway incurred the wrath of her ladyship whereupon she charged upon the lad who broke into a run and did not stop until he reached home. Later on Tollef went gunning for the moose but found nothing but her tracks—she had va-moose-d as it were.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder.
The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

Mrs. W. B. Dawley has returned from a pleasant visit below.

Dr. Dampier returned last week from a visit to the World's fair.

M. M. Davis was in from Euclid on Tuesday. He is one Euclidite who did not come down on Saturday to show the children to the animals.

Appearances indicate that Doc. Rutledge is taking a furlough somewhere. He was not up to the circus and the Bulletin has not been as bright and chatty for a week or so, as usual.

S. L. Collins and wife went up to Red Lake Falls on Monday. S. L. went up to distribute bills and advertise the Fair. He says he heard lots of compliments passed on the elegant bills that were printed at the JOURNAL office.

O. L. Larson came up from Lake Park on Monday morning and went out to his home, in Fosston, on Tuesday morning. Says that J. A. Bemis, formerly of the Commercial, is running the Lake Park hotel and enjoying excellent health these days.

Rev. R. H. Battey went out to Mentor on Tuesday morning to look after the church removing at that place. He says that rain is needed more up in Marshall county than here—that they did not get so much on Monday as we did. Their crops are looking nicely however.

W. O. Wilson purchased a handsome pair of white rats one day last week and says he intends to start a menagerie at his place. Col. Gorgas' dog, Ben, has a point on the rats, and, if a good opportunity should occur, might defeat the menagerie project.

Albert Kindler a former resident of Crookston, arrived on Tuesday morning from a visit to the World's fair on the way back to his home in Santiago, California. He left this city about ten years ago and says he notes many marked improvements that have taken place in that time. He will remain about two weeks visiting friends and relatives.

Dr. J. C. Curryer was in the city last week arranging for the Farmers' Institute that is to be held in McKinnon's hall, on Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th. He reports the work flourishing encouragingly elsewhere, large crowds in attendance, showing a commendable spirit of enterprise. McKinnon hall should be full on those days.

At the circus on Saturday, Alderman J. E. Morrisey was sitting in close proximity to Alderman W. H. Norrie when the Hippopotamus parade took place. Gazing upon the big mouths of the pair, Alderman Morrisey said, reflectingly watching Norrie: "Get onto those mouths will you! What a pair of aldermen those animals would make, eh, Norrie?"

Chief Gonyea was right on deck and fully prepared for any kind of a deal from the thugs and black-legs that generally come with a circus. He managed to hold things level without much trouble. The Sells Bros. seem to have less of that sort of thing than most of circuses. On the grounds the usual skin games were conspicuous by their absence, and this pleasant feature is owing to the efforts of the management to keep free from such gentry.

As will be seen by their attractive ad., elsewhere in this issue, Thief River Falls will celebrate the ever-glorious in a suitable manner and invites all mankind and the balance of Polk County to come and participate. That the patriotic citizens of that enterprising village will do their best to properly entertain their guests goes without saying and we have assurances from a reliable source that a big time may confidently be expected. There should be an excursion train in which case no doubt many would go.

Boundless, the horse that won the Chicago Derby is owned by John E. Cushing, of Minneapolis, a comparatively poor man, who bought him of W. S. Barnes, in company with a Mr. Orth, giving their note for $4,200. He recently bought out his partner's interest in the colt running in debt for that. He had no money with which to back his colt but the purse of $50,000 that the colt won makes a pretty fortunate investment for Mr. Cushing who could, no doubt take that amount for the colt. The colt won the race in 2:36 breaking all records.

Moorhead is enjoying a genuine sensation. About one o'clock on Monday a man entered the Merchants National bank and pointing a revolver at the cashier's head demanded all the money in sight, after securing it he went outside, jumped into a buggy and drove to the court house where he left the buggy and swam the river into Dakota. It is said that he secured between $2,000 and $3,000. Many people joined in pursuit and it is thought he will be captured. On Wednesday morning it was reported that a man, supposed to be the robber, was captured in a barn in Dakota on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. R. H. Battey went to Stephen on Saturday morning to preach on Sunday.

Miss Lizzie Zarracher returned from St. Hilaire on Friday, having completed her term of school at that point.

Thief River Falls will spare no pains nor expense to provide a good time on July 4th. Everybody cordially invited.

The circus provided a market for some hay and oats on Saturday, and judging by appearances, it was well supplied.

A band of gypsies camped on Jerome's addition last week and were busy plying their trades with those of our citizens who were willing to trade.

Jev. J. G. Smith informs the JOURNAL that the Congregational conference will be held in Crookston next year. Its last session was at Barnesville last week.

Alexandria Post:—Mrs. J. A. Johnson, of Parkers Prairie, who has been visiting at Crookston, returned home on Tuesday. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Vandla Sture, of Crookston.

Gilbert Tvedt, a boy about 16 years old was struck by lightning one day last week, while plowing in his father's field near Ada in Norman county. The team was also prostrated but soon revived and got up on their feet. The boy was the son of A. C. Tvedt.

"Dar's a new coon in town," yea, three of them. Last week Earnest Rolsch bought a coon that had been captured recently and one morning found three bright little fellows added to the lot. They are cute little fellows and attract a great deal of attention.

Joe Winfield has formed a co-partnership with L. I. Benoit and others and will open a shop in Benoit's old store building on Broadway this week. Joe knows how to run a meat market to the Queen's taste and we predict for the boys success from the start.

Mrs. J. B. Copeland is making preparations to move to Seattle to join her husband, Supt. Copeland of that city. No one could go from us who would be missed more than the Copelands, and the JOURNAL but echoes the sentiments of all in its regret for the necessity that removes this family from our midst. Our best wishes go with them.

Note the change in Larson, Carpenter & Co.'s ad. and when you need anything in that line call on the boys. You can always rely upon a man who is not afraid to invest a little money in inviting your patronage. An enterprising business man always likes to make known his business and invite the people to call and see him. A liberal advertiser is liberal to his customers.

Deputy Sheriff Losey went to Red Lake Falls last week after a man in whose possession had been found some timbers that T. A. Harris left at Grand Forks last fall. Tom had stored them there for the winter and when he went for them this spring some of them were missing. He got on track of them and following up the clue, found them at Red Lake Falls. Hence the arrest. The man gave bail for his appearance at district court.

The gun club went up to St. Hilaire on Friday to shoot a match with the St. Hilaire club. The train crew had a million ties (more or less) to distribute, so the train did not reach that village until 2 o'clock and then the wind blew so hard as to materially interfere with the success of the shoot. Tom Morris made the best score, and J. E. Morrisey, F. Markham and A. C. Cowing were next on a tie. The St. Hilaire club did their best to entertain the boys handsomely and our boys are loud in their praise of the good time they had.

Mrs. David Robinson and son arrived last week for a four weeks visit with her mother and other relatives in the city. Mrs. R. reports that "Dave" has a lucrative job on the Milwaukee road and that Herb Mason is also in the employ of the same road holding down a job at remunerative figures—all of which pleases the JOURNAL to learn that our boys are doing so well in a foreign country. They have not forgotten their old love for Crookston and often talk of the time when they will have accumulated a fortune and can return to Crookston to invest it.

On Monday evening, as little Trudie Wyatt was walking along in front of Sampson's meat market, something less than nineteen million dogs were encountered; who seemed to be having a political convention judging by the loud talk they were indulging in. About the time she appeared one dog evidently called another a liar, and a clinch followed and in a minute the air was full of barks, dogs, Trudie, screams and yells of all kinds and previous condition of servitude. Several men rushed in and rescued the scared child from the general wreck and she toddled on home not very much the worse for the encounter. P. S. In the lot there were only two dogs with collars on—having a legal right to fight upon the side-walk.

Be on your Guard.

If some grocers urge another baking powder upon you in place of the "Royal," it is because of the greater profit upon it. This of itself is evidence of the superiority of the "Royal." To give greater profit the other must be a lower cost powder, and to cost less it must be made with cheaper and inferior materials, and thus, though selling for the same, give less value to the consumer.

To insure the finest cake, the most wholesome food, be sure that no substitute for Royal Baking Powder is accepted by you.

Nothing can be substituted for the Royal Baking Powder and give as good results.

S. C. Johnson went down to Fargo Monday night.

Manager Slocum, of the Crookston Grocery company, supplied the circus with groceries—about $75 worth.

Thief River Falls will celebrate the Fourth of July in the proper manner. Their "ad" which explains more fully appears in another column.

J. O. Baldwin, of the firm of Larsen, Carpenter & Co., expects to move his family this week to Emarado, N. D., where Mr. Baldwin has interests that require about all his attention.

Charley Vine supplied the circus with meat for Saturday and Sunday. For dinner Saturday they used 350 pounds of steak, 200 pounds corned beef, 150 pounds of veal and 200 pounds of meat for the animals.

Hank Castle and Bill Welsh returned on Tuesday morning from the vicinity of Leech Lake where they have been grading on the Park Rapids branch of the Great Northern road.

The C. O. D. is blooming out with improvements in great shape these days—putting in a new floor, new front, with much larger sized window panes and brushing up in great style. Sam says that while business is rather light during the heated term is a good time to brace up for the fall trade.

Adolph Rauch departed on Sunday evening for a much deserved outing of a few weeks. He joins his wife at the old home, Wabasha, where they will visit a week or so then go to Chicago to do the great World's Fair when they will return to Alma, Wis., to visit awile then back home arriving about August 15th. Meanwhile Fred, assisted by Henry Funk, Jr., will hold the store down in great shape and wait upon all comers with grace and dignity. They expect to take in big money while the old man is away and show him how to keep hotel.

In Thief River Falls Press we learn that Sam Ellis, a locater on the Red Lake Reservation, living alone with his mother, left the house last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to visit a neighbor. When he returned about 5 he found his claim shanty burned and his mother missing. He instituted a search and in a short time he found her charred remains about twenty rods from the house. It appears that she had carried a great many things from the house, had become overcome by the heat and fainted, and while unconscious the flames had spread and consumed her and the goods that had been carried out. Her home is at Stevens Point, Wis., where the remains were taken for burial.

On Sunday afternoon as August Tunberg and Tollef Mickleby were enroute to Peter Cornelius residence a few miles up the river, driving a broncho hitched to a road cart the broncho shied very suddenly upsetting the cart in the ditch and started to run. In some way Tollef was caught in a wheel and dragged several rods before August could stop the beast and when he had succeeded in doing so both got into the cart and resumed their journey. Arriving at Pete's an examination of Tollef's wounds was made and it was found that one ear was nearly torn off and he was put into a buggy and brought to town to Dr. Dunlop who found it necessary to remove the ear entirely. Mr. Mickleby was made as comfortable as possible but has not been able to be about any since the accident.

Sheriff Grundysen has built a barn in the rear of Attorney Watts' barn up near the new jail.

Everybody should remember the Polk County Fair that begins July 26th and make preparations to go.

Alva Newland and his sister, Miss Jennie, left on Sabbath evening for a visit to the old home at Kilbourn, Wis., and may possibly visit Chicago ere their return.

Friday was another one of those windy days you read about—the wind blowing from the south all day. But it was not one of those hot winds that scorch grain.

A party of land-hunters camped on Jerome's Addition, near the old shooting-grounds for a few days last week to rest and recruit up a bit. They have an eye on the Red Lake Reservation lands.

Gordon McGrew came in from his claim last week. Says that the mosquitos are filing contests against every settler and will be successful in many cases as the settlers are leaving— until after mosquito time.

A. A. Olds returned last week from a fortnight's visit at Fertile where he had several jobs of papering. He did considerable work for Dr. Nelson in that line and the doctor was greatly pleased thereby.

Wednesday's rain prevented the kid base-ball club match with the Red Lake Falls club which was to have occurred on Thursday—but somehow, in view of the fact that the crops needed the rain more than they needed the game we can find it in our heart to forgive the rain this time.

L. K. Aaker and family departed Thursday noon, on Wednesday's belated train for their home in Alexandria. Mr. A. has been a valued citizen of Crookston for a number of years where he has made many friends who will regret this move and who will unite with the JOURNAL in best wishes for his future welfare.

The first Great Northern train from the coast was ditched near Rugby Junction N. D., by spreading rails on Wednesday, June 21st. Jas. Kincaid, one of the train-men was hurt somewhat but the passengers escaped with light bruises. The train reached this city about 12 o'clock on Thursday noon. The following through train was delayed about three hours. With the Davis tie this accident would have been impossible.

On Wednesday, June 21st, at the residence of the bride's parents, Col. and Mrs. W. H. Topping, of Grand Forks, Miss. Alice Topping was married to Robert F. Slaughter, a prominent young business man of that city. The happy couple left that evening for Detroit Lake where they intend to pass a portion of the honeymoon. Miss Topping was a former resident of this city where she has many warm friends. The JOURNAL adds its blessing and best wishes.

Ed. Jorgenson came up from the Mesaba Range, where he was holding down a job as engineer in Virginia City until the fire which left only fifteen houses in the city. He says it was a fearful fire and very many poor laborers were rendered homeless and left entirely destitute. Other villages were also swept out of existence. The fires were caused by forest fires. The work of re-building will soon be commenced and the coming winter will see these towns nearly as prosperous as before the fire.

Historical Sc

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1893. NO. 12

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor……………………Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor…………David M. Clough.
Secretary of State……………F. P. Brown.
Attorney General………………H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.…Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist………………E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.…John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court…..Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District ……………Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court……………………Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor……………………C. U. Webster
Treasurer…………………J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds…………John Amuddson
Attorney……………………A. R. Holston
Sheriff………………………Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate……………C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools……………A. A. Lommen
Surveyor……………………O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r…………………W. H. Averill
Coroner……………………Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District…………… … John E. Oppegaard
Second District……………Anton Linden
Third District………………M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District……………C. P. Demers
Fifth District………………A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E O Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildsig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden.	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Free Homesteads.

Thousands of people are rushing into the Beautiful Saskatchewan Valley and taking up homesteads there. From Dakota, Montana Michigan, and in fact from nearly every state in the union farmers are leaving in considerable numbers for the Canadian Northwest where they can find splendid land with plenty of wood for fuel and building purposes, and also good water. Only $10.00 is charged for filing and this sum comprises all a settler has to pay, nothing being charged for proving up. The farmers in the Edmondton and Prince Albert districts have been getting 65 cents per bushel for wheat all winter. Cattle sell much higher than they do here in Minnesota, and in almost every particular the farmer is better off there than he is here.

There are good railway facilities, oceans of hay and the climate is good. For particulars apply to

MUNSON & MCCREA,
Crookston, Minn.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of the Adjourned Meeting Held Friday June 30th.

The Principal Business Before the Council was the Approving of Liquor Bonds.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in the city hall on Friday evening, June 30th, 1893.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll call.

Aldermen present: Anderson, Jennings, Childs, Jerome, Morrisey, Norrie, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen absent: Marlette, Walker.

The following liquor applications were read to the council from Fred Ryer, Young & Huot, M. J. Halla, Cronin & Stoeser.

The following liquor bonds were read and approved by the council:

Sundet Bros., with K. K. Austin and John Steenerson as sureties.

Medard Mercil with Oliver Mercil and Israel Desmarais as sureties.

Fred Ryer with Alex McKinnon and W. E. Walker as sureties.

Stuhl & Waterstadt with Adolph Rauch and Peter Becker as sureties.

J. J. Molstad with E. M. Walsh and S. R. Sylvester as sureties.

A. Brosseau with F. Fournet and C. H. Saake as sureties.

W. O. Wilson with C. M. Lindem and John R. McKinnon as sureties.

N. Rapan with L. Fontaine and Wm. Anglim as sureties.

Hiren & Johnson with T. H. Bjoin and Donald McKinnon as sureties.

Earnest Rolsch with Herman Rasmussen and Pete Noesen as sureties.

Cronin & Stoeser with Henry Steege and R. J. Montague.

Godnes Huot with with F. X. Farley and Geo. Young.

M. J. Halla with Geo. O. Bubb and I. N. Simmons.

Hock & Montague with Wm. Himmelsbach and E. M. Walsh.

Henry Burkhardt with August Wentzel and Mark Raunbeubler.

A. S. Gates with H. F. Brown and F. A. Silver.

Eli Asselin with Arthur Dufresne and Edward Barrette.

A communication was received and read from T. H. Bang relating to the bid for constructing sewers on Second and Ash streets he reducing his former bid 50 cents per foot.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey seconded by Alderman Norrie that the revised bid of T. H. Bang be accepted. and that he be required to furnish bonds in the sum of $500.00 for the faithful performance of the work and to save the city harmless while constructing said sewer, also that the contract be completed by Sept. 1st, 1893.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Norrie, Morrisey, Simmons, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None. Resolution declared carried.

The city attorney was instructed to draw up a contract in accordance with the above resolution.

The ordinance relating to the Gas Co., was brought up but no action taken.

The bond of T. H. Bang for the construction of the broadway sewer with Hugh Thompson and Wm. Anglim as sureties was presented and on motion accepted and approved.

Moved by Alderman Anderson, seconded by Alderman Morrisey that a committee of three be appointed to draw up an ordinance relating to the hanging of signs over sidewalks. Carried. Chairman appointed as that committee, Aldermen Anderson, Morrisey, Norrie.

The chairman appointed as the standing sewer committee, the Mayor, Aldermen Morrisey, Cromb, Watts and city engineer.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Assignee's Sale.

There will be offered for sale at public auction, on the farm of Martin Finseth in town of Roome, on Saturday, July 15th, at 1:30 p. m., ten head of young horses and mares, several cows, work harness, etc. Terms, cash or good secured notes, due Nov. 15th, 1893.

[12] J. W. WHEELER, Assignee.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Almost everybody is out at Maple Lake these hot days.

The gun club talks of renting a piece of land and fitting up a place of their own for practice.

W. O. Wilson says he intends to purchase some canary birds and snaix to add to his menagarie.

The Sundet Bros., took possession of their new place on Main street on the 1st—Austin Bros., old stand.

E. M. Walsh reports that he has been enjoying a little real estate boom in Davis addition lots this summer. He is selling 'em right along just the same.

It is a matter of remark by all strangers that the streets, side and crosswalks in Crookston are kept in better repair and condition than in any other city of its size in the northwest.

The Fertile boys were disappointed in not having the opportunity to "mop the earth" with our club on Thursday. Our boys were just as confident that they could not do it but neither had a chance to demonstrate their ability on that day.

Hicks' predictions for the balance of July would indicate dry weather akin to a drouth, but our best posted farmers say that the grain could now go ahead and mature all right if we did not have another drop of rain before harvest.

All members and friends of the First M. E. church are requested to meet at the church Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Important business is on hand. Ice cream and other refreshments will be served in the Lecture Room, to which the public generally is invited.

The meeting of the Polk County alliance at the court house on Friday was very well attended. Hearing that Judge Standish was in the city a request was sent him to deliver a speech on the silver question which request he responded to with alacrity, giving a long talk upon the topic.

Tollef Farden, while in the city last week said that he should attend the coming Polk County Fair and bring along a fine Holstein for exhibition. He said his neighbors were all becoming interested and he thought quite a delegation would represent the town of Tilden.

During the heavy rain-storm of last Thursday afternoon Charlie Misner, could scarcely restrain his enthusiasm, and was frequently heard to remark: "This rain is a dandy; it will bring the logs down in great shape. Hicks is a lu lu! He predicted heavy rains for the last two days of June, and sure enough we've had 'em."

"That's the handsomest little driving horse in this city," said a gentlemen on Thursday as Hugh Thompson was seen driving his little mare, Nellie, along Robert street, "and, what's more," continued he, "she did not cost him a fortune to acquire either." By the way that reminds the JOURNAL that Crookston can turn out as goodly a number of elegant driving horses as any city of her size in the northwest.

We don't understand it. For a man who pops as often as H. J. Peterson does we should naturally expect a marriage ceremony to follow. However Henry seems perfectly content with the pop business and his factory seems to turning out more goods than any concern of the kind, judging by his large shipments. That is not to be wondered at after one has sampled the quality of his pop—the best there is made.

Frank Creamer hands us the following clipping taken from the Cresco, (Iowa) Plaindealer, which shows that the condition of things on the other side of the big pond is far worse than any place in America. Joseph Schaefer, the man referred to is a reputable farmer living near Cresco, who has been traveling extensively in the old country and what he says is reliable. The Plaindealer says:

"A postal card from Joseph Schaefer announces his intended departure from Bremen for New York, July 1st, on the steamer Saale. Speaking of the crops he says: The outlook for farmers is not flattering. There are places in Germany, France and Austria where no rain has fallen for four months. Hay is worth $2.50 per 100 lbs. The prices of cattle has fallen ½. $12 will buy cows here that would bring with us $150. Winter grain for the chance it has had is fair, say half a crop. Harvest will be ready in about a week. There are so many taxes for the people here to pay I don't see how they live."

Rev. E. P. Savage was in the city this week.

Hugh Thompson went to Fisher to celebrate the 4th.

Jack Miller, of Grand Forks, spent the Sabbath in Crookston.

Mrs. S. L. Collins and two daughters visited her father this week.

Ole Rude says grain has grown three or four inches since the rains of last week.

E. M. Stanton went up to Warren on the 4th and delivered one of his excellent orations.

Miss Nellie Mullen left last week for a visit with friends below. Will do the great World's fair ere she returns.

The potato crop is reported in excellent condition. Some bugs reported in some localities, in others none.

Dept. Sheriff M. Losey expects to start for Chicago next Saturday for a two weeks visit at the World's fair.

George Carpenter started for Lake City on Thursday evening with his bicycle—on the train. We thought George would weaken.

Geo. Copeland was up from St. Paul last Sunday to visit the family of his brother ere they leave for their new home in Seattle.

Watermellons appeared in our market on Saturday last. We have not noticed that the doctors were unusually busy since.

Wm. Hooper commences cutting timothy grass this week. This is the first haying the JOURNAL has heard of in Polk county.

Mrs. Van Arnum left for Minneapolis on Sunday evening for a visit with her son. She intends to visit the World's fair ere her return.

The stores were all closed and a Sunday quiet prevailed in our streets on the 4th. In the evening a grand ball was given in McKinnon's hall which was enjoyed by a great many people.

Rudy Burkhardt has just put in a new counter at the Cleveland house and fixed up a bit. Says he had a big run on circus day and that business has been fairly good while not too excessive.

The personal property in the town of Fairfax in '92 sized up something over $19,000. This year it is about $3,000 less being only $16,000, owing probably to the natural wear and tear on machinery.

The JOURNAL learns that a bit of a cyclone struck the buildings of Jake Widenhoeffer, in Nesbit township, on Friday of last week, wrecking a barn and breaking the leg of a valuable horse.

Last Saturday Wisconsin strawberries were selling freely at only 10 cents a box. This is cheaper than you can go out and steal what few wild ones some farmer has got—as some otherwise respectable people have a habit of doing.

Chas. Teal drove one of the finest looking teams down from Euclid on Monday that the JOURNAL man has often seen a farmer drive. He says the crops are not looking as well up that way as they did two or three weeks ago.

Charlie Baumgartel is building a fine farm house for Peter Noesen, in the town of Russia, 32x52 with an ell. Charlie says it will be one of the best farm houses in Polk county. This does not bear out the populist theory that farmers are all paupers.

Remember the Polk county fair that occurs soon and be sure and prepare something for exhibition at that time. Such events can be made of practical benefit only in so far as they are used. If everybody takes hold and helps, success is sure.

On Monday T. G. Thompson received from Ericsson & Co., of St. Paul an elegant oil painting, 6x8 feet and has placed it on exhibition in his place for a few days.

The Great Northern railroad company is putting gravel upon their right of way at the intersection of Second and Robert streets.

Somebody has put up a whirligig on Main street, opposite Brown's livery stables. Last year an institution of that kind did quite a flourishing business for a time.

Landlord Stoeser of the Commercial, was in quite a sweat for awhile one day last week. Chief clerk Newland had gone to Wisconsin for a visit and Stoeser had lost the combination to the safe and could not reach Alvah by wire.

Conductor Tom Stahl was up from Barnesville on Saturday enjoying the day with the boys and receiving congratulations on that little 8½ pound conductor that arrived at his home on Tuesday, June 27th. Tom is one of the oldest and best conductors on the line. Is now running between Barnesvill and Nechie.

Hicks predicted that June would go out with a cold wave—accordingly that's just what she did, Friday night being cold enough to suit the most exacting requirements.

Rev. O. H. Elmer preached his farewell discourse at the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening to a full house. He expects to leave for his new field at Hamline some day next week.

That the farmers are not "busted" is evidenced by the fact that many of them are building good substantial houses this summer. The Stewart Lumber company has just furnished house material for the following farmers: W. A. Marin, Sam Marin, Chas. Regimbal. Hans Johnson, A. J. Adams, Ole Krogan and Tom Lee.

Henry Redman was down from Hill River on Monday. Says crops are looking nicely but somewhat weedy. Rodman says one great nuisance farmers up there have to contend with is wild artichokes. He says he has fought them in vain for several years and would like to have some farmer who has ever conquered the pests (if there is such a man living) write up his experience for publication in the JOURNAL, Our columns are open for this or any subject affecting the interests of the farmers.

On Saturday last six little Indian boys arrived via the Northern Pacific from St. Joseph academy, near St. Cloud, en route for their home on the reservation. They intended to take the Fosston train, but the N. P. train was late so they missed it and were indeed a desolate lot of boys—without money or friends, when John McKinnon found them in the Great Northern depot. Seeing them crying, he inquired the cause of their troubles and bade them cheer up as they would be all right. He took them over to the Minnesota hotel, ordered breakfast for them, then wired an address at Fosston that one of them gave him, from whence he received instructions to send the boys to Mentor by team, where they would be met by the father of one of them with a rig to take them home. So he procured a rig and soon the little fellows were on the way home as happy as could be. If they had not happened to have met a good Samaritan they would have been in a sad plight indeed, as each had only money enough to pay his fare to Fosston.

Drowned.

Burton Ide, 3 years and 2 months old, the oldest son of J. J. Ide, of the town of Roome, this county, was accidentally drowned last Monday by falling into a tank used for watering stock. The little fellow had just taken breakfast and gone outside with a glass in his hand, and drawing his wagon. On searching for the child shortly afterwards, his mother found him in the tank—drowned. It is supposed he had climbed on the little wagon and was reaching in the tank for a glass of water, and lost his balance. He was a particularly bright, lively youngster, and his death is keenly felt by the family. His funeral occurred Tuesday.

Grand Concert.

The celebrated Eagle Lake Sextet will give a concert at McKinnon hall Friday July 7, at 8 p. m. The pearls from the far north and the gems from our own country will be rendered in a magnificent style. Admission 25 cents.

Bids for City Printing.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston.

The City Council of the City of Crookston will receive sealed proposals to do the printing and publishing of all ordinances, resolutions, proceedings and other matter required to be published by the city council of the City of Crookston for the ensuing year, all matter to be measured on a basis of solid nonpariel. Said bids to be opened at a regular meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening July 11th, 1893. Bids to be accompanied by bonds in the sum of $500. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

[9-12] E. C. CARRUTH,
[SEAL] City Clerk.

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county. Sano, sure cure for piles, I. O. O. F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [39-tf]

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

How the 117th Anniversary of American Independence was Spent by Our Citizens.

Quite a Delegation go out to Fosston to hear Governor Nelson, who was the Orator.

Others Went to the Different Villages and Resorts Around the County.

As Crookston did not celebrate the 4th of July this year, there was quite an exodus from the city to points around the county where celebrations were held. Some formed picnic parties and enjoyed a pleasant outing, while others staid at home and rested.

Fisher, Fertile, Thief River Falls, Maple Lake, McIntosh and Fosston all had big blow outs; but the latter place had the largest crowd, as Governor Nelson had been secured as orator of the day. As the governor had about 50 invitations to different places, and had declined them all except Fosston, the citizens of that enterprising burg naturally felt flattered by being thus honored. They had decorated the village in good shape to receive the governor and a big crowd was on hand to hear him.

GOV. NELSON'S SPEECH

was a stirring, patriotic, 4th of July oration; a comprehensive historical, sensible address, full of good points which would furnish food for reflection. He said that his principal object in going to Fosston was to visit a portion of country which he had always felt a considerable interest in but had never visited. He told how he got the Thirteen Towns opened to settlement while he was in congress and got the first post office established at Fosston and spoke of the settlement of the district 10 years ago and its progress since. With this explanation of his interest in the Thirteen Towns, he began his oration by giving a brief sketch of the events which led up to the revolution, and the formation of a republican government—a government whose stabilty had been demonstrated by the war of the rebellion of the people of the old countries with the condition and advantages of the people of this. Some of the benefits of the civil war were touched upon—such as paper currency, the homestead law, etc., and he wound up his speech by an appeal to all—particularly to the foreign-born citizens—to be patriotic to the land of their adoption—to the stars and stripes. He likened the immigrant to a good daughter, who loved her mother, but when she left her mother for a husband, her strongest love and first duty were to her husband; and so when the immigrant leaves the mother country and makes a home in America, his first duty should be for the land of his adoption. The JOURNAL regrets that it cannot reproduce the governor's speech as it would make interesting reading and be good matter to preserve.

NOTES FROM FOSSTON.

There were several good horse races—both running and trotting—and a bicycle race, which was won by W. H. Olds of Crookston, with Prof. McCrillis of Fosston.

J. P. Lachapelle's trotter did a ½ mile in 1:26 on a heavy track.

Frank Gravel acted as starter in the races, and it is needless to say that the races were properly started and everything done on the square.

Mayor Stephens accompanied the governor to Fosston, and helped the Fosstonites entertain him.

Col. Bennett is quite an all-round sport and on a day of this kind is a whole team in himself. He can make a speech, act as drum major, or give judgment on a horse race, and when stripped to the belt and mounted on his wheel in the bicycle race he was the admiration of all. Everything was free, and the visitors virtually owned the village for the day. The band—which is composed mostly of business men—is kept right up to its excellent standard and contributed much to the day's enjoyment.

Scores of Indians—with their squaws and papooses—were in from White Earth.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $30.25, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, June 28.

The paid admissions at the world's fair Tuesday were 111,973.

The Sagamore hotel at Lake George, N. Y., has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $200,000.

General Nelson A. Miles has been elected president of the society of the Army of the Potomac.

A. E. Whiting, Knights of Pythias grand chancellor for South Dakota, is dangerously ill at Henry, S. D.

All the Berlin newspapers except The Volkszeitung admit that the government is sure to have a majority for the army bill.

Secretary Lamont has ordered the establishment of an army medical school in Washington for the instruction of candidates for admission to the medical corps of the army.

Since June 6 the treasury department has gained $6,106,544 in gold, the net gold now being $95,695,007. The lowest point reached was on June 6, when the gold had decreased to $89,589,363.

Thursday, June 29.

The grand jury investigation into the Ford theatre disaster is nearing an end.

An appeal has been made for food and clothing for the striking Kansas miners.

A five years drouth in San Luis Potosi, Mexico, was broken Wednesday by a tremendous storm.

The Paraguay exhibit at the world's fair is closed on account of the arrest of the commissioner from that country.

The Chicago Evening Post claims Chicago is now the metropolis of America, having a population of over 2,000,000. Directory figures are the basis of the claim.

Wolves are exceptionally numerous around Clear Lake, Wis.; this year. Many of the farmers have had their flocks of sheep decimated within the past few weeks.

Friday, June 30.

The volcano Cacbunco, in the south of Chili, is in eruption and creating alarm.

July wheat went down to 62 3-8 cents at Chicago Thursday, the lowest ever known there.

J. F. Tillman of Tennessee is to succeed General Rosecrans as register of the treasury.

A dispatch from Mecca states that 650 deaths from cholera occurred in that city Wednesday.

President Diaz is making preparations to visit Europe this summer, passing through the United States.

All the silver mines and smelters in Colorado are to close because of the low price of silver. Several Montana mines will do likewise.

A handsome gold medal was presented to the daughter of the Duke of Veragua by children representing the Leo Columbian club of Philadelphia.

Otto H. Boyesen of North Dakota and Frederick W. Kickbusch of Wisconsin are appointed consuls, respectively, at Christiana and Stettin.

Saturday, July 1.

London is assuming gala attire in honor of the coming royal wedding. Many titled guests have already arrived.

Stockholders of New York Biscuit and Milwaukee and Chicago breweries have been notified of the passing of the dividend.

The Denver, Salt Lake and San Francisco Railway company has been incorporated at Denver with a capital stock of $10,000,000.

The monthly statement of the public debt shows an increase of cash in the treasury of $897,136, and a decrease in the aggregate debt of $10,396,219.

Helen Nichols, owned and ridden by J. J. McCafferty, won the Queen Isabella stakes at Washington Park, Chicago. The gross value of the stake was $21,640.

The Realization stakes at Sheepshead bay, worth $30,000, was won by the Sunbeam colt, with St. Leonards second. Boundless, the American Derby winner, was unplaced.

Monday, July 3.

The Sunday attendance at the world's fair was less than 50,000.

The New York monument at Gettysburg was dedicated Sunday.

Congressman Breckenridge denies that he is to marry Miss Madeline Pollard.

Census Superintendent Porter has resigned. He will again engage in the newspaper business in New York.

Herr Krupp and a party of 20 German manufacturers will visit the United States some time this month.

Major O. S. Sanford, assistant doorkeeper of the senate, died at Garfield hospital, Washington. During the war he served in the Connecticut volunteers.

Tuesday, July 4.

It has just been discovered that Mayor Wanser of Jersey City was secretly married a year ago.

The child of Joseph and Mary Forest died in court in New York while its parents were on trial for abandoning it.

Private Bookstaver of the Forty-seventh New York militia, was bayoneted by a sentry whom he tried to pass at the state camp at Peekskill.

The Corinthian cricketers of Winnipeg have been compelled to defer their contemplated visit to America this year, but may come out next season.

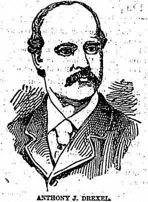
Judge Hudspeth of Jersey City dismissed and reprimanded three jurors for communicating with outside persons and receiving sandwiches while considering a verdict.

The award for the best design for the diplomas to be given to the successful exhibitors to the world's fair was made by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Curtis to Mr. Will H. Low of New York.

DREXEL DEAD.

The Philadelphia Banker Dies Suddenly at Carlsbad.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—A private telegram received at Drexel's banking house states that Mr. A. J. Drexel died at Carlsbad, Germany. Mr. Drexel left for Europe a few weeks ago in fairly good health. The message stated that he had had a slight attack of pleurisy, but recovered and was then seized with apoplexy, from which he died. A monument to the memory of the great financier is the Drexel Institute of Art in this city which he founded at a cost of $150,000. He and George W. Childs founded the Childs-Drexel home for union printers at Colorado Springs, Colo.



ANTHONY J. DREXEL.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

First International Convention in Session at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, June 30.—The first international convention of the Epworth League began during the day. It was not a business session but one of reception. The delegates began to assemble at Music Hall at 1 p. m., and soon the large structure was completely filled. The convention was called to order by Mr Day of this city. After a recess it was announced that Governor McKinley was present, having reached the hall with the committee on reception, and that he would address the members of the league. Upon his arrival in the hall he was loudly cheered and was frequently interrupted by applause. At the conclusion of his address Mayor Blee delivered the address of welcome in behalf of the city, and extended to the delegates the hospitality of Cleveland. The addresses of the mayor and Governor were responded to by Bishop A. W. Wilson of the Methodist Church South, Rev. Withrow, Canadian secretary of the league, and Bishop James N. Fitzgerald.

EVADING THE LAW.

More Stringent Regulations Necessary in Regard to Immigration.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Several weeks ago the immigration bureau issued orders prohibiting the passage of immigrants into the United States over the Canadian railways except during the daytime. This was expected to be all that was necessary to prevent any violation of the immigration laws. But recent developments have shown gross abuses with this restriction, and Superintendent Stump is drawing up a set of rules which are calculated to prevent their recurrence. The scheme as outlined is still very crude, but it includes a decided increase in the number of inspectors and other measures to prevent any but desirable immigrants from coming into the country.

CASE OF JEALOUSY.

An Iowa Man of 63 Kills His Wife and Himself.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., July 4.—Alexander Corry, a miner at the town of Carbondale, shot his wife and then with the same weapon killed himself. They were an aged couple, being 63 and 68 respectively. Corry left a letter addressed to the public in which he claimed his wife was unfaithful. The letter was dated a week before, showing he had the deed in contemplation for some time. Corry was an intelligent man and a Mason of high degree.

GREECE A REPUBLIC.

The King Abdicates and Monarchy Is Ended.

ATHENS, July 4.—The king has abdicated the throne of Greece and the country is declared a republic. The action has created the most intense excitement, but it is not believed any trouble will ensue.

Bound For the Arctic.

NEW YORK, July .—The Falcon, the ship of Lieutenant Peary, the Arctic explorer, steamed from her wharf in Brooklyn at 6 p. m. The first calling point will be Boston and after two days in that port the Falcon will proceed to Portland, Me.

Breckenridge Denies.

NEW YORK, July 4.—A special to The Sun from Louisville, Ky., says: Congressman Breckenridge, who is here on a visit, denies implicitly the story that he is to marry Miss Madeline Pollard.

Drexel's Remains.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.—Drexel & Co. have been notified that J. H. Harjes. Sr., of Drexel, Harjes & Co., and his son will leave Carlsbad on Wednesday with the body of Anthony J. Drexel.

Yale Won the Race.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 1.—The annual Yale-Harvard boat race was started on the Thames at 1 o'clock. Yale won by 5 lengths. Harvard was the favorite in the betting.

Trust Company Suspends.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 29.—The St. Paul and Minneapolis Trust company, of which ex-Governor McGill is president, has been forced to suspend temporarily. Ex-Governor McGill says the company is not insolvent, but lacks ready money.

AN EXTRA SESSION.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND ISSUES A PROCLAMATION

Convening Congress on Aug. 7, to Consider the Repeal of the Sherman Law—The Fight For Repeal Likely to Be a Lively One In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—An extra session of congress has been called to meet Aug. 7. The decision was reached at a meeting of the cabinet held during the day at which the subject was discussed at length. Immediately after the meeting adjourned the president left for Buzzard's Bay to be absent probably three or four weeks.

The Proclamation.

At 6 p. m. the following proclamation was issued:

Whereas, The distrust and apprehension concerning the financial situation which pervades all business circles have already caused great loss and damage to our people and threaten to cripple our merchants, stop the wheels of manufacture, bring distress and privation to our farmers and withhold from our workingmen the wages of labor, and

Whereas, The present perilous condition is largely the result of a financial policy which the executive branch of the government finds embodied in unwise laws which must be executed until repealed by congress; now therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, in performance of a constitutional duty do by this proclamation declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the convening of both houses of the congress of the United States at the capitol in the city of Washington, on the 7th day of August next at 12 o'clock noon to the end that the people may be relieved through legislation from present and impending danger and distress.

All those entitled to act as members of the Fifty-third congress are required to take notice of this proclamation and attend at the time and place above stated.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

LONG FIGHT PROBABLE.

No Indication That the Sherman Law Will Be Promptly Repealed.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The first move when the extra session meets is said to be a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of the treasury to suspend the purchase of silver for thirty or sixty days and then let the fight come on the main question of the repeal. It is said the silver men will agree to this in order to gain time for organization.

The intention to form a giant silver lobby, liberally supplied with money, to come to Washington to defeat financial legislation is something which may well be feared. When the Sherman law was passed there was a silver lobby present that was dangerous, and even went so far as to mix prominent men in congress in its mesh, necessitating congressional investigation, which was thought then to be a whitewashing affair. A silver lobby and large profits in a silver pool to offer may make trouble. Every representative from a district infected with free silver fanaticism will be threatened that thousands of dollars will be spent to defeat his nomination and election, while if his vote is cast with the silver men, money for his return will be promised. Many members of congress will fear to vote their honest convictions with this silver vulture watching and ready to destroy them.

With Abundant Funds

There are a great many rumors, probably put in motion by the silver advocates here, that any financial legislation in the coming session will be resisted in the senate by the same methods which defeated the election bill and kept back the anti-option bill until it was sure of defeat in the house for want of time.

A Determined Minority

can do much in the senate. Senators Teller and Stewart declared during the last congress that a repeal of the Sherman law could not pass the senate as long as men could talk. The rules of the senate are loose, and there has long been felt a necessity for changing them so a vote may be had after a reasonable time. If long winded speeches and other modes of filibustering are attempted the majority will be compelled to make it a matter of physical endurance. The most universal demand for relief may make the minority so small the majority can pass the repeal without resort to extraordinary methods.

JUST A BLUFF.

Colorado Mines Will Only Close Down Temporarily.

CHEYENNE, Wy., July 3.—Mayor Charles H. Burritt of Buffalo, Wy., spent several days in Denver, endeavoring to ascertain just what the feeling of the Colorado mine owners is in regard to the outlook for silver. In an interview Mr. Burritt said: "Although the owners of the smelters and the mining men have given notice that mines in Colorado will be closed down and thousands of men thrown out of employment on account of the low price of silver, I do not believe it will be done. The silver producers are simply endeavoring to Bluff the East.

"While in Colorado I made a special effort to get the opinions of as many mining men as possible, and with one accord they told me that they would continue to operate their mines, even if the price of silver went as low as 50 cents an ounce. Should the mines be closed down it would only be temporary and be done for the purpose of threatening the bi-metalists in the east in the interests of free coinage.

National Bank Circulation.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A statement prepared by the comptroller of the currency shows that the amount of national bank notes outstanding is $178,614,435, an increase during the fiscal year ending June 30 of $6,038,898.

Silver Rises Slightly.

LONDON, July 3.—There has been an advance of 3 pence in the price of silver here. The quotation for bar silver is now 83 1-2 pence per ounce.

Sick Headache
21 Years of Suffering Ended by One Bottle of HOOD'S.

Mrs. Ed. Swan
Duncanville, Ill.

"Few people have suffered as much as I have with sick headache. I have had it by spells for 21 years, sometimes as often as

Three Times a Week.

I would get up with it, suffer all day, go to bed with it and have it all night. I tried everything that was recommended, but never was cured until about a year ago, when

My Mother-in-Law

persuaded me to try one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am glad to say that it cured me, and I have not had sick headache since I took the first bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has done me a great deal of good in other ways, and has increased my weight from 122 to 147 pounds. I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla enough." MRS. ED. SWAN, Duncanville, Ill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. per box.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.

HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana — FARM LANDS

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Fortbern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. — LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. — Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways. New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetes Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raizers' paradise. — Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE
North American Review
YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor, Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc.

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year,
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!
Of the following line of First-Class Goods which we handle, and when you are ready to buy call and get our prices.
CHEAP GOODS ARE DEAR AT ANY PRICE.

WE SELL
DEERING BINDERS, AND MOWERS,
The best on earth for money, chalk or marbles.
HOLLINGSWORTH AND DEERE RAKES,
8, 10 and 12 feet.
JOHN DEERE PLOWS.
WESTERN ROAD MACHINES,
ADVANCE THRESHERS AND ENGINES.

A fine line of Buggies, Carts and Harness of all styles. Rushford Wagons, good timber and bone dry—too well known to need more than mentioning. We also sell a nice line of bicycles, the Victor being our leader. It needs to be seen to be fully appreciated. In these, as well as everything else, merit wins. It pays to buy good articles. We sell as cheap as the quality of our goods will admit, and guarantee everybody the worth of their money.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

FRESH VEGETABLES
RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice lot of
CANNED GOODS
At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,
Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.
ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.

HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

The Price
—OF—
Groceries
Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as
TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,
I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.,
Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜
Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

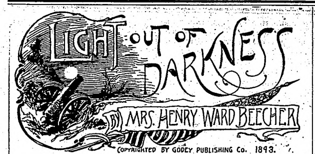
THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.



LIGHT OUT OF DARKNESS

BY MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER

COPYRIGHTED BY GODEY PUBLISHING Co. 1893.

CHAPTER I.

Near one of our largest cities, easy of access to the business thoroughfares, a stately mansion has stood for many years, overlooking a scene of unusual beauty. Immense resources must have been at the owner's command to enable him thus to realize the conceptions of a faultless taste. Residences are not rare that betoken abundant wealth, but often one can easily detect discrepancies that are unmistakable evidence of unrefined taste and a love of splendor that has outrun the means of uniform gratification. An imposing or showy front is too often united with cramped or shabby outbuildings, and unsightly arrangements in the rear are veiled by some fanciful device too feeble to conceal the secret.

Without the fabled ring of invisibility either a very little imagination would lend to a correct idea of the interior of such pretentious dwellings. Throw back the heavy curtains, seldom allowed to admit free light and air, and the parlors will be found filled, not furnished, with objects of great value and beauty, it may be, but in nowise harmonious with the appropriate furniture or colors of the apartments where they are found. Bargains from some insolvent debtor's forced sale, perhaps, and bought as being "all we can hope to obtain, and they will answer to fill up just here." The owner's eye has never been trained to shrink painfully from such unfortunate combinations.

Pass from the parlors to the dining room. If here the various articles were only suited and arranged with pure taste or for home comfort and enjoyment, how attractive we should find it! How dazzling the exhibition of cut glass and silver, how beautiful the rich snowy damask—if displayed for guests of distinction or fashion! If not, drop these curtains, close the door and pass far back to a wing of the house, the common dining and sitting room—untidily kept and penuriously furnished. The table is spread for only the family. Is that bill of fare inviting? Will anticipations of it quicken a weary husband's homeward steps or call soft and loving smiles to children released from the close air of the schoolroom? Are these carelessly dressed young ladies, idly lounging on the dilapidated sofa, impatiently awaiting the tardy meal, the same, so elaborately attired and brilliant with jewelry, for whom you half lost your heart last evening at the grand ball?

But this is hardly kind. If any prefer fashion and show to true taste and solid home comforts, why criticise their choice, unless by returning to the purer atmosphere which we left for this digression the contrast may "show unto you a more excellent way."

It requires a more experienced observer than the writer to give any just idea of the mansion to which your attention is recalled. You see true grandeur combined with exquisite neatness and gracefulness—the very ideal of home—no touch of coldness or formality, and from the highest turret to the lowest office about the extensive grounds this bewitching harmony and symmetry makes the picture perfect.

Now we will enter and stand a moment in the spacious hall. Look up that winding stairway. Easy of ascent, with many a broad landing, to the lofty dome above all. See how the rich sunlight comes flashing down, gilding those grand old pictures on the wall—lingering caressingly over the fairy statuette in that alcove, gleaming through the bright flowers and luxuriant vines on these brackets, into the cages near by and waking up the birds to a wider gush of melody—sparkling and twinkling and scattering diamonds on the golden heads, white arms, bare feet of the little rogues playing in that pictured brook or placing a "glory" on the brow of that sleeping babe.

In the magnificent suit of rooms on the right the same refreshing union of richest beauty and softest repose attracts you as you enter. The costly curtains, closed only in the evening, are now thrown far back. The fragrance from "a wilderness of sweets" in the garden perfumes the room, and the free, life-giving sun is shining unchecked over all. Nothing here need shun its brightest beams. It rests on the pure brow of the beautiful matron standing by the deep recessed window, just touches the few threads of silver in her luxuriant hair, gently kisses the still fair cheek and beautifies as it passes.

How richly the heavy silk falls about her stately figure! At this moment, however, we miss the quiet dignity that one is wont to associate with stateliness. One hand plays restlessly with that unpretentious ring on the other, and as her fingers press the golden band do we not know well how her heart repeats the loving words that years ago bound it there? Very precious is the costly diamond, the "silver wedding" ring, given when 25 years of married life have passed, as full of happiness "as human desire can seek or comprehend," but every ray of many hued light that flashes from it can never speak to her with the magic voice of this simple circlet.

How earnestly the lady gazes from the window! The mellow light and fragrant air of the glorious "Indian summer," the profusion of choice flowers, the bright autumnal hues just beginning to enrich the shrubbery, might well claim her attention, but her eye seeks something beyond. She waits and watches for the expected husband, and the shadow on her brow would indicate some anticipated calamity or trouble.

While thus absorbed a tall, noble looking young man enters and rouses her from this unwonted abstraction. She meets him with a loving greeting, and truly, if his face be a correct index to his character, he is a son for whom a mother may thank God.

A few moments' pleasant conversation follows, but both are restless and ill at ease. At length the young man spoke abruptly.

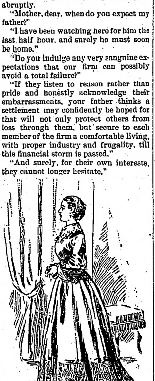
"Mother, dear, when do you expect my father?"

"I have been watching here for him the last half hour, and surely he must soon be home."

"Do you indulge any very sanguine expectations that our firm can possibly avoid a total failure?"

"If they listen to reason rather than pride and honestly acknowledge their embarrassments, your father thinks a settlement may confidently be hoped for that will not only protect others from loss through them, but secure to each member of the firm a comfortable living, with proper industry and frugality, till this financial storm is passed."

"And surely, for their own interests, they cannot longer hesitate."



It rests on the pure brow of the beautiful matron.

"They seem bereft of sound judgment, and I have no doubt it is your father's efforts to bring them to the realizing sense of the danger of longer delay that so detains him."

"He must be sorely tried at any hesitation at such a crisis."

"Ah, yes. While business is so paralyzed, should they attempt to struggle longer with the adverse circumstances by which they are surrounded, the effort will involve them in irreparable ruin—and, sadder than all else, the blow may fall at a time when they cannot prevent great loss to those who have trusted in them, and thus add to other trials the imputation of dishonesty.

"That is the bitter penalty almost invariably meted out to those who by failure impoverish others."

The young man stood silent and thoughtful for some minutes, while his mother earnestly watched the changes that swept across his face, and as they deepened she fondly passed her arm around him, saying cheerfully:

"Why, George, my dear son, you are surely too manly to despond when for us there are no darker clouds in prospect than loss of property, for you may rest assured no blot will tarnish your father's honor, and therefore if we can remain undivided I feel very little disturbed at the thought of pecuniary loss. I am chiefly annoyed at the anxiety your father may be compelled to endure before he can bring his partners to consent to an immediate settlement. But you, our eldest son, are young, strong, well educated, enterprising and energetic.

"It would seem that you would find more true enjoyment in an opportunity to employ your talents in efforts to build up our fortune anew than in the inheritance of wealth so abundant as to call for no exertion on your own part. Many a one whom God has richly endowed has 'buried his talents in a napkin,' and through the enervating influences of wealth has lived and died a mere cipher instead of the glorious being an industrious life with limited means would have made him."

George for a moment drew his mother closely to his breast, and leaving a passionate kiss on her cheek replied:

"You misunderstand me, mother, dear. Indeed I quite like the idea of engineering my own way in the world. It is for you and my good, kind father that I feel regret and sadness. It is not so long since, but I can well remember by what untiring industry, what patient efforts, your present position was attained. No inherited wealth placed us where we now stand, but the sweat of father's noble brow, aided and cheered by your loving care and skillful management, just as every true American should glory in building up for himself a prominent place in society. And now that in middle age you are among the highest and noblest, where you both are so well qualified to shine, it does hurt me cruelly, my darling mother, to see a change in prospect.

"If you could but retain your present position and let your children begin their life's work now, as you did, that would be perfectly satisfactory, and we should have no cause for sorrow or regret. And indeed I cannot see why this should not be so.

"Father has never allowed all his property to mingle with the concerns of the store. Why not pay all, and if need be, more than his proportion, then insist on an immediate dissolution of the firm? The property honestly vested in your name, my mother, would easily support you in your present style without any noticeable change. You and father have 'borne the burden and heat of the day' quite long enough. Let us young ones take our turn now."

George had spoken with great earnestness and rapidity, and his mother fondly and wisely abstained from any interruption at first, but now she checked him, saying, with a loving smile:

"The blow has not yet fallen, my son, or at least we can know nothing definite until your father returns. But of one thing we may be certain—none will suffer loss by the failure of a firm in which his name stands prominent, even if to secure them from it we are reduced to extreme poverty. Whatever property I may legally claim is held only for the good and honor of us all unitedly and subject at all times to your father's disposal. I fully appreciate your sorrow and great reluctance on your parents' account to any change in our present life.

"But, my son, 'let not your heart be troubled.' We have strength and energy sufficient still to return cheerfully to the labor and close economy of earlier days, if need be, and it will be much easier than when we first began, for now we have 'cheerful lads and merry lassies, too,' who will bring not only willing hearts and hands, but sunshine and gladness wherever our lot may be cast. And, my boy, you will hardly credit me when I tell you that as a matter of taste and preference I should much prefer some less prominent position than to live surrounded, as we are now, by all this pomp and show.

"These cares and anxieties are to me far more wearing than our first simple country home, and in this feeling your father fully sympathizes. Yet for our children it has had its peculiar advantages, and we have accepted the trust with grateful hearts for their sakes. If the younger members of our family can be happy when called to take what the world calls a lower position, you understand, your mother for one will be quite content. No friend that is worth the name will be lost to us, and I have an abiding faith that 'a righteous man will never be forsaken nor his seed called to beg bread.' I see your father turning into Broad street, and now we shall soon know all."

"But his step is slow and his whole air dejected. He is grieving for your sake, dear mother, I see plainly, even if you have no dread of the future."

"No, no! He sympathizes entirely in the preferences of which I have spoken, and I have also understood from the first the probable termination of the present troubles. Something has annoyed your father at the store, I have no doubt. I fear Le Barron will make strenuous objections to an honorable investigation and open acknowledgment of inability to proceed with the business."

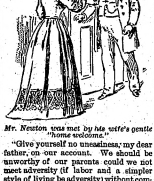
"Ah, yes. But he would make no difficulty if he did not fear his lady wife, who is altogether selfish, extravagant and heartless."

"I am not so sure about him, my son. His course for two years past during our absence abroad has been altogether rash and unscrupulous, showing radical defects in his character. She may have tempted him into wrongdoing, but we will not be too severe in our judgment of her. The great injudiciousness of her early training may give her some claims to our pity."

CHAPTER II.

Mr. Newton was met as he entered the parlor by his wife's gentle "home welcome" and an affectionate greeting from his son. Then, after a few moments' general conversation, he said:

"I know you are waiting anxiously to hear the results of this day's deliberations, and feeling full confidence in your courage to meet and endure bravely any adverse circumstances I come without hesitation directly to the fact that we are compelled to give up our business and close the store. You, my dear Lucy, were prepared to expect this when we parted this morning, but I regret that our children cannot as readily comprehend the necessity of a change so complete and sudden as we shall be compelled to make."



Mr. Newton was met by his wife's gentle "home welcome."

"Give yourself no uneasiness, my dear father, on our account. We should be unworthy of our parents could we not meet adversity (if labor and a simpler style of living be adversity) without complaint. You have not taught us to look upon wealth as the only source of true happiness."

"We certainly have endeavored to give you nobler ideas, and you, my son, are sufficiently mature to view life as a school for high and lofty aspiration and pure and nobler principles, but I feel much solicitude for the younger members of our family."

"Never fear, Edward; you have a strong band around you that will not fail in the hour of trial. Let us know, if you please, the history of this day's deliberations, for the more clearly we all understand the, more readily will we be able to fix upon some plan for our future course."

"It has been a hard struggle to convince my partners that we had no alternative but to close the concern if we would save our honor. They could not but understand that an attempt to continue this hopeless struggle would only sink us deeper. But, naturally, they shrank from a public acknowledgment of failure, and he whose recklessness and insane speculation has wrought this ruin finds it very bitter to have it manifest to the world that we by having placed entire confidence in his integrity have wrecked ourselves."

"You refer to Le Barron, father, do you not?"

"Yes. In truth, I think the sin must rest entirely on him. He has been long in charge of the financial department. Indeed, for two years he has had the entire supervision of home business, Freeman acting under his directions, while I, as you well know, have been in charge of our foreign affairs during that period. I needed the change after 25 years' close application at home, and also greatly desired to consummate our long cherished plan of giving you all the advantage of foreign travel, when your mother and myself could share part of the pleasure with you. It was an unwise arrangement, as the results now prove, but I did not dream till since your return by what cruel temptations Le Barron was surrounded. You know, dear Lucy, his wife's extravagant tendencies, but cannot even imagine how fearfully she has involved her husband by their gratification. His natural fondness for wild speculation has always been his besetting sin. In our business everything of the kind has been peremptorily forbidden.

"After Le Barron's connection with us, knowing of this weakness in his character, I watched him very closely. It was the only point where I had the slightest misgiving, but during the 18 years we have been together I have never until now detected the least deviation from the strictest line of honesty. Misguided, miserable man, but he was fearfully tempted. The net woven by his wife's selfish love of dress and fashion was gathering closer and closer around him; certain destruction stared him in the face; a grand speculation was insidiously proffered him; he yielded to the infatuation; the bubble burst, and pecuniarily we must all go down together."

"But, my dear father, why should you suffer for his wrongdoing, so contrary to the well understood regulations of the firm?"

"Because, my son, he was the accredited manager of the business in my absence. By a long and vexatious legal process and by hard measures I migh possibly secure ourselves from any grea change. But it would be all uncertain, and I cannot for many reasons feel this to be the better way, certainly not the kindest and most noble. Poor Le Barron, he has all that he can bear now. I greatly fear all the disgrace and odium must in the end rest with him. Freeman has been careless and blundered, but is not otherwise culpable, I think."

"When did you first apprehend any danger, father?"

"Only a short time before we left Europe I received a friendly intimation that while the present cloud overshadowed our country generally it might be advisable for me to return and resume the charge of the business at home. I was not at first greatly disturbed, although I had for some time felt that Le Barron was not keeping me as fully posted with regard to home affairs as was desirable. And so I had admonished him several times, and in my last letter had spoken rather severely. He at first promised more punctuality, but in his last he excused his seeming negligence on the plea that business had been for some time so unusually brisk and prosperous it left him but little leisure to communicate with me.

"This I knew could not be correct, and fearing he had dared to venture on some wild scheme in my absence I became seriously alarmed, and as you well know recalled you abruptly from your pleasant travels and hastened home, giving no explanation for this sudden change in our plans to any one except your mother. For the last three months I have been occupied in making a most rigid investigation, and now you have the results."

"How has Le Barron carried himself during your examinations, which he must know would end in the discovery of his fraudulent course?"

"With a hardihood and indifference that have been very painful to me. But within the last week, as his duplicity became more fully revealed, he has broken down completely."

"Now that you know all," said Mrs. Newton, "surely he has not the effrontery to urge longer delay in closing the business."

"Ah! He is half frantic. All his hopes and courage are crushed, and he dreads the revelations which must be made to his family more than death or dishonor."

"Has his wife thus far received no intimation of the storm that is gathering about her?"

"Some, I imagine. But before this the wretched woman must have been told the whole. When he became satisfied that the revelation could no longer be delayed, I took the responsibility of making our determination public and urged him to hasten to Roseville before the tidings could reach his family through general gossip, and before this the tale is told. If Mrs. Le Barron has any love or prudence left, she must prove it now, for she cannot look upon her husband without realizing that his life and reason are both in danger."

"There is little hope for him if his safety depends at all upon his wife's gentleness or prudence," said George. "She loves nothing but her own self. You would be shocked could you know how shamefully her family have always been neglected and tormented whenever their wishes interfered at all with her selfish gratification."

"Why, George! I thought she loved her children passionately and indulged them most injudiciously. But for years I have known very little of them."

"You know, dear mother, your children are often thrown into their society, and etiquette has made an occasional call necessary, although the atmosphere has been very distasteful to us, and thus we have of necessity known more of them than you could. Oh, mother, it just occurs to me that on returning from our ride this afternoon I left Lillian and Rose to call at the Le Barrons. I had no heart to accompany them, knowing as I did of father's anxieties, and now I fear they will meet with a stormy reception."

"Oh, my son, I am very sorry. Should they learn of this misfortune there, it will be a rude shock for our dear girls."

"I am inexpressibly grieved," said the father. "We could have made the revelation so much easier. I have these dear ones very near my heart of late. To them life has been thus far only sunshine. How will they endure the shadows?"

"Lillian is naturally quiet and self possessed, but Rose all life and joyousness."

"Oh, father! You do not yet know our Rose if you fear for her," said George earnestly. "I do not believe that I cherish warmer affection for one sister than the other. Neither will repine, I am confident, but in times of trial of whatever nature little Rosie will teach us all. Her smile will be just as glorious, her sweet voice be heard in cheerful carols as fresh and hopeful and hope giving in a lonely cottage as in princely parlor. Is it not so, mother?"

"Yes, my son. You judge correctly. Our girls, my dear husband, are brave spirits and will not murmur at any change that brings no reproach and threatens no disunion, but Rose seems gifted with an abundant overflow of cheerful courage that is peculiarly inspirating to all who are brought within the sphere of her influence, and which will ever be to her the strongest assurance of peace and happiness under all circumstances."

"But, my dear Lucy, it is not simply the effect of a change in our pecuniary state or social position may have on our daughters that has caused me so much anxiety. On those points you and George cannot trust them more fully than I do. But you cannot both have forgotten that there are other ways in which our misfortune may imperil their peace of mind They have given their happiness into other hands than ours."

"You refer of course to Dunbar and Grenville. Why, my dear, Eustace has so grown up with our children, and Lilly and he have so long thought and felt in unison that I would as soon expect our boy here would shrink from the trial."

"No, dear; I have no fears for Lillian's peace, but a slight and most natural misgiving about Grenville. I wish Dunbar were here for her own sake more than fears for his constancy."

"Ah, now you touch the one fear that has often made me tremble of late, and which all this day I have weakly tried to banish. Grenville's faults lie mostly in his pride and aristocratic notions, but he has truly a loving heart, and for our child I am confident his affection is very deep and pure. On such love, you know, I have ever felt it safe to lean trustingly. If he should fail our darling, she has given him so truly the full love of her intense nature, how could she bear it?" And the mother's voice was full of fear.

George had listened to his parents' conversation with tightly folded arms and compressed lips, but now stepping quickly to his mother's side he laid a hand lovingly on her shoulder and said:

"Again, I say, my dear parents, have no fear for our noble girls. Lilly's happiness is in safe keeping. I would pledge my life for Eustace's truth. He will, I think, be here tonight. As for Grenville"—he hesitated, and his eyes became almost fierce. "Our Rose's danger lies in another direction than the loss of our poor wealth."

"I do not understand you, my son."

"You know, father, since our land has been so full of bitterness you have been fearful that this wild election strife might lead to civil war. I have listened with deference to your maturer judgment, but even while it forced itself upon me as a correct idea my heart did not recognize it as a danger that could really befall us. The United States at war with each other! It truly seemed absurd and impossible. But the last few weeks have brought the idea before me with a fear that seems like certainty. And, father, should war come upon us, Grenville is a southerner, though educated at the north, and this is what fills me with apprehension for my sister. He has not been frank with us. His feelings are with the south."

"Why have you never told us this before?" said Mr. Newton, with deep emotion.

"Because, although it is some weeks since this suspicion has haunted me, I had not been sure beyond a doubt till within two days. Why, it is only last Sabbath evening we were all expressing the most decided Union sentiment. Rose, the darling, you will remember, was the most earnest and enthusiastic among us, and Grenville listened and replied to her with an interest apparently so true, with no shadow of dissent, that I reproached myself for cherishing uncharitable fears. But the deceiver," cried the young man, while the veins on his flushed brow stood out like knotted cords; "let Rose know with certainty but half what I have learned, even since I parted from her but a few hours since, that he is linked with the south and will strike hands with her in case of war—she will cast him from her at once."

"Yes, my son, and break her heart in doing it."

"No, mother. I hardly think that she will be broken in spirit upon a question that divides the affections of so many. She is extremely enthusiastic in her views upon this matter, but her true heart was given to what she believed to be real solid worth. When she finds it was but a phantom, she may suffer for a time, but fear not—she will bear it bravely and come out of the fiery furnace unharmed."

"This grieves me cruelly," said Mr. Newton. "How insignificant are all other troubles compared with this. Anxiety for your parents and bearing with you this grievous knowledge of your sister's coming trial was heavy burden for your young heart to carry, my son."

"Did I not tell you, Edward, that through God's blessings our boys were growing up towers of strength for our later years? And shall we not trust our girl in our Father's hands?"

"We will, my dear wife. But before our daughters' return let us each understand that this fear for Rose must lie unspoken for the present. We will not anticipate the trial. Grenville will doubtless be with us this evening and must be present at our deliberations. I much prefer that his own words or acts should reveal him to our child. Let us drop this painful subject or we shall have no power to control our fears when we meet them. The certain and known trouble should have our attention just now, and as you wisely counsel, dear wife, we will try to leave our children and their future in our Maker's hands."

They sat silent a few moments, when George, turning to his father, said:

"Have you yet been able to form any plans for our future?"

"Nothing definite of course. For the last three months the probable termination of our affairs has been constantly on my mind, and naturally schemes for our coming efforts have frequently arisen and as often been rejected. When all is completely settled, if I am not greatly mistaken, we may hope there will be a surplus left us for a comfortable beginning, but how we must descend in a pecuniary sense we cannot yet foresee.

"Legally we might leave this good mother a great abundance for the continuance of her present style, or something very nearly like it, and she would doubtless allow us to have a home with her while we were building up a new foundation. But she has some curious, old fashioned notions about cleaving to husband and children and sharing all deprivations with them, and I cannot say that I feel in the mood to resist her loving judgment. But when we are all together this evening we must have a full and free consultation. Whatever arrangement can be matured that will best employ your different tastes and at the same time be most conducive to the general good of all will, I know, be your governing motive rather than any selfish gratification."

"Thanks, father; I think you do not judge me incorrectly. I am conscious of no wish but permission to aid in making this change as little harassing and painful to my parents, brothers and sisters as possible. For myself, as long as no dishonor can rest upon our name, I feel no uneasiness—but there is the carriage."

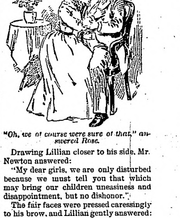
CHAPTER III.

As the young ladies entered the parlors the parents' hearts shrank from the interview, and George fully shared the pain. That they were laboring under some strong excitement was very apparent. They passed, without pause, directly to Mr. Newton's side, and the eldest, laying a trembling hand on his arm, said:

"What is it all, father? We called at Roseville and were told that the ladies were engaged, but while we stood on the steps receiving this message we could not fail to hear Mrs. Le Barron using the most violent and abusive language to her husband, and, oh, father, she coupled your name with injustice and dishonor, employing the most bitter terms, which she surely intended us to hear."

"Both accusations are utterly false," indignantly replied George.

"Oh, we of course were sure of that," answered Rose, seating herself on h father's knee; "but tell us directly, papa, for that you and mother are greatly disturbed about something is very evident."



"Oh, we of course were sure of that," answered Rose.

Drawing Lillian closer to his side, Mr. Newton answered:

"My dear girls, we are only disturbed because we must tell you that which may bring our children uneasiness and disappointment, but no dishonor."

The fair faces were pressed caressingly to his brow, and Lillian gently answered:

"Suspense will be harder to endure than any misfortune we may share with you and mother."

"You are right, my darling. We have no intention to conceal aught from our children or leave you in needless suspense. Our business during our sojourn abroad has been, by criminal mismanagement, ruined, and it now only remains for us to arrange a settlement in the most honorable manner and begin life anew."

An acknowledgment of "failure" always brings to the young a kind of mysterious awe, a shrinking from the first step into an unknown and untried region, and the father felt the dear forms his arms encircled tremble for a moment, but that soon passed when they observed their mother's calmness, and Lillian replied:

"But why did Mrs. Le Barron speak of you so bitterly, father? Surely you did not merit such fearful accusations."

"No, indeed," exclaimed George. "She may thank her own extravagant folly for it all. Her husband would never have ventured on such measures as that of which he was guilty during father's absence if she had not so wickedly involved him by her insane love of display. No blame can possibly rest upon our father."

"Ah, yes, my son. In trusting so implicitly to another's honor or judgment I am to blame. The principal of an extensive and complicated business like ours should never relax his vigilance."

"But, father, will not your loss in this failure be as heavy as the others?"

[Continued on page 6.]

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

AN Alaskan named James Feakles has been appointed governor of that territory.

THE prospects for an early repeal of the Sherman silver act seems to have given an encouraging impetus to trade and business begins to revive.

THE Tribune makes a vicious kick over the condition of the sewers and takes occasion to score the council on the mattsr. Better exercise a little of your superfluous grey matter in suggesting a practical remedy.

G. W. BENEDICT has sold his paper, the Sauk Rapids Sentinel, to H. B. McKenney, of Lake City. Benedict is one of the best known newspaper men in the state and will now retire to enjoy the fruits of a well-spent life.

THE Times of Friday, an issue utterly without an editorial opinion of any kind, finds fault with the editorials in the JOURNAL. Such as they were they were better than to have no editorial opinion upon any subject were they not, Mac?

THE question as to Gov. Altgeld's citizenship has been raised and it may turn out that his action in releasing the anarchists is illegal. He was born in Germany and the question turns on whether his father was naturalized before he become of age.

THE Fosston Thirteen Towns has very much improved of late having added news service instead of so much general miscellany. McCrillis & Foss are getting out a very creditable paper and that fact seems to be fully appreciated by their patrons.

CERTAIN populist papers are making themselves ridiculous over the release of the Chicago anarchists. They reckon without their hosts if they think that sober-minded reputable farmers have any sympathy with red-handed Russian anarchists.

THE incumbent had fully made up his mind not to convene congress until September, but in a previous issue we called his eggsellency's attention to the importance of an earlier session—and lo, it is done! The call has been issued for congress to meet on Monday August 7th.

MEN of all parties unite in severely critising the action of Gov. Altgeld, of Illinois, in releasing the anarchists. If he had simply released them, without scoring the judge and the jury as he did, not so much would have been thought of it but the way in which he did that does not meet with the approval of right-minded men.

THE Message for this month, just off the press, is a very interesting number—in fact they all are well worth the subscription price and more too. Mr. Battey is a very able and conscientious editor and he puts a great deal of hard work into his paper. Every family in the northwest should have the Message.

THE Tribune, for some unaccountable reason fails to mention the fact that the city attorney gave it as his opinion that the council had a right to take into consideration the standing of the papers bidding for city work, but confines its attention to two members of the council because they did that very thing and trying to raise a dust to blind the eyes of the people to the true facts in the case.

AND now that congress has been called to meet let the banks begin to put out their money in conservative loans and everything will begin to look up again. Vast sums of money are being put into circulation from the treasury, the quarterly pension payments will soon be paid amounting to some millions, and this with returning confidence will soon cause the wheels of progress to revolve as steadily and surely as usual.

THE crime for which the anarchists, Schwab, Fielden and Neebe were doing penance was a crime against the government, and when any paper attempts to defend their action at the haymarket riot on the ground that the rioters were simply "laboring-men attempting to assert their rights" that paper is way off its base and is offering a gratuitous insult to every honest laboring man in the country. The laboring men are as much interested in having and maintaining good laws and order as any other class, and the haymarket riot was open rebellion against the government.

THERE are twenty-seven counties in Kansas that will not raise wheat enough this year to provide bread and seed for their population, and the farmers are petitioning the governor to call an extra session of the legislature to appropriate funds for the needy.

ON July 1st South Carolina went into the liquor selling business, and all the liquor-sellers went out of business. The state will have certain stores or places throughout the state—one in each city or town—where liquor can be had. The people can go to these places and buy all the liquor they want—or have money to pay for—but cannot drink it on the premises. The working of the new law will be watched with interest by other states.

COUNTY DIVISION.

In every new country, however prosperous it may be, you will always find a few malcontents who are never satisfied with the existing order of things but they must go to work and organize a change. In some cases the object is real estate speculation in others the hope of obtaining public office and in every case the object is for private, selfish gain in some particular, regardless of the general public good. While the JOURNAL believes that the interests of the tax-payers are better subserved under one organization, as a rule it is content, after sounding the alarm to leave the matter in the hands of the majority of the tax-payers whose right it is to settle the matter, but we believe they should look at the matter from every standpoint and decide the question in their own interests and not in those of speculators. While there might be a few reasons (political reasons only) why a division of the territory into two parts would be well enough we confess we can see no business reasons for any change at this time, and we can certainly see grave objections to the proposed scheme for dividing into four parts. Any division necessarily entails more expense upon the tax-payers and it strikes the JOURNAL as being the part of wisdom for every man in these times to make his expenses both public and private as small as possible. We learn that these schemers are going about among farmers, trying to awaken an unreasonable antipathy against the city of Crookston, hoping by these means to carry the day, but a farmer is very foolish who will allow his taxes to be quadrupled on such a trivial pretext. If they are wise they will look at this question from every stand-point and if they do that they will find that their own true interests are not subserved by a division of any kind just now. They will find that while a few schemers will stand a chance to make some money out of it the average farmer will not make a nickel—but he will pay the cost all the same. The interest the JOURNAL has in the matter is to see that the people are not fooled into committing an act that they will always regret and that is just what they will do if they entertain favorably the project that will be brought before them for action later on. This is one of those cases wherein the average tax-payer can well afford to make haste slowly.

The Farmers Institute.

"On July 7 and 8 Crookston is to have a Farmers Institute, presided over by Supt. O. C. Gregg, and his corps of state institute workers. Of course the institute will demonstrate to the farmers how farming can be made to pay, with wheat selling just a trifle below its production."

The above sneering reference to the efforts of a few practical farmers to better the condition of their brother farmers is well worthy the source from whence it comes—the East Grand Forks Courier. If the aforesaid institute was composed of money sharks, like Duffy, who get together to devise ways and means to more thoroughly bleed the farmers we suppose that would be all right in Bro. Duffy's eyes—that would be "business!" But for a few farmers to get together to consult ways and means to make their condition more tolerable that's absurd, ridiculous, worthy only of a slight sneering mention. There is no doubt at all but what the institution will consider the financial situation as it effects the price of wheat and why should they not? Has not the farmer as much right to meet and consult upon his business matters as any other class? Whenever he attempts to do so why is it that some sharks will always sneer at them and try to belittle their efforts? The state farmers institute has been the means of doing a great deal of good for the farmers and is intended solely for their benefit. Its instructors are composed of life-long farmers who know by experience what they are talking about and no farmer is wise who will neglect the opportunity thus afforded to improve himself in his calling. Business men have their organizations and thus they keep themselves fully posted upon all matters that pertain to their calling and why the farmers should not do the same we fail to comprehend, or why it is so wonderfully funny if he does do so.

A NEW BONANZA.

How to Double the Price of Wheat by Converting It Into Hogs.

St. Paul, June 30.—To the Editor: The low price of wheat and the tendency to still lower prices, seems to present an opportune time to call the attention of the farmers of the wheat districts in Northern Minnesota and the Dakotas, to the high price of hogs.

At the present prices of hogs recent experiments seem to demontsrate that by fattening hogs on wheat, the farmer may realize more than $1 per bushel for his wheat, now worth at the farm 40 to 50 cents, and which after freight has been paid to Minneapolis or Duluth, is worth only about 62 or 63 cents. At present prices, the largest car load of wheat (1,000 bushels) in St. Paul, is worth only about $620, while a car load of hogs of the same weight (60,000 lbs), would be worth about $3,360.

The hog matures at the age of six to nine months. Hence if it is true that 50 cent wheat when turned into pork becomes worth more than $1 a bushel, the business of raising hogs by the wheat farmer promises large profits and quick returns.

Now let us see what evidence there is upon the value of wheat for fattening hogs.

Upon this point the following statement has been made: A farmer in one of the best corn and wheat counties in Central Illinois was so reluctant the past season to sell his wheat at the prevailing prices that he thought he would try to convert it into pork. He was greatly pleased at the result. He had $2,000 worth of hogs, and fattened them almost entirely on wheat, using a little corn. His method was to soak the wheat in warm water twenty-four hours before feeding. In cold weather he let the water come to a boil in the kettle and then poured in the wheat and put out the fire. When it cooled it was soaked enough and ready to feed, which he did immediately. He weighed the hogs before commencing to feed and kept a strict account of the weights of all grain fed, also figured the corn at 35 cents and the fat hogs at 4 1-2 cents. Said he, "the wheat just brought me $1.01 per bushel."

From this statement it would seem that wheat is worth $1.01 per bushel to feed when hogs are worth 4 1-2 cents per pound. The present price of hogs in the St. Paul market is 5.6 cents, which on the above basis would make wheat worth $1.25 per bushel.

The writer is informed that during the last few months, 24 full car loads of fat hogs have been sold at the South St. Paul market, which were raised in Northern Dakota and fattened entirely on wheat, sometimes fed in the manner pointed out by the Illinois farmer and sometimes converted into a rude "graham flour" before feeding. The unanimous testimony of the raisers has been to the effect that by feeding it, they had realized over $1 per bushel for their wheat. The quality of the product of such hogs is said to be superior to the product of the corn fed animals. If this is true, it seems to open up the possibility to the wheat farmers of introducing to the markets of the world a brand of American pork, which in time would become as famous as Minnesota hard wheat, and like it command the highest prices and the best markets.

It is certainly a matter worthy of consideration. —A. B. Stickney.

The above excellent advice from one of St. Paul's most level-headed business men is all very good—probably all very true yet there is one very serious omission that, it seems to us utterly destroys its value for practical purpose—he omits to say where the farmers are to get the hogs to feed their wheat to. If a farmer hasn't got the hogs, hasn't the money to buy them and can't buy on credit what will HE do? And supposing he could buy them would it pay him to do so on present prices?

A farmer writing to Farm, Stock and Home wants to know why great capitalists take so much interest in "good roads for farmers." He says he notices a great deal on the subject in prominent daily papers and wonders at it. If he was a close observer he would notice that a great deal of it is advertising matter from the Pope Manufacturing Co., or some other large bicycle company whose sole interest in good roads is simply to furnish a larger market for their bicycles. They spend a great deal of money in showing up the value of good roads both by advertising in leading newspapers and in sending out treatises on good roads in pamphlet form to prominent farmers all over the country. If they had no wheels to sell they would not care a rye-straw whether there was a good road anywhere or not, and yet for all that it cannot be gain-said that a good road is a blessing to a good farmer and their efforts in this direction is an indirect benefit to the farmer wherever these efforts result in obtaining better country roads.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein-Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address,

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

Euclid.

EUCLID, July 4th.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Miss C. Fairweather, who has been a visiting, her brother of Minneapolis, for the last two months returned home Tuesday morning.

The citizens spent the fourth in quietness this season.

The social given by the Ladies Aid Society Tuesday evening was a financial success.

The school house is receiving a coat of paint.

A Mr. Schultz of Madison, Wisconsin, was up looking after land Wednesday. He is greatly impressed with this country and thinks there is prospects for a good crop.

There was a good number of the Angus people came down to the ice cream and Strawberry sociable Tuesday evening—come again friends.

Peter Stuhr and Theodore Myers drove to Crookston, Wednesday on business connected with the town.

Fritz Sutter and N. Engle have finished painting the cemetery fence.

Our cow boy, C. Keeley, handles the herd, in genuine true western style.

Mr. P. Fairweather made a business trip to Argyle Wednesday.

Mrs. Messick, mother of Mrs. E. B. Ballou has come up to spend the summer.

Mrs. Main, of Warren, who has been visiting her brother, Will Kennan, returned to her home Tuesday morning.

The Missionary tea at the home of Mrs. H. C. Misner Tuesday evening was well attended.

S. Currie is building a large granary on his farm.

J. J. Regan who has been holding down his pine claim on the reservation took a run up to spend the 4th with friends here.

Captain Brooks, of St. Paul, came up and took a run out to the Keystone Saturday.

The Fourth of July dance at B. Carrishe's was well attended and a right good time is reported.

Miss Emma Cronkhite, of Argyle, visited friends here this week.

Mrs. Ed. Cleary, of Crookston, visited her parents this week.

Henry Krouse, of Ada, came up to spend several days with his brother, Will.

Mr. Norwood and the Misses Jessie, Leora and Libbie Davies were among the Angusites who participated in our 4th of July celebration.

Mrs. Jennie Freeman, Eugene Elwood and Rolla Currie, of Grand Forks, Plumer Shell Arthur and Percie Brush, of Angus, were guests of the family of Rev. S. Currie on the 4th.

H. C. Misner, Wm. Davidson and Dr. Chapin are contemplating a pleasure trip to Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls this week. The boys are entitled to a lay off.

Barney Burns, a young man who was kicked by a vicious horse some six weeks ago, is now able to be out.

Dr. Watson, of Red Lake Falls, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davidson last week.

Farmers Institute.

Every business man acts upon the presumption that he knows all about his own business, yet that does not prevent him from attending business meetings in his line to discuss his business with practical business men. The farmers institute to be held in this city on Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th, is a farmers' business meeting conducted by practical farmers, who have made farming a life study. There is not a farmer in Polk county to-day so dull that he cannot learn something of benefit to him at these sessions. If there is one who thinks he can't learn anything more about his profession—that man is not a farmer—he is either an egotist or an ignoramus.

At the Farmers Institute, we can learn how all plants grow, which applied to the grains grown on our farms, will be a valuable lesson to all farmers. We urge all our farmers to attend. It will pay to know many of the things to be learned there. It is all free.

At the Farmers Institute we can learn how to kill out wild mustard, wild oats and quack grass. This may be a valuable lesson to many. Come out and hear how it is done.

No man who is interested in sheep husbandry would miss the State Farmers Institute if he knew how much information he could get there on the subject. Come early and get all there is of it.

Collar boils and fistula in horses will be so clearly explained at the Farmers Institute that no farmer can afford to miss it, and the proper remedies will be of importance to all horse owners.

At the Farmers Institute we can learn why the horse needs feeding oftener than the cow, which may be of great advantage to all would-be good feeders. Come early.

The right preparation of the soil for a sure seed-bed to guarantee a bountiful crop will be carefully represented at the Farmers Institute for the benefit of all present. Be sure to be there.

The important points in dairy stock will be accurately explained at the Farmers Institute. Who can afford to miss this state work?

At the Farmers Institute on July 7th and 8th, we can learn how valuable the "little busy bee" is to the successful melon, squash and pumpkin raiser. This may seem trivial to many, but when we know how it is, there is a valuable lesson in it. Should we ever get too old to learn? Come to the institute and gather all the information possible from these old experienced farmers.

The State Farmers Institute is only a farmers school where all who are willing can get a valuable instruction from those who have had the experience and can tell us where we will make a success and where the failures come in.

Come to the Farmers Institute at McKinnon's Hall, Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th, and learn how to know, "don't you know." Be there and don't let any of this valuable information get away from us. Come early so as to not miss any of it.

The State Farmers Institute don't get up this far north often, and we must encourage them to come oftener by showing that we want to be in the front ranks of the improved agriculturist by being on hand early and stay till the "last dog is hung." Let's "get plenty while we are a gettin." The state pays the bills but we are entitled to our share.

The hog product has raised more mortgages in Wisconsin, than any other product of the farm, why don't it do it in Minnesota when we know to handle the American hog? Come to the Farmers Institute and get your information from the best authority in all this broad land.

Who would be anything but a farmer, when the state sends the best and most experienced of her workers to our very doors to show us how to do the work to make a success and how to avoid failures? This is no "buncombe" but genuine business and don't stay at home these two days, Friday and Saturday, July 7th and 8th, but come here and enjoy this feast of information when you have such an opportunity. Come.

Different Schools of Music.

Each generation, tired of the outworn devices which furnishes its predecessor with excitement, demands newer and stronger effects to stimulate its emotions. As the devices of the classicist grow pale, the listening public demands a romantic school with new forms and strange progressions. The romantic school would, if some hearers had their way, be succeeded in turn by a chaotic school, and in the race for new sensation all vestige of artistic form would disappear.—Macmillan's Magazine.

The Gresham Lectures In England.

The will of Sir Thomas Gresham, mercer, 1579, indicates the estimation in which the new learning was held in Elizabeth's reign. He provides that lectures shall be read on divinity, astronomy, music, geometry, law, physic and rhetoric. "None to be chosen to read lectures so long as he be married." The Gresham lectures are still a power in the land. I do not know whether the lecturers are at this day exclusively bachelors and widowers!—Cornhill Magazine.

The Patent Office at Washington.

The patent office holds a model or a drawing of every invention known in the whole world and has paid something more than $2,000,000 over and above its own expenses, a sum which represents only a trifle of the great amount it has added to the wealth of the nation.—Harper's Young People.

A Composition on Boys.

A number of entertaining "compositions on girls" have been in print, and now here is one on boys that is given as the school essay of a little Buffalo girl: "The boy is not an animal, yet they can be heard to a considerable distance. When a boy hollers, he opens his big mouth like frogs, but girls hold their tongue till they are spoke to, and then they answer respectable and tell just how it was. A boy thinks himself clever because he can wade where it is deep, but God made the dry land for every living thing and rested on the seventh day. When the boy grows up, he is called a husband, and then he stops wading and stays out at nights, but the grewup girl is a widow and keeps house."

A Friendly Hint.

Postoffice Clerk—See here, boy! No living mortal can read the address on this envelope you just handed in.

Boy—Well, if this 'ere postoffice department wants fine handwritin, why don't you keep better pens at these desks, say?—Good News.

Celluloid is becoming quite popular for numerous fancy articles. It comes in several shades of the delicate colors and is an inexpensive material. The thin transparent sheets are the prettiest.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office's praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 31st, 1893, and terminating on July 31st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: W. J. Halla, on the whole of the first floor of the two-story frame building on Main street, situated on lot 8, block 3, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 30th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[12-13] City Clerk.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: A. J. Stoeser and Wm. Cronin, on the first floor of the Commercial Hotel in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minnesota.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness may hand and seal of said city, this 27th day of June A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
[12-13] City Clerk.

RECKITT BLOCK

MEAT MARKET,

VINE & RICHINGS, Props.

FRESH AND SALT MEATS,
—Constantly on hand.

GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
—In season.

Highest price paid for

FAT CATTE, HOGS, = = =
= = SHEEP and POULTRY.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK—ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term. June 26th 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Waren Hillard formerly Gunderson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Martin Hillard administrator setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate of which said deceased died seized.

And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administrator to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell the whole of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday the 31st day of July 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 26th day of June A. D. 1893.

By the Court.
C. M. BENSON,
[11-13] Judge of Probate.

Congress

WILL NOT BE IN SESSION

UNTIL SEPTEMBER,

—BUT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

WILL BE IN SESSION
RIGHT ALONG

To help regulate the financial condition of Polk County with the

BEST GOODS

—AT THE—

LOWEST PRICES.

CONFIDENCE

In the ability of the government is what is now most needed, and Confidence in Our Ability and Methods is Already Established.

You can make money by trading with Fontaine & Anglim.

BABIES AT THEIR BEST.

Visit to the Children's Building at the Fair.

HAPPY IDEA OF THE EXPOSITION.

A Place Where Babies Are Taken Care of by Neat Nurses in Blue Gowns and White Caps—The Cute Little Foreign Babies in Midway Plaisance—The Dahomey Baby a Drawing Card.

WORLD'S FAIR, July 5.—[Special.]—There is an old saying that all the world loves a lover. This may be true, but I should a good deal rather risk my reputation for accuracy on the statement that all the world loves a baby. We see this at the exposition, as we see it everywhere. A day or two ago I was walking along the plaisance. I saw a group of people ahead of me surrounding some object that had excited their interest. On drawing near I found ten or fifteen ladies and gentlemen gathered about an Algerian woman who had in her arms a dirty-faced, scabby little fellow of one or one and a half years. He was dressed in the garb of his native land, of course, and was not pretty; but he was an infant, and a foreign infant at that, and the ladies and gentlemen who stopped for a look at him evidently thought him very cute and nice, for the women kissed his face, dirt and all, and the men gave him nickels and dimes.

This was a typical incident of the plaisance. There are a number of foreign babies and children here, and they attract a great deal of attention. In the Esquimaux village there are two or three juveniles, fat and greasy little persons with black, stringy hair and unlovely eyes and an appetite for American quarters. They have been fed on sweetmeats and popcorn and cake from the luncheon boxes of visitors and other goodies till I fear they are in no fit condition to go back to their northern home and there endure the privations of their simple life amid the snowdrifts and icebergs.

The Soudanese children attract a good deal of attention, too, but for some reason or other no one wants to pet them. They wear great shocks of hair on the tops of their heads, thick as mats and causing them to resemble small editions of Paderewski. Possibly these bunches of hair discourage familiarity on the part of visitors. One could imagine almost anything of those top-knots, though it might be wise not to permit curiosity to be followed by investigation.

Now that the Javanese village is open to the world a large number of visitors within the quaint enclosure inquire for the little woman whose heart has been made sad by the loss of her baby since she came to America. The little woman's name is Mio, and she is not much bigger than a pint of cider, with tawny hair and great lustrous eyes. It is worth going miles to see how the women of Christendom sympathize with her. They have heard of her, far and near, as the woman whose baby died on the plaisance, and they want to say a kind word to her and buy something of her. Indeed, it is the baby, alive or dead, that makes the whole world kin.

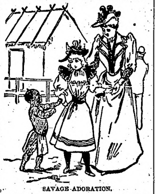
We saw that a few days ago in the Dahomey village. There is a Dahomey baby, and every one wants to see it. But every one doesn't. The mother of this black little savage is an Amazon of the Amazons. She is six feet tall, weighs probably 200 pounds, and there isn't an ounce of superfluous flesh on her body. She is muscular, active, energetic, sometimes ferocious; especially when the awful orchestra that plays in the theater sets up its wildest howl and the drums are beat most viciously. Then the blood is stirred in her Amazonian veins, she brandishes her war club with mighty swings, shows her teeth as if she would like to eat some one alive, and lets off a whoop of savage defiance. But she is a woman, nevertheless; and when they send word to her that her baby has roused from its slumber in the thatched mud-hut down in the corner of the corral she drops her war club and her voice and starts on a run to give baby comfort from the ample breast of her stalwart body. This Dahomey baby thrives and grows fat, notwithstanding the warlike tendency of its mother; and it is, as well, quite a source of revenue to the Frenchman who set up this village from the west coast of Africa. So many visitors want to see the little savage babe that a regular admission fee of 10 cents has been charged for some time, and the number of visitors must amount to five or six hundred in a day. A baby that can lie on its black back and sleep and occasionally wake up to howl for its Amazonian mother and fight off a flea or two, and at the same time earn forty or fifty dollars a day, is a pretty smart sort of an infant, even if it does come from the benighted land of savagery.

In the Dahomey village is a little chap about five years old. He is as ugly as sin and he doesn't wear much to hide his hideousness. But with all his ugliness of body he seems to have an amiable disposition, for the other day he fell violently in love with a pretty little American girl and ran up to her and threw his black, bony arms around her. Oddly enough the little American was not a bit frightened, but laughed and thought the performance a good joke, enjoying it as well as did the large number of people who witnessed it. Possibly she thought savage adoration of her civilized charms was quite the proper thing, and this tribute thereto though somewhat too demonstrative was not to be despised or rejected.

If you want to see babies at their best, and the popular love for them at its sweetest pitch, leave the plaisance and the savages and go into the Children's building which stands just south of the building devoted to woman. I don't know who it was that first thought of this idea of having a children's building here at the fair, but whoever she was—of course it was a she—is deserving a monument. It was one of the happy ideas of the Columbian exposition, and is working out better than its best friends could have hoped for. The idea was, you will remember, to have a childrens' building in which there should be toys, and playrooms, and a nursery, and all that sort of thing. Well, they were a little late in getting everything ready, but it is in full operation at last, and there is nothing within the gates of the fair that attracts more attention or elicits more favorable comment than this structure devoted to babies and children. The idea kept growing and growing and taking in new feature after new feature till it is finally a pretty comprehensive affair. There is not very much in the world of babyhood that is not shown here, and shown to best possible advantage.

There is a crowd at the Children's building all the time, and if you want to get in to see what the little folks are doing you will have to exercise some patience. But it is worth your time and waiting. You presently find yourself within a large court, roofed, but very light and airy. In the center is a gymnasium, in which thirty or forty small boys and girls are having the best sort of a time. They are flying to and fro on the swings, jumping over the exercising horses, lifting weights, enjoying themselves in a great variety of ways. All around them, and in the gallery overhead, is a crowd of people watching the scene with eager eyes. But this is not the best picture the Children's building has to show. At one end of this court is a high partition of glass, and here the people are as thick as they can stand and others are waiting to take the place of those who are next the glass. What can it be that they are looking at? What is the fascination behind those transparent partitions?

Simply babies. Plain, commonplace, everyday American babies. Half of them are asleep, lying in sweet little cribs, with their faces shaded from the strong rays of light. On one side the glass a swarm of adults, eager, pushing, noisy, full of the activity and ambition of this hustling life of ours, on the other side sleeping infancy, unconscious of the work and worry and evil of this world, and some of them, no doubt, destined not to live long enough to know it by personal experience. The contrast between the two sides of the glass is strong indeed.



SAVAGE ADORATION.

In the nurseries—for there are three or four of them in a row—the floors are bare. Awnings keep out the strong rays of the sun. The light is dull and soft. A line of cribs extend around the outer edge of the apartments. Each crib has a baby in it, and the nurses, trim and pretty in their simple blue gowns and white caps, have more babies in their arms, some just entering the land of lullaby and others already there. These are waiting their turn in the cradles. A dozen or more little tots are playing on the floor, with a great variety of toys to amuse themselves with. The toys have been contributed from all the nations of the earth, and he is a hard infant to please who cannot be satisfied with his choice from this collection.

At the door which leads to the office of the nurseries a number of women are waiting with babies in their arms. These are visitors to the fair, who want to deposit their infant charges and receive checks therefor. They are so tired, some of these poor mothers, that one feels sorry when he hears the clerk say, "We are full now and can't take another baby for two hours." It seems a pity that when they thought of such a happy idea as this day nursery where for a quarter of a dollar a mother may leave a baby and be sure that it will have good, intelligent and skillful care, they did not make the building large enough to accommodate all comers. Every day mothers with weary arms and haggard faces that tell of the struggle they have been making to see the exposition and take care of their babies at the same time, present themselves at the door of the nursery only to be disappointed with the word that all the space is taken.

In one of the nurseries babies are admitted along with their own private nurses, and I made the suggestion to the ladies in charge of the building that they amend their rules and keep out such infants as were already provided with regular attendants. People who have nurses employed to look after their infants should remain away from the Children's building and leave what room there is in that beneficent structure for the accommodation of babies who have no nurses except their tired mothers. If the Children's building is good for anything it is as a haven of rest to babies who have been made sore and peevish by being lugged about the fair grounds, without the opportunity for restful sleep, and for the mothers who have carried them about from building to building with aching limbs and weary feet. One of my own babies was left here a day or two in charge of her nurse, and it seemed a great convenience to all concerned. But as soon as I discovered that there wasn't room enough in the nurseries to accommodate the nurseless babies I said mine could remain at the hotel. If the ladies in charge of the building are wise they will make a rule that only babies without nurses shall be admitted.

Upstairs are some more interesting baby pictures. There are class-rooms in which you may look through another glass partition and see about fifteen little men and women going through the kindergarten exercises. There are plenty of people in this country who have never had an opportunity to see what a kindergarten is like, and this is an opportunity which they hail with much delight. It is a pretty scene, sure enough, and familiarity seems never to rob it of its fascinations. Besides the kindergarten there is a school room in which sloyd is shown in full operation. Sloyd is something comparatively new in this country, but as near as I can make out it is an enlarged sort of kindergarten, suitable for older children and extending the Froebel principle through a great variety of exercises, thoughts and trainings of the mind. In sloyd they use all the geometric forms, as they do in kindergarten work, but, going much farther, use also tools with which to make these forms and to change them. The new system is taught by competent teachers from the east and by many who have come from Europe, and now that the schools are closed and both teachers and pupils are free to spend their vacations at the fair the attendance from the public schools of this country is becoming a distinct daily feature at the exposition.

The World's fair is a splendid place for the children, if one can make arrangements by which they may see what they wish to see without wearying themselves and every one else in the party. A very good method, pursued by several friends of mine with large families, is to take the little folks about two afternoons a week, devoting the whole of those half days to their amusement, and leaving them at home the remainder of the time.

ROBERT GRAVES.

DOINGS OF WHALES.

SEA YARNS SPUN BY AN OLD EX-WHALER OF SOUTH STREET.

Milking She Whales Before Harpooning Them While They Are Asleep on Top of the Water—Whales Very Dangerous When Sleep Mad or Harpoon Mad.

"That's the best reading I've had for many a long day," exclaimed the bronzed old ex-seaman in his dingy little "sailing office" in South street, and his bright eyes twinkled. The reading that pleased him so was the Victoria dispatch giving an account of the attack of an enormous whale on the schooner Mermaid off the Japan coast.

"You don't know what sleep mad is, do you? It's just the kind of mad that big whale had on him, and the same kind of mad that any big whale is sure to get on him when he has just had his dinner and is taking his after dinner nap. The whales of the waters where this schooner Mermaid was cruising are great sleepers. They turn over on their sides on top of the water and let the waves rock them to sleep, especially if they have been dining pretty heavy. They sleep sound, and I have more than once milked a she whale when she was sleeping like that without waking her up, just as you might milk a cow. A good, healthy she whale, with suckling cubs, would give down a barrel of milk, and then we'd have a feast after a hard day's work.

"But suppose that besides being sleep mad this big whale that pitched into the schooner Mermaid had also been harpoon mad. If he had been, The Sun wouldn't have had that story to print, for the schooner or her crew would never have been heard from again.

"Did I ever have any close call from an infuriated whale? Did I? Well, remembering a few of 'em, I think I did! For instance, what would you call this one? Forty years ago I was one of the crew of the whaler Mary Pilgrim of Nantucket. We started in April after sperm whales in the waters around the Cape de Verde islands.

"We picked up a whale now and then, but they were not plentiful, but one day we discovered a tremendous bow head or bone whale asleep close off our port bow. Three boats were lowered. I was the harpooner of the captain's boat, and the mate and second mate were in charge of the other two. We got to the whale without disturbing him, and I gave him the harpoon. That woke him, I can tell you! He was the maddest whale I ever saw, being both sleep mad and harpoon mad. He turned on our boat and came at us with a rush. Instead of striking us head on he passed our bow, and as he was passing struck the boat with his flukes. He cut us square in two and turned the boat bottom side up quicker than ever any boat had been capsized before. My leg became fouled in the harpoon line, and in a second I found myself being towed through the water at about 20 knots an hour and several feet below the surface. The line was wound about my leg just below the knee and had cut deep into the flesh.

"I knew my end was not more than a minute ahead of me unless I got loose from that rushing whale. My knife was in my belt. I got it out, and somehow—but I never knew just how—I managed to reach down and sever the line. The next second I appeared on the surface, popping up in so sudden and startling a manner that I almost scared the mate and his boat's crew into fits, for I came up right alongside of their boat. It seems that just as the whale struck our boat and wrecked it the mate fastened a harpoon in the enraged monster and was being towed by it to the windward, and I had come to the surface just as they were passing that spot. They took me in on the fly, as it were, but I was very little better than dead. The second mate had picked up the captain and the rest of the crew.

"As the whale was tearing along with the mate's boat in tow he discovered our vessel lying to, and making up his mind that there lay the source of all his troubles he turned and charged like a tornado upon it. He hurled himself against the vessel three different times, knocking off the cutwater clear to the wood ends and starting a bad leak. While he was thus engaged the mate's boat got near, and the furious whale turned on it. The mate thrust his lance against the whale's head and threw all his weight upon it as the whale rushed forward, while the crew backed the boat for their lives. At that critical moment the captain, with the second mate's boat, came up. He had a bomb lance and fired it at the whale. The bomb struck the great head of the monster on the bone above the left eye and exploded on the outside, doing no damage except to momentarily stun the whale. He soon recovered and charged on the captain's boat. That boat being free avoided the rush, and then the whale made again for the mate's boat.

"Three different times the captain's boat drew the whale away and saved the mate and his crew. At the fourth time the whale didn't turn aside from his furious rush on the mate, and I thought our fate was sealed. With a less experienced and true handed sailor than our captain it would have been sealed, too, in a very few seconds more. The whale charged right upon us, and his giant flukes were in the air, to swoop down and crush us beneath their mighty and irresistible sweep, but that gave the plucky captain the chance he wanted. He drove the hand lance into the whale clear to its seizing, and the monster fell back in the water between the two boats, neither one escaping by more than a yard.

"The captain's plunge with the hand lance had been true to its mark. Both boats backed away from the struggling whale. He lashed the sea into foam and whirled about in an aimless and bewildered manner. Presently he sent up a spout of water that was red with blood, and a lusty shout went up from a score of throats. Every man knew it was all over with the ugly foe. We had a good two days' work repairing our vessel, but we got 120 barrels of oil and 8,000 pounds of bone out of the whale, and our victory was a great one."—New York Sun.

A WHITE HOUSE GUIDE.

Entertaining Conversation of an Executive Employee of a Few Months Ago.

Not to be too personal, this account of White House visiting is taken from an experience in the past. It is on a day when the president is in the big east room, shaking hands with any Tom, Dick or Augustus who wishes to inflict himself on the head of the nation. There are numerous familiarly polite men lounging in the vestibule of the mansion. Their dress consists of indifferent business suits, very ready made in appearance, black, brown, blue and gray, ill fitting and often shabby. These are the servants of the place, whose duties are to show the guests through the public rooms and at times through the private ones. Their appellation in this house of the people is "guide." They are particularly the persons from whom the visitor to Washington gets the tone of the White House. If any one claims that these are gentlemen in office and not serving men, let him try them with a fee. It is not exacted, is forbidden, but—try it!

Through with the president, a group of people are invited by a guide to go into the other rooms.

"These rooms has all been newly decorated," he says, "and after designs by Miss' Harrison, and 'tain't necessary for me to say that she's a artist." A sweep of his hand takes in floor, wall, ceiling and furniture.

"This," he goes on, "is the famous blue room, where the president receives with his lady beside him. You have all heard of going behind the line. Well, the president stands here with his lady on his right and the ladies of the cabinet. That makes the line. After they shake hands the elight go behind the line where all the dignataries is.

"That's right, ma'am. Sit right down." This to a woman who has rested against the arm of a chair. "All sit down and make yourself comfortable. People seem to think this house belongs to Miss' Harrison, but it don't. It belongs to all of you. Miss Harrison wants everybody to feel at home. Now, in this room Miss' Cleveland was married. She stood right there where that lady's feet is."

The modest appearing little woman on whose feet all eyes were centered looked inclined to put them in her pocket, but the guide went on remorselessly. "Where that lady's feet is placed."

"This clock," said the guide later, pausing before an elaborate mantel clock, "and them side ornaments was presented to George Washington, our first president, by Layfayette and presented by he to the White House. And it has ben going ever sence. Them lights are electric and just put in. You turn them on and off this way," illustrating. "Seeing as you look interested, sir, you can turn them on once if you like."

The man to whom this kind permission was granted bears a name synonymous with electricity, but the famous electrician, as courteous as the guide, gravely manipulated the button.

Leaving after a quarter of an hour more of this talk, and a visit to the conservatories, and a peep at the private dining room, Selina expressed herself in this fashion:

"All applicants for such work in the White House should pass a civil service examination before being accepted. Secondly, they should be obliged to wear a distinctive dress. Call it a uniform if the word livery is objectionable. But these men should look as neat and trig as postmen, motormen and car conductors. Thirdly, they must be as willing and obliging as they are at present. I would like to leave our president's house once without feeling half amused and half vexed and altogether ashamed, as I am today."—Newport News.

Queer Japanese Beliefs.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among these are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as the tiger which is said to turn as white as a polar bear on the date of his one thousandth birthday. They also believe in a species of fox which if it lives to be 50 years old without having been chased by a dog transforms itself into a beautiful woman. This same fox, if he can manage to live for a century, gains additional powers, such as becoming a wonderful wizard, etc. When he lives to be 1,000 years old, he becomes a "celestial fox," with nine golden tails, and has the power of going to heaven and returning whenever he chooses.

These Japs also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished by their monstrous size or by the multiplication of their members. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant; boxes with eight legs; monkeys with four ears and seven tails; fishes with 10 heads attached to one body, the flesh of this last monster being a sure cure for boils, bites of poisonous serpents, hydrophobia, etc.—Philadelphia Press.

States Meant.

A monthly statement, Mo.; a weakly statement, Ill.; a personal statement, Me.; a graphic statement, Del.; a written statement, Penn.; a decimal statement, Tenn.; an interesting statement, Miss.; a historical statement, Ark.; a confident statement, Kan.; a rich statement, Ore.; a lump statement, Mass.; a spirited statement, R. I.; a medical statement, Md.; a French statement, Va.; a French statement, Ala.; an emphatic statement, O.; an emphatic statement, La.; a close statement, N. Y.; a neutral statement, I. T.; a neat statement, Wash.; a doubtful statement, Wy.—Truth.

A Pleasant Opinion.

Patient—Do you think smoking hurtful, doctor?

Doctor Smarte—Hem! Ah—do you smoke?

Patient—Yes.

Doctor—But not enough to hurt you. that's easy enough to see.

Patient goes off happy and never begrudges the $3 he pays for this unbiased verdict.—Boston Transcript.

INDIANS AS JUDGES.

THEY HOLD COURT IN DISTRICTS OF THE RESERVATIONS.

Some of the Penalties They May Impose For Offenses and Their Fees For Performing the Marriage Ceremony—Fines For Vagrancy.

During the recent discussions of Indian affairs reference has been made to the judicial establishments on the reservations. The obstacles to carrying on there a full system of courts will be apparent on reflecting, in the first place, that a large proportion of the Indians are among the five civilized tribes, who have arrangements of their own under the local governments assured to them, and next, that among the remainder there are many thousands who by taking allotments have become citizens and have passed under the jurisdiction of the states and territories where they reside.

However, there is an existing system of Indian courts organized under the regulations of the interior department, while the act of 1885 gave to the United States and territorial courts jurisdiction of crimes committed by Indians upon their reservations. Recently the regulations for the Indian courts proper have been enlarged, so as to make them more efficient. Among the changes in the new regulations is the division of the reservations into districts, with a judge in each, while there is a court in banc for the reservation, having a clerk to keep its records. A reservation may be divided into three or more such districts, following, as far as practicable, county lines, provided that the Indian populations, including mixed bloods and whites, who are members of the tribes, shall be nearly equal in the districts. If there are no county lines, natural boundaries are used, so that the Indians can easily ascertain what districts they belong to.

All the judges are Indians and must be men of intelligence, integrity, good moral character and monogamists, preference being given to those who "read and write English readily, wear citizens' dress and engage in civilized pursuits." They are appointed by the commissioner of Indian affairs for the term of one year, subject of course to earlier removal on proof of misconduct. Each judge must reside in the district and hold court at least one day in each week.

Any Indian engaging in the sun dance, scalp dance or war dance, or any similar feast, so called, shall be punished by withholding his rations for 10 days or less, or by imprisonment for 10 days or less, on the first offense, a second offense bringing not less than 10 nor more than 30 days of withholding rations, or imprisonment.

Plural or polygamous marriages hereafter entered into receive a penalty of $20 to $50, or hard labor for 20 to 60 days, or both, and the forfeit of right to rations while continuing in such relations. Other immorality of like nature is punished. The willful destruction of property of other Indians requires the making up of its value and also 30 days' imprisonment, "and the plea that the person convicted or the owner of the property in question was at the time a 'mourner,' and that thereby the taking, destroying or injuring of the property was justified by the customs or rites of the tribes shall not be accepted as sufficient defense."

Intoxication and the selling of intoxicants are put on the same footing, bringing a penalty of between $20 and $100 or imprisonment between 30 and 90 days. The rounders of the police courts of cities who are accustomed to the $10 or 10 days of civilization might be aghast at the introduction of these penalties. Among the misdemeanors, a neglect or refusal to perform road duty brings a fine of $1.50 for every day omitted or imprisonment for not more than five days. Another noteworthy provision proposed in the new regulations reads as follows:

"That if an Indian refuses or neglects to adopt habits of industry or to engage in civilized pursuits or employments, but habitually spends his time in idleness and loafing, he shall be deemed a vagrant and guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon the first conviction thereof be liable to a fine of not more than $5 or to imprisonment of not more than 10 days, and for any subsequent conviction thereof to a fine of not more than $10 or to imprisonment for not more than 30 days, in the discretion of the court."

This inclusion of vagrancy among offenses punishable by the courts is among the changes in the new regulations. Any one who adopts the practices of medicine men or the arts of the conjurer to prevent Indians from abandoning their barbarous customs is to be imprisoned between 10 and 30 days for the first offense and not more than six months for a subsequent one. The deterring of Indians from following civilized habits and pursuits, or their children from attending schools, is also included under this regulation.

The district court judges have power to solemnize marriages between Indians, the fee for each not exceeding $1, and they are to furnish certificates of such marriages.

The Indian court in general term, comprising all the judges on a reservation, sits at least once a month, and a majority constitutes a quorum, but any judgment to be valid must have the concurrence of a majority of all the judges on the reservation, and upon a failure of such a majority to agree the case must be tried again at a subsequent term. It has jurisdiction in all appeals from the district court and exclusive jurisdiction over all civil cases between Indians and in the administration of their estates.

It will be seen therefore that the Indian courts are of no little importance, while of course the federal, state and territorial courts also have a jurisdiction which need not be described in detail.—Washington Letter.

Sincere Wishes.

Jones—I'm quite a near neighbor of yours now, Mrs. Golightly. I've taken a house on the river.

Mrs. G.—Oh, well, I hope you'll drop in some day.—Exchange.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
JARS
In the family are more often the result of disordered digestion than most people know.
BEECHAM'S PILLS will keep peace in a family, by curing Sick Headache, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, Constipation and all Bilious and Nervous Disorders arising from these causes.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

OPERA HOUSE
Hardware Store,
T. H. BJOIN, Prop.
SHELF AND HEAVY—
Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils, Glass, Wood and Iron Pumps,
SASH AND DOORS.
In fact everything kept in a first-class Hardware store. The stock is clean and good and
—THE PRICES LOW.
Call and examine my stock and I will convince you I can save you money.
T. H. BJOIN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
Reckitt Bloc, - - Crookston, Minn.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
Besides carrying a full and complete line of COFFINS, CASKETS AND BURIAL SUPPLIES,
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—
Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 105½ Broadway,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.
BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.
BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston, Minn.

LIGHT OUT OF DARKNESS

By Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY GODEY PUBLISHING COMPANY

[Continued from page 3.]

"Yes, my Lilly By far the largest proportion."

"Then why did that wicked woman cast unjust aspersions on you?" said Rose, with excitement.

"None of the members of the company will credit her words, nor indeed the business world generally, my pet. The unkind language you heard was simply the ebullitions of a disappointed and ambitious woman, who should receive our pity rather than our harsh censure."

"But, dear papa, tell me, please, is this failure so severe that any will lose or suffer by you?"

"My dear little rosebud, we shall be able to pay every penny. Your eyes can meet the gaze of the universe fearlessly and sure that none is impoverished through our losses."

"Then who cares, or why should we all look pale and anxious over this?" replied the bright girl, clapping her hands joyously.

"But, little one, are you aware that to do this we must leave our pleasant home, resign all the appliances of ease and luxury that now surround us, lose caste among many of your companions, while we labor and economize strictly to be able to supply the family with the bare comforts of life? How can my darlings endure this great and sudden change?"

"Grandly, my dear papa. I don't dislike the change at all. I was telling sister but a few days ago that our mode of life was not satisfactory, being, as it has always been, utterly useless. For years we have been simple works of art about the house for others to look after and arrange in suitable lights. In the morning we cannot rise till Marie or Therese comes to dress us, and all day long they dance attendance upon our whims. At night we must be disrobed and put to bed like little babies. I have long felt dissatisfied with myself, because I was conscious that I was not developing all the powers God had given me and yet could not understand how to change the daily routine of busy nothings. Now we may at least learn what hands and feet were made for."

"But, dear father," said the eldest sister, with some hesitation, "I thought our mother had a fortune invested in her own name, entirely subject to her control, to provide for just such an emergency as this. That surely will supply all your wants. Then why speak of returning to the hard labor and close calculations of your younger days? Your children will cheerfully do that. Our parents should rest now and allow us to learn the same useful lessons you so wisely practiced in your youth."

"Why, my dear girl," said Mrs. Newton, smiling, "your thoughts seem to run in the same channel as your brother George's."

"They often do that, mother," said George, throwing his arm lovingly around his sister.

"And do not mine also, Sir Brother?" asked Rose with an injured air.

"No, Skylark; oh, no. Your thoughts 'soar singing up to heaven's high arch' and thence descend upon us with sunshine and rosy hues in the darkest hour, you darling little sunbeam, you!"

"But, Rosie, what will Jasper say to this hasty descent and all this talk about learning the use of hands and feet, eh? I fear that he will rebel at the two years' probation yet to be passed and spirit you off to that southern Eden he so enthusiastically portrays to prevent you from sharing with us the changes we anticipate."

Mr. and Mrs. Newton tried by a warning look unseen by Rose to stop George's allusion to Grenville, but soon felt that he was acting wisely. A word apparently lightly spoken might awaken a train of thought that would in some degree prepare her for the first shock should her betrothed prove unworthy.

Rose answered her brother gayly: "Never you fear for Jasper. He does not alone love wealth or station and will be the same to me in a lowly cottage working with embrowned and hardened hands as when playing the butterfly in these grand old parlors, or if he cannot," her gay smile suddenly faded and a look of hard, stern resolution such as her friends never witnessed before settled about her lips, changing the expression of her whole face—"or if he cannot—then let him pass. He would not be worth regretting."

"Ah, that may be," said her sister, "not worth regretting, but could you help it, darling?"

"Help it?" cried the spirited girl. "I should scorn such a man too deeply to mourn for him. But, Lil, are you trembling lest Eustace may wish to desert you? Ah, I shall not allow that. He has been too long a true brother to fear any change in him."

"No, sister, I am not fearing or doubting but one cannot resist the intrusion of many unwonted thoughts in contemplating a change so entire and sudden. But you need not fear I shall do Eustace injustice. We have known each other too long. I would as readily doubt George, or you, my only sister."

"It would be very strange, my children," said Mr. Newton, "if your minds did not at times turn toward possibilities until you have seen both your friends and they fully understand your present position. I do not say this because I have the remotest suspicion that loss of wealth will produce any change either in Dunbar or Grenville. On the contrary, I expect to see increasing tenderness and a more earnest desire to shield you from trial and hardship."

Rose sat unusually quiet, and George's loving watchfulness changed the current of her thoughts by saying:

"Your question, my gentle Lilly, remains unanswered. You were inquiring concerning property belonging to our mother. Could you not read an answer in father's glance which made her cheek as fresh and blooming as your own? She will not accept by right that which would embarrass her husband in settling the whole concern on the broadest basis of old fashioned honesty."

"And that, my son, is but simply doing my duty not at all deserving your gallant compliment. Would you willingly give any the least occasion to accuse your father of wrong or injustice because legally I might retain that which could enable him to make a most satisfactory settlement of this whole business?"

"Oh, no, mother; I rejoice that you can do as you propose if by so doing the most captious can find no blame in father, yet you must allow me to be a little proud of you notwithstanding."

"And all this time," interrupted Rose, "no one has spoken or thought of Alfred and Ralph."

"You are indeed greatly mistaken, my child; our boys have not been long absent from our thoughts. I am very thankful that these developments have transpired during their vacation. I hope we can manage to aid them in completing their education."

"Alfred will never agree to that—never," cried Rose. "Do you think he would consent to our laboring to keep him in college at such a crisis as this? No, indeed; I know my brother better. Much as he prizes his literary advantages, they would never repay him for the deprivation of sharing with us in these united efforts."

"Patience, Rosie," interrupted Mrs. Newton, smiling. "We have not a doubt of our boy's willingness to share in all the self denial or hardship that may be in store for us, but his college course is nearly completed, and he will be capable of so much more remunerative labor if he can enter upon life with a well cultivated mind that it would seem wise for him to finish, even if some extra exertion on our part and self denial on his may be necessary."

"I think," said George, "we understand your wishes and am sure we would all most gladly aid in perfecting them, but I fully agree with sister that it will be difficult to convince Alfred that he cannot participate in our work from the commencement."

"I appreciate the sentiments you both express," said Mr. Newton, "but we will leave the matter for a later discussion. I must now have a few moments' conversation with your mother, while you, my daughters, lay aside your riding attire and ring for tea. This evening we must be denied to all callers and meet in a strictly family council."

CHAPTER IV.

We turn with great reluctance, even for a few moments, from this peaceful home, whose inmates look calmly to the uncertain future, upheld by a "conscience void of offense toward God and man," to a most painful contrast.

A more wretched person can hardly be imagined than Le Barron as with bowed head and folded arms he passed from the store and bent his steps homeward. Ah, what a home awaited him! Well he knew how the tidings he must communicate would be received by his family.

Whichever way he turned despair and misery stared him in the face, and his own conscience rose from its long slumbers, and now a stern accuser set his sins in order before him. It carried him back to his youthful days and traced the beginnings of the dark tempest that now raged so fiercely around him, threatening utter destruction. It whispered of the father, too early lost, whose whole life had exemplified the true principles of integrity he so earnestly urged upon his son; of the tender mother, whose latest breath bade him follow in his father's footsteps and trust in his father's God. Now it recalls the fascinations of the gay young beauty whose heart could only be bought by wealth and foolish splendor, not given in generous love. Then came trooping before his fevered vision the temptations to rash speculations, far overreaching honesty, to which he had yielded, and which, most unfortunately, proved so successful as to place him early among wealthy men and enabled him to secure the long coveted bride.

Ah, how soon did he wake from his enchanting dream of love to find all that his heart had so desired turn to bitter ashes! This sad disappointment in the home he had so fondly pictured and the little satisfaction found in the wealth and high position gained by scarcely honest means recalled his parents' efforts to inculcate true principles, which, had they been adopted, might even then have shielded him from the sorrows, already foreshadowed, in the early period of his middle life. When at last Mr. Newton accepted him as a partner, how firmly did he vow to his conscience never again to indulge in the dangerous experiment of unscrupulous speculation! The strict prohibitions against any such attempts, which were a part of the rules of Mr. Newton's business, helped to confirm him in these wise resolutions. Once secure of the partnership, he most anxiously strove to conceal from Mr. Newton some of the business transactions of his earlier life, well assured if once known his continuance in his present position would be of very short duration.

For years he had stood well with the community. A few whispers of his former "haste to be rich" reached Mr. Newton, but after a strict yet quiet investigation he found no cause to believe the rumors or withdraw his confidence, and the reports gradually died away. Meantime his home was not the bright and refreshing spot his youthful fancy had pictured. Le Barron was not naturally a bad hearted man. His love for his wife had been almost idolatrous. He fancied her perfection, but a few short months dispelled the illusion, and for many years he had been the slave of her whims and caprices.

Mrs. Le Barron was early educated to feel that wealth and high social position should be her life's ambition. Her parents were poor, but very proud, and when the rising young merchant, Le Barron, wooed and won their daughter their joy was unbounded.

Whose house so grand? Whose carriage, with its superb horses and liveried outriders, made such daily sensation? Whose parties, that vied with the tone of the old world, were so much the style as their daughter's, Mrs. Le Barron?"

Was not this sufficient to satisfy a parent's wildest ambition? Why should they be troubled or dissatisfied if their child's private life was one of strife and peevish complaining—if misrule and ungoverned passion made perpetual discord between the inmates of that elegant mansion?

Such were the parents of Mrs. Le Barron, and such the sentiments they had exhibited and taught her to act upon from her childhood. Truly they had "sown the wind," and the terrible harvest was ripening fast.

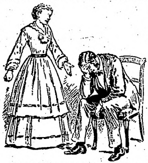
Before Mrs. Le Barron's insane extravagance her husband's wealth melted like frost before the sun. He saw the riches for which he had forsaken his father's God "taking to themselves wings," and the position among his brother merchants, whose foundations he had laid in sand, was already crumbling away and tottering to its fall. Sleepless nights and days of dread were silvering his hair and bowing the tall form that once towered so erect above his fellows. He was a premature old man.

When Mr. Newton went abroad, Le Barron's anxieties were almost too weighty for him to preserve the semblance of self control. It was said Le Barron was confining himself too closely to his business, and Mr. Newton with his usual unselfishness proposed that he should remain at home and that the invalid should have the advantage of the change. Ah, little could Mr. Newton imagine the shock this kind proposition gave him. The miserable man knew that to leave then would be swift destruction, revealing at once the fearful position of his own affairs.

But still able to preserve an outward calm he courteously declined the proffered relaxation on the plea of great distaste for traveling, and with an earnest assurance that his health was firmer than his appearance indicated he smilingly bade his friend farewell.

Le Barron struggled through the first year of his friend's absence, knowing surely that this absence and the unsuspicious nature of the junior partner alone saved him from speedy exposure. In this state the grand temptation found him. Goaded to madness he joined hands with the tempter and fell, gaining for himself one more short respite from clamorous creditors by a clever forgery of Mr. Newton's name. And now he goes to tell this fatal story to those whose sins have united to drag him down to irretrievable destruction. Bankrupt! Dishonored! A forger! Fugitive from justice or only shielded by him whom he has pecuniarily ruined, yet bearing in his own heart the punishment of his crimes, how can he endure the terrible meeting with those harsh spirits at home?

Who would willingly follow him as he enters his dwelling and listen to the cruel recriminations, the bitter taunts, with which that heartless woman, wild with rage, assails him, when, with trembling frame and quivering lips, he reveals the misery and shame before them?



Poor Le Barron sank into a chair.

We cannot describe the terror of that scene, and surely we would not if we could. It would be like standing by the mouth of the pit. It was the few words of this dreadful scene that Lillian and Rose heard which sent them bewildered and frightened home to their parents.

Poor Le Barron sank into a chair at the first outburst of his wife's passion, stunned and moaning like one in a fearful dream.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

He Remembered His Past Life.

The man who prides himself upon the fact that he is recovering from his bashfulness says: "Yes, I used to be miserably timid, for a fact. And I remember once, when I was trying to cut a good figure with the mother of a certain young lady with whom I was much taken and was doing the extremely attentive by putting aside a portiere for her to pass through a doorway, a button on my coat sleeve caught in her hair and lifted her false front nearly off her head.

"My feelings while I was unfastening that button can never be described by me, and my horrible nervousness seemed to prolong the operation into hours. You have heard of the things that rush into a drowning man's mind. Well, I think about the same number crowded into mine. I knew that from that moment I dared hope for nothing from that quarter, and my expectations were blasted forever. I never dared to call on that young woman again."—Chicago Journal.

A Postmaster With a Sure Job.

"Few die and none resign" holds true of a certain postoffice in York county. The office pays a salary of only $36 a year, and the man who holds it has been postmaster for a quarter of a century. He has tried a number of times to resign, but the village folk have every time prevailed on him to retain the office. Nobody else in town wants it, and the neighbors have become so used to calling at his house for their letters that they cannot bear the thought of having a change. This postmaster can hardly be called an offensive partisan.—Lewiston Journal.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Pipestone tow mills have started up.

Tracey will have a new school building, to cost $25,000.

The State Historical society has endorsed the goldenrod as the state flower.

Charley Johnson whipped Billy Hawkins at Minneapolis in six rounds.

The Mapleton bank is to increase its stock and reorganize on the national plan.

St. Paul plasters will strike July 1 unless they get $3.50 per eight hours work.

Bishop Gilbert of the Episcopal church has gone to Europe for his health.

At Chaska John Wonyohu was shot and killed by the Rodmaker boys, who mistook him for a wolf or bear.

The soldiers sent to Leech Lake at the time of the shooting of an Indian by Dr. Walker, have returned to Fort Snelling.

The Twin City Athletic club, at Minneapolis, has given up the ghost. The Johnson-Hawkins fiasco was the last straw.

Charges of corrupt conduct and malfeasance have been brought against Chief Runge of the Minneapolis fire department.

The collection of customs duties at St. Paul for June amounted to $14,000. The internal revenue taxes collected were $215,021.82.

The plans for the Duluth elevator have been approved by the governor, and proposals for the erection will be advertised for at once.

The report of the state treasurer for June shows a credit balance of $2,017,-809.93 to the various funds. The refunding tax fund has been overdrawn $3,689.54.

The supreme court has pronounced the law passed last winter to allow Minneapolis to issue additional court house bonds unconstitutional. It was held to be special legislation.

The judges of the respective districts of the state are meeting at the state capitol. The object is to secure a uniformity of practice throughout the state, according to the law of 1878.

Jacob Martin, a farmer living near Morgan, shot five times at John Dittburner near Dittburner's residence. The cause of the shooting was a divorce granted to Martin from Dittburner's daughter.

The survey of the Mesaba range extension of the Duluth and Iron Range, leaving the main line three miles west of Two Harbors, is about completed. The construction will probably be deferred until finances are easier.

Register Nichols has prepared a summary of the unsold government lands in the Duluth district. There are in Aitkin county 26,880 acres; Carlton, 5,860; Cook, 469,080; Itasca, 1,587,290; Lake, 787,580; St. Louis, 1,207,690.

On account of the world's fair and the breaking down of the auditorium there will be no Waseca Chautauqua this year. A new auditorium will be built at a cost of $5,000 and next year the assembly will be in full swing.

In the diocesan convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at Faribault it was voted to hold the next council in St. Paul. A committee of five was appointed to canvass concerning the endowment of a new diocese to report next year.

It is likely that suits will soon be brought in the courts of Kandiyohi county to compel the stockholders in the defunct Scandinavian Elevator company to pay the debts of the concern, as the assignee, George H. White, has been unable to find any assets.

The Pine County bank, Hinckley, closed its doors recently, and another branch of the Pine County bank at Sandstone has closed also. The banks were owned by W. H. Grant & Son. It is said that the deposits in the Pine County bank amounted to $58,000.

The Newport mad dog scare is still on. A fine pair of Jersey twin calves are both showing symptoms of the disease. The mother of these calves died a week ago of the disease which is affecting so many of the animals here, and which is supposed to be rabies. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

In the United States court at St. Paul Saturday, Ole O. Ostrum was found guilty of sending an obscene letter through the mails to Elsie Paulson, a girl in her teens, residing at Elbow Lake. Nah-gon-e-bi-nance was convicted of furnishing liquor to a fellow Indian. Charles Cadotte and John Cameron pleaded guilty of selling liquor to Indians.

A meeting of the state high school board, consisting of Governor Nelson, President Northrup and Superintendent Kiehle, was held at the state university building Thursday. The principal matter accomplished was the election of an officer to be known as high school inspector. His work will be to visit every school under direction of the high school board at least once every year, and to report to the board. Professor George B. Aiton is the first incumbent at a salary of $2,000.

Hung Herself to a Banister.

NORWOOD, Minn., July 3.—Mrs. Henry Klose committed suicide by hanging herself to the banister of the stairway. She was insane and had been in the asylum at St. Peter. She made three attempts before succeeding.

Bad Blaze at Keokuk.

KEOKUK, Ia., July 3.—The Empire Manufacturing company, manufacturers of agricultural implements, lost its extensive plant by fire, entailing a loss of $60,000, with $83,000 insurance.

MRS. ELMIRA HATCH.
HEART DISEASE 20 YEARS.
Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
DEAR SIRS: For 20 years I was troubled with heart disease. Would frequently have falling spells and smothering at night. Had to sit up or get out of bed to breathe. Had pain in my left side and back most of the time; at last I became dropsical. I was very nervous and nearly worn out. The least excitement would cause me to faint. I was also much troubled with fluttering. For the last fifteen years I could not sleep on my left side or back until I began taking your New Heart Cure. I had not taken it very long until I felt much better, and I can now sleep on either side or back without the least discomfort. I have no pain, smothering, dropsy, no wind on stomach or other disagreeable symptoms. I am able to do all my own housework without any trouble and consider myself cured.
Elkhart, Ind., 1888. MRS. ELMIRA HATCH.
It is now four years since I have taken any medicine. Am in better health than I have been in 40 years. I honestly believe that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure saved my life and made me a well woman. I am now 62 years of age, and am able to do a good day's work.
May 29th, 1892. MRS. ELMIRA HATCH.
THOUSANDS CURED
SOLD ON A POSITIVE GUARANTEE.
TRY DR. MILES' PILLS, 50 DOSES 25 CTS.

A MEDICINE THAT MAKES GOOD BLOOD
GILMORE'S AROMATIC WINE
Will completely change the blood in your system in three months' time, and send new, rich blood coursing through your veins. If you feel exhausted and nervous, are getting thin and all run down, Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which is a tonic and not a beverage, will restore you to health and strength. Mothers, use it for your daughters. It is the best regulator and corrector for all ailments peculiar to woman. It enriches the blood and gives lasting strength. It is guaranteed to cure Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and all Summer Complaints, and keep the bowels regular.
Sold by all druggists for $1 per bottle.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE.
The Great English Remedy.
Before and After.
Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases. Is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps.
Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.
Sold at Crooksten by A. G. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893
Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.
DAILY. SUNDAY WEEKLY.
The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.
A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.
Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.
Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the PRESS.
The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.
AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM
The Press has no superior in New York.
THE PRESS
Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year	$5 00
" " 6 months	2 50
" " 1 "	45
Daily only, one year	3 00
" " 4 months	1 00
Sunday, one year	2 00
Weekly Press, one year	1 00

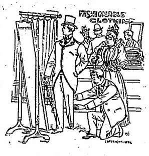
Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.
Address THE PRESS, 38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED.
If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK

WE SUIT



Everybody Every Time.
Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits.
Suits that Fit to a T.
LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.
Who Wouldn't be Suited
With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?
That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their
SUMMER SUITS.
Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.
BOSTON - - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Scandia-American Bank,
Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.
C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.
DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the guardianship of Lena O. Tommerdal, insane

On reading and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Solibakke, guardian of the above named insane person, it is ordered, pursuant to the prayer of said petitioner, that a time be fixed for examining and allowing the account; that said account be examined and petition heard by the Judge of this court on the 17th day of July, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in said county.

Ordered further, that public notice be given to all persons interested of the time and place of examining said account by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston this 17th day of June, A. D. 1893.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.

(10-12)

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 SHOE WILL NOT RIP.
Do you wear them? When next in need try a pair.
Best in the world.
$5.00 $4.00 $3.50 $2.50 $2.25 $2.00 FOR GENTLEMEN
$3.00 $2.50 $2.00 FOR LADIES
$2.00 $1.75 FOR BOYS
$1.75 FOR MISSES
If you want a fine DRESS SHOE, made in the latest styles, don't pay $6 to $8, try my $3, $3.50, $4.00 or $5 Shoe. They fit equal to custom made and look and wear as well. If you wish to economize in your footwear, do so by purchasing W. L. Douglas Shoes. Name and price stamped on the bottom, look for it when you buy.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass. Sold by
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

1893			JULY.			1893
Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fri.	Sat.
						1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31

ATTENDANCE FOR JUNE.

World's Fair Patronage Not Up to Expectations.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, July. 1—About 2,400,000 adults and children paid their way into the exposition grounds during the month just closed, the average daily attendance being 80,000. The largest crowd was present June 15, when 166,069 paid admissions were recorded. On the first day of June the attendance was but 39,024, that day being set down as having the smallest crowd of the month. The greatest Sunday attendence was 71,213, and the smallest 56,000, which was the poorest attendence recorded, with two exceptions, during the month. The receipts of the month's operation of the fair, while admittedly good,

Are Not Satisfactory.

The management hoped to pay all expenses and liquidate some of their outstanding debts by this time. The running expenses of the fair have been met, but not much has been left over to pay the debts incurred during May or to lift the floating debt still hanging over the gigantic enterprise. The directory is urging upon the executive officers and the chiefs of departments the necessity of cutting down expenses so that the daily expenses of running the fair shall not exceed $13,000, but it is a herculean and almost impossible task, as the efficiency of the working forces of the fair must be maintained. The total attendance for June is a great improvement over the total for May, which was 1,500,870 a difference of nearly 1,800,000 in favor of the month just closed.

Sunday Opening.

The open Sunday is a bare success financially, but the light attendance on these days during June was instrumental in keeping the average daily attendance below the 100,000 mark. There are too many exhibits closed on Sunday to give the fair a bright appearance and this, it would seem, conveys to some people the idea that they are not getting what they term "their money's worth." This fact added to the well known antipathy of the Sabbatharians to Sunday opening will probably work to the greater or less injury of a Sunday fair.

The United States government is keeping its building closed on Sundays and this is in itself a powerful drawback, for this building contains much to delight and entertain.

Senator Stanford's Will.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The will of Senator Stanford has been filed. The remarkable feature of the document is that Senator Stanford, outside of the real estate and $2,500,000 which he gives to the Stanford university, has given all the remainder of his vast estate absolutely to his wife, or in his own words "to be disposed of as she pleased in her life time or by will at her death."

Blatchford Weaker.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 4.—Associate Justice Blatchford is reported by his physician, Dr. Rankin, as more feeble than for the past week, but lack of strength is the only change noticeable in his condition.

Guest of Mrs. Davis.

CRANSTONS, N. Y., July 4.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis and her daughter will leave Cranstons for Narragansett Pier. Mrs. Grant will spend a few weeks at Narragansett as the guest of Mrs. Davis.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, July 3, 1893.

HOGS—15c lower.

CATTLE—Slow selling at 25@50c lower. Prime steers, $3.75@4.00; good steers, $3.50@3.75; prime cows, $3.00@3.50; good cows, $2.50@3.00; common to fair cows, $1.25@2.25; light veal calves, $3.00@3.75; heavy calves, $1.95@3.00; stockers, $1.75@2.00; feeders, $2.50@3.00; bulls, $1.75@2.00.

SHEEP—Good muttons in demand. Muttons, $3.50@4.25; lambs, $3.00@4.00; stockers and feeders, $2.50@3.00.

Receipts—Hogs, 900; cattle, 20; calves, 5, sheep, 25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, July , 1893.

CATTLE—Steady.

HOGS—Weak, 15@20c lower. Heavy, $5.65@5.90; mixed and medium, $5.55@5.85; light, $5.55@5.90.

SHEEP—Steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 3,000.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 3, 1893.

WHEAT—June closing, 56¾c; July opening, 57⅝c; highest, 60c; lowest, 57⅝c; closing at 61c; August closing, 63c; September opening, 63¾c; highest, 64⅝c; lowest, 63½c; closing, 64⅝c. On track—No. 1 hard, 63c; No. 1 Northern, 61c; No. 2 Northern, 58½@59c.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 3, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 62⅝c; September, 68⅜@68½c.

CORN—July, 39⅝c; September, 42⅛c.

OATS—July, 27⅝c; September, 26⅛c.

PORK—No trading.

LARD—September, $10.10.

SHORT RIBS—July, $8.25; September, $9.07½.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 64⅝c; September, 67½c.

CORN—July, 39¾c; September, 42⅞c.

OATS—July, 28c; September, 26¼c.

PORK—July, $18.70.

LARD—July, $8.40½; September, $9.10.

RESCUE CREVASSE,

ABOVE NEW ORLEANS, BREAKS SUDDENLY

And Is Doing Great Damage—Large Tract of Country Inundated and a Number of People Perish—Other Unfortunates Imprisoned In Their Homes Suffering For Food.

NEW ORLEANS, July 3.—Suddenly and almost without warning the relentless waters pouring through the Rescue crevasse, now 800 feet wide, swept down the New river basin, carrying destruction and terror in their path, not only imprisoning the unfortunate people in their houses but driving them into the garrets and in many instances to the roofs of the buildings. There many of them are yet huddled, enduring the pangs of hunger, for they have no means of cooking food. In addition to those overwhelmed and drowned in the flood,

Ten Lives Have Been Lost,

a white girl, three colored men, one colored woman and five colored children. The New river country has frequently suffered from overflow but no previous flood has compared in depth, extent or the suddenness of its coming, with the one that now covers it. Places that were wholly unaffected by the crevasses of 1882, 1891 and 1892 are several feet under water, and localities heretofore believed to be above overflow are submerged. Presuming that the water would rise gradually as has been the case in former seasons of inundation and that they would have a week or more within which to move their families, stock and household belongings, a large majority of the people of this unfortunate section had made no preparations whatever for the terrible visitation that came upon them in a single night.

GRAND REUNION.

Days Set Apart For Veterans by World's Fair Officials.

CHICAGO, July 4.—The world's fair managers have set apart Sept. 11, 12, 13 and 14 as old soldiers' days, when the survivors of the various wars will meet in reunion, and recount the days and struggles that tried men's souls, and in the camp together they will live over the scenes that have forever made American valor illustrious on land and sea. It is the desire that the survivors of all the American wars, North, South, East and West, meet together in the grand encampment with the great object of cultivating a closer relation with each other and of promoting the very best interests of the entire country.

The world's fair managers will furnish the music and place to hold meetings and will illuminate the grounds with electricity and have fireworks in honor of the old soldiers who will meet together at the great Columbian exposition on the above dates. There will also be places for all to register and for reunions and camp fires, where the old soldiers and prominent leaders and speakers will have an opportunity to speak. Cheap rates will be given on all railroads for this great meeting and encampment.

NO AGREEMENT REACHED.

Nothing But a Miracle Can Prevent a Rate War.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Nothing but a miracle can prevent a serious passenger rate war in the West. The meeting of the transcontinental lines, which has been in session at the Wisconsin Central office, came to a conclusion without having come anywhere near an adjustment of the war among the Great Northern and other transcontinental roads. The Great Northern persisted in its demand that tourist sleeping cars must be abandoned or run as regular sleepers, if it is to consent to a restoration of rates. Besides, it preferred to take no action in the matter until it has had a conference with the Canadian Pacific and settled its trouble with that line. The Canadian Pacific is angry clear through and declines to attend any meetings with the Great Northern and combined lines until the Great Northern first restores tariff rates. Of course, the Great Northern has no intention whatever of doing so.

HOKE COMING.

The Secretary of the Interior Will Visit the Northwest.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Secretary Smith will in all probability make his Northwest trip, but it will be limited to about 10 days. He will leave Chicago next Sunday evening and will spend a day in Minneapolis and St. Paul, the guest of James J. Hill. Going west over the Great Northern road about a week will be spent in the Yellowstone Park. The return trip will be over the Northern Pacific. He will probably stop a few hours at Grand Forks going out, and at Fargo returning. The Milwaukee chamber of commerce has wired asking whether Mr. Smith will accept a banquet, which he probably will. The party will include Mrs. Smith and their children, with personal friends.

CAPITOL SITES.

Four Tracts Offered to the Minnesota Commission.

ST. PAUL, June 29.—The capitol commission met in the governor's office an opened bids for the new capitol site. Four sites were offered and they are all within a reasonable distance of the center of the city. Two were in immediate vicinity of Central park, one on Jackson street and one immediately north and adjoining the present site. No decision has yet been reached.

Sunday Closing Argument.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Judge Jenkins heard arguments in the Wanamaker & Brown Sunday closing cases. No decision has yet been reached.

IT RUINS FARMERS.

FISHER, Minn., June, 28, 1893.—EDITOR DISPATCH: It may be interesting to you to have an unbiased opinion of the wheat crop probabilities in this and the counties, say in a circle with a radius of some 50 to 60 miles. First let me say that if the outlook of the winter wheat crop is as exaggerated as is that of the crop hereabouts, the United States is going to have the smallest crop in modern years. First, we had a very late spring, with excessive moisture, which so packed the ground that in many places it was so hard that a drill could not be used at all. Again, it was long before the land got into a proper state for seeding that the weeds got ahead of the wheat, and I have passed through many fields where the wheat can hardly be seen at all on account of the weeds. Then the hot winds have done enormous damage. It struck the plant at a time when it was tender from the excessive rapid growth caused by the very favorable weather immediately after seeding and paradoxical as it may seem, the worst misfortune was what appeared for brightest hope. We have had a succession of high, hot winds never before experienced in this country which have baked the wheat in low spots and dried it upon the ridges. On very favored farms wheat looks up to the average, but on 90 per cent of the land the crop is poor and too late. It is usual to have wheat headed out about July 4th, but this year there will not be one acre in a thousand that will be in this condition. The large majority of the wheat will not head out till the 20th or 25th. It takes from 40 to 45 days to mature after heading out under very favorable circumstances. This would carry us to about Aug. 29th to Sept. 3rd before harvesting commences. Only one year in the last twelve has it happened that no killing frosts have occurred long prior to this date, and that was last year, and, according to the law of averages, we can hardly expect a repetition of the good luck. I know the papers are reluctant, for financial reasons I presume, to let the naked truth be known, but I am not false prophet when I say that with but few exceptions there will be hardly any farmers in the circle I have mentioned who will not have "frosted" wheat for sale. Then as you go further west into the sandy districts the outlook is still worse, and I have correspondence to show how terribly the hot winds have affected that part of the country. It is sad pity for the farmer (and those depending on him) that his produce has to be so misrepresented as to ruin him. When in the fall he has been forced to part with his life's blood, the cormorants of speculators will at once discover there is a mistake in the estimate, and up will go the price, and the poor producer will, as usual, be out in the cold. Still the cry will be, Farmers must be making fortunes, because of the high price of wheat! Y. C.

We reproduce the above article from the St. Paul Dispatch for the purpose of calling attention to a fallicious idea that some farmers seem to have in the matter of crop reports in newspapers. As a rule the conscientious country newspaper man likes to get hold of and publish every item that speaks well for the vicinity in which he lives and does business, and as the crop interest, is generally the leading one he naturally seeks to set forth that interest in as glowing colors as possible. For his information he depends mostly upon the reports that his farmer friends give him, as opportunity occurs and is conscientious in his efforts to benefit them and his section of the, country, but these reports, however glowing or however blue they may be has no effect whatever upon the price of wheat because the speculators do not depend upon newspaper reports for their information as to the status or condition of the crops. They have their paid employes constantly in the field upon whose report they base their estimates and if there was not a paper in the wheat country the speculators would still be fully posted upon the actual condition of the crops, more so than any newspaper man is, or in fact more than the average farmer is. These speculators study their business and spend money for information about it but no newspaper ever gets a cent of it for crop reports. Their money goes to people in their own employ and who base their reports upon actual observation of the crops in their territory.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.25 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th. C. A. SHARKEY,

[3tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $30.25, Crookston to Chicago, and return, on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,

[4tf] Agent.

Those who have a

Good Digestion

have little sympathy for the dyspeptic. They can eat everything that comes along. While they can eat rich food without fear of the dyspeptic's bad experiences, they nevertheless greatly appreciate a delicate flavor in their pastry.

Cottolene

when used as a shortening, always produces the finest flavored pastry, which is entirely free from the many objections which the use of lard always produces. Test its value by one trial.

Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes.

Cottolene is sold in three and five pound pails, by all grocers.

Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
—BETWEEN—
Chicago, St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.
Leave Crookston Daily — For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior. 6:40 p.m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg, 7:45 a.m.
have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, call on, wire or write any agent N. P. R. R.
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

ALDERMAN
&
SYLVESTER
—ARE OFFERING—
SPECIAL PRICES
—ON—
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS
AND
WALL PAPER,
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER
THAN EVER.
WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

The P. Lorillard Company has been for many years the largest manufacturer of tobacco in the World—why?
Chew Climax Plug Chew Climax Plug Chew Climax Plug Chew Climax Plug Chew Climax Plug
CHEW CLIMAX PLUG and the reason why will be as clear to you as the noonday sun.
IT'S MUCH THE BEST.

GREAT NORTHERN Railway TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:45 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	7:15 a m
2:57 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:55 p m
4:45 a m	"	Glyndon	"	10:10 p m
6:50 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	8:05 p m
7:50 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	7:05 p m
9:13 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:35 p m
11:40 a m	"	Devils Lake	"	3:40 p m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:15 a m Arrive 7:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday,
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily	For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Ashland, Duluth, Chicago, and for all points South, East and West	at 6:40 p. m.
	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north,	at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c
Eggs, per dozen	15c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	80c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	48.
1 Northern	46.
2 Northern	43.
3 Northern	35.

'Round Home.

How did you enjoy the Fourth?

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

A. J. & A. McKinnon are building an elegant supply cart for the Crookston fire department.

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

County Attorney Holston and wife have gone to Chicago to see the great fair.

F. E. Hunt was in from Red Lake Falls on Monday. Says the grain in that vicinity does not promise as well as it did a short time since, is very short and very weedy.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor:

For the best mower inquire of S. L. Collins & Co. They handle the Champion. Be sure to see it before you purchase.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

"One of my customers came in today and asked me for the best cough medicine I had" says Lew Young, a prominent druggist of Newman Grove Neb. Of course I showed him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and he did not ask to see any other. I have never yet sold a medicine that would loosen and relieve a severe cold so quickly as that remedy does. I have sold four dozen of it within the last sixty days and do not know of a single case where it failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, druggist, Crookston, Minn.

New potatoes appeared in this market last week.

Dept. U. S. Marshal Beaulieu was in the city last week.

Ed. Martin went over to Grand Forks last Thursday.

Wm. Anglim and his son Willie went up to Argyle last week.

Atty. Boughton, of Red Lake Falls was in the city last week.

Pat Russel went to McIntosh to fly the American Eagle on the 4th.

George Fontaine went out to Maple Lake last week for a bit of an outing.

M. W. Jenson, the genial miller of McIntosh came in on Thursday night's train.

Mr. Hoganson, of Rindahl, gave this office a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

Geo. O. Buhn and family went out to Maple Lake on Monday to spend the Fourth at Date's summer resort.

A few transfers of Crookston real estate now and then shows that there is still some business going on.

Jessie Childs, oldest son of E. D. Childs, returned from Oberlin college last week to spend the vacation with his parents.

Friday's rain put a quietus to the game between the Fertile and Crookston clubs—ruled out on a foul, as it were.

Work was commenced on Monday morning on the extension of the sewer from Fletcher street to Loring, along Broadway.

Those great mogul engines on the G. N. road are monsters but don't seem to have a faculty of getting there on time always.

Wild strawberries are said to be quite plentiful a few miles north of the city, in the town of Parnell. That town used to be famous for strawberries.

Wisconsin garden strawberries were sold in this market last week at 12½ cents per quart. They are a trifle larger than the field strawberry and very much sourer.

The case of McManus vs Darby resulted in a verdict for plaintiff in amount claimed. The claim was for shortage on wheat shipped out of the Red River elevator at Carman.

Don't forgot the farmers institute that begins at 10 a. m., on Friday. Be on deck at the morning session and secure a copy of the book to be given away at that time.

Peter Beauchemin came down from Argyle on Thursday night to visit friends in the city for a few days. Pete always finds a royal welcome waiting him here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Walsh drove over to Grand Forks Monday. Mr. Walsh had a good chance to observe the crops, which he says are looking good. He predicts an average of at least 15 bushels per acre for this county.

Blue reports of the condition of crops in Liberty and several other towns in the county reach us. One estimate fixes the average of wheat in Liberty at not over 10 bushels per acre at the very best. Lack of sufficient rain is given as the cause.

The gas company are getting brick upon the ground for their gas plant on Fletcher avenue, near the Great Northern roundhouse. They have their plans for the building nearly complettd and expect soon to begin active operations. They are in hopes to have everything in order to begin operation before snow flies.

Reports from Terrebonne and other towns on the east side indicate great improvements in the crops since the late much needed rains. Our informant states that the wheat acreage is far less this year than usual more attention having been paid to oats and barley than ever before. Farmers have also planted larger tracts to potatoes than usual.

Ole P. Renne, of Rindahl, dropped into our den on Friday to liquidate and chat over old times. Says Rindahl intends to let the eagle scream on the 4th in great shape. Crops have been injured from lack of rain somewhat and he is not sanguine of extraordinarily large yields. He does not seem to think that the scheme for a quadruple division of Polk County is in great favor down there.

As sly as you keep it Mike Leguee has as fine a driving horse as you can scare up in a day's travel, but Mike, with his usual modesty, is not doing much bragging about it.

There was a good deal of anxious watching of the skies on Thursday afternoon as the ominous looking black clouds rolled and tumbled about threatening cyclones or hail, but so far we have heard of neither calamity happening.

By the way that LaChapelle is exercising his trotter, P. Jay in these days it looks like he contemplates taking somebody's scalp on the turf some fine day in the near future. LaChapelle says a good winter's rest at the training stables of Peterson Bros. & Warninger has put more vim into the horse than ever he had before and he will surprise somebody yet.

For several weeks Geo. O. Buhn has had a stranger at work in his shop and everybody who came for work would say: "Where is Buhn?" They would talk with the stranger for several minutes before they would realize the fact that they were talking with Mr. Buhn himself—with a close shave. On the streets, with his smooth clothes on it has been impossible to recognize him until one gets used to the racket.

W. W. Fegan: "The fact that Great Northern road has reached the coast seems to have dawned upon the minds of all competitors for the coast business in a refreshing sort of way. Our line is now being advertised extensively all over the world through the rates recently made. How much do we pay out in Crookston monthly? Well, just now our pay roll amounts to $12,000 for every month in this city."

While the city will not make as great strides this year as last in the way of improvements there is much more building going on than one would suppose would be the case considering the financial strait prevailing everywhere. With all the drawbacks encountered almost every carpenter is busy either on new work or repairs and has been ever since the weather would permit. Taken as a whole our city will show substantial gain this year and should the crops pan out well, both in quantity and price there will be a large sized building boom next year.

T. G. Thompson has got his electric illuminator to work and is having great fun with the critter. When he first got it the masheen balked and utterly refused to illuminate, and although many of the best electricians of the city and state tried to doctor it she would not respond. All the while T. G. has been quietly studying up the case to see if he could find the cause of the strike and apply the remedy and at last he struck the combination—and there is light upon a hitherto dark subject and "she works like a charm," Thompson says.

Maple Lake, as a pleasure resort is better patronized this year than ever before. Those who have not as yet secured a cottage of their own are doing so and others are dependent upon those who make a business of entertaining summer guests. They say that Date's old place, run by Comrade Cleveland this year, is in elegant shape and doing a rushing business. The grounds are in fine condition the buildings thoroughly renovated and everything in apple pie order. Cleveland has worked hard to accomplish this result and deserves abundant success. It is a nice place to go for a bit of recreation.

Hugh Thompson: "The gas company will endeavor to get the plant in complete running order at the earliest possible moment. A Grand Forks man, experienced in such matters will superintend the work of putting the plant in operation. What do I think about the crop prospects? Well, from personal examination and all that I can learn I am forced to the opinion that the average yield of wheat will not exceed 8 bushels per acre. As to the price I can see no possible reason to hope for big prices this fall. Unless the financial conditions improve very materially there will be no money to buy wheat with I'm thinking."

Attorney General Standish, of Bismarck, N. D., spent Thursday night of last week in the city. In this suave, well-dressed individual few of our citizens would recognize farmer Standish who a few years ago was a prominent Polk County granger living near Edna. He went from here to Bartlett N. D., and when the farmer's movement became strong he was elected attorney general for North Dakota. General Standish says he notes many improvements in our city since he left and was well pleased with our appearance. In speaking of Steenerson's effort to break the prohibition law he said that while he did not think he would make it win he had seen enough of Mr. Steenerson in connection with the case to convince him that Mr. Steenerson is a great lawyer—one of the best in the northwest. He says that times are extremely dull at Bismarck and is of the opinion that the price of wheat next fall will not improve them much. He was over on some private business and returned on Friday.

Wm. Campian, of Angus, was doing business at the county seat on Friday.

A. M. Childs has moved his office into the Fournet block. Will occupy the room over the stairway facing Broadway.

Clerk of Court, Nils Muus, left last Thursday for his old home in Goodhue county, this state, and will see the World's Fair before returning.

Prof. McCrillis, of the Fosston Thirteen Towns, gave this office a call last week. Sorry we were out, Mac, next time we will try to be on deck when you call.

During the thunder storm on Thursday morning the residence of August Munn was struck by lightning causing some slight damage. Fortunately no one was hurt and the building did not take fire.

Fairfax will do considerable grading on the road leading from Daniels' place south, past McGuire's place. The county put in $150 toward the work. Pathmaster A. Daniels will superintend the grading.

D. A. Walker, representing the St. Paul News, was in the city last week in the interest of that paper. Since Dr. Shaw became interested in it the tone of that excellent newspaper is very much improved and its political utterances more reliable. The doctor will make a rattling good republican paper of it.

Sauk Centre Avalanche:—"Our office received a pleasant call from A. C. Rhinehart, of East Gand Forks, yesterday. Mr. Rhinehart is one of the commissioners of Polk County, and until recently has been employed by the government as an estimator of pine lands. He was on his way to St. Paul and dropped off to see his friend, A. A. Whitney."

Early on Wednesday afternoon of last week rain began to fall, continuing at intervals through the night, giving us about 5 o'clock Thursday morning a genuine thunder storm, followed by a steady rain during the forenoon. The rain seems to have been pretty general throughout the county and did worlds of good.

C. H. Saake returned from Sauk Centre on Thursday morning much elated with the success he made in enlisting the co-operation of Senator Henry Kellar in his patent coupler. He succeeded in disposing of a half interest in the concern to the senator who will push the device for all it is worth. If anybody can make it a big success Kellar can.

Pete Inglis was up from Barnesville visiting the boys on Saturday. Everybody knows engineer Inglis.

John Cromb was a Twin City visitor this week.

The salaries of many of the postmasters throughout the state have been raised. The Crookston office has been raised from $2,000 to $2,200.

P. S. Ware of the Thief River Falls Press, was in the city on Saturday chatting with old friends and looking up the 4th of July business a little. The Press is keeping up its usual vigorous tone in great shape these hard times and is doing a good work.

For a cut, burn, bruise or scald, there is nothing equal to Chamberlain's Pain Balm, It heals the parts more quickly than any other application, and unless the injury in very serious, no scar is left. For sale by S. A. Wallace, druggist, Crookston.

Hon. J. D. Knudson came in from McIntosh on Tuesday evening. Reports crop prospects not as favorable as they were earlier. There are some excellent pieces of wheat and some exceedingly poor and he thinks the average yield will not exceed 15 bushels.

Mr. I Winslow, father of Mrs. Cahoun, last returned Friday from Chicago, where has spent seven months with a son of his. The old gentleman is in his 86th year, but is hale and hearty and looks to be good for many more years. He says he cannot stand the cold damp winters of Chicago as well as those of Minnesota.

Prof. R. S. Knudson came over from Grand Forks Tuesday evening and took charge of the summer term of school which began at the Crookston Normal School and Business College this morning. Prof. Knudson is an excellent teacher and our young people should embrace this opportunity to improve in penmanship, which is the principal eature of this term. The regular fall term will open in October with a full corps of competent teachers.

"My little boy was very bad off for two months with diarrhœa. We used various medicines, also calling in two docters, but nothing did him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him. I consider it the best medicine made and can conscientiously recommend it to all who need a diarrhœa or colic medicine. J. E. Hare, Trenton, Tex. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

Speaking of Saake's car-coupler, Frank Barnum in the Sauk Centre Avalanche says:

"C. H. Saake, a resident of Crookston, is in the city. Mr. Saake has just received a patent on a car-coupling device, which railroad men claim is one of the most simple and perfect car attachments ever seen. Senator Kellar has purchased a half interest in the patent, and as both gentlemen are full of push and determination they expect to make a fortune out of the new device. Success attend you, gentlemen."

E. P. Pierce is building an addition to his house.

Martin Knutson is building a house on his property northeast of the Northern Pacific depot.

Arthur Stewart: Most of the farmers—that is, the thrifty conservative ones—have got money, and are hanging onto it till another crop is assured. Many of them tell me that they intend building houses just as soon as they think the crop is safe.

The Times was in high glee on Friday—thought they had discovered a mistake in the JOURNAL because we said "the Fisk Jubillee singers had lost none of their usual vivacity." Well, they havn't, have they? They were too lively to sing to an empty house were they not? Rather a neat way to let them out was it not?

A queer looking old codger appeared at the Merchants National bank on Thursday of last week, looking, he said for the brother of a man whom he had employed in his mines in Arizona. The man died leaving a brother in these parts somewhere and he was anxious to find him and had an idea that President Cromb was the man. He exhibited a considerable paper money to show that he was not broke, also a bar of gold saying that he had lots more at home in Arizona. He was an odd looking genius but may have been all he represented himself to be. Said he had a partner whom he left sick at Fergus Falls.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied by a wonderful diarrhœa. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit. Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which we did, and it cured us right away. I think much of it, as it did to me what it was reccomended to do. John Hertzler, Bethel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.,

The Detroit Free Press says: "Louis Fierce and Beatrice Thorne will give one of their unique entertainments in Holmes Opera House Saturday evening July 1. The papers throughout the northwest speak in the highest terms of this clever pair" "Clever pair" indeed! We wish they would make enough out of their barn-storming expeditions to enable them to pay their printing bills. When people get so that they have to dead-beat their way about the country they are getting altogether too clever for the country.

Under Authority of Congress.

U. S. Government Baking Powder Tests.

These tests, made in the Gov't Laboratory, by impartial and unprejudiced official chemists, furnish the highest testimony as to which is the best baking powder.

The Official Facts and Figures.

The official report shows the Royal a pure cream of tartar powder superior to all others, and gives its leavening strength and that of each of the other cream of tartar powders tested as follows:

(Bulletin 13, pp. 599, 600, 601, 602, 603.)

	LEAVENING GAS. Per cent.	LEAVENING GAS. Cubic in. per oz.
ROYAL, Absolutely Pure,	13.06	160.6
The OTHER POWDERS TESTED are reported to contain both lime and sulphuric acid, and to be of the following strengths respectively,	12.58	151.1
	11.13	133.6
	10.26	123.2
	9.53	114.
	9.29	111.6
	8.03	96.5
	7.28	87.4

Royal Baking Powder Leads All.

Highest in leavening strength, purest in quality, uniform in its work and perfect in keeping properties.

"The Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public."

Late United States Government Chemist.

Dr. H. A. Mott

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.

Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1893. NO. 13

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor	Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor	David M. Clough.
Secretary of State	F. P. Brown.
Attorney General	H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist.	Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist	E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.	John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court	Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District	Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court	Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor	C. U. Webster
Treasurer	J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds	John Amundson
Attorney	A. R. Holston
Sheriff	Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate	C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools	A. A. Lommen
Surveyor	O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r	W. H. Averill
Coroner	Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District	John E. Oppegaard
Second District	Anton Linden
Third District	M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District	C. P. Demers
Fifth District	A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar Biver,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Ked Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	O J Knox	T R Falls

Free Homesteads.

Thousands of people are rushing into the Beautiful Saskatchewan Valley and taking up homesteads there. From Dakota, Montana' Michigan, and in fact from nearly every state in the union farmers are leaving in considerable numbers for the Canadian Northwest where they can find splendid land with plenty of wood for fuel and building purposes, and also good water. Only $10.00 is charged for filing and this sum comprises all a settler has to pay, nothing being charged for proving up. The farmers in the Edmondton and Prince Albert districts have been getting 65 cents per bushel for wheat all winter. Cattle sell much higher than they do here in Minnesota, and in almost every particular the farmer is better off there than he is here.

There are good railway facilities, oceans of hay and the climate is good. For particulars apply to

MUNSON & MCCREA,
Crookston, Minn.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

While Driving a Loaded Wagon, Chris Larson Falls Under the Wheels.

Two of Which Pass Over his Head, Killing him Instantly.

Notes of the Coming Polk County Fair Which Opens July 26th.

A Sad Accident.

On Monday about ten o'clock as Chris Larson was driving with a load of mill-wood along Broadway where the new sewer is being put in, his team shied at something and in attempting to strike them with the lines he leaned forward causing the wood to slip which precipatated him forward upon the evener behind the horses. The horses ran and he was dragged for several rods finally falling beneath the wheels. The large force of men at work on the sewer and many more who were standing around watching them at once rushed to his assistance but he was evidently dead when the first man reached him. He was taken up and carried to Wyatt's undertaking rooms where upon examination it was found that his neck was broken and he had a severe gash on the back part of his head. His brother, who was on the wagon at the time of the accident partly jumped and partly fell off and escaped with slight injury. The team ran along Broadway to Robert thence to Main street where they were stopped. Mr. Larson was about 26 years old and unmarried. The sad accident was witnessed by many but was done so quickly that no one had a chance to help the unfortunate man. The remains were prepared for burial at Wyatt's undertaking rooms.

Fair Notes.

Secretary Wyatt of the Fair association informs the JOURNAL that the gentleman's driving race promises to be one of the most interesting and exciting events during the fair. Already 11 entries have been made, they are all from Crookston.

Three base ball clubs have already been entered, and it is quite certain there will be three more.

As members of a bicycle organization cannot compete for a cash prize, the local wheelmen have asked the management of the fair to offer medals. The management will therefore have some medals made, and some of the fastest riders in the northwest will compete for them.

As some complaint was heard last year about the people having to pay 25 cents to ride out to the grounds, the association have engaged Stanley Collins to procure a sufficient number of conveyances to take all the people out, and to charge only 10 cents per head. The rigs thus engaged will be labeled, so that those who desire to take advantage of this cheap transportation can do so.

The agents who are canvassing the country—C. O. Felland and Eber Cameron—report good success, and that the farmers are taking a great deal of interest in the fair. Many of them say they didn't attend the circus, and didn't celebrate the 4th of July, in order to attend the Polk county fair.

Farmers, do not forget the pulling match to be held on the fair grounds on July 2th. None but farmers' teams eligible for entry.

A Philosophical Farmer.

A. Thompson was up from Neillsville last week to see about a wheat deal with the Valley Roller mill, having just finished delivering 2000 bushels of No. 1 hard at 48 cents. Says his experience illustrates the necessity for a railroad to Crookston, for, had he been able to have disposed of his wheat last fall he could have had 25 cents more per bushel for it than he gets now but could not neglect his fall plowing to haul it and was not encouraged by prevailing prices to face the long cold drive in the winter time. He gave us a good talk upon farming in this county and we wish that every farmer in Polk county could have heard it. Said he came to the county a poor man and had always made it an absolute rule to shun debt—avoid it as he would a pestilence. Had seen lots of times, when his crops promised well he was tempted to run into debt for something or other, but he said he had never yielded to the temptation and had made it a rule to live strictly within his income, or buy only as fast as he could pay spot cash and "to-day," he said, "I can see the wisdom of that course. I am not in debt and I would not take ten thousand dollars for my farm and property, and I know of plenty of farmers who have done even better than I financially. I think the farmer who will manage right here can make money here more easily than in any country I was ever in. I can see where many make their mistake. They must have finer teams or more expensive machinery than they really need and because they can run in debt for it they buy and the first thing they are swamped. I am aware that times are hard, but hard as they are I have seen harder when I had nothing, and if I had not exercised the intelligence that the Lord gave me to use I might now be as hard up as any body; I tell you that Polk county soil is all right if a man will mix a little common sense with it—and if he don't do that and wont do it he cannot succeed anywhere. I have been a reader of the JOURNAL ever since I have been in the county and one feature of it I like better than any other and that is your unbounded faith in Polk county and your unflagging loyalty to her best interests, which you have always urged in season and out. I believe you are right and my experience convinces me that you cannot say too much in praise of our county and her unrivalled soil, and I believe that if our farmers would follow your teachings instead of that of some political demagogue they would be far better off."

A Dog Gone Cur.

Peter Cornelius aspired to be the fortunate owner of a bird dog—the like of which no feller in Polk county could shoot over a better, so he purchased a dog of a friend which dog, (the friend said) was the best dog for birds that ever drew breath. So Peter gave his friend the best cow he had in the yard and became the owner of the aforesaid "best dog in Polk county for birds." Everything went swimingly until some time this spring Mrs. Peter began to miss her chickens—they would come up dead every now and then until the loss reached well up to a hundred and Peter avowed that there must be a skunk somewhere about in the near vicinity—nay verily a whole family of skunks to cause such a wholesale fowl destruction, until one day last week Peter was hoeing in the potato patch when he saw the measly cur aforesaid take after a chicken and straightway Peter took after the dog. When he came upon the cur the chicken had ceased to be and the dog was busily engaged trying to bury it in the plowed ground; and Peter was wroth, and seizing a convenient pitchfork he marched upon that cur with murder in his eye, but the dog did not propose to be ruled out on the fowl and lit out and Peter could not catch him on the fly; so he armed and equipped himself as the law directs and the shot-gun policy won—the dog ceased to exist. Upon a low estimate Peter reckons his loss on that dog at a round $100 and his loss of confidence in the friend who fooled him so badly at far more—for what is filthy lucre to friendship?

Lost.

From the pasture of Wm. Hooper on July 7th a brown mare colt two years old. A suitable reward will be paid for her return to the barn of E. D. Schreader, Main street Crookston. [13-15]

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending June 24th, 1893.

Anderson, Julia E.
Gulbronson, Syer
Johnson, Ernest
Thommason, Thomas
Grambois, Treffle
Imlaw, Walter
Juntle, John A.
Peterson, Bergethe

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Notice.

A two-year-old, gray colt came into my inclosure on the 15th day of May; the owner can have same by paying charges. H. WALLIS, [13-15] Euclid, Minn.

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.
[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

Dandruff is due to an enfeebled state of the skin. Hall's Hair Renewer quickens the nutritive functions of the skin, healing and preventing the formation of dandruff.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

A Two-days Institute Conducted by O. C. Gregg and Several Assistants.

The Sessions Were Well Attended and Much Interest Manifested by Farmers.

The Citizens Secured the Grand Opera House to Hold the Meetings in.

Commenced its sessions at the opera house in this city at 10 o'clock on Friday July 7th with a large attendance. The fact that the opera house was well filled showed that very many of our farmers are fully alive to their interests and are not above availing themselver of these opportunities for improvement. The institute was conducted by Supt. O. C. Gregg, assisted by several farmers, specialists in their particular line and all thoroughly alive to the interests of the farming community. Mr. Gregg gave an address on the best methods of grain raising and general farming. Dr. M. H. Reynolds, an experienced veterinary surgeon dwelt upon the diseases of the horse and the cow and showed that the best methods to pursue is to avoid all these diseases as far as possible, showing how this can be done. He told how wire fences can be constructed so as to prevent wounding the animals, especially the horses, and gave some remedies to use in cases when horses had been badly cut on wire fences. Theodore Lewis gave instruction talks on hogs and how to raise and care for them, how to feed them so that when pork is low there is still a profit in raising it. This subject proved a very interesting one to farmers at this time when pork is so high and scarce. Prof. Haecker of the state experimental farm told how to select the cow for the dairy and illustrated his subject upon living subjects on the farm of E. D. Childs and also on some cows in this city. This was a very interesting feature of the institute.

Mr. Henderson who has made a fortune in sheep, told how he had accomplished it and his talk was listened to with deep interest and many were the questions that were asked of him.

Mr. Somerville gave entertaining talks upon the culture of small fruits and the garden and to hear him talk one is led to wonder why it is that we do not see more small fruits raised in this county. Mr. S. has lived for many years in Minnesota and has successfully raised all kinds of fruits that can be raised in any cold climate and has made money at it.

The sessions were enlivened by songs by Prof. Powell who goes along with the workers for that purpose and he is an excellent singer. As a whole the exercises were very enjoyable even to those who were not farmers but to the farmers invaluable. The institute workers left for Hallock on Monday for a session there.

NOTES.

J. S. Nichols was up from Liberty to attend the institute and when he heard Prof. Haecker discourse on the dairy cow he got so interested that he tackled Mr. Currie, whom he saw in the crowd, and straightway bought some thoroughbred Jerseys of him to be sent down to his farm at once. Nichols says he is getting tired of wheat anyhow, and will try some sheep and some cows and some hogs with poultry on the side.

S. Crookshunks was an attentive listener at the institute and the character of his questions showed that he is interested in his business. If such earnest men do not get to the front it will not be their fault.

And the farmers wives were there, too, in goodly numbers, at the institute, and moreover they appeared to take as much interest in the proceedings as did their husbands. When it came to the matter of strawberries, raspberries and such, they could and did ask more questions in a minute than the man of the house could think of in a month. And they also were very much interested in the other matters that came before the sessions. We noticed some of them taking notes and we will bet a big red apple that they will make good use of the ideas thus obtained.

Rev. and Mrs. S. Currie was in attendance at the institute. Mr. Currie has one of the best farms in the county and believes in scientific farming. At any rate he never neglects an opportunity to learn and such farmers are always progressive. Mr. C. is the owner of a fine Jersey herd and can give a great many so-called expert butter-makers pointers on butter-making. He has taken great pains with his cows, and it is needless to say, takes great pains with his butter.

Another Accident.

About 1:30 p. m., on Wednesday as the gravel train was being unloaded in the Great Northern yards, just across the railroad bridge a laborer, named Carl Johnson, fell from the next to the last car and had his left arm severely lacerated. At this writing it has not been fully decided whether amputation is necessary or not. The man is conscious and suffering great pain. The accident was caused by the movement of the train after the usual signals had been given. The man was removed to a house near by and Dr. Dampler summoned who is, at present writing, making an examination of the wounds.

Courtesy of Church and Theatre.

It is amusing, says the Bismark Tribune, to note that in the new temporary opera house, built at Fargo by Mr. Gottschalk, the pews saved from the burned Robert street church will be used for reserved seats, and in return for the use of the seats the church people get the opera house for their Sunday services until their church is completed.

Spring medicine and Hood's Sarsaparilla are synonymous terms, so popular is this great medicine at this season.

Eternal Vigilance.

Is the price of health. But with all our precaution there are enemies always lurking about our systems, only waiting a favorable opportunity to assert themselves. Impurities in the blood may be hidden for years or even for generations and suddenly break forth, undermining health and hastening death. For all deseases arising from impure blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is the unequalled and unapproached remedy. It is king of them all, for it conquerors disease.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied by a wonderful diarrhœa. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which we did, and it cured us right away. I think much of it, as it did to me what it was reccomended to do. John Hertzler, Bethel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.,

We Don't Fret.

And the St. Cloud Journal-Press gives us the following good bit of advice:

"Don't fret. It has been dry and the prospect for big crops is not as encouraging as it might be, but it wont help you or the crops a particle to exhaust all your nervous force in worrying about it. All the people in Minnesota, if they united in a howl-kick-and-swearing bee, couldn't produce an extra spear of grass or kernal of corn. Then why not act like sensible men, be good natured, cheerful and happy, remembering that with all your fussing and fretting and direful predictions in the past, the farmers have always had a decently good crop to harvest. Life is too short to waste the best part of it worrying about something that cannot be helped or hindered."

For Sale, A Good Cow.

An extra good grade Jersey cow—soon to be a new milch cow. For particulars call at this office. [13-16]

"One of my customers came in today and asked me for the best cough medicine I had" says Lew Young, a prominent druggist of Newman Grove Neb. Of course I showed him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and he did not ask to see any other. I have never yet sold a medicine that would loosen and relieve a severe cold so quickly as that remedy does. I have sold four dozen of it within the last sixty days and do not know of a single case where it failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, druggist, Crookston, Minn.

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county. Sano, sure cure for piles. I. O. O. F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [30-tf]

"My little boy was very bad off for two months with diarrhœa. We used various medicines, also calling in two docters, but nothing did him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him. I consider it the best medicine made and can conscientiously recommend it to all who need a diarrhœa or colic medicine. J. E Hare, Trenton; Tex. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

Ayer's Pills promptly remove the causes of sick and nervous headaches. These Pills speedily correct irregularities of the stomach, liver, and bowels, and are the mildest and most reliable cathartic in use. No one should be without them.

The Gillott Sale.

The epoch making sale was that of the Gillott collection in 1872—Gillott with two "l's" and two "t's"; "all others are fraudulent counterfeits," as one used to read on the steel pen boxes of other days. A good, homely creature was the leviathan steel pen maker, who captivated the great Turner in the crankiest of his moods and tamed him by the music of crisp thousand pound notes.

"What will you take for the lot?" was traditionally the penman's question as he glanced in real awe around the great artist's studio, where paintings were stacked as if in a broker's shop.

"Thirty thousand pounds," growled the artist, who might have been the broker's man as far as appearance went. Gillott sat down to count out the notes without another word. But Turner stopped him. It was no deal, said the artist, yet the man with the notes might have a few. And the penmaker carried off some of the best pictures in triumph.

And now these priceless Turners were exhibited at Christie's, where all the world flocked to see them, with other fine pictures of the modern school. It was just then a high tide of commercial prosperity, and Pactolus seemed to have been turned into the British isles, and everybody, with the exception of an unimportant 30,000,000 or so, had plenty of money, and instructed by the high prices that ruled at the Gillott sale made haste to invest it in pictures.—All the Year Round.

A Radical Reform.

At the last dinner of the Dartmouth club Professor Hardy described the only serious collision he had ever had with any member of his many classes.

An undergraduate came into the lecture room one day clad in an outrageously wild and woolly costume—to wit, cowhide boots with trousers tucked into their tops, a flannel shirt, no necktie or coat and only one suspender. Professor Hardy, after the close of the recitation, spoke to him about his attire, rightly enough thinking that the principles of ethics were quite as important as those of mathematics.

The next time the class met the young man appeared armed cap-a-pie in what Mr. Hardy called "all the concomitants of modern civilization"—dress suit, patent leather shoes, white tie, bontonniere and, in short, all the "fixings."

"I had never seen," said Mr. Hardy, "a more remarkable instance of turning the other cheek when the one had been smitten."

However, the young man probably felt, as a few minutes afterward he stood at the blackboard endeavoring to explain a somewhat advanced problem which the professor craftily set for him, and which in the best of circumstances was likely to consume a considerable amount of time, that evening clothes were not very well adapted to the ordinary affairs of this workaday world.—Boston Herald.

An Alligator's Nest.

Alligators' nests resemble haycocks more than anything else to which they can be compared. They average about 4 feet in height and about 5 feet in diameter and are constructed of grasses and herbage. First the mother 'gator deposits one layer of eggs on a mortarlike floor, and having covered this with a stratum of mud and herbage about 8 inches thick lays another set of eggs upon that, and so on to the top, there being commonly from 100 to 200 eggs in a nest. With their tails the parents then beat down the tall grass and weeds to prevent the approach of unseen enemies. The female watches her eggs until they are hatched by the heat of the sun and then takes her brood under her own care, defending them and providing for their subsistence.

Dr. Lutzemburg of New Orleans once packed one of these nests for shipment to St. Petersburg, but the young hatched out before they were started on the long voyage and were kept about the doctor's premises, running all over the house, up and down stairs, whining like young puppies.—Harrison's Monthly.

The Minister Agreed.

During the war an Ohio minister was on his way south as an emissary of the Christian commission, and he boarded an Ohio river boat at Portsmouth. At the first landing below, the mate "turned loose" at the deckhands. He cursed their eyes, their hearts, their lubbery feet, their laziness, their whole line of ancestry from Adam to that hour. Finally, exhausted with profanity, he turned to the shocked minister with the query:

"Don't this beat hell?"

"Yes, sir, I'm afraid it does." And the good man retired to his cabin.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHEAT PRICES.

What C. A. Pillsbury Says About Crops and Prices.

The opinions of such experienced men as C. A. Pillsbury should have great weight, as they have facilities for gaining information that many have not. Therefore we give the following interview from the Minneapolis Journal, submitting it, however without recommendation:

"Yes, I sent the dispatch to a personal friend, in answer to an inquiry as to my estimate of the growing wheat crop, stating that I did not think that, under the most favorable circumstances, South Dakota could raise over one-half of an average wheat crop; Minnesota two-thirds, and North Dakota, three-fourths. Now, counting an average crop about 105,000,000 for the three states, this would figure out that there would not be raised over 68,000,000 or 70,000,000. I had no idea the dispatch would have been made public, or I probably would not have sent it. But now that it has been made public, I am prepared to stand up to it. From later information I have received, I do not think the crop of North Dakota can be three-quarters of an average crop. We have just had good rains everywhere; but rains, at this time of the year, are not going to make up for thin stand of wheat on the ground and the short heads. In a great many places the stools are either wholly or partially dead. The original stalk, and in some cases a part of the stools, have survived the drouth. Now, no kind of weather can bring these dead stools to life. Over a large section of the territory the wheat has headed out about a foot high on short heads. No kind of weather is going to make these heads long. So, under the most favorable circumstances, I do not estimate that the three states can raise over 68,000,000 or 70,000,000 bushels of wheat, with the danger of hot weather when the wheat is in the milk and the dough, rust and early frosts yet to hear from, which may still materially reduce my estimate.

"Now, if this is the situation, what is to be the effect on future prices of the 70,000,000 bushels, which I estimate will be the outside of the crop? It takes 20,000,000 for bread and seed for the three states. That leaves 50,000,000 bushels. As the Minneapolis mills use 50,000,000 bushels of wheat alone in a season; as the mills at Lake Superior (if they run anywhere near their capacity) will need 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 bushels more, and as the other mills in the state, outside of Minneapolis and Lake Superior, generally grind 20,000,000 or 25,000,000 bushels, one can easily figure that there will be quite a scrabbling for the next year's crop, and if the farmers are not forced to sell the great bulk of the crop during the first two or three months of the season, wheat will be scarce.

"I, for one, have no sympathy with the policy of many people in this state who, imitating the custom of the ostrich to hide its head under its wing when it is in danger, are always booming the amount of wheat we are going to raise, just for the purpose of keeping their own courage up. Anything that I or any one else may say, is not going to increase or diminish the amount of wheat that is to be raised, by one bushel. The question is how much money are we going to get out of the next crop? The chances are that, with the 70,000,000-bushel crop, our farmers would get as much money out of it as they would out of 100,000,000 bushels—provided the whole world is not made to believe that we are going to raise about 100,000,000 bushels, and the fact that we have not raised more than 70,000,000 is not known, until the farmers have parted with the most of their wheat and wheat begins to be scarce. A miller who had a great amount of flour to sell who would even state the whole that he had got to sell within a given time—much less greatly exaggerate it—would be considered a fit subject for an insane asylum. Now, I cannot see the difference between newspaper men and real estate agents who seem to think a different policy is necessary. It seems to me that every man, woman and child in this state is interested in having the farmer get the most money possible for their crop, and I am glad to see that some newspapers are beginning to change their views of the matter. If stating that our crop prospects were excellent would make them so, I could forgive parties for making such statements; but when anything that one may say will not add a bushel to our yield, but only have the effect of diminishing the price of every bushel that we actually will raise. I think such statements are inexcusable. I have talked with railroad agents in the past, asked them how the crops looked in their section, and when they have given unfavorable reports to their superior officers; they have told me they would not dare to make such reports. I think that booming the stock market has a good deal to do with reports that often go out from railroad headquarters."

"Would you advise farmers to sell wheat promptly this season?"

"My honest opinion is that, if the farmers are not forced to sell the great bulk of their wheat during the first movement of the crop, they will get good prices for the next crop. It looks to me that, taking the best accounts we can get from the winter wheat crop and the probable yield of the spring wheat crop, the United States will not produce on the Atlantic seaboard a bushel of wheat more than will be needed for our own consumption; and that the only amount we will have to spare for export is the surplus left over from the last two crops. Our visible supply is about 40,000,000 above the minimum which it ever reached. I know that no country in Europe has raised a "bumper" crop; and many countries there have light ones. If wheat does not sell at good round money before another crop, it will be because the consumption is greatly diminishing from what it usually is; and that is not likely to happen while wheat is anywhere near round present prices. This is my opinion of the wheat crop, from the best information I am able to obtain at present. I may be badly deceived. We only get the final returns of the crop when the threshing machines go to work, and there is no going behind those returns. I have just received a telegram from the winter wheat section that the threshing is turning out disappointing. Now, the threshing in the Northwest may go higher than people now think, or it may go lower. I don't want any one to buy or sell a bushel of wheat or a barrel of flour on my opinion of the prospect of growing crop. Speculators may have a good deal more to do with future prices than the legitimate situation or the laws of supply and demand."

Littleness in Politics.

On this head the Duluth News-Tribune justly remarks: "There are some things about politics and politicians that make the average man disgusted. They display a littleness of mind and narrowness of sprit that is a positive disgrace. One of these things is the habit of making the various schools and public institutions political asylums for party workers. It is something that is not easily remedied for the average voter will not consider such things in his eagerness to cast a party ballot. If they are brought to his attention he excuses them by saying that the other partys men do the same thing. A case in point is the displacement of Prof. Hall, the most successful teacher of the blind in the country, from the position of superintendent of the Illinois state institution for the blind by Governor Altgeld, that he might put a man of his own party in his place. Prof. Hall has been so greatly interested in the education of the blind that he has worked out new systems for teaching them, and has invented a typewriter for the blind by which they are able not only to write but to read their own work, also a stereotype machine for making books for the blind by which these books are so cheapened in cost that it is no longer only the wealthy or the public institutions that can afford to own such books. The removal of so brilliant and successful a teacher of the blind from a place merely because he was appointed to it by the opposite party is almost as much a shame and outrage in its way as was the pardon by Gavernor Altgeld of the anarchists in its way. It is one of the acts that disgust ordinary people with politics—though there are few politicians who would be guilty of such a thing."

The Log Supply.

Brainerd Tribune: The Mississippi Valley Lumberman publishes the log cut for the winter of 1892-93, on the upper Mississippi and its tributaries. The figures show that on the upper Mississippi and tributaries there were banked last winter 667,000,000 feet of logs, as against 550,000,000 feet the previous winter, and with the amount of old logs left over, fully 200,000,000 there will be a supply of 877,000,000 feet of logs, providing the logs all reach here. This is an enormous amount of logs, the amount banked last winter exceeding all past records by 127,000,000 feet, while the total log supply for the season of 1893 is unprecedented.

What Do You Take

Medicine for? Because you are sick and want to get well, or because you wish to prevent illness. Then remember that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all diseases caused by impure blood and debility of the system. It is not what its proprietors say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's.

Purely vegetable—Hood's Pills—25c.

The Magic Number.

From the earliest ages, men have attached something of a mystery and magical character to the number seven. The classic world had its seven wonders: Greece had her seven chief cities and her seven sages. The law given from Mount Sinai made the seventh day a holy one. The rainbow presents seven colors. It was a favorite number in the obstruse calculations of the ancient astrologers, and has been much used as a basis for those who attempt to unravel Bibical prophecies. The Burlington Route has on its line seven cities which are foremost in the Great West and well worth a visit—Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis and Denver. Between all these the Burlington Route, with its magnificent vestibuled trains, is the popular means of communication. For map, time tables, etc., call on local agents or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.25 from Crookston to Chicago and return. Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3-tf] Agent.

HIS "TETCHY" POINT.

Mr. Ezry Griggs Finds Out Just Where Uncle Isaac "Is a Little Weak."

"Most everybody's got some tetchy p'int. Now, ain't that so, mother?" inquired Mr. Griggs of his wife. "It does appear so," assented Mrs. Griggs. "An the wust on't is ye can't allus keep 'em in your mind," continued Mr. Griggs dolefully. "There's some folks that don't want t' hev ye speak o' their age, an there's others that puffers t' hev ye mention it. There's those that want t' be told they're lookin hearty, an others that's kind o' put out if so be ye mention that they seem t' be enj'yin good health.

"There's people that's got t' be let alone allus before they've fed up, an there's them that don't want ye to pass a word to 'em after their meals till things is digested an they've hed a nap.

"There's folks that can't bear loud talkin, an others that soft speakin puts in a fidget. Some don't want one thing spoke of, an some another, an the same with eatin. I rec'lect a man once that was all put out with anybody 't happened t' mention strawberries 'cause they p'isoned him, an so 'tis. Everybody's got some sech notion, an it's mor'n a mortal creetur's ekal to keep the run of 'em all."

"What's the partic'lar matter now?" asked long suffering little Mrs. Griggs.

"Why, it's Uncle Isaac," said Mr. Griggs in an aggrieved tone.

"You ain't interrupted of him tellin a story, hev you, Ezry?" inquired his wife.

"Well, yes, I persume t' say I hev," replied Mr. Griggs. "He was relatin t' me a story of his farmin days out in Idyho, an he was pooty well excited up over tellin about some kind of an an'mal that was prowlin around the place once, an he was sayin:

" 'An late that night I went out, hearin a noise, an jest in front of the big maple tree I see'— an I says, 'Was't a sugar maple, Uncle Isaac?' fer I wanted t' picter it ackerate in my mind.

"An, if you'll b'lieve me, he jest looked at me fit t' snap my head off an shut his mouth tight, an I don't cal'late I sh'll ever know what that an'mal was, nor nothin. An 'twas a simple 'nough question; now, wa'n't it, Luizy?" asked Mr. Griggs plaintively.

"I reckon that was what Uncle Isaac thought," remarked his better half with some vigor as she slapped an iron on the stove.

Mr. Griggs looked at her doubtfully for a moment and then shuffled out of the kitchen, muttering as he went, "It was a real simple question, but there! most folks hev got their tetchy p'ints, an 'tain't any use denyin it."—Youth's Companion.

The Growth of the Postal System.

Less than 50 years ago there was really no postal system in this country. Previous to 1847 the mails were carried by private firms, and rates varied according to distance. Carriers often traveled on foot or horseback, and the progress was slow. In 1846 some of the post offices issued stamps of their own, called "provisional issues." The adhesive stamp was first used in this country in 1847, and prepayment was made compulsory in 1856. In 1863 the stamp containing the head of Andrew Jackson was issued, and from then until 1885 the style adopted contained the profiles of presidents of the United States.—Public Opinion.

Wyoming's Sheep Pastures.

By far the greater part of Wyoming is upland that can never be reached by irrigation and must always remain a pastoral and stockraising country. There are nearly 40,000,000 acres of such lands in the state. These, with grassy forest areas of 15,000,000 acres, are supplied plentifully with water for stock.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS MILTON VANDYKE UNmarried, of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 14th day of December A. D. 1889, duly execute and deliver to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company" a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio and having its principal office in the City of Cincinnati, Ohio, as mortgagee, his mortgage bearing date the 14th day of December A. D. 1889, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, viz: The west half (1-2) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred and forty nine (149) north of range forty-three (43) west, containing 320 acres of land; and which mortgage was, with the power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of December A. D. 1889 at four o'clock and 20 minutes in the afternoon in book "48" of mortgages on pages 182, 183, 184 and 185. And which mortgage was given to secure the payment of one thousand ($1000) dollars and interest thereon at eight per cent per annum payable on the 1st day of January of each year, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached made said mortgagor and payable to the order of said mortgagee and which note became due on December 14th, 1899.

And whereas default having been made in the payment of the sum of eighty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on day 1st day of January A. D. 1893 and the said interest is still unpaid and due.

And whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if the maker of said note shall fail to pay any of said money, either principal or interest, when the same becomes due, or to conform to, or comply with, any of the conditions, or agreements, therein contained, to be kept and performed by said mortgagor that the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall become due and payable at once.

And the said mortgagee having declared the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable and does hereby declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable.

And whereas there is now due and payable on said mortgage the sum of one thousand one hundred twenty-eight ($1128) dollars at the date of this notice, and no action or proceedings at law, or otherwise, having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The west half (1-2) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred forty-nine (149) north of range forty-three (43) west, containing 320 acres of land, situated in Polk County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorneys fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said county and state, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1893 at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated July 8th 1893.

UNION CENTRAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
ELMER C. YATTER,
[13-19] Attorney for Mortgagee.
Hallock, Kittson County, Minn.

Oh, My Heart!

Palpitation and Rheumatism.

Mr. James S. Jones
Bruce, Wis.

"From my experience I think Hood's Sarsaparilla will do everything it claims and more too. It is surely entitled to my heartfelt thanks. I think it is the best medicine in the world. For 25 years I have suffered with palpitation of the heart and rheumatism. I tried everything I could hear of, but none of the medicines did me any good, in fact I grew worse all the time until for three years

I Could Not Labor Any.

I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and thought I would try it. I have taken four bottles, and I feel like a new man. I have improved so rapidly in health that I am able to work hard now. I recommend this medicine to all who are sufferers. I would not be without it in my house." JAMES S. JONES, Bruce, Chippewa Co., Wis.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.

HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana — FARM LANDS

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. — LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. — Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetes Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. — Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Scientific American Agency for

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE
North American Review
YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc.

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

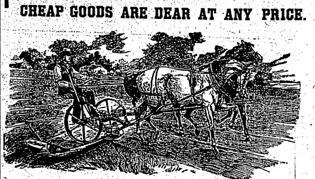
Subscription Price, $5.00 a year,
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!
Of the following line of First-Class Goods which we handle, and when you are ready to buy call and get our prices.

CHEAP GOODS ARE DEAR AT ANY PRICE.



WE SELL

DEERING BINDERS, AND MOWERS,
The best on earth for money, chalk or marbles.

HOLLINGSWORTH AND DEERE RAKES,
8, 10 and 12 feet.

JOHN DEERE PLOWS.
WESTERN ROAD MACHINES.

ADVANCE THRESHERS AND ENGINES.

A fine line of Buggies, Carts and Harness of all styles. Rushford Wagons, good timber and bone dry—too well known to need more than mentioning. We also sell a nice line of bicycles, the Victor being our leader. It needs to be seen to be fully appreciated. In these, as well as everything, else, merit wins. It pays to buy good articles. We sell as cheap as the quality of our goods will admit, and guarantee everybody the worth of their money.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

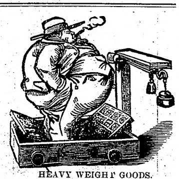
FRESH VEGETABLES RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice lot of
CANNED GOODS
At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,
Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.
ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Price
—OF—
Groceries



HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as

TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,

I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.,
Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, CROCKSTON, MINN.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜
Office on Robert Street, CROOKSTON, MINN

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. HAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

LIGHT OUT OF DARKNESS

BY MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

COPYRIGHT, 1893, BY GODEY PUBLISHING COMPANY.

[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER V.

Edward Newton at 20 was left an orphan with a fine education, but almost penniless. His parents were hoping to see him established in some profession congenial to his refined and intellectual tastes, but their sudden death changed all his prospects and compelled him to look for some employment that should provide at once for immediate wants.

A distant relative offered him a situation in his store far beneath that which, without vanity, he might have hoped for. But with an unusual degree of good, practical common sense for one so young he accepted the offer at once, knowing that he had energy and knowledge that would enable him to rise rapidly if he was faithful to his trust.

A very few weeks sufficed to show Mr. Stanly that the new clerk was greatly superior to his position, but the old gentleman was cautious and suspicious and had no intention of making any hasty change. He had given Edward his present occupation because of favors received many years ago from the young man's father, when Stanly greatly needed a friend, and for this he had felt compelled to offer the position to his son, if but to satisfy his own conscience. "Then," he thought, "if he proves capable and honest I will help him to make his own way into a good business. But should I find him unworthy I am bound by no promise and can easily drop him and let him pass from my thoughts."

But Edward was soon too valuable to be discarded, and added to natural endowments his life was a peculiarly sweet exemplification of Christian faith and practice. His father was simply a moral man, making no pretense to any religious motive for being, as he truly was, an example of sterling honesty and unflinching integrity. His own conscience bore witness that he never oppressed the poor; that the widow and fatherless could bring no charges against him, even in thought, for fraud or extortion.

When Mr. Stanly gave Edward a chance to work, he considered all indebtedness for kindness received from his parents as fully canceled. He liked the young man, and after some months' acquaintance came as near loving him as was prudent in a business man. He would be well pleased to see him successful, but if he proved so while in his employ it was, after giving him the situation, simply a business operation, and every upward step henceforth must be paid for in care and profitable labor.

Step by step he slowly increased his salary and his labors also. When after four years of faithful toil Edward Newton had made himself so necessary to the interests of his employer that it became but selfish policy to offer him a partnership in the establishment, Mr. Stanly was at heart really rejoiced that his cousin's son had proved so worthy and had so faithfully earned the promotion.

When received into this partnership, Mr. Newton's next step was to secure a home for himself. The idea of his marriage was distasteful to Mr. Stanly. "Still," said he, "my rule has always been to leave each man to act and judge for himself and then abide the consequences."

In his heart he whispered: "Foolish boy, when he was doing so well too! He will lose all he has gained now. Had I known of this marriage, I should have waited awhile before receiving him as a partner. But I shall watch more closely than ever, and if I detect one false move I must drop him. Shall be really sorry to do it, though. I must be growing childish. Edward has crept nearer my heart than I thought any one could," and the old merchant's face showed a tenderer feeling than it had worn since childhood.

But when Mr. Newton wedded Lucy Dale and presented her to Mr. Stanly her gentle, womanly manners quite won the hard old man's heart, and not many years passed before he urged them to take up their abode with him, that he might at last realize some of the true joys of home. A few years under Lucy's pure influence added to her husband's truly Christian but unobtrusive teaching, by God's blessing, softened the worldly heart, and when, "like a shock of corn fully ripe," Mr. Stanly was gathered to his fathers his large possessions, after some affectionate legacies, were divided among judicious charities and promised long to be blessings to many.

Mr. Stanly left no near kindred, and the elegant dwelling and grounds, where he had passed a lonely life till his young friends brought joy and sunshine into it, he bequeathed to Mrs. Newton, "a thank offering for the love she had shown him and the good she had done him." This was the magnificent place so poorly described at the commencement of this story remodeled and improved by its present owner's correct taste until the stern grandeur of the original building had grown into its now harmonious proportions.

Let the reader become better acquainted with Mr. Newton's household before we intrude upon them when assembled in the pleasant study.

Lillian, the eldest, her mother's summer child, was born when the birds and roses of June filled the air with melody and fragrance. Tall and graceful at 24, she has her mother's figure, but with more quiet and repose of manner. Her dark golden brown hair is twined in heavy braids around her head, requiring no other ornament than the single rosebud George has just placed there.

The twins—Rose and Ralph—next younger than George, are always the first to attract attention on entering a room when the family are together. A more lovely tableau could hardly be found. Imagine a bright, petite figure, with eyes that would be black were they not ever too full of hope and joy, the perfection of a woman's head, adorned with woman's crowning glory—a magnificent mantle of hair, the color of which, whether let down, as was Ralph's teasing custom, to ripple in beautiful waves to her tiny feet, or bound in careless grace about her head, was made by any changing light or position equally uncertain as her eyes.

So far this may carry an outline for fancy to fill, but farther we may not venture. The most consummate artist could but faintly convey the charm, the sweetness of Rose Newton's face. Her character was fresh and original. She inherited from her father a singular command of choice and appropriate language and from both parents a well balanced mind that cultivation had richly stored, but the sprightly humor, the brilliant and choice wit, the playful repartee, belonged to herself alone, or if shared by any her twin brother, Ralph, might claim a partnership. At 15, in form and features, the brother and sister were singularly alike, but now, when nearly 20, Ralph's figure had developed into more manly beauty and towered high above his sister.

In mental endowments Rose had tried to keep near him in her studies, and while he surpassed her in strength and vigor of expression she far outshone him in brilliancy.

Alfred, the youngest, a lad of 15, was quite sedate—not as much given to the boisterous amusements of boyhood as for his health's sake his parents could have wished, yet always ready to leave books or his pleasant dreamings to oblige or gratify another.

In person he had eyes of more striking beauty than those already introduced, but there were strange glances at times, recalling often some of the peculiar traits of all. Lillian's serene repose, George's outspoken, decided tones, Ralph's impetuousity when aroused, as well as Rose's glad, merry laugh, were all manifest commingled in his various moods. But there were a thoughtful seriousness, a deep fount of tenderest love and entire unselfishness, that were peculiar to himself and made him, the youngest, the especial darling of all. In each heart he was cherished as the one whose talents would some day be the glory of their name. When they first spoke of the change in prospect, they had cheerfully accepted the consequent labor and self denial before them, but in each heart was the settled purpose that Alfred's opportunities for developing all the powers with which he seemed endowed should not be in any respect curtailed.

Eustace Dunbar had for years been one of the household. He was the son of a dear friend of Mr. Newton's, and at his father's death had been committed to his kind care. Guardian of the son and executor of his father's estate, Mr. Newton had made his home a happy one for the young orphan when at an early age he was sent to him from India.

Eustace had been as tenderly nurtured and educated as his guardian's own sons and his small property so wisely invested that now at the age of 27 he was well established in a prosperous business. His love for Lillian had sprung up from the beginning and a few months before she went abroad, on the eve of his own departure for India. Their betrothal was fully recognized. The arrangements for their marriage in the course of a few months were in progress when this misfortune came upon her father.

Jasper Grenville was from a wealthy southern family. Sent north to be educated, he entered the same college with George the year that Dunbar graduated. His manners were very attractive and his character unblemished. Through George he became intimate with Mr. Newton's family and soon learned to love Rose with all the enthusiasm of his southern nature, and she fully reciprocated the affection. Their marriage was not to take place for two years, and then he hoped to bear her to his native home, whose beauties he never wearied of portraying to her in glowing colors.

CHAPTER VI.

Eustace was with the family at the evening meal, so important to the Newtons, and met the revelation which Lillian conveyed to him as a true hearted son should do. While at tea Grenville was announced. Rose excused herself, preferring to see her lover alone before joining the family in the library. Some time elapsed before they appeared, and then Jasper expressed his sympathy with a sincerity and earnestness that could leave no doubt of the real interest he felt in the joys or sorrows of the family.

Yet George, with his perception sharpened by previous knowledge, discerned a restless nervousness that betokened some deeper source of uneasiness than the subject now before them, and from Rose's mood he thought she herself had detected something unnatural in his manners.

When all were seated after supper, Mr. Newton entered at once upon the subject under considerations and briefly narrated the substance of that which has already been told.

"And now, my dear ones, we are in no danger of interruption this evening, and here no separate interests need prevent each from expressing his or her opinion with perfect freedom. Dunbar and Grenville, you have cast in your lot with us so far as to make it very proper and desirable for your views to be heard with the others. But, my dear friends, remember you are not bound to cling to fallen fortunes."

"Surely," interrupted Eustace, "my Lilly has lost no grace for which I have loved her these many years by your diminished wealth, has she? Ah, she is only the more precious, and if I could only make it apparent that it might be best to hasten our marriage I could rejoice in your trials if I had not learned to love the parents almost as much as the promised bride."

"Although I cannot boast a love of many years, as can Dunbar," said Grenville, with unusual hesitation, "I think it will defy any of fortune's vicissitudes. I had heard some intimation of these troubles, before I came and hastened hither to urge you to shorten these two long years, and as Dunbar seems meditating a similar petition I am hopeful of success."

All this appeared right and natural, but why should Jasper, usually so free and open in conversation, manifest an embarrassment so foreign to his nature? George evidently does not trust him, and even Rose is ill at ease.

These thoughts passed rapidly through Mr. Newton's mind while Jasper was speaking, and a dull pain was at his heart, but concealing it he quietly replied:

"Thanks for your steadfast interest in me and mine. But I can consent to no change to the time already fixed. A hasty marriage now would seem to me very much as if I had no longer a home to give my daughters. On the contrary, I can surely make them comfortable, though in a style vastly inferior to their present condition. But I prefer that there should be no separation as yet and hope they will agree with me. We cannot settle on any definite plan until we are sure of how much we may claim. But by a full conversation this evening we can judge somewhat how near our several tastes may be brought into unison. Next week will decide to a dollar how much we may honorably claim from the remnant of our possessions.

"I am very confident that we may at least count on $5,000 clear—that is to say, I am sure the furniture of the house may safely be considered as our own when everything is settled. That is about the extent, I think, of all that can be left us. But the furniture will easily bring the sum I have named, perhaps more, and yet reserve the common articles for the fitting up of some small cottage. This will seem to you children but a meager amount, but it is quite a fortune compared with your parents' beginnings. And now, George, my son, with so limited a capital let us hear what business would best suit your tastes and abilities."

"Why, father, I am very humble this evening," said the young man, laughing. "It is very easy to give one's tastes and judgments theoretically when there is no idea of putting them to the test. I feel I would just like to put myself in your hands, father, like a little boy once more, and ask of you to make of me what you please. I was not so humble this morning, mother, when I was talking so grandly. But father can make some use of me, I know, and after creeping awhile I'll learn to walk like a man. I understand the rudiments of mercantile business and am perfectly willing to enter upon it, though not congenial to my tastes, but I imagine it will be just as well to leave our tastes out of the question and think only of usefulness and duty.

"I have always felt that if I ever settled in a home of my own I would leave the city and buy some very beautiful country place and be an amateur farmer and horticulturist. But you see, good friends, the country seat is not at hand just now, and I doubt if I could pay my way in any farming operations until I have served my apprenticeship."

The inimitable humor and drollery of his manner were highly amusing, and a quick glance full of meaning passed between his father and mother. But suddenly all sportiveness vanished from George's face, and he continued with much earnestness:

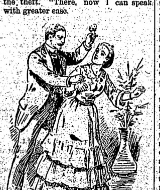
"Seriously, father, I would repeat what I said honestly a few hours ago. Let your children work while you counsel and direct. I for one will gladly give all my powers to accomplish any plan you may deem advisable, but I do not feel myself competent to make a choice for myself."

"I confess I am not so modest as George," said Eustace, with a pleasant smile. "I have two grand and good plans which I am so proud of that I cannot willingly let any one speak before I have unfolded them. Have I your permission to explain them now?" bowing to Mr. Newton.

"Oh, yes, father, let's hear this second Daniel," interrupted Ralph, with good natured mockery.

"With all my heart," rejoined his father. "I wish all to feel perfect freedom and desire the wishes and judgment of all before I express my own. Yours, Lillian, should have been called for first."

"Oh, Lilly will be obliged to think just as I do, you know," said Eustace playfully, stealing George's rosebud from her hair and imprisoning her hand in both of his as she raised it to prevent the theft. "There, now I can speak with greater ease.



"Oh, Lilly will be obliged to think just as I do, you know."

"Plan the First—In accordance with a suggestion you made some time since, I have been bringing all my foreign business to a close, at least so far as to obviate the necessity of my spending any time abroad when I am so fortunate as to have this lady under my especial guardianship. Last evening our ship brought the papers from India that consummated the desired arrangements on the most favorable terms, far better than I anticipated. To your early care, Mr. Newton, I owe the first steps to prosperity, and to your judicious counsels the continued increase of an income small indeed when first placed in your hands, but now amply sufficient to warrant the proposition I am about to make.

"As soon as your affairs are adjusted I would like to purchase your present store, retaining the present sign of Newton & Co., and continue the same business, asking you to retain your original position and take George as a partner with us. Then, on the old spot, we will, God willing, with you for the head, build up a business that shall equal the former. I wish I could keep my Lillian in this grand old home until her father could once more claim it honestly, but that can wait in the future. How does this proposition strike you?"

The idea was so entirely unexpected that each face exhibited varying shades of intense excitement, and all eyes were turned toward Mr. Newton. It was some time before he could command his voice and answer.

"My dear Eustace, you have been as a son to us from the hour you were first committed to our care, and this unexpected and generous proposition is but another evidence of how well you deserve our love."

"Oh, do not set this down as an act of generosity, I entreat. You know that merely in a selfish point of view it would be one of the most promising arrangements I could make. Your name at the head would be worth thousands to start with. I but put in the money—which I should never have had but for you—the influence, which every business man knows in your case would be worth double my money. So please do not put me to the blush by crediting me with any higher motive than my own interest and pleasure."

"Well, my son, no doubt it is your pleasure, and we will let it pass under that name of many meanings. In most respects your idea is a very excellent one, but you will bear with me when I say I would not wish to have it perfected. First, it would be very trying to my pride to assume my place without a penny to invest in the concern. But, if it were best for all, I could easily conquer pride. Secondly, as I now leave it, I am free from all reproach. No one can justly accuse me of wrong. I retire from the business a poor man. But if I in a few weeks begin again in the same place and business with one who is to be a son for one partner and a son for a third and the concern goes on as if nothing had changed, what can prevent the most honest hearted person from fearing and the slander loving from believing that my failure was simply an assignment of property into the hands of a relative, leaving me as rich, perhaps richer than before, while Le Barron is utterly destroyed? Ah, Eustace, even now in anticipation you feel that this would not be a wise course. Then, thirdly, I am 60 years old. The anxieties of the last three months have not made me younger, and I own I greatly desire to relinquish mercantile life and make the second beginning on another field if we can light on a plan that is desirable to all. How do these objections appear to you, Lucy?"

"I sympathize with you fully, Edward. I have no doubt that Eustace's plan could be most successfully carried out, but the turmoil and distress you have passed through of late are too fresh in my mind for me to feel anything but repugnance at the thought of seeing you again enter upon the same business, even under such pleasant auspices."

"So that plan is laid on the table, Eustace, and though it was a grand one I am glad that it did not meet with favor," said George. "Now, father, please call for plan the second."

"Yes, Eustace, we would gladly have it. You must not think me obstinate or inappreciative of the really sound, good judgment your first suggestion evinced. Only circumstances make it undesirable with the present state of feeling."

"You will all recollect," resumed Eustace, "that fine country residence about 20 miles from the city that old Squire Montgomery used to own, full of shrubbery, fruits and vineyards. I have bought it as an anticipated wedding gift for Lillian. George's remarks about his tastes for amateur farming brought my purchase at once to mind, and the idea that in your hands it might be made a most delightful and lucrative arrangement flashed upon me like inspiration."

"Hurrah! Here's a chance for our amateur farmer and horticulturist," cried Ralph. "A second Daniel! Oh, wise young man, how I do thank you! Any chance for me, eh?"

"Yes, mocker," said Eustace, laughing heartily. "I was going to offer you a place as plowboy. You could manage to ride a sober farm horse, couldn't you? And now, Mr. Newton, if this place can be made of use to you, will you not give me the opportunity of placing it in your hands, leaving you to arrange all the preliminaries to your own satisfaction, only stipulating that you will not make a business arrangement of it between us as with a stranger, but give me my place as a son in the matter."

Again the parents' eyes met, and this time there was no mistaking the meaning that long, earnest look revealed. Pride in the filial affection of one they had so long loved, and intense satisfaction that each day's development of his noble nature gave increasing assurance of their daughter's happiness. Lillian's approving smile was ample delight for her lover. Ralph was longing to banish the momentary silence by some waggish remark when his father said:

"I wish, Eustace, you could realize how truly we regard you as a son. But before I reveal your mother's thoughts and wishes and my own, or reply at all to your suggestions, I must bespeak your patience while we, as is most just, listen to a word from all. George, my son, what have you to offer now?"

So the various members of the Newton family agreed to the plan summed up by Ralph.

"Well, I vote for the country, the farming operations," said he, "and we will make our Rose a true, genuine Yankee housewife, Jasper, a burning and shining light among our southern dames. Whew! No offense, my lord, I trust! You surely can put up with a little sport without such portentous frowns."

"I am not conscious of frowning," said Jasper, moodily. "But I own I do not understand the spirit there can be in speaking of your sister as doing hard labor, nor will I tamely listen to your sneers against my countrywomen."

"Nor will I hear you, Jasper Grenville, speak in that tone to my brother," said Rose, laying an ice cold hand on her lover's arm. "You strangely forget yourself to imagine an implied insult from one who has ever been a true and loving friend."

"Pardon me, Rose, I have no wish to imagine an insult, but it sounded very like it."

"You are in a strangely suspicious and captious mood tonight, Jasper, and could I believe for one moment that our reverses"——

"Say it not, Rose, dear Rose! You know perfectly well you have no cause to believe me capable of any but the tenderest and truest sympathy."

"Pardon the interruption," said Mr. Newton firmly, "but this must cease. In my presence disputes or unkind remarks can never be tolerated. It is unlooked for, my friend, to see you so disturbed by a simple remark, which, although it may have seemed ill timed, a short time since you would have been the first to laugh at and enjoy."

CHAPTER VII.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton were unable during the evening to forget the intimations George had given them respecting Jasper's predictions. They struggled faithfully against suspicion and would have rejoiced to be convinced that they had been mistaken. But that Grenville had come to them that evening laden with some disquiet which he was anxious to conceal was too apparent, and that Rose was disturbed and made uncertain by it was also equally manifest.

After all were seemingly calm Mr. Newton again referred to Dunbar's proposition and acknowledged that they had always indulged the hope that some time they might retire from the city and devote their last days to just such pursuits as were now open to them.

But present indications portended a year of strife, and any day might see our country involved in all the horrors of civil war. Was it wise, therefore, to enter upon an occupation that would be difficult to manage, particularly should such a calamity come upon us? He then acknowledged that every scheme which had risen before his mind as desirable had been checked in the outset by the steadily increasing conviction that the arrogance of the south was fast taking such shape as would compel the north to meet it with the strong arm of law, if not with military force.

For a moment Grenville's face was indicative of such intense and passionate emotion that it very nearly mastered him, but his eye quailed before Mr. Newton's steady look, and George's attitude greatly disconcerted him.

Most fortunate for him, Ralph had drawn Rose's attention to himself, and neither remarked his strange excitement, but it was a sad confirmation of the parents' fear for their daughter's future. Nor could they fail to notice that while Dunbar's countenance evinced sorrow there was no mark of surprise. Lillian's fears were also awakening, and George's indignation could hardly be controlled. A sign from his father of warning—almost of entreaty—restored his composure sufficiently to escape Rose's notice as she suddenly exclaimed:

"Ralph says he will accept Eustace's offer of a plowboy's place, only, by the way, until he sees if our country shall need him in a less peaceful field."

"Oh, my children," said Mrs. Newton, "do not give utterance to such a thought. Wait, hoping that God will restrain the folly of our misguided brethren and keep us all in peace. Should our country need any of you there will be no withholding the most precious. But the time is not yet!"

"No, my dear wife, not yet, but any week, any hour, the storm may be upon us, and it is wise in whatever form it comes that we are not found unprepared. Still my impression is that we may manage to bring the farming scheme into some definite shape. Of course, Eustace, you and I will enter more fully into details after I have had a day or two to think upon it.

"One week will bring everything to a close here and leave us free to enter upon other labor: therefore you had better take Lillian and her mother out to the place on Monday and learn if all is in habitable order and bring back a full report. Should everything be favorable you and I will have an agreement drawn up that will be satisfactory to both, guarding my pride and your affection from collision.

"Of course this is but a rough draft and very crude. Reflection may greatly modify and perhaps compel us to relinquish it altogether, but as I have roughly sketched it how does the idea of this 'new life' please you all?"

"I would ask nothing better, my husband. If I remember aright, we cannot fail to make labor a pleasure in such a spot."

"I am sure it will not take long to make my hands acquainted with real labor," said George, "and I would seriously propose, father, as soon as you can decide that you allow me to begin the work preparatory to moving the family."

"Indeed you may, my boy, and I shall cheerfully find you active employment in a few days, for we can afford no loitering now."

"Well, father, you may as well find work for Alfred and me at the same time," said Ralph. "We have no intention of being the idle ones, I assure you."

"My son, I cannot yet bring my mind to allow either of you to leave your studies till your full course is finished."

"Excuse me, father; I cannot consent to that delay. I mean to begin with you at the very beginning, and I believe I love study sufficiently to promise that my evenings and leisure hours shall be employed in continuing the course I am now on."

"I am sure you could, but I am very reluctant."

"That is to say," said Rose, "seating herself on a footstool by her father's knee and, smiling roguishly up into his face, "our good papa has to battle with his pride a little on this point also."

"No, no, sister," interrupted Lillian. "I think it is affection, not pride, that disturbs our father."

"Well, Lilly, that is the most respectful way to state it, and I must own the most correct one too. But, father, you will not insist on Ralph's returning to college when he cannot help knowing that now, if ever, is the time when we should all co-operate. I know if it were me I should study to no purpose."

"Well, dear, we will think of it. Perhaps you and Ralph are right. But I don't like to think so."

"Yes, father, I am sure they are right," said quiet, thoughtful Alfred. "And let me beg you will not separate me from this work and insist upon my remaining in college."

The young man had spoken timidly, but his face was glowing with deep feeling. He was at once interrupted by a simultaneous voice from all. They were fully united on that subject. Alfred's education must be finished. He listened with attention and heard each objection to his wishes, and then all timidity vanished, and one of those changes so peculiar to his face transfigured him. The earnest, manly dignity with which he set aside the objections raised commanded a respectful attention.

He modestly reminded them he had heard with great interest, but in silence, all that had been said of future plans, because being so young he felt his part was to work whenever the mode of operations was defined, but he surely had not deserved to be severed from all he loved and trained for a different sphere. With a tinge of Ralph's humor he reminded them that they were always urging him to be less sedentary and live more in the open air, and now a way was open to make that a duty which they had only set before him for idle amusement.

How proudly all listened to the young lad's manly words, and his father could not but admit that he was really not in circumstances to carry out their earnest desires for their youngest without an outlay that was scarcely warrantable.

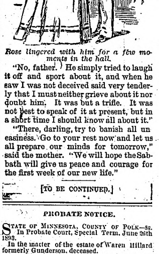
"And in acknowledging this, my children, which I own I do with very great unwillingness, I show to each of you that it will take time and very close watchfulness before we learn to adapt our expenditures to our present income."

The family now prepared to separate for the night, understanding that after the visit to Eustace's place the course to be adopted would be definitely settled. Toward the close of the evening Grenville aroused himself to take part in the general conversation, but it was with a visible effort.

Eustace bade them an affectionate good night, but Jasper's preoccupied manner could not be concealed. Rose lingered with him for a few moments in the hall, and on returning to the family said anxiously:

"I can't learn what ails Jasper. Something annoys or troubles him, and I cannot prevail upon him to trust me with it. I should feel really vexed with him did I not think it was some home sorrow he was trying to conceal, because he thinks we have our share just now."

"Would he give you no reason for his irritable, restless manner, which we all remarked?"



Rose lingered with him for a few moments in the hall.

"No, father. He simply tried to laugh it off and sport about it, and when he saw I was not deceived said very tenderly that I must neither grieve about it nor doubt him. It was but a trifle. It was not best to speak of it at present, but in a short time I should know all about it."

"There, darling, try to banish all uneasiness. Go to your rest now and let us all prepare our minds for tomorrow," said the mother. "We will hope the Sabbath will give us peace and courage for the first week of our new life."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, June 26th 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Waren Hillard formerly Gunderson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Martin Hillard administrator setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate of which said deceased died seized.

And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administrator to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell the whole of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday the 31st day of July 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses

And, it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 26th day of June A. D. 1893.

By the Court.
C. N. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[11-13]

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THREE states will elect governors this fall—Iowa, Ohio and Massachusetts, and the results will be awaited with great anxiety by the politicians of all parties.

THE Duluth people do not seem to be surprised at the downfall of Ex-Senator A. J. Whiteman, as it is said there that he has been known as a plunger for sometime.

THE southern brigaders are howling for the repeal of the protective tariff and the substitution therefor an income tax and a tax upon the breakfast table of the laboring man. We will see how they come out.

ANOTHER fearful cyclone visited Iowa last week by which nearly 100 people lost their lives. Minnesota has been free from these terrible visitations this year—in fact they are the exception and not the rule in this state.

WE have heard many expressions of pleasure from farmers who attended the institute upon the successful manner in which it was conducted and some who did not really understand the purpose of it before they attended, say they are amply repaid for the efforts they made to attend.

THE Land Commissioner has recommended the discontinuance of 20 land offices. The land office at Grand Forks was on the list to be consolidated with Fargo but Senator Roach would not have it that way and succeeded in changing the deal. It would seem that the new senator has some influence.

THE World's Fair management complain because the people do not seem to appreciate the fair, judging from the slim attendance so far. We reckon the people would attend in greater numbers if the railroads would only appreciate the fact that they do not intend to pay such high railroad rates and make about a half-fare rate. They will probably come to that after awhile.

COL. C. B. INGALLS, proprietor of the Hotel Northern, Grand Forks, died suddenly last Sunday morning. Col. Ingalls was one of the best known hotel men in the northwest, having been connected with hotels in Wisconsin and Minnesota all his life. Of a genial sociable disposition, he made friends of all with whom he came in contact, and will be sadly missed by the people of Grand Forks and the traveling public.

IT is said that H. P. Hall has taken editorial management of the St. Paul Globe again. Mr. Hall was the founder of the Globe and for a long time successfully conducted it and it must be gratifying to him to be recalled to build it up again after it has been run down by the Bakers. Mr. Hall was not quite tony enough to suit some of the Globe people so he was fired to make way for a tony management and now he has to be re-installed to save the life of the Globe. Hall is business from the ground up.

IN addition to an elaborate pamphlet describing the city of Buffalo and its surroundings, the Great Northern railway is sending out a lithograph of one of their large handsome passenger steamers which are being built at Cleveland and which will ply between Buffalo and Duluth in connection with the Great Northern railway. These boats will be the fastest on the lakes and have a speed of over 20 miles an hour, making the trip from Buffalo to Duluth in a little over two days.

THE Glenwood News, a republican weekly recently started at Glenwood, Pope county, is at hand. W. J. Gordon, an all-around printer and newspaper man, is at the head of the enterprise, and is getting out a good, clean, newsy sheet, and if the people down in that neck of the woods know a good thing when they see it they will give the News a liberal support.

THE report that Supt. Hunt was to be ousted from his position seems to have been premature. Mr. Hunt did great work in the matter of securing the money needed to make the Minnesota exhibit creditable and it would be a disgrace to the state to oust him from the position he has. There would be a howl from the newspaper boys of the state such as you seldom hear if they should try that game on. The rumor no doubt grew out of the women's squabble.

THE FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

The practical farmers of the United States have long felt the need of a protective association which resulted in the establishment of various orders the most important of which was the grange and later the farmers alliance. It is a matter of history that each of these orders was broken up by scheming demagogues for political purposes notably so with the grange and later with the alliance. The objects which the originators had in view were all right and the results would have been beneficial to the farmers had they persevered on the original line. Any one can see to-day what the strength of the alliance, as a business organization could be if the so-called alliance was now considering ways and means to cope with the existing circumstances. At the late alliance meeting at the court house how much attention was paid to the important matter of harvest help and threshing expenses? How much to the question of the conditions of the wheat market and the thousand and one business matters that directly affect the welfare of the farmers? The JOURNAL is not finding fault but simply pointing a moral. When the alliance was first forming we took occasion to point out wherein it would be beneficial to the farmers, and also pointed out the rocks upon which the craft might strike and be wrecked, and in the present situation we feel fully endorsed. Demagogues have sprung to the front and are pretending to run the "people's party"—all that is now left of the alliance, in the interest of the farmers. If any practical intelligent farmers will inform us how the peculiar tenets of that organization has helped him in his business or ever can do so we will gracefully acknowledge the corn and keep still. If the alliance was alive to-day and dealing with the living questions of the hour we can see where very much good could be done but how some howling demagogues are going to help relieve the situation we confess we are too dense to see clearly.

THE meeting of the executive committee of the Poples party in St. Paul last week passed a resolution to the effect that Ignatius Donnelly was the best friend to farmers that they have had in twenty years—but failed to state wherein. The teachings of Donnelly, during that period have caused a feeling of disquiet and unrest among the farmers, has stirred up dissentions among them but when did he ever do one thing of practical benefit for them? He is full of flowery visions of wealth and prosperity for them but—that's all it amounts to. It is true that he periodically comes before them and fills their ears with honied promises of what he will do for them if they will elect him to some office or other—leaving the inference plain that unless they elect him he wont even suggest the way for them to reach the millenium. Now, if he was truly sincere in his profession it strikes us that he would try and do the best he could in the cause of humanity—simply because it is right—and leave the result with the people,—allow them to elect him or not as they deemed best. But to continually insist that he must be elected something or other gives the impression that he is a chronic office-seeker pure and simple—only that and nothing more. Doctor Fisk makes no bones in publicly charging such things home to him and for the past few years nobody has known the true inwardness of Donnelly better than Doc. has.

THE farmers institute in Crookston was well attended at every session and the interest well sustained. Prof. Gregg told the JOURNAL man that he always liked to come to Polk county as he always had a big audience, and an intelligent one. If there is any farmer who attended this meeting who can say that he did not receive any benefit from listening to the talk of these old, experienced farmers we have not seen him yet. These things are of practical benefit.

THE news of the downfall of ex-senator A. J. Whiteman was received with surprise last week. He was arrested in New Jersey for passing bogus checks and the discovery made that he has been flying very high for some time. He was the democratic candidate for congress in '90 and it is is said that he spent a mint of money in that campaign. Later on his father died and left him another fortune, which he soon dissipated and is now said to be poor and disgraced.

Cheaper Farm Labor.

The following from the Grand Forks Herald is so full of good suggestions for Minnesota farmers that we give it for their consideration:

"If the farmers of North Dakota expect to have anything left from their crop this season, they must co-operate for the purpose of securing cheaper harvest help than has been ruling for the past ten years. When wheat was worth from 75 cents to $1.00 per bushel the rate of harvest hands was fixed at from $2.00 to $2.50 per day. Now that staple is worth less than 50 cents per bushel a commensurate reduction in the price of labor should be insisted upon. A large proportion of the proceeds of last year's crop left the state immediately after harvest in the pockets of itinerant harvest hands, and if anywhere near a like sum is exported this year, but little will be left to pay the bills contracted during the season for family maintenance. Farmers should move early in this matter, and much can be accomplished by co-operation. If a few, in their anxiety to harvest their crops as soon as possible, start in at the old time high rate, the price will be fixed, and all will have to pay more than they are able, and more than ought to be paid this year. Hitherto farmers have paid harvest hands about the price of three bushels of wheat per day, and if this rule is conformed to this year not more than $1.25 or $1.50 per day should be paid. This is a matter of paramount importance to farmers, and if they pull together and insist that harvest labor shall bear its fair share of the burdens incident to the depressed condition of the country, they will garner their crops just as expeditiously and safely as in the past, and at the same time retain a large amount of money for home circulation."

How to Make It Plain.

Here is what the Sauk Centre Herald has to say on silver:

"If the government would accept the option given it by the law in the redemption of the coin certificates issued in payment of silver purchased under the Sherman act it might serve to emphasize the absurdity of the attempt to force silver upon the people as a circulating medium. The silver dollar is worth less than fifty-five cents in the markets of the world. In purchasing silver if payments were made in silver coin the seller would part with a hundred pounds of silver bullion and receive in exchange less than fifty-five pounds of siver coin. It might serve to arouse his curiosity as to where and how his other forty-five pounds of silver had disappeared."

It is always best to look on the brightside. Grumbling does no good whatever. Read what the Northfield News has to say on this question.

Growling and grumbling about "hard times" does not make conditions any better. There is nothing like talking hard time to make hard times. When all talk "blue" dull times follow, for confidence is lost and everybody becomes restless and uneasy and frightened. Of course talking won't put wheat up to a dollar a bushel, but it will help mightily to satisfy one with present prices to know that a bushel of wheat will buy just as much as it ever would, and knowing this, to talk it. There is really no occasion for getting downhearted. The country is in good condition. Crops have been abundant, almost too abundant. Just now every body is holding tightly to the dollars, for fear they cannot get any more when these are gone. If all do this of course these dollars can't circulate. And if the dollars don't circulate times will be hard. Don't scatter the money around recklessly, don't throw it away, but on the other hand, don't be afraid to use it carefully. But above all, let us be happy and cheerful.

The Northwest says:

Minnesota stands second in the list of eight great wheat producing states in 1892, Kansas coming first with 70,831,000 bushels and Minnesota following with 41,210,000. Indiana and California come next and then the Dakotas. Wisconsin only produced 8,814,000 bushels; but her farmers find other products more profitable. Minnesota is the greatest spring wheat state, but should gradually figure larger in some other specialty."

Says the Brainerd Tribune: "This administration will be put down in history as one that was in favor of putting down more things than any other since Lincoln's, which put down the rebellion. Mr. Cleveland thinks the tariff is too high. He knows the volume of silver bullion, and the presidential fat is a big job, though, and if a failure is scored nobody should be surprised."

The Blue Earth City Post says: "Dr. Albert Shaw, in American Review of Reviews, declares that the politicians are responsible for the present financial disturbance in this country. Farm crops are excellent, and there was no reason for money trouble, but congress left the silver question and the tariff question unsettled; hence the flurry. He thinks any sort of tariff would do if only it were adopted for a fixed term of years. The commercial world could then adapt itself, knowing exactly what to expect at least four or five years ahead."

Compare the following words uttered by John Sherman with the utterances of the average democrat of the day. John knows what he is talking about:

"Compared with the empty and fruitless promises of its adversaries, the republican party has engrafted its policy in its acts and executed them, and now points to the history of its deeds as the best evidence of what it will do in the future, while a democratic party and a democratic president cannot agree upon, or formulate a single affirmative measure of public policy, and cannot even agree upon how and where it will or can attack any measure of the republican party. It relies upon temporary discontent, the slumbering animosities of the rebellion and the corrupt agencies of the city of New York."

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, July 5.

The Nawob of Rampur arrived at Victoria, B. C., Tuesday and has started for Chicago.

Twenty-six lives were lost by the explosion of a steamship boiler on the River Volga.

The American National bank of Leadville, and the Chaffee County bank at Salida, Colo., have failed.

D. R. P. Hibbs of Albert Lea, Minn., will probably be sent to Vancouver as consul, and Louis Stern of St. Paul has been promised a place.

The First National bank of San Diego, Cal., which failed about a month ago, will resume business next week. It is probable, also, that the failed Washington National bank of Spokane, Wash., will resume business in about 10 days.

Liquidators have been appointed to wind up the business of the Commercial bank at Winnipeg, which has been declared insolvent. The liabilities are placed at $1,370,000 and assets at $1,981,116. A part of the latter are not realizable.

Thursday, July 6.

Five persons were cremated in a farm house near Gagetown, Mich.

The Erie canal is blocked for at least a week by the break at Rochester.

The Weyling river, in China, has overflowed its banks, and over 1,000 persons perished.

Chicago expects that $150,000,000 will be left in the city by strangers between this and the time the world's fair closes.

Bank failures are reported from Pueblo, Omaha, Florence, Colo., Garden City and Leroy, Kan., and Ottumwa, Ia.

According to the last census there are 3,000,000 bachelors—persons over 30 years of age who have never married—in the United States.

Governor Lewelling has decided not to call an extra session of the legislature to appropriate money for the relief of drouth stricken farmers in the Western part of the state.

Friday, July 7.

President Cleveland is again suffering from rheumatism He is confined to his house.

Guy de Maupassant, the French novelist, is dead.

The wedding of the Duke of York and Princess May of Teck took place at St. James chapel Thursday.

Julia Marlowe is said to have married Robert Tabor, her leading man.

Nicaraugua, as a measure of economy, has recalled nearly all her ministers, including the representative in the United States.

The engagement is announced of President Roswell Miller of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul to Miss Mary E. Roberts of New York city.

Saturday, July 8.

The postoffice at Kiester, Minn., has been abolished; mail to Seely.

The manufacture of the army rifles has begun at the Sprinfield armory.

The Bimetallic silver mine, one of the richest producers of silver in Montana, is closed.

Judge McClintock, one of the earliest pioneers of Northwestern Iowa, died at his home at West Union Thursday.

Governor Waite of Colorado has definitely decided that he will not call an extra session of the legislature for any purpose.

The arguments in the patent office investigation have been concluded and Commissioner Seymour took the case under advisement.

Railroad postal service has been established on the Messabi and Northern railway, from Iron Junction to Virginia six times a week, or oftener if trains run.

The postmaster general said that until the president's return from Buzzard's Bay early in August, no further appointments of presidential postmasters will be made.

Monday, July 10.

Drought in many sections of Europe bids fair to ruin the agriculturists. Fodder is a total failure.

London is still celebrating the royal wedding, and is pleased over the way the function was observed.

Cornell won the 8-oared race from the University of Pennsylvania crew at Lake Minnetonka Saturday.

Eighty-seven pensioners at Philadelphia have been suspended by order of Mr. Lochren, who is purging the rolls.

United States authorities will probably send the Philadelphia to Samoa, deeming the presence of a warship advisable.

El Telegrafo won the $25,000 world's fair stake at Washington Park, Chicago, Saturday. Dolly Varden was second. Rhett third.

Tuesday, July 11.

Corbett and Peter Jackson will fight in November.

President Cleveland has become well enough to go fishing.

Mme Demorest of New York was robbed of $3,000 worth of jewels in a Chicago boardinghouse.

Pensioners under the dependent pension act of 1890 will be required to prove their disability or be dropped from the rolls.

Enlisted men in the navy will now have the privilege of purchasing discharge. Secretary Herbert has issued an order establishing rules and regulations for the purchase of discharges, as authorized by the last naval appropriation bill.

Rev. Dr. John S. Penman, rector of the Presbyterian church at Irvington, N. Y., has resigned his pastorship. He says he has done so because of his inability to longer sustain and subscribe to the "system of doctrine" of his church.

The Midway News pithily sizes up the financial situation thus:

"If our people have no confidence in public officials, no confidence in newspaper reports, no confidence in our leading financiers, how much better off would business be if we had a thousand millions of dollars locked in a vault somewhere? We will have to weed out a lot of men from commercial and industrial circles who have been doing business on wind, gall and rascality. We must return to honest principles, both in public and private affairs. We must establish confidence. We shall have no great busidess activity until we do."

The Minneapolis Journal gets off this quiet hit on the proposition to divide Polk county:

The Polk county alliance is credited with the promotion of a scheme to make four counties out of Polk. The itch for office is very strong amongthese reformers. With three new counties to man they will be in clover."

In the July number of The Review the dominant questions of the hour are discussed, as usual, in the most authoritative manner. The all-important question "Should the Chinese be Excluded?" is considered from two different points of view, first by Col. R. G. Ingersoll, who replies in the negative, and, secondly, by Congressman Geary, the author of the Chinese Exclusion Law, who answers in the affirmative. A paper possessing a unique interest on "The Family of Columbus" is contributed by the Duke of Veragua. "Ireland at the World's Fair," by the Countess of Aberdeen, and "Norway's Political Crisis" by Prof. H. H. Boyeson, besides a number of others equally good and interesting, compose the number. Address The North American Review, New York, N. Y.

Arrested for Trying to Celebrate the Fourth.

A man has been arrested at Creston, Iowa, for attempting to celebrate the Fourth. He was engaged to be married and just as the ceremony was about to be performed it was discovered that he already had one wife living in Iowa. Later it was found that he also had one in Wisconsin and one in Indiana. He did not celebrate the Fourth.

Best Trains for World's Fair.

The best equipped and most complete trains from Minneapolis and St. Paul for Chicago and World's Fair run via "The North-Western Line."

"World's Fair Express" leaves Minneapolis 5:45, St. Paul 6:25, every evening except Sunday, arrives Chicago 7:45 a. m., and is equipped with free reclining chair cars and gas-lighted, vestibuled buffet sleepers, and because of its early arrival in Chicago is the best train to take for the World's Fair as it gives a long day in Chicago.

"North-Western Limited" leaves Minneapolis 7:30, St. Paul 8:10 o'clock, every night in the year and arrives Chicago 9:30 next morning. This is the easiest riding, finest equipped train west of Chicago, having both Pullman and Wagner private compartment sleepers and Buffet smoking library coaches, and is the only palatial train of its kind in America on which no extra fare is charged.

"Badger State Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:20, St. Paul 8:00 o'clock, every morning in the year and arrives Chicago 9:35 p. m., and is equipped with modern day coaches and luxurious parlor cars. It means the best service, the most complete comfort and the greatest luxury when your tickets to Chicago read, via "The North-Western Line." For illustrated World's Fair guide and map folder free address,

T. W. Teasdale,
Gen'l Passenger Agent,
[13-tf] St. Paul, Minn.

Mrs. J. H. HORSNYDER, 152 Pacific Ave., Santa Cruz, Cal., writes:

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of brain fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald, and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. Friends urged me to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, on doing so, my hair and I now have as fine a head of hair as one could wish for, being changed, however, from blonde to dark brown."

Began to Grow,

"After a fit of sickness, my hair came out in combfulls. I used two bottles of and now my hair is over a yard long and very full and heavy. I have recommended this preparation to others with like good effect."—Mrs. Sidney Carr, 1460 Regina st., Harrisburg, Pa.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years and always obtained satisfactory results. I know it is the best preparation for the hair that is made."—C. T. Arnett, Mammoth Spring, Ark.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

RECKITT BLOCK

MEAT MARKET,

VINE & RICHINGS, Props.

FRESH AND SALT MEATS;
—Constantly on hand.
GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
—In season.
Highest price paid for
FAT CATTE, HOGS, = = =
= = SHEEP and POULTRY.

MINNESOTA

State Normal Schools,

—AT—

WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

THESE schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common of the state.

ORGANIZATION. Each school comprises two departments—the Normal Department and the Training Department or Model School.

The Normal Department embraces:
(a) An Elementary Course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.
(b) An Advanced Course for teachers of advanced graades.
(c) A Professional Course, for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere
(d) A Kindergarten Training Course (at Winona and St. Cloud.)

ADMISSION. Graduates of high schools and colleges, and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificates are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES. Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota. Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is about $3 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3 per week. The new Dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS. By a recent act of the legislature, a diploma becomes a state teachers' certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 13th; at Mankato Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead Oct. 3d.

For free catalogues and circulars, giving full information, address the presidents as follows:

IRWIN SAEPARD, Winona.
EDWARD SEARING, Mankato.
JOSEPH CARHART, St. Cloud.
LIVINGSTONE C. LORD, Moorhead.

Congress

WILL NOT BE IN SESSION

UNTIL SEPTEMBER,

—BUT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

WILL BE IN SESSION
RIGHT ALONG

To help regulate the financial condition of Polk County with the

BEST GOODS

—AT THE—

LOWEST PRICES.

CONFIDENCE

In the ability of the government is what is now most needed, and Confidence in Our Ability and Methods is Already Established.

You can make money by trading with Fontaine & Anglim.

A SCORE PERISHED.

TWENTY DEAD OR MISSING FROM WORLD'S FAIR FIRE.

At Least as Many Others Severely Injured in the Falling Building—The Unfortunate Men, Hemmed In by Fire, Jump to Certain Death—Thousands of Exposition Visitors Witness the Horrible Spectacle.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, July 10.—Twenty men dead or missing and 25 others injured is the result of the fire in the cold storage warehouse at the world's fair grounds. The building, which was situated near the Sixty-fourth street entrance to the exposition grounds, was a flimsily constructed affair and burned rapidly. The full extant of the death wrought may never be known as the building collapsed totally in so short a time after the fire started that many people who entered the building hoping to render aid before the peril under which they were placing themselves was realized, were caught like rats in a trap and went unannounced to their doom. It is said that but four Columbian guards are missing, but there are many vacancies in the different companies scattered about the grounds and the captains, while refusing to commit themselves, fear that their men have been cremated. The following is a list of those who met death and the missing:

Killed.

CAPTAIN JAMES FITZPATRICK, acting chief, Columbian fire department.
JOHN McBRIDE, driver.
WILLIAM DENNING, truckman.
LIEUTENANT MOLTER, truckman.
UNKNOWN MAN, initials on belt W. H.

Missing.

CAPTAIN GARVEY, Company No. 1.
CAPTAIN PAGE, Company No. 3.
LIEUTENANT PURVIS, Company No. 4.
PHIL BREEN, Company No. 8.
LIEUTENANT FREEMAN, Company No. 1.
JOHN SMITH, Company No. 2.
PAUL SCHROEDER, Company No. 8.
JOHN CAHIL, Company No. 8.
SERGEANT DONALDSON, Columbian guard.
H. STRAND, Columbian guard.
FOUR COLUMBIAN GUARDS.
HENRY GEDUTDIG, foreman of painters.

The fire was apparent only in the observation tower and its isolation from the great main roof made the work of the firemen hazardous and slow. The firemen at once went out on the roof and hastened up the hose with ropes to the far story of the tower on the east and south sides. Others rushed up the spiral stairway to the landing next the blazing top and lowered ropes on three sides for the men below to attach the hose to. Until this time the fire resembled the flaming mouth of

A Small Blast Furnace

and there seemed to be no danger menacing those brave men working in the air. Without a thought of the fate which was so soon to overtake them the 30 odd men outside the towers were at work on the east and south sides. All this time the flames were burning through the larger section of the tower beneath them. The first intimation of danger came to the victims when the smoke appeared under them and as the wind blew into their faces they retired in an orderly body to the north side of the tower. It seemed as if the victims changed position because they feared flames would soon follow the smoke which they saw. The flames had been devouring five feet of framework which surrounds the cast iron shaft that pierced the tower below the men. Quick as a flash, like a band of molten gold, flames burst through the square tower just underneath the imprisoned men on all sides. Soon the imprisoned men coming and with one impulse of self-preservation moved quickly to where the ropes were attached at the northwest corner. They could not look down and see the flames because of the projecting cornice, but they knew where the ropes were. There they stood huddled together, some without their coats, others hatless, and all preparing to save themselves if they could. The man first to the rope grasped it and descended, but only a dozen feet. The flames had no mercy, the rope was burned in two and with feet dowhward the first victim shot through the air to the main roof. He turned partly over before he struck and bounded up before lying still as if dead. A great cry of anguish and fear came up from thousands on the ground.

Felt the Scorching Fire

Fighting for Life.

No sooner had the first man struck the roof than another leaped from the tower before the horrified gaze of the spectators. His body kept straight feet down until near the roof, when he turned a somersault and a second cry of horror came from thousands of throats. The two ropes on the north side of the tower where the doomed men were huddled were almost useless for the saving of life yet for the first possession of the corner at least ten fought savagely. They only prolonged their consciousness of life for all were doomed to die, yet they struggled to catch at anything which seemed to hold a chance for life. One by one they

Dropped From the Tower,

some clinging to the burning rope as far as it afforded them any hold and then shooting through a sheet of flame to the roof. The sight was too much for even the military men and the old firemen on the ground to bear without a turning away of heads. Men leaping through flames 100 feet or more down to sure death presented a sight such as the stoutest hearts could not witness unmoved. The last men died the hero's death among all those heroes who faced the furnace below them. He had waited without apparent fear until there was only himself left. He was a fireman and he grasped the remnant of burning rope just as the whole structure parted diagonally and fell towards the north, right over the prostrate bodies of the poor fellows who had leaped to Escape the Pitiless Flames.

When the tower toppled over there was no hope of saving any who had not been taken off the roof. The bodies on striking had become imbedded nearly three feet in the gravel and tar between the wooden joists and only a few could be removed to a place of safety before the great central tower crashed over.

THE BETHEL FIRE.

Four Lives Lost In the St. Paul Holocaust.

ST. PAUL, July 6.—The loss of life in the fire at the Bethel at the foot of Sibley street, was slightly exaggerated by first reports. It is now believed only three were killed and one probably fatally injured. Seven others were quite seriously hurt but will recover.

Of the three persons who met death in the boat, only one had been identified at 10 o'clock; that was Mrs. Jennie Peak, matron of the boat. The other two were men whose names were unknown. Louise Morgan, daughter of Rev. David Morgan, superintendent of the Bethel, was so badly burned that it is feared she will die. She seems to have been completely enveloped about the body, for she is badly burned about the face, limbs and body. She is now at St. Lukes hospital, where everything possible is being done for her. At the city hospital are James Shaughessy, who is bruised in the side and slightly burned, Pat Ryan, whose hands are badly burned, but whose injuries are not serious, and Harvey Thompson, who is slightly burned about the thighs. Four others whose names have not been learned, were also injured but not fatally. The rumor that two other bodies were in the hold of the boat has not yet been verified.

The Dead.

MRS. JENNIE PEAK, matron of the Bethel, aged 35.
JOHN SINGLETON, engineer of the boat.
One man unknown.

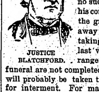
The Fourth Victim.

ST. PAUL, July 7.—Miss Lulu Morgan, a girl of 12 years, daughter of Rev. David Morgan, died at 11 p. m. from the burns she received in escaping from the burning Bethel. She is the fourth victim of the big fire.

BLATCHFORD DEAD.

The Supreme Court Justice Passes Away at Providence.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—Associate Justice Samuel Blatchford passed quietly and peacefully away from earth at 7:20 p. m. He retained consciousness until one hour before his death. There was no sudden change in his condition, simply the gradual slipping away which had been taking place for the last week. The arrangements for the funeral are not completed, but the body will probably be taken to Washington for interment. For many seasons he has been a quiet visitor in the city during the summer season, residing in his own cottage on Greenough Place.



JUSTICE BLATCHFORD.

ADOPTED LOW RATES.

Western Railroads Agree to Sell One-Fare Excursion Tickets.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The Western Passenger association has formally adopted its plan of 1-fare excursions to the world's fair, and excursions may now be run from points within the association territory on the following dates: July 17, good returning July 21 or 28; July 24, tickets good returning Aug. 4 or 11; Aug. 7, tickets good returning Aug. 11 or 18. The round trip rate is to be not less than one fare to Chicago from each point, except that the minimum rates in the Southwest and Wes shall be $15 and in the Northwest $13.75.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, July 11, 1893.

HOGS—Not enough received for a market, and receipts held over.

CATTLE—Steady, fair demand for butcher cattle. Market for stockers and feeders dull. Prime steers, $3.75@4.00; good steers, $3.50@3.75; prime cows, $3.00@3.50; good cows, $2.50@3.00; common to fair cows, $1.25@2.25; light veal calves, $3.00@3.75; heavy calves, $1.95@3.00; stockers, $1.75@2.00; feeders, $2.50@3.00; bulls, $1.75@2.00.

SHEEP—Good muttons in demand. Muttons, $3.50@4.25; lambs, $3.00@4.00 stockers and feeders, $2.50@3.50.

Receipts—Hogs, 50; cattle, 50; calves, 5; horses, 15.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 11, 1893.

WHEAT—July opening, 60¼c; highest, 60⅝c; lowest, 60c; closing, 60½c. August closing, 62⅝c; September opening, 65⅞c; highest, 65⅞c; lowest, 65½c; closing, 65⅝c. On track—No. 1 hard, 63c; No. 1 Northern, 61c; No. 2 Northern, 58½@59½c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, July 11, 1891.

CATTLE—Weak.

HOGS—Weak. Heavy, $5.85@6.25; mixed and medium, $5.85@6.20; light, $5.90@6.20.

SHEEP—Steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 19,000; hogs, 44,000; sheep, 5,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 11, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 67¾c; September, [illegible]
CORN—July, 41¼c; August, 41¾c; September, [illegible]
OATS—July, [illegible]; August, [illegible]; September, [illegible]
PORK—September, $20.10.
LARD—September, [illegible]
SHORT RIBS—July, [illegible]; September, [illegible]

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 65½c; August, 67¼c; September, [illegible]
CORN—July, [illegible]; August, 41¼c; September, [illegible]
OATS—July, [illegible]; August, [illegible]
PORK—July, [illegible]; September, [illegible]
LARD—July, [illegible]; September, [illegible]
SHORT RIBS—July, [illegible]; September, [illegible]

THE WORLD'S RAILWAYS

Magnificent Endeavor of One Individual.

MUSEUM AT THE BIG EXPOSITION.

How Colonel Pangborn, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Got Together One of the Most Admirable Collections To Be Seen at the World's Fair—Progress of Railroading.

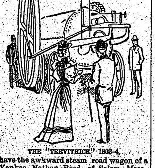
WORLD'S FAIR, July 12.—[Special.]—In the Transportation building is a single exhibit which contains a whole exposition in itself. If I were called upon to select out of the great Columbian aggregate the most important and interesting exhibit made by individual, firm or corporation, I should unhesitatingly choose that which is grouped under the title—"The World's Railways." It is one of the most admirable things in the exposition, a series of object-lessons in railroad history, and today the most thorough and comprehensive railway museum and retrospective in existence. Moreover, it was gathered together by one man, and a single railway paid all the expense of it. There is no finer example anywhere of what an American with brains, energy and means can accomplish in a short time, for this historical collection astonishes all beholders. There is nothing else like it in the world, and the best of it is the display is to be the nucleus around which will be formed a permanent American railway museum.

How did it come to be? Well, Colonel J. G. Pangborn, of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, suggested to Mr. Mayer, the president of the road, that it would be a great idea to prepare for the World's fair not simply a one railroad exhibit, but an exposition of railway development throughout the whole world. The idea was promptly adopted, and Mr. Pangborn set to work. He spent a year in Europe, visiting the heads of great railway corporations, and securing their co-operation. By exercise of those arts known only to a railroader and newspaper man—Mr. Pangborn is both—he obtained imperial orders for assistance in Germany, Austria, Russia and other monarchies, as well as similar orders from the great museums of Paris, London and other cities. Then he returned to America, employed a staff of artists and photographers, set up his own machine shop, wrote 13,000 letters to railway managers throughout the world, ransacked all libraries and found all the old prints, sketches and drawings on the face of the earth, spent weeks unraveling disputed historical points, secured old locomotives, cars, tracks and appliances from all countries, and here we have the magnificent result of this magnificent endeavor.

On three tracks, side by side, stand fifty-nine original locomotives or models thereof of which are perfect reproductions. Though built of wood, every one of the models is a working machine, having all the mechanism of the originals. The World's fair visitor who studies these fifty-nine object-lessons will conclude with a better idea of the history of railway development than he could gather from all the books in existence.

Now, let us start down one of these tracks and have a brief look at these models and originals. They cover the evolution of the locomotive from the idea of Newton, a tea-kettle on wheels impelled forward by the steam escaping from its spout, to the 100-ton compound-cylinder "Director-General," finest type of the modern passenger locomotive. The period covered is 213 years, or from 1680 to the present time. Between Newton's idea, represented by a bronzed model, and the first actual steam propulsion, there is a gulf of eighty-nine years. But even in this period the processes of evolution were at work, and are shown here by the aid of a large number of pictures of tramways on which cars were run by animal or human power and the picturesque period of wind propulsion, in which cars were fitted with sails and blown along the highways on rude tracks.

After Newton we come to the first example of steam locomotion on our globe. It was by a Frenchman, Cugnot, in 1769. His machine is still in existence in the Paris Conservatory of Arts, and here we have an exact model of it. Next is the machine of Murdoch, 1784. He was the companion of Watt, of steam engine fame, and was a believer in high pressure, while Watt was not. Murdoch was simply ahead of his times. He was also the inventor of illuminating gas. Here we have the awkward steam road wagon of a Yankee, Nathan Reed, of Salem, Mass., who invented the multitubular boiler, without which the locomotive of today would be an impossibility. His wagon was built in 1794. Next to this model is the earliest effort of the Father of the Locomotive, Richard Trevithick, a Cornish colliery foreman.

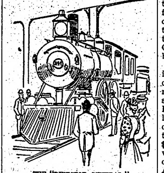


THE "TREVITHICK" 1803-4.

Here is the first locomotive that ever ran on a rail. It was built by Trevithick in 1803 to decide a wager that he could not make an engine to run five miles in an hour. He won his bet, and attached to the reproduction are the first cars ever drawn by a locomotive. These old relics were found in the colliery at Merthyr Tydvil, Wales. The next is another important link in locomotive evolution. In 1804 Oliver Evans, of Philadelphia, accomplished the first practical propulsion on land by steam. His machine was not intended as a locomotive at all, but as a dredger. When it was built, its great weight raised the question of how it was to be transported to the foot of Market street, where its work was to begin. To solve this problem Evans rigged it as a locomotive and ran it through the streets to the Schuylkill, there shifted the power from drivers to paddle-wheels and propelled it as a steamboat to the place where it was to be used. Evans was the inventor of the high pressure engine, and only recently is getting the credit rightfully his.

We have now reached a period in which the locomotive grew pretty rapidly. Here is Blenkinsop's machine, the first ever put to practical use. It has toothed wheels, for in that day it was not believed smooth driving wheels would do anything but fly round and round on the rails, and they used to hammer the wheels and roughen the surface of the rails in order to secure adhesion. Curious example of this error is Brunton's horse-peg locomotive or mechanical traveler—two long legs walking behind the machine and pushing on the ground one after the other. This curious contrivance actually moved four miles an hour and pulled a load. Hedley came along in 1812 and demonstrated that smooth wheels would do the work. In 1813 he made his famous "Puffing Billy," oldest locomotive in the world, now in South Kensington museum, London, and here we have a model of it.

Now we come to Stephenson's first effort, the "Blucher," in 1814. It is easy to see that this great adapter and imitator, who has had more than his share of credit for the creation of the locomotive, combined Trevithick and Hedley. The Blucher was not a success, and for twelve or fifteen years the locomotive did not make much headway. Here is Seguin's locomotive with a multitubular boiler, which he patented in France in 1827, though we have indisputable truth that Nathan Reed had invented that form of boiler many years before. Next to Seguin's is the first locomotive on which a patent was taken out in America—the locomotive of William Howard, of Baltimore, with a radial axle and a sort of walking beam connecting two engines together.



THE "DIRECTOR GENERAL."

This brings us to the famous locomotive trial on the Liverpool and Manchester railroad in 1829, and we have not only models of the machines which took part in that memorable contest, but five of the original rails and chairs over which the trials took place. The model of the winner of that contest, Stephenson's "Rocket," shows the engine as it was when it won its victory and established its maker's fame, with inclined cylinders, while the original "Rocket" now in Kensington museum had had its cylinders changed to horizontal. This is one of many similar evidences of the care exercised in preparation of this exhibit. Next to the "Rocket" is Hackworth's locomotive, which was in the trial but suffered an accident, possibly because it had been built in Stephenson's machine shop. As a matter of fact Hackworth did more for the locomotive than Stephenson. One of his grandson's is now superintendent of the Transportation building. We have here, also, Ericsson's famous "Novelty," and the Stourbridge Lion, the first locomotive seen in America. It was used on the Carbondale (Pa.) road by Horatio Allen, who was the only man not afraid to ride upon it.

Now we come to the distinctively American epoch in the early history of the locomotive. In 1829 the "Tom Thumb," the first locomotive built on this continent was put together by Peter Cooper, and here it is. In 1831 the Baltimore and Ohio railroad offered $4,000 in prizes for the best locomotives, and five inventors entered the competition. These were the "George W. Johnson," Baltimore, first locomotive in the world with a double fire box and an extended front, the "York," which won first prize, the "Costell," the "Child" and the "James." Not one of these candidates was like any other, and in none of them was any imitation of the English types to be seen. Every man had started out on his own ideas.

None of these locomotives was a commercial success, but the following models show us the tremendous influence which that trial exerted upon locomotive work in America. Here we stop to look a long time at the old "Atlantic," built in 1832 and used until a few months ago as a switch engine. It is now retired after sixty years' service, and is today the oldest locomotive on the continent that preserves its original working parts.

Epoch-markers are some of these models. Here is "Old Ironsides," the first built by Baldwin; the "South Carolina," first of the eight-wheelers; Jervis, 1832, first with bogie or forward truck; James, 1832, first with the link motion and proof to the world that Stephenson did not invent that important mechanical movement, for James was thirteen years ahead of him; the "Traveler," Baltimore and Ohio's first freight engine, marking the differentiation of freight from passenger locomotives, sixty years in service; the "Thomas Jefferson," fifty-eight years in service and arriving here with water in its boiler; the first of the Camel type, which set the locomotive fashion in America, just as Stephenson's Mercury, 1830, set the fashion in England; the Hercules, 1837, which first used equalizing beams; the "Lafayette," built by a Baltimore druggist who astonished the English by making an engine that would climb an incline; the "Sandusky," first built by Rogers, and first locomotive used west of the Ohio river; the "Albion" and "Samson" from Nova Scotia; the "Buffalo," 1845, first eight-wheeled coupled engine; the "Dragon;" the Pepper Sauce," first mountain climber; an early effort of William Mason, who was the first to put symmetry and grace into the locomotive, and the [illegible] that other man is entitled to credit for making the American locomotive a thing of beauty.

Here is the locomotive exhibited by the Baltimore and Ohio at the Centennial, No. 600. It was a magnificent machine in that day, but compare it with the "Director General"!

As if these sixty object-lessons in the development of railways were not enough, we have here nearly two thousand pictures, railway scenes from all times and lands, the development of locomotives, of cars, of bridges, the great workshops, the royal trains of the world, railway engineering everywhere.

ROBERT GRAVES.

PHOTOGRAPHS IN MULTIPLE.

Tiny Portraits Turned Out by Thousands to Satisfy a Fad.

Hidden under the staircase of a frame building on Pennsylvania avenue is an oddity in the shape of a photographer's shop. Nobody ever goes there to have his picture taken, and yet the business is a profitable one. For one thing, the proprietor has a long lease of the premises at a rental of only $2 a month. His establishment amounts to nothing more than a large closet, which is utilized as a darkroom for work. There is nothing to be seen of screens, skylights, shabby furniture, which looks as good as new when taken by the camera, or the instruments for holding the head steady, which are so suggestive of torture to children. The words, "Look pleasant, please," are never uttered in this secluded studio.

In fact, the photographer himself is very rarely to be found on the premises. People send in pictures of themselves to be reproduced by an extraordinary process of multiplication. They must be cabinet sized photographs. He has an instrument which looks very much like a stereoscope of the sort that one looks through at photographs, only about three times as big. In place of the part for the eyes there is a small camera, and a few inches in front of the latter is a kind of frame in which the cabinet portrait to be reproduced is put. The camera, though such a little one, has 38 lenses. One might compare it to the eye of a bee, which is multiple in like fashion.

It is a snap camera and makes 38 miniature copies of the cabinet portrait at one shot on a single negative. From the negative the pictures are printed off in sheets of 38 distinct photographs each. It does not take long to produce them in large quantities at this rate, and so the operator finds a profit in selling them at the price of $1 for 50. He sells 100 for $2, 500 for $7, or 1,000 for $14. It is a very cheap way to procure a lot of counterfeit presentments of one's self. A good many people order 500 or 1,000. At the time of the inauguration such photographs of Mr. Cleveland were worn as badges by some of the visiting political clubs, with a ribbon fastening each one to the buttonhole of the wearer.

The back of these little photographs, which are a novelty, are spread with dextrine. It serves as a sort of mucilage, so that the pictures can be licked like postage stamps and stuck upon anything. Commercial travelers affix them to the corners of their "advance cards" sometimes, which they mail a week or two ahead to firms in towns which they expect to visit shortly. Thus the recipients get a notion of the appearance of the agent before he comes along if they were not previously acquainted with him or are agreeably reminded of his physiognomy. In the same manner theatrical people stick them on their letters, and various other professional persons adopt similar practices. In fact, it is quite a fad.—San Francisco Examiner.

One of Ralph Waldo Emerson's Stories.

Mr. Emerson himself had a story—I forget whether I heard it in a lecture or in conversation—about a New England come outer who went into a hatshop and selected for himself a costly hat. The hat was put up and the dealer supposed he was to be paid, but the man whom he had thought to be a purchaser said simply: "Oh, I pay nothing for anything. I am the man who does not believe in money." The poor dealer had a note to meet at the bank that day and hardly knew how to do it. He looked with dumb delight upon his customer and said: "I wish to God, sir, that nobody else believed in money! Take the hat, with my thanks to you for coming for it."

Mr. Emerson would say this was all spontaneous—it was natural on the part of the customer and on the part of the trader. But when, the next day, another man who had heard the story came into the shop and selected for himself his hat and said that he did not believe in money, the dealer refused the imitator where he had accepted so readily the inventor. And Emerson drew the moral from the story which I want to draw now. A prophet who speaks the word that comes to him from the living God speaks, I may say, with the living God's power. But he who imitates the prophet has no spell.—Edward E. Hale's Address.

Engagements and Marriages.

The following figures have been compiled from the combined recollections of 32 maiden ladies and 45 military officers, all resident in the county town of one of the home counties. Out of the 1,540 engagements to marry which their joint reminiscences present, 46, or about 3 per cent, ended in lunacy, incarceration or decease of one of the parties; 385, or 25 per cent, were broken off at the instance of the girl, and 262, or about 17 per cent, by the man; 169, as near as possible 11 per cent, were interfered with by friends; 154, exactly 10 per cent, came to an end for reasons not made public; 185, or about 12 per cent, faded away without incident in the lapse of years; 108, say 7 per cent (not included in any previous category), led to actions for breach of promise. The remainder, a pettifogging 15 per cent, resulted in marriage.—London Letter.

A Young Woman's Reasoning.

"I am told, dear, that Jack Rattlepate spent most of his vacation in your back parlor. Aren't you giving him rather a dangerous amount of encouragement?"

"Why, no, dearest, he is merely a boy. To be sure, he is a year older than I, but I shall be out next winter, while Jack has two years more in college, and it will be six years after that before he can earn much of anything. So practically he is six years younger than I, and that makes him 12. It is absurd to talk of encouraging a boy so young as that."—Harper's Bazar.

A Reformatory.

Maud Muller—Didn't you say she was a prominent leader in the dress reform movement?

Maid Marian—Well, she keeps a clean-[illegible] and [illegible] establishment.—Kate Field's Washington.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
SPECIAL NOTICE
Complying with general request,
BEECHAM'S PILLS
will in future for the United States be covered with A Tasteless and Soluble Coating, completely disguising the taste of the Pill without in any way impairing its efficacy.
Price 25 cents a Box.
New York Depot 365 Canal Street.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

BROWN, THE CIGAR MAN
Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
Manufactory over Merchants Nat'l Bank. Entrance on Second Street.
DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.
H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
Reckitt Bloc, - - Crookston, Minn.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
Besides carrying a full and complete line of
COFFINS,
CASKETS
AND BURIAL SUPPLIES.
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—
Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 105½ Broadway.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.
BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.
BRAN, SHORTS
AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor. R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 321 N. Main street, Crookston, Minn.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success. Insane Persons Restored
DR. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, [illegible] Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

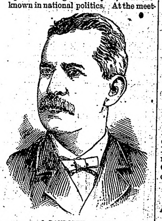
LEGAL LUMINARIES.

THEY WILL SOON ASSEMBLE IN CONVENTION AT MILWAUKEE.

Preparations For the Annual Session of the American Bar Association—History and Objects of the Organization—Subjects to Be Discussed—John Randolph Tucker.

Jurisprudence and law reform, judicial administration and remedial procedure, commercial law, the simplification of legal processes, and especially the assimilation so far as possible of the divorce laws of the several states—such are the principal subjects to be discussed at the sixteenth annual session of the American Bar association, which is to be held at Milwaukee beginning Aug. 30 and continuing three days. The last named subject is one of increasing interest, as the various divorce laws, from South Carolina to South Dakota, have of late years given rise to most embarrassing complications.

It was on July 1, 1878, that a circular letter was issued calling an informal meeting of lawyers at Saratoga on Aug. 21 of that year. To this call the signers were Benjamin H. Bristow, William M. Evarts, George Hoadly, Stanley Matthews, E. J. Phelps, Lyman Trumbull, J. Randolph Tucker and some others of equal standing as lawyers, but no known in national politics. At the meeting thus called 75 men subscribed their names and organized the American Bar association. A few years later the rule was adopted that meetings be held each alternate year at Saratoga and in other years at the principal cities in turn.



J. RANDOLPH TUCKER.

A hundred names were added to the roll on the second day of the first session, and now the association contains over 1,000 members, representing every section of the United States. Any member in good standing of the bar of any state is eligible. The constitution declares the objects to be the advancement of the science of jurisprudence, to promote the administration of justice and uniformity of legislation, to uphold the honor of the profession and encourage cordial intercourse among the members of the American bar. A great deal has been accomplished in all these lines.

At the Chicago session, 1889, an extremely interesting feature was the reading of letters from Mr. Gladstone and Lord Chief Justice Coleridge on "The International Court of Justice." The letter of Lord Coleridge was especially interesting, as he took the ground that wars would continue to be necessary, though the proposed international court might prevent many.

The first president was James O. Broadhead of St. Louis, and the president for this year is the venerable John Randolph Tucker of Virginia. This distinguished lawyer announced his retirement from political life some years ago and was soon after stricken with an illness believed to be fatal, but unexpectedly recovered and at the age of 70 is in singularly firm health and vigor. Very few Americans have had so varied a career. He was an eminent lawyer for a dozen years before the war and was attorney general of Virginia from 1857 till dispossessed by the reconstruction measures. Since the war he has served seven terms in congress with ever increasing honor, and as chairman of the judiciary committee he won a reputation that extended to foreign countries. He is a native of Winchester, Va.

It is an interesting fact that he left congress only to give place to his son, Henry St. George Tucker, and thus is continued that remarkable succession of the Tuckers as leaders in Virginia and the nation which has now lasted 118 years. St. George Tucker, a native of Bermuda, located in Virginia in 1752 and in the revolution led a successful expedition against his native island. For 50 years he was active as soldier, legislator, author and judge. His two sons were equally eminent in law and literature, and the elder, Henry St. George, won distinction in the war of 1812. John Randolph and Nathaniel Beverly were his sons, and the latter, famous from Pierce's administration till the close of the war, died recently at an advanced age. Several more relatives have also been leaders in Virginia.

Every one who attended sessions of congress from 1875 to 1889 remembers the tall and distinguished looking man who delivered such closely logical speeches on constitutional law and generally on the strict construction side of each issue. It is no small proof of the complete amnesty that has obtained among lawyers and is certainly a high compliment to Mr. Tucker that he should have been honored with the presidency of the bar association. The secretary for the year is Edward Otis Hinckley of Baltimore, and the treasurer Francis Rawle of Philadelphia.

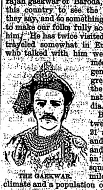
Some of the finest productions in American law literature have been addresses delivered before this association. Among them were that on "Marshall and the Constitutional Laws of His Time" by Minister Phelps in 1879, that on "Alexander Hamilton" by Clarkson N. Potter in 1882, and that upon "The Ideal and the Actual In Law" by James C. Carter in 1890.

D. E. CATECK.

THE MAHARAJAH GAEKWAR.

A Royal Hindoo Coming to the World's Fair.

His royal highness Gopal Rao, maharajah gaekwar of Baroda, is coming to this country to see the World's fair, they say, and so something must be done to make our folks fully acquainted with him. He has twice visited England and traveled somewhat in Europe, and all who talked with him were pleased to meet so intelligent and progressive a man as the ruler of a native state of India.



THE GAEKWAR.

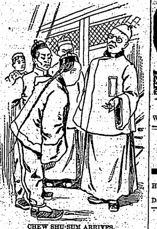
Baroda is between latitudes 21 and 23 north and longitudes 73 and 74 east, has an area of 4,400 square miles, a mild and bracing climate and a population of 2,000,000 or more. The income of the gaekwar (in the old records it is guicowar) is some $7,500,000 a year, out of which he runs the government, so far as the English think it good for the people and themselves, and supports himself and family. The title was originally rao, or king, and as the Aryan Hindoos are from the same original stock as the white Europeans those curious in such things may note its resemblance to the French roi, Spanish rey and Latin rex.

Baroda, like most of the little native states, is under the British protectorate, and in 1875 Mulhar Rao, then gaekwar, poisoned Colonel Phayre, British resident or agent at his court. The English thereupon broke the line of succession and installed Gopal Rao, a boy of 12, who is descended from Pilaju, founder of the monarchy, and therefore took the title of Syaji Rao III. He has astonished everybody by his progress and ability in ruling. He speaks English with graceful fluency and is introducing modern civilized methods as rapidly as possible. He has taken high ground against child marriage and many other Indian abuses. On the whole, we should give a royal welcome to the maharajah gaekwar.

A MANDARIN OF HIGH DEGREE.

A Benevolent Society President With Chinese Government Credentials.

The Chinese diplomatic service has peculiarities of its own and is not governed entirely by the usages that prevail among the foreign representatives of other nations. It would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer, as it has long puzzled some of those in San Francisco, to make out the exact relationship between the Chinese Six Companies in California and the imperial government. The principal officials of these companies are appointed in China and exercise some sort of quasi official jurisdiction that is as mysterious to Americans as it is potential with the Chinese. They form a sort of advisory council to the Chinese consul in San Francisco and are consulted on all important matters coming before that official.



CHEW SHU SUM ARRIVES.

The most recent appointment of an official of this kind is that of Chew Shu Sum, who succeeds Sear Mur Gook as president of the Yeong Wo company for the next three years. The Yeong Wo is called a benevolent society, but from what an outsider can learn it is much like what one of the big American trust or indemnity companies would be if their officers were governmental appointees. Its president is always a great man among his countrymen, and his arrival in California is celebrated by a round of festivities that lasts many days. His favor is courted, and his wealthy countrymen adopt this means of getting well acquainted with him.

Chew Shu Sum is a mandarin of high degree. He is a business man and a scholar of the first rank and is skilled in diplomatic affairs. He is over 6 feet tall and presents a striking figure in his flowing robes of heavy blue silk. His features are small, but regular, and he wears a pair of immense spectacles with heavy rims. He is a native of the Heong-Shan district, in the province of Quan-Tong, the same province in which Canton is situated. His age is about 53 years.

His credentials state that Chew Shu Sum is the new president of the Yeong Wo company and a duly authorized representative of the imperial Chinese government. They request that all official courtesy be shown him and say that the authorities at Washington have been apprised of his coming. It was announced before his coming that Mr. Chew would be accompanied by a suit of 27 persons, but he was attended only by a single servant, who will live in history as Mak Shing Tok.

Scriptural Dunning Letters.

Fifty dunning letters were recently detained at the Cleveland postoffice and forwarded to Washington. On the corner of each envelope were three texts of Scripture as follows: "Let us walk honestly" (Romans xiii, 13), "Owe no man anything" (Romans xii, 8), "Many days and years shall ye be troubled" (Isaiah xxxiii, 10).

SIX SPASMS A DAY.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I never lose an opportunity to recommend Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine to any one afflicted with nervous complaints with the assurance that it will not disappoint them. When our boy was eighteen months old he was attacked with violent spasms. Sometimes he would have five or six spasms in a single day. WE TRIED MANY PHYSICIANS WITHOUT BENEFIT; finally our druggist recommended Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We tried a bottle, and could see that he was BENEFITED FROM THE FIRST DOSE. We used three bottles, and I am happy to say the child was ENTIRELY CURED. We used no other remedy, and his cure is complete. He is now three years old and perfectly healthy. You are at liberty to use my name in SOUNDING THE PRAISE OF THIS WONDERFUL REMEDY.

S. C. HEACOX,
Agent Pacific Express Co.

Hastings, Nebraska, April 6th, 1892.

HAS CURED THOUSANDS

DR. MILES' NERVINE,
MOST CERTAIN CURE FOR HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, DIZZINESS, SPASMS, SLEEPLESSNESS, DULLNESS, BLUES, and OPIUM HABIT.
SOLD ON A POSITIVE GUARANTEE.
TRY DR. MILES' PILLS, 50 DOSES 25 CTS.

A MEDICINE THAT MAKES GOOD BLOOD

GILMORE'S AROMATIC WINE

Will completely change the blood in your system in three months' time, and send new, rich blood coursing through your veins. If you feel exhausted and nervous, are getting thin and all run down, Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which is a tonic and not a beverage, will restore you to health and strength. Mothers, use it for your daughters. It is the best regulator and corrector for all ailments peculiar to woman. It enriches the blood and gives lasting strength. It is guaranteed to cure Diarrhea, Dysentery, and all Summer Complaints, and keep the bowels regular.
Sold by all druggists for $1 per bottle.

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for COOK'S COTTON ROOT COMPOUND, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps. Address Pond Lily Company, No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F.L. Durand and druggists everywhere

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY. WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM
The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS
Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year	$5 00
" " 6 months	2 50
" " 1 "	45
Daily only, one year	3 00
" " 4 months	1 00
Sunday, one year	2 00
Weekly Press, one year	1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.
Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully
C. E. MISNER.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

WE SUIT
Everybody Every Time.

Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits.
Suits that Fit to a T.

LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.

Who Wouldn't be Suited
With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?

That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their

SUMMER SUITS.

Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.

BOSTON
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Scandia-American Bank,
Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christiansen, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Locken.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the guardianship of Lena O. Tommerdal, insane.

On reading and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Solibakke, guardian, of the above named insane person, it is ordered, pursuant to the prayer of said petitioner, that a time be fixed for examining and allowing the account; that said account be examined and petition heard by the Judge of this court on the 17th day of July, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in said county.

Ordered further, that public notice be given to all persons interested of the time and place of examining said account by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston this 17th day of June, A. D. 1893.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.
[10-12]

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 SHOE WILL NOT RIP.
Do you wear them? When next in need try a pair.
Best in the world.
$5.00 $4.00 $3.50 $2.50 $2.25 $2.00 FOR GENTLEMEN
$3.00 $2.50 $2.00 FOR LADIES
$2.00 $1.75 FOR BOYS
$1.75 FOR MISSES

If you want a fine DRESS SHOE, made in the latest styles, don't pay $6 to $8, try my $3, $3.50, $4.00 or $5 Shoe. They fit equal to custom made and look and wear as well. If you wish to economize in your footwear, do so by purchasing W. L. Douglas Shoes. Name and price stamped on the bottom, look for it when you buy.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass. Sold by
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER
ARE OFFERING
SPECIAL PRICES
ON
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS AND WALL PAPER.
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.
WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN. C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
Commenced Business October, 1881.
PAID IN CAPITAL........$100,000
SURPLUS........15,500
Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice-President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, J. R. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

Fits.
All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office's praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 31st, 1893, and terminating on July 31st, 1894, by the following person and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: W. J. Halla, on the whole of the first floor of the two-story frame building on Main street, situated on lot 8, block 3, Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minn.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston, at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 30th day of June, A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.
[12-13]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said city of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on July 1st, 1893, and terminating on July 1st, 1894, by the following persons and at the following place as stated in said application, to-wit: A. J. Stoeser and Wm. Cronin, on the first floor of the Commercial Hotel in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minnesota.

Said application will be heard and determined by said city council of the city of Crookston at the city hall in said city of Crookston, in Polk county, on Tuesday, the 11th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 8 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city, this 27th day of June A. D. 1893.

(SEAL.) E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.
[12-13]

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Governor Nelson delivered an oration at Fosston the Fourth.

The Pipestone Star advocates a public dogkiller for that town.

The Nobles county bank, at Worthington, has suspended temporarily.

The North Dakota Elevator Company's building at Villard burned last week.

Kandiyohi county has seven prisoners in the jail at Willmar, the greatest number for several years.

A farmers' institute was conducted by O. C. Gregg at Moorhead last week. There was a good attendance.

Fire at Fergus Falls on Thursday damaged S. C. Strand & Co.'s dry goods store to the amount of $10,000.

Montevideo is talking of banqueting railway officials upon the removal of division headquarters to that place.

The new St. Paul city directory contains 84,461 names. Using the multiple of 2 1-4 her population is 190,262.

The state grain and warehouse commission is making arrangements to enforce the new elevator law after Aug. 1.

The total receipts of the Duluth land office for the year ending June 30 were $147,021. The year before they were $91,048.

Twenty-seven of the 44 persons examined last week by the state medical board were given licenses to practice medicine.

Miss Lizzie Washburn, daughter of Senator Washburn, will christen the cruiser "Minneapolis," which will be launched Aug. 12.

A little daughter of Sheriff Chapel of Ramsey county was so badly burned July 4 that she died on the 5th. Her clothes caught fire.

Mayor Schoen of Ortonville was arrested last week charged with having failed to make a proper accounting of an estate in his hands.

Lyons, who was arrested for robbing the Northern Pacific sleeper between Wadena and Perham, has been held to the Otter Tail county grand jury.

The contract for additions to the Mankato normal school has been let for $85,802. The two wings to be built will more than double the capacity of the buildings.

The meanest man in Minnesota resides near Amboy. He stole two toy savings banks belonging to the children of a farmer living near that place containing $1.40 each.

Sheriff Sharvy of Duluth has offered a reward of $250 for information that will lead to the recovery of Abraham Bailey, the grain commission merchant who disappeared June 7.

Governor Nelson has received a warrant from the treasurer of the United States for the sum of $6,220.70, being the 5 per cent due the state for the government lands sold in Minnesota.

The federal grand jury at St. Paul failed to find any indictment against Dr. Walker for shooting an Indian at Leech Lake. His case will come before the grand jury at Minneapolis in September.

While Peter Jones and two others were handling fireworks at Sandstone a can of powder exploded, blowing Jones up in the air, twisting his arms and burning him in horrible shape. He cannot recover. The two thers were burnt, and fears are entertained for their recovery.

M. J. Sontag of Mankato, stepfather of George and John Sontag, has commenced suit against Peter Weltgen of that city for $5,000 damages for slander, he claiming that Weltgen accused him of having a hand in certain train robberies which the wounded bandits were supposed to figure in.

A destructive fire occurred on the farm of A. Wisdeman, seven miles south of Moorhead Thursday. The granary and machine sheds with contents were destroyed. Four thousand bushels of wheat, 15 binders, a threshing machine, potato digger and other farm implements were burned. Thought to be incendiary.

In the United States court at St. Paul Judge Nelson sentenced Nels J. Anderson to pay a fine of $100 for selling whisky to Indians, and to spend an 8-months' vacation in the Crookston jail. John Bassett got the same fine and 18 months in the penitentiary for a like offense. Mine-ke-shig-ot was fined $100 and sent to the penitentiary for 12 1-2 months.

The state treasurer has been busy for a week taking in the principal and interest due the state from counties on loans made to school districts, for which bonds have been issued to the state. The money is being paid in by county treasurers, and Colonel Bobleter estimates that the principal due aggregates some $75,000 or $80,000, while the interest that is due will amount to about $50,000.

Ten of the district judges of the state, at their meeting at St. Paul last week, organized for the purpose of taking steps which will result in having uniform rules of practice in the courts of the state. A committee, consisting of Judges Searle of St. Cloud, Buckham of Faribault, Williston of Red Wing and Hicks of Minneapolis was appointed to formulate rules to be submitted to an adjourned meeting on the 24th of August.

The firm of C. A. Smith & Co. of Minneapolis have been notified by Governor Nelson to cancel their contract with the state auditor for the purchase of the pine timber on the state lands in Mille Lacs county, which were involved in the celebrated case in the legislature conducted against the firm and against Auditor Biermann by Representative Dunn. The firm will refuse to obey and the matter will undoubtedly be settled by the courts.

HORRIBLE BUTCHERY.

A Family of Six Murdered In Cold Blood at Cando, N. D.

CANDO, N. D., July 8.—This community was paralyzed during the morning by the arrival of Miss Anna Kreider, whose father resided on a farm one and a half miles from this place, but partially dressed and almost frantic, with the startling announcement that her father's family were being butchered by the hired man. Citizens who hurried to the homestead found an awful spectacle of Wholesale Butchery.

The father lying in his bed, the mother in the kitchen where she had been preparing breakfast, three girls, aged respectively 13, 11 and 9, and one 7-year-old boy, were lying stiff and stark where they had fallen from wounds inflicted by a double-barrelled shotgun in the hands of Albert Bomberger, a farm hand and a distant relative of the family, who had been in the employ of Mr. Kreider about nine months. The father was the first victim, then the mother and the children in the order named. Miss Anna

By Piteous Supplications,

induced the fiend to spare her life and those of her three remaining little brothers. At the muzzle of his gun he compelled her to prepare his breakfast, which he leisurely ate, then ravished her person, and tying her in the barn to prevent her escape saddled her favorite pony and deliberately rode away northward. With the aid of one of her brothers Miss Kreider succeeded in freeing herself and making her way to town, necessarily leaving her little brothers alone with Their Dead Parents.

As soon as the alarm was given a dozen or more of our citizens started northward in pursuit. The whole northern end of the county is alive with men looking for him and it is confidently expected that he will be captured soon.

ESCAPED A LYNCHING.

Murderer Baumberger of Cando, N. D., Lodged in Jail at Grand Forks.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., July 10.—Albert Baumberger, the murderer of six members of the Kreider family at Cando, was brought here by Sheriff Barton of Ramsey county and Sheriff McCune of Towner county and placed in the Grand Forks county jail for safe keeping, after a narrow escape from lynching at the hands of the enraged citizens of that place. Most of the citizens of Cando, where the murder occurred, were known to be in pursuit with the avowed determination of lynching him. It is even rumored they will undertake to secure a special train and follow him to this city, but the prisoner is now perfectly safe from attack. He was taken by the officers from the jail at Devils Lake, unknown to the populace, and placed in a closed carriage, which was then driven out in the country five miles, where the train was Flagged and Boarded.

If the party had been five minutes later the mob would have hung him, as they were in close pursuit when the train arrived and took the officers and prisoner on board. Sheriff McCune, of Towner county, arrived at Deloraine, Man., 20 minutes after Baumberger was arrested by officers of that place, and left there with the prisoner Sunday morning, never stopping until they reached Devils Lake, a distance of nearly 200 miles, during which they changed teams four times. The mob followed a considerable portion of the distance. Baumberger is cool and apparently unconscious. He refused to give any reason for the crime, which he readily admits, and says he fully expected to be captured.

Hall Edits the Globe Again.

ST. PAUL, July 8.—The St. Paul Globe is again under the personal direction of H. P. Hall, who started the paper many years ago. Mr. Hall was appointed managing editor Friday and at once took charge of The Globe editorial rooms. During the past winter Mr. Hall has been in Chicago, but now his family will reside in St. Paul. No changes are announced in the editorial force of The Globe, but it is likely that John T. Baker and Lewis Baker Jr. may not be retained.

Four Killed at a Crossing.

NILES, Mich., July 10.—A carriage containing Mrs. Emma Stone of Hasting, Minn., her two children and her mother, was struck by a train on the Michigan Central road and all four of the occupants killed. The horse was running away. Mrs. Stone was a widow and was visiting her mother who resides here.

Laughed at the Report.

LONDON, July 7.—A report has reached this city from the United States to the effect that King George of Greece has abdicated, and that a republic had been proclaimed. The Greek consul general here was seen in regard to the report. He said: "This is the first news I have received of the abdication of King George. He laughed incredulously when the details were repeated to him.

Selected Their Lands.

GUTHRIE, O. T., July 8.—All of the Cherokees who are entitled to allotments of land on the Cherokee strip met on the Cimmarron, in the east part of the strip, and made their selections. As soon as the government confirms these and issues the deeds, the balance of the 6,000,000 acres can be thrown open to settlement. There are only 71 allotments of 100 acres each.

Over a Hundred Recovered.

LONDON, July 8.—One hundred and thirty-eight bodies have been recovered from the Thornhill mine, in which there was an explosion on Tuesday.

TERRIBLE TORNADO

DEATH-DEALING STORM PASSES OVER NORTHERN IOWA.

Half a Hundred People Killed and Over 200 Houses Demolished at Pomeroy—Total Deaths Will Reach a Hundred—Great Numbers Injured.

DES MOINES, July 7.—The cyclone, or series of cyclones, of Thursday evening were the most destructive which have visited Iowa since its settlement. The storm was confined to the northwestern quarter of the state, and in its worst form followed very nearly the line of the Illinois Central from Le Mars to Manson, a distance of 100 miles. The loss of life in this section will reach over 100, but it will be impossible to give any exact estimate for the reason that, with the exception of Pomeroy, no town suffered to any considerable extent and the destruction is scattered over a wide area.

A COMPLETE WRECK.

Scarcely a House Left Standing at Pomeroy.

POMEROY, Ia., July 8.—Forty-four numbers the dead at Pomeroy. It is one of the saddest scenes ever witnessed, and even the strongest are compelled to turn away from some of the sights at the city hall hospital, where the worst of the 108 injured now are.

Every dwelling now standing can be well termed a hospital, as all have been thrown wide open, and from two to eight wounded are being kept in each. Pomeroy is one complete wreck. There is scarcely a house left standing. About 11 acres of debris constitutes now what was once a thriving village. Splinters are all that remain. Pomeroy is part and parcel of the prairie, the death-dealing wind having left it barren and desolate. Piles of broken timbers and an occasional piece of furniture are all that can be found of what were once the largest buildings in the place.

Two Hundred and Fifty Houses were in all destroyed and the money loss on these and their contents is placed at $200,000. Everywhere about Pomeroy Friday were dead and dying people. A dozen men were digging graves in the burying ground on the hill just north of the village and the hearse was kept busy carrying the victims of the storm to their last resting place. Doctors from a dozen or more places hurried through the streets and in their wake followed squads of soldiers carrying coffins. Special trains from all the surrounding towns brought thousands who were ready to take part in the work of caring for

The Dead and Wounded.

Clothing, food and medicine were shipped in by the ton. Soon order was brought out of chaos, relief corps were organized and things were going along in business-like shape.

The tornado—for such it was—came from the northwest. All those who saw it agree that it was not of the funnel-shaped species, but came bounding along the prairie like a huge ball. It was of a dark green color and was accompanied

By a Terrific Noise.

There are many who saw it when it was far out of town. These gave the alarm and many were prepared for the monster when it reached the village. Most of the people, however, became panic stricken. They ran out of their houses and fled up the streets, crying and shrieking, until stricken by the flying timbers and whirling trees. The cooler ones, however, and those who were nearest to them made for the two caves in the southeastern part of the town, built especially for such occasions. Into one of these caves collected 25 people and into the other 15. All escaped without a scratch. The cyclone was of but a few minutes duration and was followed by a terrific rainstorm, which continued more or less throughout the night.

The Path of the Storm

seems to be about an eighth of a mile in width and 20 miles long. The death list out in the country is heavy and many of the neighboring towns report casualities. Fairfield, in Cherokee county has 15 dead. Eight more are reported killed at Storm Lake and many other places give notice of one or two deaths.

Governor Boies arrived at 4 o'clock and took charge of the relief affairs. He was first driven out over the ruins, then he visited the hospitals and morgue, consulted with those who had been directing things and then issued a proclamation setting forth the needs of the sufferers and calling upon the people of Iowa to contribute liberally.

Dead Estimated at Eighty.

POMEROY, Ia., July 10.—The total number of people killed by the tornado and elsewhere is placed at 80. The injured, so the doctors report, are doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. It is now estimated that fully 20 will be unable to survive their injuries. The death list has been increased by the finding of the body of a woman under the ruins of her house, together with two of her children, a boy and a girl.

Tree Fell on Them.

OTTUMWA, Ia., July 11.—Santford Edmonds was killed and John Lewis, Schuyler Sheets, William Bentlow and S. A. Strond were badly injured by the falling of a dead tree at Hedrick.

Assets Exceed Liabilities.

ST. PAUL, July 11.—The first report of the receiver of The Daily Globe has been made public. The assets exceed the liabilities by about $26,000.

"A Word
To the Wives
Is Sufficient."

For Rendering
Pastry
Short or Friable

COTTOLENE

Is Better than Lard

BECAUSE

It has none of its disagreeable and indigestible features.

Endorsed by leading food and cooking experts.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.
Sold in three and five pound pails.

Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes, prepared by nine eminent authorities on cooking.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

Is the only line running
THROUGH PULLMAN CARS
BETWEEN
Chicago, St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND
NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior.	6:40 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg,	7:45 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables or special information, call on, or write any agent N. P. R. R.
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

DO YOU WANT
A GOOD
HOME PAPER
Devoted to the interests of Crookston and Polk County.
THEN SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE POLK COUNTY
JOURNAL.

IF you want to Buy or Sell anything,
Advertise in The Journal.

IF YOU WANT ANY PRINTING OF AMY KIND,
Done Quickly at Reasonable Rates,
GO TO THE JOURNAL,
COOKE & HAMMOND,
Pubs. and Props.

Chew Climax Plug

Every Plug of it has a round red tin tag like this. LORILLARD'S CLIMAX PLUG

LORILLARD'S
make the best of all Chewing Tobaccos—The famous put only the best and purest ingredients in their—
have won a world-wide reputation by making their-
make the plug that millions use daily. Do you use have pleased the most fastidious tobacco lovers with-
have attained the acme of Plug Tobacco perfection in-

Chew Climax Plug

Sold everywhere. Made only by the
P. LORILLARD COMPANY.
The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America, and the largest in the World.

Climax Plug
LORILLARD'S CLIMAX PLUG
LORILLARD'S CLIMAX PLUG

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:45 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	7:15 a m
2:57 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:55 p m
4:45 a m	"	Glyndon	"	10:10 p m
6:30 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	8:05 p m
7:50 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	7:05 p m
9:18 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:55 p m
11:40 a m	"	Devils Lake	"	3:40 p m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:15 a m Arrive 7:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE, Thief River and Red Lake Falls Branch—
Monday, Wednesday and Friday,
Depart 9:00 a m Arrive 6:50 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m
W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily
For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Ashland, Duluth, Chicago, and for all points South, East and West.........at 6:40 p. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north, ...at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c
Eggs, per dozen	15c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	80c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	48.
1 Northern	46.
2 Northern	43.
3 Northern	35.

'Round Home.

J. R. Clements has returned from Florida for the summer.

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

For stack covers, tents and awnings apply to J. F. Cartier. [13-24]

The Congregational Sunday school will picnic in Fisk's grove to-day.

S. Snedeker drove in from Mentor on Friday to attend the institute.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Potato bugs are reported to be extremely plenty and very healthful.

Chief Gonyea went out to the lake to rusticate over Sunday.

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Dr. M. Leguee is having his house raised up 3 or 4 feet and will put a good foundation under it.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

Rev. R. H. Battey went up to Stephen for services on Sunday.

Mrs. I. N. Simmons and daughter, Miss Nellie, went over to Chris. Houston's last Thursday for a visit.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Mrs. Michael Jeffers, of Red Lake Falls, was registered at the Minnesota building at the World's Fair last week.

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor:

John E. Tice was in from Mentor on Friday in attendance at the institute.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

For repairing engines and machines of all kinds apply to Felix Cartier Jr. [13-24]

A. P. Frank was in from Brislet on Monday.

Will Hoch has engaged to clerk at the Cleveland house.

Joe Hoch reports by letter that he is doing splendidly at Astoria.

Cunningham Bros., say they have the best crops in Polk county.

C. A. Tellar was down from Angus to attend the institute last week.

The county commissioners were in session Monday and Tuesday last.

Senator H. Burkhardt arrived on Sunday to look after his interests in the city.

The county board appropriated $500 to the Polk County Fair—to be used in paying premises.

Rev. R. H. Battey will preach at the pavillion at Date's old place, Maple Lake on Sunday next.

Mrs. W. D. Hurlbut and two children arrived in the city this week on a visit to her brother, A. C. Cowing.

T. Wees says there was no rain on the Buffington farm on Monday night. Says the crops on that farm will be very light.

Knute Aker was up from the west side last week to attend the institute. Says he thinks this year's crop will not be as good as last.

A. R. Holston and wife returned from the World's Fair on Friday morning. A. R. says he thinks the show well worth the trip to see.

Geo. Fuller, of Moorhead, was in the city this week looking up the interests of the Plano. George makes Crookston one of his headquarter stands.

John Knuppe was up from St Paul this week looking up his business interests. He does not think the prospects indicate an extraordinary wheat yield.

We notice that S. B. Hitt, a former Polk county farmer, advertises his farm near Brainerd, for sale. S. B. seems to be tired of grubbing in sand and we will bet a big red apple that he wants to come back to Polk county.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N Palmer came down from Angus on Thursday to attend the farmers institute. Mr. Palmer says wheat around Angus does not promise as well as it did a few weeks ago and he believes the late sown wheat is the best.

John E. Tice, one of the leading farmers of Grove Park town, informs the JOURNAL that the prospects for a heavy yield of wheat in that town are not as flattering as they appeared to be earlier in the season. Wheat is heading low down and there are lots of weeds.

The JOURNAL interviewed farmers from nearly every locality in the county at the institute and is convinced that the bright prospects we had for an enormous yield a few weeks since do not exist to-day. The opinion seems universal that the crops have been damaged from some cause or other; some think it was the hot winds in June some assign other reasons.

Out near the N. P. crossing of the Red Lake Falls road there is a patch of regular genuine Canada thistle growing, the first we ever saw in Polk county. We think this patch is on the railroad right of way but it is pretty near Steege's wheat—near enough to pay him to destroy the pests if the section men don't happen to discover them and cut them. There are but few of them now but there would be seed enough in the fall to sow many acres.

Will Himmelsbach:—"How's my crops? That is a question hard to answer, young man, and it will take at least six weeks before a good answer can be given. I have often seen grain look worse at this time time of the year and yet yield a good average and I have seen it look very much better and not produce very much. It is a question that depends so much upon what kind of weather we are to get that no one can give a reliable estimate now."

W. E. Slocum is doing some quiet bragging about a Jersey cow he owns. We tell Erse he better ride over to the JOURNAL farm with us some day where we can show him several as fine Jerseys as he ever saw in Polk county. A cow is a good animal to have, that is a good cow but one of those cows that will make only about a quarter of a pound of butter a day is a nuisance and an expensive one at that. A good cow costs no more to keep than a poor one and always pays her way.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder.

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.

Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

The county board was in session this week at the auditor's office.

Joe Smith and Prof. Casey came down from Red Lake Falls on Sunday returning on Tuesday.

The Salvation Army has secured the old M. E. church building on the corner of Fourth and Main streets.

A terrific thunder-shower visited this locality on Monday night and early Tuesday morning accompanied with some hail.

John O'Brien and wife returned from a month's visit to the World's Fair on Saturday morning. John says it is a big show.

Frank Farnum was over from Grand Forks on Sunday and will be over to take his old place in Charlie Misner's shop this week.

D. E. Jones, of Minneapolis assisted in the singing exercises at the Congregational church on Sunday which was highly appreciated.

Baumberger, the murderer of the Kreider family at Cando, N. D. was caught in Manitoba and taken to Grand Forks to be kept until his trial.

In another column will be found an advertisement containing infor- about the organization admission and expense of attending the state normal schools.

Old man Supernault was adjudged insane and sent to Fergus Falls last week. This is the old Frenchman who has been at the hospital and who is said to be over 100 years old.

James Greenhalgh Sr: "You may safely advise farmers to hold their wheat this fall. As a rule, nine times out of ten it is best to sell before November 1st but this year conditions are different and wheat will be good property in less than a year."

Doctor M. Leguee is raising his dooryard about three feet. Says he is tired of moving out of his house every spring to keep from wetting his feet, and besides it is quite expensive. The doctor will have a nice residence when he gets his improvements completed.

T. G. Thompson has an electric wind-mill at his place that is a curiosity in its way. It takes only the power required to run two incandescent lights and is calculated to be used as a fan. A good stiff breeze is felt at a distance of about 20 feet from the machine.

Farmers, those who have it, are busy pulling mustard. Some farms appear to have this pest in great abundance while others have less. We notice in places, there is considerable growing on the railroad right of way, enough, if not pulled to reseed all the farms whose occupants are striving so hard to be rid of the pests. Not much use for a few to pull mustard unless all who have it do.

Messrs. Arries & Lancaster are training a number of young horses which promise to develope considerable speed. Among the number is a two-year-old colt belonging to Will Walker, a two-year-old owned by Al. Shaw and a two-year-old which they own themselves, and feel very proud of. These three colts are put on the track six days a week, and if there is any speed in them it will certainly be developed.

Messrs. Munson & McCrea, the agents of the Manitoba & Northwestern Homesteading Co., show quite an assortment of grains and grasses in their office on Second street. These samples, they claim, were grown in the Prince Albert district of the British Northwest, and show a productive soil, suitable for grazing and grain-growing. Their samples of wild pea vines are a wonderful growth.

A private coach attached to the N. P. train on Monday evening, contained no less a personage than the Nawab of Rampur, India, and suite, enroute for Chicago. It is said that though scarcely 20 years old he is a great diplomat, of a quiet and retiring disposition, dressed in civilized garb while his native servants wear the turbans and bagging trousers of India. He has an income of $1,500,000 a year. He is at present the ward of the British government and traveling at their expense. His real name is Hamed Ali Khan. In his suite are Capt. Howse and Capt. Collins of the British army.

Wm. Skinner, one of the prosperous, level-headed farmers of the Marais district, near Fisher, who attended the farmers' institute, in speaking of the crops, said the wheat was going to be short, as it was commencing to head out already. "I look for wheat to be a good price this fall," said he, "simply because England is now a heavy buyer because it is cheap, and before our wheat is put on the market our surplus will be all gone. English capitalists are buying our wheat for speculation and will hold it for an advance in price, which they are sure to get before fall. Now you watch and see if I ain't right."

Made from Pure Grape Cream of Tartar

"State Chemist, Prof. F. G. Short, reports the ROYAL Baking Powder of high and uniform strength and quality. The ingredients are pure and wholesome in every case, so far as our investigations have gone. I trust that public sentiment can be so aroused that spurious and unhealthful powders will be replaced by genuine goods. "H. C. THOM," Wisconsin Dairy and Food Commissioner.

Royal Baking Powder

"I have made a large number of analyses of the ROYAL Baking Powder as at present sold in Minnesota, and have found it to be an absolutely pure cream of tartar powder, entirely free from ammonia and all adulterations and impurities. In leavening power it is of the very highest grade.
"CHARLES W. DREW, Ph. B., M. D.,
"Formerly Prof. of Chemistry, Minn. Hospital College, and Chemist to the Minn. State Dairy and Food Department."

is Absolutely Pure

"I have analyzed all the principal brands of baking powders sold in this State. The results show that the ROYAL has the highest leavening power of any powder examined, and is composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. Baking tests with it gave biscuit very light, white, sweet and wholesome. No other powder gave results so satisfactory.
"FLOYD DAVIS, E. M., M. Sc., Ph. D.,"
Chemist of Iowa State Board of Health, etc., etc.

State Chemists, three Great States

Miss Maud Leguee came down from her school on Saturday for a week's vacation.

Ole Anderson, of the town of Tilden, this county, 72 years of age, died last Friday.

S. L. Collins has been trying an experiment in wheat-raising this year and in the fall will no doubt be ready to write a big book on the subject. He had noticed that the wheat is liable to suffer somewhat from a super-abundance of weeds so he thought he would remedy that evil so he rigged his drill so that it should sow only from every other spout, making the rows 16 inches apart. The wheat came up lovely and Collins' heart rejoiced as he watched it growing but after awhile the weeds seemed to discover these lanes in the wheat-field and the way they proceeded to fill the vacancy was a caution; until at last hardly a stalk of wheat could be seen. Collins did not go before the farmers institute with a lecture on how to raise wheat, preferring to wait until after harvest so that he can give the total yield.

Sam Greenhalgh says he thinks it is singular how people seem to regard his strawberry patch—just as though it was public property free for all who may choose to pick in it, and people not only go and gobble up vines and all but they also trample down and destroy the grass on his hay meadow. Two years ago the hail totally destroyed his crops of grain and hay and good kind charitable people assured him that they all felt real sorry for Sam's great losses—and the next year they proved how sorry they felt for Sam by going out onto his meadow land and ruining his hay crop and stole what few berries providence had placed there to sort 'o help Sam out a bit, and they did the same thing again this year. Sam thinks this is a peculiar world we live in and some people have very peculiar notions in relation to other people's property rights.

Photographer S. J. Chalfin, who has been conducting the old Dauser gallery on the corner of Broadway and Robert street, has decided that this is a good town to tie to, and has leased the entire second floor over J. E. O'Brien's & Co's store on Broadway—in the Dufresne-O'Brien block—for a term of three years. A gang of carpenters and plasterers are at work tearing out partitions and remodeling the flat, and when completed it will be one of the most commodious galleries in the northwest. In the front part of the building will be two reception rooms, and a work room, and in the rear will be the operating room, about 25x35 feet, and a dressing room and dark room. Mr. Chalfin will also have living rooms in the flat, which will be conveniently arranged. He has established a good reputation since coming here, and will undoubtedly do an increased business when he gets into his new quarters.

Deputy Sheriff Losey has gone to Chicago to take in the big fair.

Geo. M. Swift came down from Mentor to reap the benefits of the institute.

Halvor Steenerson went over to Hillsboro, where an important case he is interested in was tried Monday.

That whirligig up on Main street seems to be coining wealth. Well, it is the only street car we have got.

Mayor Stephens received the sad news of the death of his father and left for Wilmar on Sunday evening to attend the funeral.

Pathmaster Daniels is making a good job of that road in Fairfax that is being graded under his supervision. They could use the grader to good advantage elsewhere in that town.

The summer school at the Business college is proving much more of a success than was anticipated by Mr. Strawbridge. Twenty students have been enrolled and more are coming in every day.

The usefulness of sheep as a weed destroyer was dwelt upon at the institute. A few sheep could be profitably employed in this county if there was no other profit connected with them. Rich lands will always produce an abundance of weeds.

Miss Elizabeth Huggard, a sister of Mr. D. Huggard, returned Tuesday from an extended visit in Canada. On her way home she visited in Chicago and St. Paul taking in the fair. She was accompanied by her niece, Miss Hallie Huggard, of Marietta, Georgia.

E. D. Childs tells the JOURNAL that he thinks the hot winds in June are responsible for the damage to the crops. He says we must get into sheep more to get rid of the weeds if nothing more. He says that this idea of all wheat will not do. Said he: "If every Polk county farmer could have attended that institute and would adopt the ideas there promulgated they would make very much more money than they do."

My entire stock of wall paper, paints, oils and glass will be sold at actual cost as I am overstocked and must have money. A good quality of paper at 9 cents per double roll. A nice gilt paper 14 cents per double roll. White lead, St. Louis Red Seal brand, $7,45 per 100 pounds. Window shades and fixtures complete at 22 cents. Sell all over from 35 to 40 cents. All other goods in same proportion. Come in and see quality of goods and get prices.

A. C. SCHMIDT,
[13-15] Second St., Crookston.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $30.25, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

[1tf] C. A. SHARKEY, Agent.

Euclid.

(From our regular correspondent.)

EUCLID, July 10th.

John Strauser of Argyle, came down on business Wednesday.

Casper Tiedeman, while in a friendly tustle with Bert Teal, on the 4th, had the misfortune to sprain his right arm quite severely.

Harry Chapin found a child's plush cloak in the road south of Warren, on the Fourth.

W. D. Carlton and Mr. Hall of Angus, came down on business Thursday.

Mrs. E. B. Ballou went down to the county seat Thursday.

F. L. Adart of Grand Forks, transacted business here on Friday.

Herbert Currie while riding a vicious colt, was thrown to the ground and had his collar bone fractured.

P. J. McDonald of Minneapolis, was up looking over the prospect of a crop. He says he has driven over a great deal of territory and he thinks the outlook here is a little above the average.

Mrs. Carl Ridesel and family, of Crookston, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Useldinger.

There is a petition in circulation for the division of the county.

Quite a number of our farmers attended the farmers' institute at Crookston.

Lawn tennis is the popular outdoor sport here.

While riding an obstinate broncho from Crookston to Euclid, Mr. Craig of Warren had an involuntary ducking, by the broncho taking a plunge in one of the Railroad Co's wells, south of the N. P. crossing.

Theodore Ghoosen's team became frightened on the 4th and precipitated Theodore and the rest to the ground. Herman Wallis happened along that way and took the occupants of the disabled buggy home. Now, Herman "smiles a smole."

Some miscreant stole a watermelon out of John McLennan's buggy Friday evening while standing in front of Taylor & Co's store.

Mrs. Wm. Davidson and son Willie took a run down to Lockhart Saturday to visit with the family of Mrs. J. D. McPhee.

Nathaniel Piatt drove to Thief River Falls last Saturday,

H. C. Misner and Dr. Chapin returned home after a very pleasant outing at Red Lake.

Euclid township is doing a great deal of road work this season. They keep three graders busy.

A party of young folks met at the home of Charles Benoit, Friday evening.

Anton Sinsky, a Bohemian living northwest of Euclid had the misfortune to have one of the bones of his arm fractured by his team running away with him.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1893. NO. 14

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor......Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor......David M. Clough.
Secretary of State......F. P. Brown.
Attorney General......H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist....Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist......E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist....John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District......Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court......Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor......C. U. Webster
Treasurer......J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds......John Amundson
Attorney......A. R. Holston
Sheriff......Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate......C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools......A. A. Lommen
Surveyor......O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r......W. H. Averill
Coroner......Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District......John E. Oppegaard
Second District......Anton Linden
Third District......M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District......C. P. Demers
Fifth District......A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Nerl A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre.	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Toupin	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden.	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

"One of my customers came in today and asked me for the best cough medicine I had" says Lew Young, a prominent druggist of Newman Grove Neb. Of course I showed him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and he did not ask to see any other. I have never yet sold a medicine that would loosen and relieve a severe cold so quickly as that remedy does. I have sold four dozen of it within the last sixty days and do not know of a single case where it failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, druggist, Crookston, Minn.

After Breakfast

To purify, vitalize and enrich the blood, and give nerve, bodily and digestive strength, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Continue the medicine after every meal for a month or two and you will feel "like a new man." The merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is proven by its thousands of wonderful cures. Why don't you try it?

Hood's Pills cure constipation. They are the best after-d pill and family cathartic.

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of the Meeting of the Council held July 11th.

Quite a Grist of Bills Allowed, Reports Read, and Resolutions Offered.

The Journal is Selected as the Official Paper for the Ensuing Year.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening, July 11th, 1893.

Metting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll call:—All members present.

The minutes of previous meetings read and approved.

The finance committe reported favorably upon the following bills:

A. Bloom, drayage	$ 2 00
J. E. O'Brien & Co., mdse	32 05
J. E. O'Brien & Co., mdse	5 75
Cooke & Hammond, printing	21 80
C. E. Dampier, medical attendance	14 00
Fontaine & Anglim, mdse	30 65
W. A. Marin, labor	4 25
Rosenthal & Falk, police uniforms	105 00
Red River Lumber Co., lumber	6 14
A. C. Cowing, mdse	13 47
Anderson & Olson, labor	5 40
C. E. Dampier, medical attendance	22 00
Stone & Columbus, mdse	5 00
Geo. L. Wilson, services on sewer	15 00
Anton Netzer, labor	6 00
S. L. Collins, hack hire	1 50
M. Rauenbeuhler, mdse and repairs	2 00
Geo. Young, labor	22 00
Cooke & Hammond, printing	57 80
Cooke & Hammond, job work	26 90
J. F. Creamer, special police	4 00
I. N. Simmons, drayage	29 75
M. J. Stoeser, rent of room	5 00
Crookston Water Works Power & Light Co., lights	1528 26
E. D. Childs Co., lumber	140 00
Edward Allard, boarding paupers	15 00
John Heldstab, moving engine	2 00
John Heldstab, drayage	4 25
Stewaat Lumber Company, lumber	70 82
Judson Cockrell, labor	12 00
Ole Hanson, judge of election	6 00
M. D. Stoner, labor	8 00
Oliver Mercil, mdse	3 25
May Dobenberg, witness fees	1 12
Lela Arnold, witness fees	1 12
G. H. Holt, constable fees	2 90
G. H. Holt, special police	4 00
Jas. E. Greenhalgh, labor	48 00
Jas. E. Montague, labor	5 25
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	1 90
C. E. Dampier, abating nuisances	4 00
D. F. McDonald, general labor	36 38
D. F. McDonald, general labor	103 26
D. F. McDonald, general labor	51 75
D. F. McDonald, labor First ward	86 36
D. F. McDonald, labor Second ward	33 50
D. F. McDonald, labor Third ward	9 00
D. F. McDonald, labor Fourth ward	99 61
Jas. E. Morrisey, mdse	4 60
Ed. Ruckhauber, drayage	6 50
W. E. Walker, mdse	10 50
John Carter, labor	1 50
Alderman & Sylvester, mdse	9 15
Aldermen & Sylvester, mdse	28 01
Aldermen & Sylvester, mdse	9 75

On motion the report was accepted and the bills reported upon ordered paid.

The city attorney reported that the damage sustained by A. D. Lytle to his horse by injuring himself on a threshing machine cylinder which lay in the street was correct but that he thought the city council not be held liable.

Moved by Alderman Watts seconded by Alderman Simmons that the bill be allowed paid.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Childs, Jennings, Marlette, Simmons, Walker, Watts, Cromb. Nays: none. Aldermen not voting, Anderson, Morrisey, Norrie. Declared carried.

The city attorney was instructed to ascertain if possible who it was that had left the cylinder in the street and if he thought necessary to bring suit to recover, to do so.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid.

M. D. Stoner, labor	$ 11 00
Chris. Anderson, work on well at Carman	78 37
Sylvester & Finseth, mdse	2 00
S. A. Wallace, sponges	1 80
A. Lytle, damages to horse	69 00
Crookston Fire Department, attendance at fires	166 00
A. M. Stewart Lumber Co., lumber	39 62
Stark Anderson, labor	18 00
Larson, Carpenter & Co., mdse	[illegible]
Crookston Water Works Power & Light Company, Water sewer	2058 99
E. D. Childs Co., lumber	130 38

Bill 1343 and 1344 of Joe Netzer and Mr. Williams for damage to the Germania house by sewer flood were referred to the city attorney, he to report at the next meeting. Bill from the fire department relating to W. Bloom was referred to the fire committee, also bill of George Young for watching for fires was referred to the same committee.

The bill of M. D. Stoner for assisting as inspector in sewer construction was presented. Moved by Alderman Jerome seconded by Alderman Walker, that the bill was ordered paid, amended by Alderman Childs seconded by Alderman Norrie that the bill be paid but that the amount be charged to the property owners as a part of the sewer construction. Motion lost.

The original motion was then passed with the following vote: Ayes; Anderson, Jennings, Morrisey, Norrie, Simmons, Walker. Nays; Childs, Cromb. Aldermen Marlette and Watts not voting.

On motion the County Hospital bills were referred to the committee on poor for investigation.

To The Honorable City Council of the City of Crookston.

GENTLEMEN: I beg leave to report the completion of the extension of the Broadway street sewer to Loring street all in accordance with the contract, plans and specifications. Respectfully Submitted,

W. F. ARNOLD, City Engineer.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Watts, that the report of the city engineer relating to sewer constructed on Broadway street from Fletcher to Loring streets be referred to the president of the council to report on at the next meeting and that 80 per cent of the contract price for the construction of said sewer be paid to the contractor for the same and that Alderman Anderson be appointed to collect the money owing by the owners of property abutting on said sewer for the construction of the same as soon as possible and pay the same to the city treasurer. Carried.

A communication was read from A. C. Schmidt relating to a portion of his salary as assessor.

On motion the clerk was instructed to make out an order for $100 as part payment for the assessor.

Moved by Alderman Anderson, seconded by Alderman Walker, that the city engineer be allowed an inspector in the construction of the Second and Ash street sewers. Alderman Childs moved to amend, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the expense of the inspector be charged to the abutting property as a part of the construction of the sewer. Ayes; Childs, Marlette. Nays; Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Norrie, Simmons, Walker, Watts and Cromb. Declared lost. Original motion was then brought up and declared carried.

Alderman Jennings as one of the committee to look into the matter of furnishing the city engineer with suitable furniture, reported that they had looked into the matter and recommended that the purchasing agent be instructed to purchase a second-hand safe not to exceed $100. in price, in which the engineer might keep his papers, the purchase to be made when the finances of the city will permit.

The report was accepted and the committee given further time on other matters relating to his office.

The comptrollers report for the first quarter of the fiscal year was read and handed to Alderman Childs.

A petition was presented by residents on Maple street asking that a sidewalk be put in along the west side of that street from Robert street to the river.

The petition was referred to the aldermen of the First ward to report at the next meeting.

Bids for city printing opened. One bid received. That from the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

To the City Council of the City of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN: We have the honor to submit for your consideration, the following proposition:

In consideration of the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL being made the official paper of the city of Crookston for the ensuing year, we agree to publish in said paper the official matter required to be published by the city council at the following rates, said matter to be measured on a basis of solid nonpareil:

Proceedings of city council 30 cents per folio.

Financial statement, liquor license applications, resolutions, ordinances and all other matter required to be published by said city council 50 cents per folio for first insertion, 25 cents per folio for each subsequent insertion. Yours Respectfully,

COOKE & HAMMOND.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Morrisey, that the city printing be given to the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL on its bid and that the proper officers be instructed to draw up a contract. Ayes; Childs, Jennings, Morrisey, Marlette, Norrie, Simmons and Walker.

Nays; Jerome, Watts. Not voting; Anderson. Declared carried.

An ordinance relating to the hanging of signs was read.

An ordinance relating to sewers was read.

The Crookston Gas Light and Heating Co's ordinance was read and the following resolution was passed:

At a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 11th day of July 1893, Alderman Watts offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Walker.

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain as follows:

That section 1 of ordinance passed September 27th, A. D. 1892, by the city council of the city of Crookston, relating to the Crookston Gas Light and heating Company be amended by striking out the figures 1893 where they occur in the same and inserting in lieu thereof the figures 1894.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Childs, Jerome, Marlette, Norrie, Simmons, Walker, Watts, Cromb, Anderson. Aldermen voting in the negative: Morrisey. Not voting, Jennings.

Passed July 11th, A. D. 1893.

Approved this 12th day of July, A. D., 1893.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council,
and Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

The ordinance relating to the use of bicycles on the sidewalks was brought up. Moved by Alderman Watts, seconded by Alderman Morrisey that the ordinance be laid on the table. Carried.

On motion the request of Larsen, Carpenter & Co., which was laid on the table at a former meeting and which related to their being allowed to widen their sidewalk three feet was brought up.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey, seconded by Alderman Jennings, that the request be rejected. Carried.

On motion the street commissioner was instructed to see that the house situated opposite Carpenter's barn on Steenerson's addition in the Fourth ward be removed. Carried

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

SPECIAL MEETING.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Saturday evening July 15th 1893.

Meeting called to order by Vice-President Morrisey.

Roll call.

Aldermen present:—Jennings, Simmons, Anderson, Watts, Morrisey, Marlette, Jerome.

Aldermen absent:—Childs, Cromb, Norrie, Walker.

Call of mayor read.

CROOKSTON, Minn., July 15th, 1893.

A special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, is hereby called to meet at the city hall on Saturday, July 15th, at 8:30 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of approving the action of the City Board of Review in the matter of the assessment for the year 1893.

A. D. STEPHENS,
Mayor.

At a special Meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held the 15th day of July 1893, Alderman Jennings offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Jerome.

Resolved: That the city assessment for the year 1893 made by city assessor and examined and corrected by the finance committee as a board of review be approved.

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Marlette, Simmons, Watts, Morrisey.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 15th day of July 1893.

JAS. E. MORRISEY,
Vice-President of the Council.

Approved this 15th day of July, 1893.

A. D. STEPHENS, Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Letter from Rev. Saugstad read and referred to committee on poor with instruction to act as they see fit in the matter.

On Motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

Advertised' Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending July 16th, 1893.

Anderson, Oscar,	Cherry, L. E. 2
Dixon, E. A.	Kainty, Frank
McGovery, Earl	Nugent John
Ynstad, Peter Olren 2	Wilson, Ed.

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Sheep Raising.

The farmer's institute laid great stress upon the importance of sheep raising and the instructor in that department dwelt somewhat extensively upon best methods for obtaining flocks, but the Times of Tuesday suggests a method that beats Mr. Henderson all hollow, for by the Times method it would seem that all you need is a tree, for the Times' agricultural editor gravely assures us that "The yews almost invariably bear twins and occasionally triplets so that with a small number to start with a farmer can soon have a good sized flock!" How easy and how nice! We hope some enterprising farmer will at once set a few yew trees and report progress.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

An Interesting School Election—Wm. Anglim and N. S. Gervais Chosen Directors.

Mrs. Overland of Fertile, While Visiting in the city, becomes Demented.

Johnnie Swenson Drowned—An Article on Rye—Short Locals.

School Election.

The school meeting on Saturday evening was well attended and the interest appeared to be great, centering in the election of two directors, resulting in the election of Wm. Anglim and N. S. Gervais, after several ballots had been taken. The ballots were as follows:

1st ballot, Wm. Anglim 55; W. A. Robertson 54; N. S. Gervais 18; J. H. Thomas 9; 126 votes cast.

2nd ballot, Wm. Anglim 73; W. A. Robertson 70; J. H. Thomas 7 and N. S. Gervais 5. Whole number of votes cast 155.

3rd ballot, W. A. Robertson 70; Wm. Anglim 66; scattering 4; 141 votes reported cast, and the question is where did that other ballot go to? If it was cast for Robertson it makes a material difference in the result as announced.

4th ballot, Wm. Anglim 74; W. A. Robertson 67, scattering 2, total 145. Wm. Anglim having received a majority was declared duly elected, and a ballot on the remaining director was ordered which resulted in a vote 155, of which Dr. Robertson received 72 and N. S. Gervais 93 who was declared duly elected.

A Sad Case.

On Sunday morning, Mrs. E. K. Overland arrived in the city from her home in Garfield and went to the residence of Halvor Steenerson. She had previously telegraphed Mrs. Steenerson to ascertain if that lady had returned from St. Paul where she had been under medical treatment. Very soon after Mrs. Overland's arrival Mrs. Steenerson noticed signs of mental aberration on the part of her friend who garrulously related how the recent 4th of July celebration at Garfield had been gotten up simply to make fun of herself and husband and she asked Mrs. Steenerson if it would not be best for her to get a divorce from Mr. Overland, and a lot of other equally wild talk led Mrs. S. to the conclusion that Mrs. Overland's mind was becoming mentally unbalanced. Mrs. Overland continued to manifest these symptoms but the family managed to keep her from becoming violent by humoring her whims and in the afternoon Mr. S. got a carriage and took his family to ride persuading Mrs. O. to accompany them. When they were passing the county hospital someone happened to remark: "that is the county hospital" and at that Mrs. O. without a moment's warning jumped headlong from the carriage and as soon as she could get up said excitedly: "now I know you consider me guilty." Mrs. S. got out and after much persuasion induced Mrs. O. to get into the carriage and they went home with her and Mr. Steenerson went to Judge Benson and reported the case. The judge could not do anything in the case except to care for her, which he did by instructing Chief Gonyea to take her to her home on the evening train. Mr. Overland was wired to meet her at Fertile and the chief took her to that place on the evening train. Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Overland formerly lived in this city where they yet have many friends who will regret to learn of this sad case and join with the JOURNAL in the hope that the cloud will be but temporary.

Drowned.

About four or five o'clock on Wednesday of last week Johnnie Swenson, the little seven year old son of Nels Swenson went swimming in the river with two other little boys near the railroad bridge and was drowned. The other two boys reported the occurrence and the body was soon found but to late to be of avail. It seems the lads went into the water without the knowledge of their parents.

Winter Rye.

A subject of vast importance to farmers, that was discussed at the farmers institute was that of raising winter rye as a means of ridding the soil of weeds. Rye can be sown at any time now until October 1st, but better now than later. The rye will ripen and be ready to cut before the weeds go to seed. This would be an excellent way to get rid of wild oats which are beginning to get a firm footing with us. We learn that the Great Northern road will transport rye for seed at half rates and that rye for seed can be had in St. Paul at 35 cents per bushel. It strikes the JOURNAL that it would be a good plan for farmers to club together and get a carload and try a patch of winter rye. It is said that rye is better than summer fallowing to cleanse the soil of weeds and then, you get a feed crop which pays for all of the expense of raising. It is usually sowed one bushel per acre and yields equally well with wheat. Besides being a good feed it makes excellent bread also many preferring it to wheat bread. We believe it will be a good substitute crop for wheat, we do not mean by this that a man should drop wheat entirely and raise rye instead, but it would do to raise half as much of it as wheat. It would be a good idea to try a few acres this fall first as an experiment.

A Bicycle Ordinance.

For several moons the council has been wrestling with the mighty problem of passing an ordinance to keep bicycles off the principal streets, and at its last regular session laid the question on the table again—meanwhile the festive bicycle continues to whiz unconcernedly and independently along the streets to the infinite danger of life and limb. Small towns, like New York City, Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis pick up a bicycle ordinance and pass it at a session, but the city of Crookston requires ample time—for somebody to get killed. Now we realize what a deprivation it would be for bicyclists to be forced to take to the street—in the winter time but it is quite necessary for something to be done for the safety of pedestrians so we suggest that the council call an extra session, when they can have plenty of time and pass an ordinance obliging pedestrians to keep off the sidewalks in the business portion of the city during the summer time—oblige them to walk in the street where there is nothing but runaway teams and race horses to collide with and hurt them—by all means protect the festive bicycle.

For Cash.

You can buy a half section of land handy to the city, about 300 acres in crop and looking nicely, at $20 per acre; or if you do not have all cash we will give you figures on application at the JOURNAL office. Owner desires to engage in other business and is prepared to give a great bargain. [14-tf]

Hail North of McIntosh.

McIntosh Times: A severe hail storm caused considerable damage to the growing grain in portions of the towns of Hill River and Eden on Tuesday last. Hail stones as large as an egg are reported to have fallen in some sections and it is said that the ground was covered with hail to the depth of two inches in some places.

Twenty Dollars per Acre

Will buy a half section of land; 200 acres in wheat and in splendid shape and about 100 acres in oats and barley, 20 acres in young trees, artesian well, good buildings. Inquire at the JOURNAL office. [14-tf]

I have one or two choice young Jersey cows for sale. Who wants them? Also will sell one or two Jersey heifers should anybody desire to purchase. They are all fine animals extra care having been taken in their breeding and are worth very much more money than they will bring at this time. Will sell only for cash or delivery. For particulars inquire of H. E. Cooke at the JOURNAL office.

"My little boy was very bad off for two months with diarrhœa. We used various medicines, also calling in two docters, but nothing did him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him. I consider it the best medicine made and can conscientiously recommend it to all who need a diarrhœa or colic medicine. J. E Hare, Trenton; Tex. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

For Sale, A Good Cow.

An extra good grade Jersey cow—soon to be a new milch cow. For particulars call at this office. [13-16]

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Let the People Speak.

Commenting on the Donnelly-Fish policy the St. Paul Daily News says:

"Dr. Fish's paper, the Great West, gloats over the existing business depression and plumes itself on having predicted it. Ignatius Donnelly hates Fish like poison, but in this he has a common sympathy, and in the recent meeting in this city he and General Weaver also gloated over the paralysis of credit and the general shrinkage of values brought about by the attempt to maintain a parity between gold and silver on a ratio of sixteen to one in the face of natural conditions which render it impossible. These men see their fondest dreams realized in the foisting of a fifty-five cent dollar upon our currency, through the influence of the silver mine owners, and they shout in fiendish glee and swear that they will continue the work of destruction. There are some birds of evil omen who flourish only in storm and amid wreck and diaster. If these agitators can use the cheap dollar to swindle creditors, unsettle confidence and produce a financial cataclysm, they imagine that they may leap into power over the ruins. Hence their noisy threats and demonstrations and determination to defeat legislation at the extra session of congress to repeal the Sherman law. That law is doing their work for them better than anything they themselves could ever have devised. They see in its repeal a restoration of confidence and prosperity and an end to the stormy conditions in which they alone can flourish. This is the secret of their desperation. It is their last chance. Satan rages because he knows his time is short. It is known that a huge corruption fund is being contributed by the silver barons for use at the coming session, and the agitators of the Weaver and Bland stripe will contribute the wind and lung power to supplement it.

The question before the honest and common-sense people of the country is whether they will allow this gigantic conspiracy of the silver inflationists to succeed. Has not the country suffered enough already for the sake of favoring the silver producers? The silver interest amounts to only about $60,000,000 a year, while the wheat interest alone is many times that. So is the cotton interest, so is corn, hogs, iron, and even hay. Every other industry has been sacrificed to bolster up silver, and the silver agitators vow that the sacrifice must continue. Look at the frightful shinkage of $700,000,000 on the New York stock exchange, representing, the savings of investors scattered throughout the country. Look at the loss to the government of $45,000,000 already incurred through purchases of silver under the Sherman act. Look at the numerous failures and the impossibility of obtaining money to carry on ordinary business transactions—although there is as much money as ever in the country—because the owners of money are frightened and are locking it up.

The intelligent people of the country know that the present hard times have been directly brought about by the operation of the Sherman law, and they demand its repeal. The threats made by the silver agitators will only strengthen their determination. To the corruption fund of the silver men they will oppose the mighty power of public opinion. And to this end steps should be immediately taken to make this opinion manifest. In the four weeks that intervene between to-day and the meeting of congress the voice of the people should be heard, in public meetings and through the public press, and in such overwhelming volume that their chosen representatives in congress will not dare to ignore or override the popular will. Let the noisy bluff of the cheap dollar men be answered by the loud reverberation of a universal demand for honest money and honest methods."

Approaching the Fair.

First impressions are the most powerful and lasting that we receive. Our first meeting with a person, our first view of a city, a mountain or the ocean have much to do with our final judgment of the person, place or thing. If our first impression of a person is unfavorable, it takes long to eradicate its influence. The point of first view is important for our enjoyment of any spectacle. In approaching the World's Fair by conveyance through the city, we are not prepared for anything pleasing behind the great fence that bars out those so unhappy as not to possess a half dollar. Take the advice of Major Handy, an officer of the exposition: "If the weather was fine, I should want to have my first view from the lake. The scene from the deck of one of the big steamers running to the Fair grounds will be wonderful and imposing, as we catch sight for the first time of the glittering domes, towers and terraces of the great buildings. As the boat draws nearer to the shore, we begin to make out the outlines of the separate buildings and the great Manufactures building, looming up like a mountain, makes even our big vessel seem small as a fishing boat. As we land at the pier, and pass beneath the shapely columns of the beautiful Peristyle, the scene which greets us makes us feel smaller than ever." If you "approach the fair" from any point in the northwest, your first impressions will be still more pleasing if your railroad ticket reads via the Burlington route. Be sure your home agent gives you a ticket via Chicago, Burlington & Northern railroad, or write for one to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.25 from Crookston to Chicago and return Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

Free Homesteads.

Thousands of people are rushing into the Beautiful Saskatchewan Valley and taking up homesteads there. From Dakota, Montana Michigan, and in fact from nearly every state in the union farmers are leaving in considerable numbers for the Canadian Northwest where they can find splendid land with plenty of wood for fuel and building purposes, and also good water. Only $10.00 is charged for filing and this sum comprises all a settler has to pay, nothing being charged for proving up. The farmers in the Edmondton and Prince Albert districts have been getting 65 cents per bushel for wheat all winter. Cattle sell much higher than they do here in Minnesota, and in almost every particular the farmer is better off there than he is here.

There are good railway facilities, oceans of hay and the climate is good. For particulars apply to

MUNSON & MCCREA,
Crookston, Minn.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Lost.

From the pasture of Wm. Hooper on July 7th a brown mare colt two years old. A suitable reward will be paid for her return to the barn of E. D. Schreader, Main street Crookston. [13-15]

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $30.25, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Bird Life In London.

The rooks, after an absence of some years—how many we cannot really commit ourselves to say—have returned to Kensington gardens and established a flourishing little colony of some 11 nests in the trees on the west side of the broad walk, between the old banqueting hall and the Bayswater road. It is curious that the bird population of London seems still to be undergoing a process of change, some species being largely on the increase, while others are decreasing in numbers, or have quite recently disappeared. The wood pigeons afford the most noticeable example of increase in numbers, as they are now fully established, not only in the parks, but also in many of the squares which have trees suitable for them to build in, and they have extended their range well within the city boundary.

They may always be seen in Palace yard, Westminster, and for the fourth year in succession a pair are nesting in the elm tree over the fountain at the end of Great George street. Blackbirds and thrushes, though by no means so noticeable as the pigeons, are certainly on the increase in the parks, owing, no doubt, in great measure to the fact that many inclosures planted with shrubs have been made of late years. They are far from uncommon. Indeed one morning not long since we saw no less than five cock blackbirds engaged in a tussle under the trees near the flower walk in Kensington gardens. Tits of two species—the great tit and the blue tit—have lately been largely on the increase in Kensington gardens.—London Saturday Review.

A Lightning Calculator.

The accounts that have appeared in the daily press of the extraordinary performances of the French calculator, Jaques Inaudi, are in no way exaggerated. In fact, it would be difficult to exaggerate this man's extraordinary powers. He seems to possess an unlimited faculty of carrying and manipulating figures in his head, and the faculty is the more extraordinary in that Inaudi is an uneducated man, who is said not to have learned to write until he was 18 or 20 years of age. I witnessed the exhibition of his powers at the Hotel Victoria. His concluding tour de force comprised the working of a series of sums in addition, subtraction, multiplication, division and square root. The addition comprised six lines of five figures, the subtraction two lines of about 18 figures, and so on, and of the two square roots given him to find, one was the root of a number beginning with 81,000,000.

The whole mass of figures having been read out to him, Inaudi repeated them from memory, and then proceeded to work them out, which he did correctly in about six minutes. While so engaged he answered questions put to him by persons in the room. He mutters figures rapidly in an undertone while calculating, which seems to bear out the theory that his mental process is based upon a memory of the sound of the figures rather than a mental picture of their shapes. —London Truth.

The Two Big Oceans.

When the Panama canal was first proposed there was a great cry about the dangers courted in opening up such a "ditch," some extremists declaring that the "lives of millions of human beings were at stake." This general alarm was caused by the argument that the waters on the Pacific side of the isthmus were hundreds of feet higher than were those on the Atlantic side and that the great rush of waters to even up the difference in the level of the two oceans would drown all southern North America and most of Mexico and Yucatan.

Would be engineers and sensational editors passed their opinions or wrote editorials on the subject. It now transpires, as a result of actual survey, that the Atlantic and not the Pacific is the higher of the two oceans and that in place of the difference being hundreds of feet, as had been affirmed, the surface of the water on the east side of the isthmus is exactly 6½ feet higher than it is on the western side.—Philadelphia Press.

How Some Journalists Work.

Those people who are always complaining of the inaccuracy of newspaper writers ought to be impressed with this story of M. de Blowitz, the famous correspondent of the London Times, which I heard the other day from an American writer who knows the journalist intimately: "One night while I was visiting Blowitz," says my informant, "a bit of news came to him by wire. It consisted of only a few lines, and I supposed of course that he would simply wire it on to his paper and do nothing more about it, but instead of that he took a cab and drove all over Paris, from the house of this statesman to that, in order to verify the report. It was midnight before he was satisfied that the report was authentic and allowed it to be dispatched.—New York Cor. Literary World.

A Homemade Postal Card.

The postal card is often very handy. An English member of parliament has made a suggestion to the effect that the postal laws should permit the transmission through the mails of any card whatever of the regulation size bearing an adhesive 1-cent stamp. We are disposed to back up this suggestion. Its adoption would save money to the postoffice department and would be very convenient at times to people who do not happen to have postal cards at hand when needed. It would often be especially convenient to people in the rural districts. We do not know that it would be against any law to mail an ordinary white card bearing a 1-cent stamp. We recently heard of a case in which a card of this kind, thus stamped, was mailed and delivered in this city. If the sender acted unlawfully, he has never heard of it.—New York Sun.

A Word For the Cat.

At this season, when the family departs from town, a word must be spoken in behalf of the house cat, too often left behind to lead a vagrant and precarious existence. Already on the Back Bay, where "early closing" is the rule, the cats have become conspicuous by the absence of their owners. A few less felines in the world are not objected to, but that suffering and slow starvation should attend their taking off is a shame to humanity. Unless the devoted house cat can be provided with a summer home, it should be mercifully put out of existence in a way the animal society understands how to do perfectly.—Boston Herald.

A Clever Sparrow.

A tree sparrow on one occasion built its nest in a tall elm just beneath the more bulky erection of a crow. Not only did the large nest screen the smaller, but it afforded a means of protection from the vagaries of the weather. Some time after the crow's nest was plundered of its contents, while that of the tree sparrow escaped untouched.—London Tit-Bits.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS MILTON VAN DYKE UNmarried, of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota as mortgagor, did, on the 14th day of December A. D. 1889, duly execute and deliver to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company" a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio and having its principal office in the City of Cincinnati, Ohio, as mortgagee, his mortgage bearing date the 14th day of December A. D. 1889, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, viz: The west half (1-2) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-three (43) west, containing 20 acres of land; and which mortgage was, with the power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of December A. D. 1889 at four o'clock and 20 minutes in the afternoon in book "48" of mortgages on pages 182, 183, 184 and 185. And which mortgage was given to secure the payment of one thousand ($1000) dollars and interest thereon at eight per cent per annum payable on the 1st day of January of each year, according to the conditions of one, certain promissory note with interest coupons attached made by said mortgagor and payable to the order of said mortgagee and which note became due on December 14th, 1899.

And whereas default having been made in the payment of the sum of eighty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January A. D. 1893 and the said interest is still unpaid and due.

And whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if the maker of said note shall fail to pay any of said money, either principal or interest when the same become due, or to conform to or comply with, any of the conditions, or agreements, herein contained, to be kept and performed by said mortgagor that the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall become due and payable at once.

And the said mortgagee having declared the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable and it does hereby declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable.

And whereas there is now due and payable on said mortgage the sum of one thousand one hundred twenty-eight ($1128) dollars at the date of this notice, and no action or proceedings at law, or otherwise, having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The west half (1-2) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred forty-nine (149) north of range forty three (43) west, containing 320 acres of land, situated in Polk County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and the taxes if any on said premises, and fifty dollars attorneys fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston in said county and state on the 28th day of August A. D. 1893 at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated July 8th 1893.

UNION CENTRAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

ELMER C. YETTER,
[18-19] Attorney for Mortgagee,
Hallock, Kittson County, Minn.

D. M. Rose

"I was troubled with terrible pain in my back and had also kidney difficulty.

For 27 Years I Suffered.

I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and began to get better. I have not had an attack since I began to use it. I was also cured of catarrh in the head and am now in good health." D. M. ROSE, Denison, Iowa. 100 doses one dollar.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS cure Liver Ills, Jaundice, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Constipation.

E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.

HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.

All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

BROWN, THE CIGAR MAN

Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.

Manufactory over Merchants Nat'l Bank. Entrance on Second Street.

DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.

H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

THE NEW NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS — Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

LOW RATES — Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.

Horses, Cattle. — Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands, New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sheep, Hogs. — Sweetes Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."

IN THE
North American Review
YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.

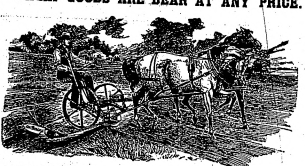
THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Mallelieu, Foss, etc., etc.

THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.

Subscription Price, $5.00 a year.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

St. Vitus' Dance cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.



PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!

Of the following line of First-Class Goods which we handle, and when you are ready to buy call and get our prices.

CHEAP GOODS ARE DEAR AT ANY PRICE.

WE SELL

DEERING BINDERS, AND MOWERS, The best on earth for money, chalk or marbles.

HOLLINGSWORTH AND DEERE RAKES, 8, 10 and 12 feet.

JOHN DEERE PLOWS. WESTERN ROAD MACHINES,

ADVANCE THRESHERS AND ENGINES.

A fine line of Buggies, Carts and Harness of all styles. Rushford Wagons, good timber and bone dry—too well known to need more than mentioning. We also sell a nice line of bicycles, the Victor being our leader. It needs to be seen to be fully appreciated. In these, as well as everything, else, merit wins. It pays to buy good articles. We sell as cheap as the quality of our goods will admit, and guarantee everybody the worth of their money.

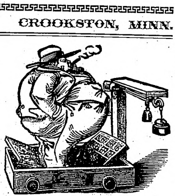
Larsen, Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

FRESH VEGETABLES
RECEIVED DAILY.

A Choice lot of
CANNED GOODS
At Reduced Rates.

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,
Large Stock, Low Prices.

The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.
ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.



The Price
—OF—
Groceries

HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.

Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as

TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,

I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.

My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.,
Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.

L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third St.,
CROOKSTON, - MINN

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

LIGHT OUT OF DARKNESS

BY Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY GODEY PUBLISHING COMPANY.

[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER VIII.

The Sabbath in Mr. Newton's household was always a pleasant and peaceful day of rest. All secular thoughts and avocations were, as much as possible, set aside, and after the usual attendance at the house of God the remainder of the day was divested of useless solemnity or formality by profitable reading or cheerful conversation.

As usual, Grenville was with them at dinner, and so far recovered his natural and pleasant deportment that Rose's heart rested again in happy confidence and serenity.

Dinner waited some time and was at last served and over before Dunbar made his appearance—a circumstance so unusual that it had given rise to some anxiety on his account, and Lillian's was not diminished when she met him in the hall.

"What is the matter, dear Eustace?"

"Do not be alarmed, my darling. I will not keep you in suspense. I am pained for poor Le Barron's wretched family, but I will explain when we are all together. It is a story I do not care to repeat but once."

After a hasty greeting from the family he said:

"Early this morning our friend Austin called to inform me of the troubles at Le Barron's. You all know that the braggart adventurer De Courtney has for some months had his eye on Le Barron's apparent riches under the guise of admiration for their eldest daughter. I knew that Estella and her mother were greatly smitten with him, and Maud was pining with envy. The more cautious and suspicious father had written to some merchant abroad requesting reliable testimonials respecting this prince in disguise before he would yield to the hasty consummation of the marriage, for which the ardent lover was so urgent. It seems that when the poor father had confessed the ruin and degradation that were closing upon them, and Estella had borne her part in the first outburst of wild passion that assailed him, her shrewd mind conceived a plan for her own safety, which, with consummate heartlessness, she at once proceeded to execute.

"Silently retiring from the wordy warfare, she wrote a hasty note to De Courtney asking him to meet her at a restaurant near by, sent it by her French maid, deep in all her secrets, and silently made her exit from a side room to the rendezvous. She safely calculated that in the tumult her absence would not be observed. In that unhappy family you are aware that self is the dominant power, and Estella well knew that when the fierceness of the storm then raging had passed it would be succeeded by tears and hysterical lamentations that would claim the attendance of all the servants, thus leaving her to consummate her selfish arrangements unmolested.

"What passed between her and De Courtney can only be conjectured by the results and a letter left behind for the mother. It would seem that she returned to the house as secretly as she had left it, directed her maid to collect all her valuables and pack her wardrobe, while she proceeded to secure what money or jewelry she could find in her mother's or sister's rooms and departed with her spoils, attended by her French waiting maid. Quite early this morning, as Austin was passing Roseville, Maud, apparently in great excitement, called to him from the library window. He entered, and giving him but a brief statement of the last night's revelations and proceedings she begged him to find me and urge me to come to her immediately.

"Austin gave me all the particulars he could learn from Maud's hasty and frenzied recital, but when I wished to stop here for advice and if possible to get Mr. Newton to accompany me on this delicate mission he objected, saying she had especially desired that nothing should be said to the Newtons. I therefore proceeded at once to Roseville. Strange sounds startled me when I entered the dreary house, but Maud, who was waiting in the hall, evidently on the alert to prevent the servants from seeing me, hurried me into an office distant from the parlors. It disgusts me to think of her inhuman, selfish ways. But it may be that she did not realize the terrible tragedy enacting around her."

"Don't linger," cried Rose. "This suspense is dreadful."

"I will be as brief as possible. It seems no thought had been given to Estella's absence during the night, but Maud in the morning had ordered her attendant to bring some ornament or article from her wardrobe, which could not be found. On examining further her jewelry and most of her choice possessions were missing. Then her maid hinted that Miss Le Barron had been 'going on strangely' the day before, and all the servants remarked it, but the madam had been so bad they had had no time to give it attention. But now would Miss Maud please go into her sister's room and see for herself and not be saying disparaging things to a poor waiting maid? I judge from the accent of both mistress and maid that Maud, becoming furious at the spoiling of her goods, had visited her wrath on the one nearest to her. On entering her sister's chamber it was vacant, the wardrobe and bureaus empty, and on the table lay an open note to her mother of the most insolent and heartless character.

"She said that, seeing inevitable ruin coming upon the family, and having no disposition to share it with them, she had at once sought her dear Victor, and not wishing to reveal their misfortunes had simply informed him that her father had peremptorily forbidden her to hold any further communication with him, as he pretended he had received advices from abroad to his discredit, which she did not believe, but this cruel father's commands compelled her to say farewell.

"'Of course,' the unfeeling girl continued, 'I knew dear Victor would not listen to that idea for a moment, but, as I expected, begged for an immediate marriage that very hour, before I returned to my parents. When I was once his own, I could quietly collect all my jewelry and wardrobe, and we would leave at once, making our bridal tour a pleasant voyage to his native land. He was sure father would soon recall us when he found resistance was of no avail.' Of course she could not refuse so elegant a lover. They were married within the hour, and as this haste gave her no time for a bridal trousseau befitting a millionaire's daughter she was sure her dear mother and sister would pardon her for making free with their jewelry and such ready money as she found in their purses and her father's escretoire. Robbin, the footboy, had taken her trunks away, she said, and fearing to incur his master's displeasure would not return. Her maid also would of course go with her."

The family had listened to Eustace's narrative thus far without interruption, overwhelmed with sorrow and amazement, but Mr. Newton now exclaimed:

"Why, this is far beyond the most unscrupulous selfishness I ever imagined could be found in one so young."

"Ah, but Maud will far outmatch her, I fear. I once thought her more gentle and amiable than her sister. But the bitter hate and vindictiveness she manifests are fearful. The loss to herself and the impossibility of reclaiming was all she seemed to think of. Her father's danger and her mother's uncertain condition hardly excited an emotion. As soon as Austin and I could interrupt Maud's excited recital of her own misfortunes I alluded to the strange sounds I heard on entering.

"'Pshaw! that's nothing,' said Maud, 'mother has kept the house in an uproar all night. I kept myself out of the way, I assure you, and left father to take care of her as best he might. He deserves it all and more for bringing this great shame upon us.'

"'Have you seen your mother this morning?' I asked, greatly surprised.

"'No, indeed. I staid as long as I could endure her temper last night. If I had followed Stella's example and left earlier, I might have saved my own possessions from her hands. Mother may learn of Estella's dutiful conduct by some one else. She has been exalted above me and cited as an example for me to imitate long enough. Now I hope mother will enjoy this new evidence of her favorite's smartness, but I'll not take the first blast of her rage, I assure you. She'll find that I, too, can keep my own counsel as well as Stella.'

"'Oh, Maud! This is shameful! I will at least seek your parents and try to help them.'

"'Well, go, Don Quixote, and succor the distressed. Success attend you. I hope you will enjoy it.'

"I threw open the door, and again those dismal sounds! I paused a moment, when a wild, unearthly shriek rang through the house. I caught Maud's hand.

"'Go with me.'

"'I will not.'

"'Unnatural child! You shall! There is some strange mystery here, and you shall accompany us while we unravel it. Come, Austin.' Our determined manner and probably a fear of being left behind compelled her to go, but reluctantly, and we passed through the splendid parlors into the gloomy family sitting room."

He paused a moment and covered his face with his hands, while his audience sat with pale faces, dreading the sequel.

"A fearful sight met our eyes," he continued, "Would I could forget it! Mrs. Le Barron sat in a large easy chair in the most fearful paroxysms. The old butler and gardener and two women, one of whom, I think, was her dressing maid and the other perhaps the cook, were standing over her. All looked chilled and exhausted. The window shutters remained unopened, and the gas was still burning. When we came near, we saw that she was tied to the chair.

"'Indeed, sir, we could not help it. She was furious and has been most of the night. And that was the only way we could manage her and be safe ourselves.'

"'Have you called a physician?'

"'No; we can't leave her, and we can't make any of the other servants hear if we called ever so loud.'

"'Stupid! Why not have rung the bell till some one would hear?'

"'We think, sir,' said the gardener, with some hesitation, 'that there's no one to hear in the house. "Rats leave a sinking ship," and this one's going down mighty fast, I judge, and then, begging your honor's pardon, we feel fearsome 'bout going to the bell. There's something strangelike 'bout master, and he's close to the bell.' Austin and I sprang to the recessed corner so dimly lighted. Oh, Mr. Newton, I have, cowardlike, left the worst to the last! In his chair, his head resting on the marble pillar, was Le Barron"——

"Not dead!" exclaimed Mr. Newton, his face blanching with horror—"and, oh, do not say by his own hand!"

"No—I hope—I think not—Austin was the first to rise above the terrible shock and left at once for the nearest medical aid. I could learn nothing from the poor frightened and exhausted servants, but as near as I could gather from the time the miserable man entered his house yesterday it had been the scene of the most disgraceful and sickening tumult. Till late in the evening most of the servants had been in Stella's employ, and I imagine, from hints dropped from the gardener, what was passing in the family room was a matter of surmise.

"After Estella's departure as the servants were closing the house the sounds that had alarmed me aroused their attention. When they entered, the mistress was raving through the room like one possessed, the women said. They were frightened and ran to call in the two men. When they returned, her husband, without rising from the chair, was feebly trying to calm her as she stood raging over him. They secured her with great difficulty and some danger, I apprehend, for many articles once objects of pride to her lay broken and scattered all around as if she had furiously thrown them. It took them some time to control her, and for safety they were compelled to bind her.

"When they next thought of poor Le Barron, he was just as I found him. In the meantime I had opened the shutters and extinguished the gas, but the sunlight made the horrors more apparent. Leaving the frantic woman to the servants, I examined her husband, but could find no trace of violence save a bruise on his brow by some article thrown—made, I fear, by his wife when the servants seized her. But Dr. Shelby, whom Austin soon brought, says it was probably not severe enough to have caused his death. Dr. Shelby has been his medical adviser for some months past, and he thinks his anxiety, exaggerated by the fearful storm that burst upon him when he told his pecuniary troubles, hastened his death from disease of the heart.

"Austin remained to make all needful arrangements for the inquest, and as soon as I could be spared I hastened to you, for I think you and Mrs. Newton are greatly needed there now."

"We will go with you immediately."

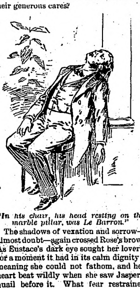
"Can I be of service in any way?" asked George.

"I will thank you to order me one of the carriages. I did not intend to use either of them again, but this is a work of necessity."

"One word before we leave. I found the two youngest children, Jennie and Robert, hid in the parlors, half dead with fright. Their nurse is not to be found. Hearing the noise, I presume, they had crept down from the nursery and probably fearing to return have been concealed there all night. Jennie, you know, is a sweet, thoughtful child—very unlike her sisters. Robbie, Dr. Shelby says, has never been very bright or robust."

"I suppose," said Grenville, with much confusion, "you will hardly be willing to give me a share in providing for your proteges?"

How unlike this hesitation to Jasper's natural impulsive generosity! What could it mean unless the knowledge on his part that his interest and labor might soon be so separated from his northern friends that he would be unable to share their generous cares?



"In his chair, his head resting on the marble pillar, was Le Barron."

The shadows of vexation and sorrow—almost doubt—again crossed Rose's brow. As Eustace's dark eye sought her lover's for a moment it had in its calm dignity a meaning she could not fathom, and her heart beat wildly when she saw Jasper's quail before it. What fear restrained her natural impetuosity from demanding a solution at once?

In reply to Jasper's question Eustace simply shook his head, but her father partly reassured her by the calm and apparently unsuspicious manner in which he answered:

"We will settle all details when we return. Now we must attend to the more pressing wants."

In the course of the ride Mrs. Newton asked Eustace how Maud appeared when taken to her parents and compelled to witness all the horrors of that scene.

"Oh, my dear madam! Your question reminds me that I have not given the miserable girl a thought since I entered that room! The sight that met my eyes at first bewildered me, and when I could rouse above it my whole attention was so engrossed by immediate necessities that—well, excuses are useless. It was cruel negligence."

"No, Eustace, you blame yourself needlessly. It was a most natural oversight. She was requiring no attention, and unless in sight and taking some part I do not wonder you did not think of her."

"She was not in the room, I am sure, for I have no recollection of seeing or hearing her again after one glimpse of that terrible scene. I now remember the remark she made about keeping her own counsels as closely as her sister had done, to which I then attached little importance, but which now I fear may have been painfully significant."

When they reached the house, they were met by Dr. Shelby and Mr. Austin and informed that they were ready for an inquest, waiting only for Dunbar's evidence, and then would be ready to remove the body to another apartment to be prepared for the grave.

After a long and earnest consultation with reference to Mrs. Le Barron the doctor suggested that the wisest plan would be to remove her to some quiet retreat or asylum as soon as possible.

Inquiries were then made for Maud. Neither the doctor nor Austin had seen her, and such had been the excitement and confusion her absence was unnoticed.

On asking for the young lady one of the servants said she thought she had not returned.

"Returned?" said Mr. Newton.

"Yes, sir. I guess she was sort of frightened as soon as she saw her father, and she noticed him before Mr. Dunbar did. Miss Maud never thought much of her mother, nor of her father, either, for that matter, only she could always have her way with him, poor man! And without speaking she slipped right out of the room and out of the house too."

"Do you know where she went?"

"No, mum, not sure; but Thomas here thinks he drove her out to old Varney's."

"Thinks he did? Why, Thomas, don't you know whom you took there?"

"Why, sir, my young lady came to me from master's room all whitelike and called me out of doors, then told me to put one of the horses into the gig that the servants use and drive her maid out to Elmwood, old Varney's place, to do an errand. Before I could come round with the gig a woman met me at the back gate all muffled up and acting as though she was afraid of being seen. She spoke low and strange and said her mistress wanted me to take her on an errand. But, your honor, Miss Maud's maid don't wear diamonds and is uncommon willing to talk with an honest lad and to show her face too."

"Well, Thomas, your young mistress has sorrow and trouble enough and may well feel the need of advice."

"Yes, your honor, but young ladies ain't generally willing to seek advice from an old lover to whom they have often said 'nay,'" replied the cook.

Wishing to stop further revelations of the family secrets, Mr. Newton inquired:

"Where is Miss Le Barron's maid?"

"Miss Maud's, do you mean, sir? Oh, she put off some time ago, and for certain much more went out with her than she ever brought here."

"Well, we will seek Miss Maud in her own apartment." And as they turned from the gossip loving servants they heard the cook remark:

"Well, well, they'll have a breezy time of it. Glad it isn't me."

It was very evident that the servants who had remained with Mrs. Le Barron through the night had not learned of Estella's marriage, pillage and flight.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton ascended to Maud's apartments. All was silent, but after a few moments' pause they knocked at the door. She was there and bade them enter, but when her father's best friends stood before her she started in alarm and made a movement for a hasty retreat. But suddenly checking herself, before Mrs. Newton could speak, she turned on them with the wildest fury depicted on her face and almost shrieked:

"Why are you here? I will not hear a word. Leave my room instantly. You come to exult over our fall. I can still, for a few hours at least, claim a right to my own chamber. I bid you begone!"

"But my dear child," said Mrs. Newton, "listen to me a moment. We come in all love. Do trust us. We lose all as well as you. Then why should you imagine we mean anything but friendship and tenderest sympathy?"

"I do not believe you—do not trust you and will not. Who told you we needed any sympathy? I for one have no desire for it."

"Mr. Dunbar came at Dr. Shelby's request to bring us here, and, my dear Maud, let us in some way comfort you."

"I tell you I want no comfort from you or any one. Dunbar has, I presume, told you how finely Stell has managed. I think I am as well able to act for myself as she."

"Oh, Maud! Maud! Do no such rash thing as she has done, I entreat you. It will bring you only disgrace and misery."

"Oh, never fear. I have no fancy for elopements. What I do I care not who knows. It is too late for any to prevent it, now anyway. The last trunk went from that room," pointing to a closed door, "since you have honored me with your espionage.

"Allow me," with a scornful, defiant air, even while a shudder of disgust passed over her, "allow me to introduce you to Mrs. Jacob Varney, a millionaire's wife, madam! Not quite so winsome a husband as Stella's, perhaps, but I shall have all that money can give. So what matter's it?"

"Ah, Maud, my dear child! What have you done? How could Varney countenance such an act under the circumstances?"

"What have I done? Why, found myself a princely home when my father's folly or crime—call it what you please—has cast me out from this. What has Varney done? Why, proved himself a fool! Has he not for more than a year tormented me? And I during that time treated him with open, undisguised contempt. And yet when I went to him yesterday and told him boldly we were bankrupted and disgraced; that Stella, the vile creature, had robbed me of all I had—oh, it makes me laugh to think how the toothless old dotard blubbered over my hand!"—and with a gesture of bitter loathing she tossed her hand away from her—"promising me a trousseau next week that should outvie any in the city, together with a princely settlement, if I would consent to marry him that very hour. Why, an immediate marriage was just what I was determined on! And it is done," said the miserable girl, throwing herself on the sofa, exhausted by the shameful recital.

Mrs. Newton went to her caressingly, while her tears fell fast.

"Oh, Maud! You do not love this man! How, then, can you endure the home you have sold yourself for?"

"Love him! Oh, no! I have ever loathed him. I had once some romantic notions about marrying for love and escaping from such a home as this has always been.

"But that is all past! When once I get my promised trousseau and settlement, I shall allow myself to be very little troubled with old Varney's society, I assure you. That would be intolerable. I have lived thus far without love and can continue to do so, while I now have a position in the most fashionable society as high as wealth can command. Why do you weep and look at me so sadly? What would you have me do?" she cried wildly. "Go out to service? Starve in the streets—or worse? My mother's folly and my father's shame have barred all other chances for a home but the one I have chosen or rather accepted as a last resort."

"Oh, no! no! my poor girl! A loving heart was at your command, and you scorned it, threw it aside for the golden chain that now binds you and which will eat like a canker into your soul."

"No. I never scorned Ernest Sherwood, never! My whole heart was his. But how was he received? Turned from the door by harsh words from my mother and bitter insults from my father, while I was jeered at daily for my low tastes and Estella's foreigner held up before me as a god."

"But, my dear Maud, when you saw the state of your father's affairs, if you must so hastily seek a home, why not let Ernest know your troubles?"

She started quickly to her feet. "Let him know the deep disgrace that had fallen? The loss of property he would not value, but the shame! Tell Ernest Sherwood that my father was a dishonored man—a forger—liable any moment to public arrest? Do you think I could do that, or do you know me so little as to suppose I would shame my womanhood by offering myself to one I respected—that I loved? If you but knew me, you would not wonder that I hate the parents that have robbed me of all that I ever valued! I leave within the hour, and once outside the gate I will never see them again—never!"

From these passionate words her friends suspected she had no knowledge of the terrible state of things below. A few words revealed the fact that she simply supposed her mother was in one of those stormy fits she had often witnessed and her father, as usual, allowing the excitement to wear itself out by silence, though she acknowledged that she was frightened by his appearance. When she fully understood the truth, she was at first greatly shocked, but her own selfishness soon rose above all other considerations.

"If I had but known this sooner! Oh, Ernest! Ernest! But it is all too late!"

It is useless to prolong the scene. The unhappy girl resisted all efforts to persuade her to show at least common respect and tarry till her father's body should be laid to rest and her mother placed in some asylum, and when from the window she saw a superb equipage dash up to the door she abruptly said "farewell," and with a face in which all of her ill governed passions were warring with a better and tenderer mood she rushed down stairs, and without accepting the aid of her unfortunate and superannuated husband she sprang into the carriage, and with the partner of her folly was soon borne from their sight.

That same afternoon Mrs. Le Barron was quietly taken to the retreat selected and the next day her husband's remains, in the simplest and most unostentatious manner, consigned to the grave.

Duncan remained till the servants were dismissed on the following week, the house safely closed and the key placed in the hands of those who were appointed to unravel the tangled web of the late owner's dealings.

So closed the tragedy that would be a lifelong misery to some, but to the outside world it was but a "nine days' wonder," and other events soon swept it from the public mind, and it was forgotten.

CHAPTER IX.

The evening after Le Barron's funeral all the Newtons met in the home so soon to pass from their hands. Mr. Newton there informed his friends that he had, as much as lay in his power, endeavored to hasten the final settlement of all matters connected with his late business. He had met all who had claims upon the firm and brought the whole matter much nearer a thorough adjustment than at first he had any reason to anticipate. He spoke with great feeling of the respect and kindness manifested toward him personally by all concerned and their voluntary request that he should appropriate all the personal property about the house and grounds to his own use, and they expressed their conviction that even more than that would be found honorably his due.

Of course Le Barron's funeral had prevented the ride to the Montgomery place, but now, finding there was every promise of turning his attention to some new work, Mr. Newton desired that Eustace's proposition should have immediate attention. It was therefore agreed that early the next morning Eustace should escort Mrs. Newton to the farm and on their return the feasibility of the project should be finally settled.

Rose proposed that she should accompany them and have one more ride on Fairy before she passed from their hands, and turning sweetly to her lover asked if she might trespass on his gallantry for an escort. He excused himself on the plea of prior engagements and expressed great regret that he could not enjoy such a treat. All this was natural enough, and Rose was satisfied, for her eyes were not yet opened. But the quick flash that overspread his face and died away as rapidly rekindled Mr. Newton's sorrowful suspicions, and the earnest recognition that passed between Dunbar and George told him that Jasper's manner had but confirmed their opinions.

It was painful to wait longer for a positive denial or unmistakable admission of his treasonable proclivities. But who could look on that sweet girl by his side and have the courage to hasten a denouement that might blast the bright beauty before them? These thoughts passed with painful rapidity through Mr. Newton's mind, and he had just mastered the indignant impulse as Ralph gayly offered to act as his sister's cavalier in place of her recreant knight and suggested that it might be well to smuggle Alfred into the carriage with the other party, and then, should first impressions prove encouraging, George and himself could remain to await orders and Alfred escort Rose home again.

But his parents were advocates of consistency under all circumstances, and whatever they advocated they exemplified by their daily practice. Mr. Newton agreed that such a cavalcade as Ralph had planned was hardly in good taste under existing circumstances. He should much prefer that Dunbar should accompany the ladies in the most unpretending manner, leaving the others industriously employed in making an inventory of all in the house and grounds.

A ready assent was given to this suggestion, Ralph remarking that father would be obliged to exercise the gift of patience before he could get them into a good working condition, for they would, he feared, be every little while "bolting from the track" after some fancy frolic instead of working like little busy bees, and a strong arm, tight rein and curb bit would be absolutely necessary to keep them on the right side of the traces.

"Well, Ralph, my son, that is an odd mixture of quotation and metaphor, but I must say it smacks a little too much of the jockey."

"Our good parents are growing a little obtuse, I think. I've been trying all the evening to make you comprehend. Having taken possession of the groom's apartments, I am happy to find myself not so far above my position but that my vocation is recognized," said Ralph, laughing merrily.

"What does the silly boy mean?" said his mother.

"Simply," replied George, "that while you and father were occupied at Roseville yesterday we at home were anxious to make ourselves serviceable. I hope you will not think we are undertaking too great liberties. You know we must no longer keep a retinue of servants, and the sooner all changes are made, I judge from what you have already said, the better. Hearing of good places for the coachman and one of the grooms, we secured them and sent the men at once. Ralph and I meanwhile prefer, if it meets your approbation, to retain the head hostler, John, for a few pays to teach us our duties, and we will do the work at the carriage house and stable till the contents are disposed of."

"Look at father," said Ralph, laughing. "If he isn't grieving that his proud sons should stoop to care for the horses."

"There you are wrong, dear boy. I was overcome for a moment with gratitude to God, who has blessed me with children so ready to accept not only uncomplainingly but with great cheerfulness and alacrity a change sudden as ours must be, and with no false shame step in a moment from a life of ease to one of the lowest forms of menial labor."

"Now, father, your explanation is really quite cruel. I had a little speech all ready—thinking you were shocked at our labors of today—to show you how inconsistent were your precepts. I am greatly disappointed, for as I am to be a farmer I shall not have many opportunities for speechmaking. But we can't catch father napping, can we, mother?" playfully patting her cheek.

"Well, saucy one, tell us what other mischief you and George have been about today?"

"Well, we thought you would not like any of the servants to leave unpaid. Fortunately we have always been liberally supplied with pocket money, and we three boys had more than enough to make all right with the men and help Lillian settle with those two utterly useless appendages, the young ladies' waiting maids."

"Why, my dear girls, have you dismissed your attendants? You shame your mother! Our children are teaching us. I never once thought of this, as I ought to have done at the very first."

"No, mother mine. Because you and father have been occupied all day in trying to minister to the unfortunate and wayward, and knowing father wished to curtail expenses as expeditiously as possible we could do no less than to begin at these points belonging to our individual expenses."

In the course of the conversation Ralph took occasion to hold up Rose's hand and call attention to a blister, saying she had been sweeping and dusting the library herself.

"Never mind the hand," his sister said, laughing. "That will soon become accustomed to such work, but I am sure mamma will say I have done my work well."

Jasper here impatiently interrupted her by looking at her hand and protesting with much temper against anything of the kind again.

"Come, come, Jasper, don't you be unreasonable. That little blister is of no consequence. I really enjoyed my play, for as yet it has been nothing more. But what would you have me do, Sir Impatience? Sit on the sofa and let my mother and sister do what must now be done—work? You dare not counsel that!"

"No, dear Rose. But, Mr. Newton, my kind friend, let me beg that you will yield to my wishes. Let me make Rose my wife before you leave this her first home."

"Jasper!" exclaimed Rose. "How dare you name such a thing after those two shameful examples of hasty marriages to avoid the inconveniences of a limited income which we have just witnessed? Would you see me as heartless as the Le Barrons?"

"That does not follow, Rose. The aid you could render would be but little comparatively, and I cannot see you stoop to labor when a home of ease and affluence is waiting for you."

"Stoop! Whatever my mother and sister can do without degradation will not lower me in the estimation of any right minded person. Eustace has no fears of Lillian being degraded, and he can also offer her a home of ease, but he knows that for the present her first duties keep her with her parents. If your pride revolts at my using a broom or engaging in any of the domestic avocations that fall to my mother's lot, then should I in time share your fortune your foolish pride will be just as much wounded to know all of us continued to labor, as we most probably will."

"Oh, no, never, Rose! You do me injustice. It is but natural, loving you as I do, that I should long to protect you from all hardships. Your friends, though not disgraced by labor, would never have sought it as an advisable change. Consent to an immediate marriage, darling. If you will but yield to this request, I know that your father will not refuse. Let me take you to my mother, show you our beautiful home, and when your parents are settled we will visit them before I install you mistress of the little cottage now building for you."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE DRAINAGE IS ALL RIGHT.

In its weekly issue of last Saturday the Times takes occasion to roundly score the president of the Great Northern road, assuming that Mr. Hill has defeated the drainage project claiming that he has not been sincere in his professions of interest in the matter. If the Times man was posted a little bit in the matter he would be too shrewd to make such a ridiculous outbreak. He would have known that at the very time his weekly edition went into the office the matter had been satisfactorily adjusted and the drainage matter made a success. The Times should know by this time that whatever else may be said of Mr. Hill he is something of a business man and looks out for the interests of his company. The Times should also know that in the tract described in the bill for drainage is a considerable land belonging to another company and it is quite reasonable, for Mr. Hill to desire that the money they expend be placed where his company gets the benefit of it. This idea occurs to us in looking over the ground and seems a perfectly reasonable solution of Mr. Hill's action in the matter. The commissioners to be appointed by the governor will be N. D. Miller, chief engineer of the Great Northern road and E. G. Valentine, of Breckenridge, and they will be appointed just as soon as the $6250 the company has to furnish for the work is covered into the state treasury which is expected to be this week. Mr. Hill is desirous to see the appropriation judiciously expended so as to accomplish as much as possible—and the people in the territory affected also desire the same thing and it is very probable that he also desires to see the money his company contributes applied where it will be of benefit to his company—a very natural desire when that company contributes one-fifth of the amount. We do not blame the Times for its interest in the drainage matter—we feel that way ourself, but while the Times has been kicking restlessly over the apparent delay we have been quietly hunting for the cause and this week we are glad to be able to announce that the cause of delay has been removed and the work will be commenced as soon now as it is possible to get to it.

WEEDS.

The weed problem is getting to be a serious one for the farmers to handle, how to subdue them being the great question. The fact of their existence in such abundance shows an exceedingly fertile soil for as a rule the richer the soil the more abundant and rank will the weeds be. The experience of most of our farmers is that summer-fallowing will not quite effect a cure—rather seems to make a more healthful growth the next year. It is claimed that sheep, are death to weeds and where sheep are the weeds will not be very numerous. If any of our farmers have had experience in this particular we would like to hear from them. It is claimed that a crop of green clover turned under when in blossom is an excellent thing but this takes a year to grow and is liable to winter-kill. The next best treatment is said to be millet, turned under when well in the grass. We have noticed that seeding down to timothy leaves the ground quite free for two or three years and the rest is beneficial to the soil. There are some fields in Polk county this year where but very few weeds can be seen, and on these fields you will see some excellent crops, and we venture the assertion that every crop in the county would be better without the weeds that are in most of them. The question is "what to do with them?" It is an important question, one that sooner or later must be solved or our fertile soils must be abandoned for few men can stand it to raise only about half crops year after year.

It is in times of financial stringency such as have been recently experienced, which come periodically, producing distress everywhere, that every true lover of his country, every true patriot should speak only good words of and for the section of the country in which he lives, for then if ever the country needs it. This is sometimes a hard thing to do, but in a country like the Red River Valley, whose abundant and wonderful resources are continually speaking for it, this is a very easy thing to do. Because money is hard to get in the great money centers of the east, does not detract from the wonderful fertility of our soil and the wonderful health-giving qualities of our climate. We have the most recuperative soil on the earth which fact has been time and again fully demonstrated. We remember, not many years ago, about July 4th, that the valley had sustained a drouth of many weeks duration—hardly any rain had fallen since the grain was sown; the wheat began to head out very low down and very short heads; the ground was cracked and seamed with the excessive drouth and everybody declared we would not get to exceed three or four bushels of wheat per acre. What was the result? Do you remember, reader, that a few days later a good soaking rain fell and that when the grain was threshed that fall we never had a better sample in the Valley? And that the yield surprised everybody, being much larger than it was thought possible for it to be? The straw was short and the heads were short, but the wheat was there all the same. And have you noticed the wonderful improvement that the last eight or ten days has made in the present crop? We never knew a country wherein such wonderful changes could occur and therefore we are convinced that too much cannot be said in praise of the Red River Valley country.

A new publication comes from McIntosh—the Tribune. It is owned by P. Paul Bodine, and E. E. Bodine, and is leased and operated by R. J. Pettie and C. P. Hole. The News, which was printed on Paul's outfit, has been returned to its owner—W. G. Hunt—who may perhaps continue to publish. The long-suffering people of McIntosh will have to hustle if they support three papers.

The welcome news reaches the Journal on this Wednesday morning that the Great Northern road has deposited its proportion of the drainage money with the state treasurer and that the work will now soon be done. The commissioners to be named by the governor have been appointed and that appoinment only awaited the deposit as the governor did not consider it necessary to made the appointments unless there was something to be done by the commission. The Journal has insisted all along that the matter would be satisfactorily adjusted and the drainage would be done.

The Sunday opening at the World's Fair proves a financial failure and the management has decided to abandon the idea whereat most of the people in the United States do greatly rejoice.

Our thanks are due to Governor Nelson for a copy of the Blue Book for 1893.

The midsummer Cosmopolitan, the first at the new price of 12½ cents per copy, though unchanged in size, excels any other issue of that magazine in the number of its distinguished contributors, in the interest of its contents and in its overflowing illustrations by famous artists. The midsummer number is intended to set the pace for the magazine at its new price of 12½ cents a copy, or $1.50 a year.

Cheap Rates to the World's Fair.

On July 11, 24, 31 and Aug. 7 the Northern Pacific will sell round trip tickets to Chicago for one fare for round trip limited 12 days from date of sale. For full particulars inquire of C. A. Sharkey, Agent.

Best Trains for World's Fair.

The best equipped and most complete trains from Minneapolis and St. Paul for Chicago and World's Fair run via "The North-Western Line."

"World's Fair Express" leaves Minneapolis 5:45, St. Paul 6:25, every evening except Sunday, arrives Chicago 7:45 a. m., and is equipped with free reclining chair cars and gas-lighted, vestibuled buffet sleepers, and because of its early arrival in Chicago is the best train to take for the World's Fair as it gives a long day in Chicago.

"North-Western Limited" leaves Minneapolis 7:30, St. Paul 8:10 o'clock, every night in the year and arrives Chicago 9:30 next morning. This is the easiest riding, finest equipped train west of Chicago, having both Pullman and Wagner private compartment sleepers and Buffet smoking library coaches, and is the only palatial train of its kind in America on which no extra fare is charged.

"Badger State Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:20, St. Paul 8:00 o'clock, every morning in the year and arrives Chicago 9:35 p. m., and is equipped with modern day coaches and luxurious parlor cars. It means the best service, the most complete comfort and the greatest luxury when your tickets to Chicago read, via "The North-Western Line." For illustrated World's Fair guide and map folder free address,

T. W. Teasdale,
Gen'l Passenger Agent,
[13-tf] St. Paul, Minn.

FARMERS AT THE FAIR.

A Royal Reception Awaits the Agriculturist.

THEY WILL BE GUESTS OF HONOR.

A World in Itself To Be Seen in the Agricultural Building—Most of the Nations of the Earth and Our Own States and Territories Represented at the Columbian Exposition.

World's Fair, July 21.—[Special.]—Now the harvest is about finished throughout the country. Soon the threshing will be done and marketing of the golden grain begin. Then the farmers will come to the fair. Not only will they be welcome, but a royal reception awaits them. The man who feeds us, the man whose prosperity is the prosperity of all of us, whose ill-fortune hurts us all, has not been neglected in this exposition. On the contrary, he and his contributions to the world's industries—the foundation of all industries and source of all wealth—have a front seat. They will be guests of honor here.

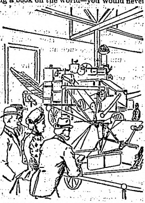
It is the fashion among some of the people one meets here to sneer at the agricultural display, to say it is not worthy their time or attention, that it is dull and commonplace. I pity these people. They are thoughtless. Their horizon is narrow. To my mind the Agricultural building is one of the most interesting of all the great departments of the fair. It is more than interesting—it is fascinating. It takes us nearer to the heart of the people, not only of our own country but of all countries, to the mass of humanity everywhere, than any other feature of the exposition, excepting not even the Fine Arts gallery, which surely is next to it.

The creator of this fair builded wiser than they knew when they gave the Palace of Agriculture the proudest position in their marvelous landscape—running from the lake by the side of the splendid central basin to the canal—and made that palace the most beautiful of all the exposition buildings. There are just five really noble structures in this exposition assemblage. One is the Administration building, a merely ornamental, crown-like structure, a vestibule, its only practical use being for offices; the Manufactures building, noble in proportions, magnificent in dimensions; Machinery hall, cathedral-like, ornate, impressive; the Palace of Fine Arts, which would be a noteworthy structure if taken up bodily and set down in Versailles, Rome or Athens and the Palace of Agriculture, classical in its form and decorations, perfect in proportions, the most beautiful of all in the opinion of many who are competent to judge.

It will do the hearts of the farmers of this country good when they come here and see that they have not been assigned to the back yard of the fair; that a rude and hastily-constructed shell was not deemed good enough for them; but that they are received in a veritable palace, a structure worthy its uses and too glorious a creation to be suffered to disappear from the face of the earth when the exposition shall have closed its gates.

This Agricultural building is a world in itself. In point of size it is the fourth structure of the exposition. Let the farmer imagine fifteen acres of ground floor under one roof, with several acres more in the galleries. That gives space equal to the average farm in France and England, and larger than the average farm of Belgium and Holland. The space is well used. Not a square foot of it has been wasted. If there were no building in Jackson park but the Palace of Agriculture, no display but that of the products of the soil and the machinery and processes used in their propagation, harvesting and manipulation, the World's fair would still be worth taking a long journey to see.

Shall I tell you what is in this building? I wish I could. I should like to write a book about it. But it would be like writing a book on the world—you would never know where to start or where to end. It would take a pretty big book to do the subject justice. Therefore in the space of a single letter I can hope only to point out to you some of the most interesting things to give you a few samples from the mighty whole. When you come to the fair set apart at least one whole day for the Agricultural building. Make it two days if you have the time to spare. It will not be time wasted. This applies with even greater force to the city man, to the professional man who comes from his desk or office, than to the farmer himself. The man from the city can learn more here that is worth his knowing than in any other department of the exposition.

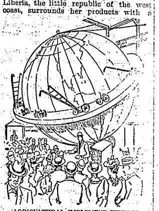


A MAZE OF FARMING MACHINERY.

Let us now take a rapid run through this world of the farm and briefly mention the most interesting things that fall under our eye. Passing through the great rotunda we arrive at the center of the vast building. It is a wonderful scene that we are in the midst of. Here are most of the nations of the world and states and territories of our Union with little palaces of their own, showing therein their farm products. As far as the vision extends the facades of these little palaces—and some of them not so very small, either—greet the eye. In the broad galleries which run through and around the great structure are thousands more, the property of firms and individuals engaged in the manufacture of foods and preparations. Away to the south is seen a wide vista of mowing machinery, and thence comes a rumbling, a clicking, whirring sound. There tens of thousands of farm machines are in motion.

At the very center of the building two American states, an eastern and a wes Pennsylvania and Iowa, and two foreign nations, Great Britain and Germany, have posts of honor. A single glance suffices to show us they are worthy the distinction. England proper is largely confined to fine food products, such as pickles and tinned goods; but her colonies, each an empire of itself, make wonderful displays. Canada shows in graphic form the results achieved by scientific agriculture, which has been pursued with great energy under government protection. Australia, especially New South Wales, handsomely illustrates the wonderful development of her farm industries which is making of that Pacific empire a dangerous rival to the United States. In the year '91 the wool product alone of New South Wales was valued at $55,000,000. Cape Colony shows her farming methods, which are highly picturesque.

The richest and most costly structure in the building is that of Spain, in which Cuba joins and where the display of Havana cigars delights the eye of every smoker. South America is well represented. Brazil, Uraguay, Paraguay, the Argentine Republic show their wools, coffees and grains. Mexico has a splendid exhibit, and other Central American states are not far behind. Some of the most interesting features come from Africa. Besides Cape Colony, already mentioned, Liberia, the little republic of the west coast, surrounds her products with a pleasing array of birds, of stuffed animals, of native fancy work. She shows us photographs of her farms and houses, her people and officials.



AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT EXHIBIT.

These are features of nearly all the exhibits. In addition to the agricultural products the natural history of the country is represented. Liberia shows us hippopotami, leopards, and the vampire bat. British Guiana mixes tapirs and jaguars, great birds and giant ant-eaters with her sugars and carved calabashes. The skin of a boaconstrictor, thirty feet long, drapes the pavilion of Johore. No better use of photography was ever attempted than that which we find here, for the pictures throughout these foreign exhibits show us more of the world in a day than we could see by travel in a year. The art of photography has conquered the globe, and here the pictures alone form a vast exposition admirably supplementing the articles and products.

My advice to every fair visitor is to carefully study these foreign displays in the farm palace. See how little Curacoa produces the liquer for which she is famous. See the macaroni and vermicelli products of Italy. See Siam's quaint pickles and funny bread and crackers. See Japan's infinite variety of farm products, all put up like bon-bons; her teas and tea plantations, and her Shinowarata or long-tailed fowl, with feathers touching the ground from a hight of thirteen feet. See France's scientific agriculture, especially its great veterinary college and hospital, with a clinic or operating room as fine as that of any medical college in America. See Germany's exposition of the art of brewing beer, of bottling, of clarifying, and the model brewery. See the model of a horse farm in Great Britain's section, with the green grass growing in the paddock. See France's model of a farm in the suburbs of Paris and learn how the thrifty French tickle the soil quicker and easier than you could learn by a trip across the water. See Russia's magnificent display of grains and read, if you can, some of the Russian agricultural reports.

Of course the American states are here in all their glory. Iowa, proud of her position, gives a notable example of the decorative possibilities of grains and grasses. In this feature Illinois, Pennsylvania, Kansas and other states are not far behind while New York and Ohio are severely simple, though effective. In Nebraska "corn and sugar wear the crown," and the beet sugar industry, newest thing in the west, is fully illustrated. New Mexico shows growing alfalfa, and Mississippi growing cotton which is picked and made into boutonnieres. Kentucky "leads in hemp, tobacco and horses," while South Dakota flings out her banner, "We lead all in hogs, pigs, cattle, corn, 1892." Wyoming shows grain grown by irrigation, while California displays a shock of corn thirteen feet high.

Corn seems to be king. Kansas glorifies maize in a huge column, and claims the proud record of 138,000,000 bushels in '92. New Hampshire erects an old-fashioned granary with corn and sheep skins tacked on its outer walls. Connecticut erects a wigwam of corn stalks and labels it, "The Indian's Gift to the World." Michigan, Wisconsin, North Carolina, West Virginia, Florida, Minnesota, Indiana and other states make fine displays. Louisiana's sugar exhibit is very interesting. Even Oklahoma is resplendent. North Dakota claims to be "the bread basket of the world," and astonishes foreigners, who do not understand our system of endowment of public schools from the public domain, with the proud boast that she possesses "three million acres of fertile school lands." Great, indeed, are the states and territories of the American union.

As yet we have not been in the galleries at all, where much that is interesting awaits us, nor in the section devoted to agricultural machinery, which is a world in itself—a world in which there would not be much if what the ingenuity and enterprise of the Americans have done was left out of it.

It is clear that if we are to ever touch upon many of the most instructive and valuable features of the agricultural department, within and without this splendid building, we must recur to the subject in a future letter.

ROBERT GRAVES.

Cadets at the Fair.

The Toledo cadets, Ohio National guard, unattached, are in camp on the Midway plaisance. The company is mounted on sixty military bicycles, arranged to carry guns, knapsacks and blankets. The war department has taken a deep interest in this experimental military bicycling. Captain Helstand, U. S. A., and Lieutenant Pattello, U. S. A., and Adjutant General James H. Howe, of Ohio, are with the cadets.

While Eyraud was being prepared for the guillotine he said: "Don't bother me about religion. Tell my wife and daughter to do the best they can. That is all I wish to say."

Remember that proper cultivation and use of the voice not only add to its beauty, but prevent it from becoming prematurely old, worn and cracked.

THE SUPERIOR BLOOD MEDICINE
CURES OTHERS WILL CURE YOU
PERFECT DIGESTION
PURE BLOOD
SOUND SLEEP
CLEAR SKIN
LONG LIFE HEALTH VITALITY
MENTAL ENERGY STRONG NERVES
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA

S. P. Smith, of Towanda, Pa., whose constitution was completely broken down, is cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He writes:

"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from constipation, kidney trouble, and indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition, and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 159 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could see me before and after using, you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I believe this preparation of Sarsaparilla to be the best in the market to-day."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Cures others, will cure you

PILLSBURY ACADEMY,

OWATONNA, MINN.

An Excellent School for Both Sexes.

PREPARES FOR COLLEFE OR BUSINESS, EXCELLENT COURSES IN ENGLISH OR SCIENCES, VOCAL OR INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

An experienced faculty, a comfortable Home. Beautiful new buildings, heated with steam and water.

New Music Hall and Large Drill Hall just completed.

Special attention given to health and physical training of students.

Good Morals. Kind and firm discipline. Expenses low.

Send for catalogue to [12-15] JAMES W. FORD, Principal.

RECKITT BLOCK

MEAT MARKET,

VINE & RICHINGS, Props.

FRESH AND SALT MEATS,
—Constantly on hand.

GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
—In season.

Highest price paid for

FAT CATTE, HOGS, = =
= = SHEEP and POULTRY.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, July 18th 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Lena Tommedahl deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Solibakke of the County of Kittson representing, among other things, that Lena J. Solibakke late of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 3rd day of June A. D. 1893, at the County of Nicollet died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of her death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and the said petitioner is the guardian of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Rasmus J. Solibakke granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court, on Friday the 11th day of August A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office, in the City of Crookston in said County.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 18th day of July A. D. 1893.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON,
[14-16] Judge of Probate.

Congress

WILL NOT BE IN SESSION

UNTIL AUGUST 7TH.

—BUT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

WILL BE IN SESSION
RIGHT ALONG

To help regulate the financial condition of Polk County with the

BEST GOODS

—AT THE—

LOWEST PRICES.

CONFIDENCE

In the ability of the government is what is now most needed, and Confidence in Our Ability and Methods is Already Established.

You can make money by trading with Fontaine & Anglim.

Crookston Normal College

—AND—

BUSINESS INSTITUTE.

Preparatory, Teachers', Collegiate, Elocutionary, Commercial and Musical Courses.

Courses Short and practical.

Gives a good practical education in less time, and less expense than any other school in the Northwest.

Special classes for those deficient in the English language. Students can enter at any time.

Board $1.50, and $1.75 per week. Room 35 and 60 cents per week. Tuition $10 per term.

School Opens October 3d, 1893.

For Catalogue address,

M. L. TUVE, Principal.
P. J. CHRISTENSEN,
Associate Principal.

HO, FOR THE FAIR.

Everything now Indicates a big Attendance at the Fair Next Week.

The Exposition Building and Stock Sheds are Rapidly Nearing Completetion.

Don't Forget the Dates, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 26, 27, 28.

Notwithstanding the "hard times," the prospects for a good attendance of farmers at the coming Fair is very good indeed.

The Association has live agents throughout the county advertising the Fair, receiving entries of exhibits and selling "season tickets" and Association stock.

Many of our farmers refused themselves the pleasure of attending the circus, and of celebrating the Fourth of July, preferring rather to attend the Fair, July 26, 27 and 28th.

The Association is doing all in their power to further the interests of the farming community.

Some of the editorial staff of different papers published in Norman, Kittson and Marshall counties, and also stock owners and breeders have censured myself and the Association in not making this a Fair for the four counties. The farmers of Polk county should appreciate this action on the part of the Association; knowing that Polk county as yet is not as far advanced in the raising and breeding of good stock as in some of the three counties adjoining.

This is Polk county's first attempt, and had the association opened competition to the four counties, the greater portion of premiums and diplomas for stock exhibits would have gone to outside farmers and stock breeders.

Had this occurred, Polk county farmers would naturally shun this Association and the city of Crookston also.

Now, the Association hopes by their action, to enlist the assistance of the farmers in Polk county in making a success of this, and future Fairs. The Association offers premiums for stock exhibits equal to that offered at the "State Fair" of 1892 and collect no charges for entry of exhibits. They also offer premiums for standard and well bred stock, so that the farmers will see it is of interest to themselves to come to the Fair, exchange ideas, and learn something to their advantage in the breeding of good stock. In the course of a year or two, when the Association sees it will be advantageous to the farmers of Polk county, to open competition to outside counties they will do so.

The directors are all men of means who have the interest of the farmer at heart, and they have advanced the required money with which to carry the Fair along to a successful issue. They have not entered into this with an idea of making money for themselves; and if we receive enough money from attendance to pay expenses of the Fair, we will be satisfied. We have no "paid officers," but each officer and director is a business man and looks upon the success of the Fair as a county enterprise and a school of education for the farmer.

The superintendent of the different Divisions are as follows:

Division A—Horses; Thos. Johnson, Fisher, Minn.
Division B—Cattle; C. A. Tullar, Warren, Minn.
Division C—Sheep and swine; W. N. Godfrey, Maple Bay.
Division D—Poultry and pet stock; Jas. Laframboise, Gentilly.
Division E—Farm and dairy products; E. M. Bivens, Crookston.
Division F—Horticulture; Mrs. Hugh Thompson, Crookston.
Division G—Matrimony; Hugh Thompson, Crookston.
Division H—Pantry stores; Mrs. W. D. Carleton, Angus.
Division I—Women's and children's work; Mrs. M. E. Bartlett, Crookston.
Division J—Fine arts; C. H. Mix, Crookston.
Division K—Machinery; W. F. Arnold, Crookston.
Division L—Educational; B. A. Strawbridge, Crookston.
Division M—Bicycle and foot racing; Wm. Cleary, Crookston.
Division N—Base ball; Jas. Montague, Crookston.

For information in any of these Divisions write to the superintendent or the secretary. Entries should be made early so that exhibitors will have choice of space. The secretary will gladly furnish you with Premium list and Entry Blanks.

Class 10 in Division A is a special class for farmers horses. S. L. Collins offers a premium of $10.00 for the "best pulling team under harness." No city dray teams will be admitted in this class.

Division A also includes trials of speed.

How many farmers have thought that this Fair is nothing more than a horse race? It is nothing of the kind. We have paid little or no attention to horse racing for these dates. We offer three times as much in premiums for exhibits as for horse races. The speed department is nearly self supporting, and we are giving our time and attention to the Fair. I will say this that some of these races will be very exciting, especially the gentlemen's driving race to 4 wheel-vehicle, owners to drive."

In this class there are 12 entries, some of which are made by farmers.

In Division G. the Association offers a bed-room set valued at $45.00 to the couple who will consent to be married July 27th 1893, at 5:30 p. m. in front of the grand stand.

The one-mile trotting and pacing race for farmers' horses of Polk County, will also be very exciting. Entries in all classes for trials of speed close July 20th.

Hugh Thompson offers 5 barrels of "Best" flour to the couple who will be married July 28th 1893, at 5:30 p. m. in front of the grand stand. Those intending to be married at or near those dates, should send in their application for above dates to Hugh Thompson, Crookston, Minn.

Exhibits in Division K. (machinery and farming implements) will be a drawing card for the farmer. Farm machinery will be displayed by all the leading dealers therein, and will be run by steam during the three days of the Fair.

The matter of transfer of passengers to and from the Fair grounds during the Fair has been fully discussed, to this end that ten teams with suitable rigs and attentive drivers have been contracted with to carry passengers at 10 cents per fare each way. These rigs will have placards upon them to that effect, and those who wish to ride in other conveyances, do so at the prices fixed upon by the owners thereof over whom we have no jurisdiction.

Arrangements have been made with suitable parties to conduct an eating house, which will be running from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily; Meals will be served at 25 cents.

Exhibitors and others who will attend the Fair for the three days, should purchase "Season Tickets," these cost only one dollar.

Hay, bedding and water will be furnished free of charge to Exhibitors for their stock.

Those who wish to become members of the Association, may do so by buying one share of stock at ten dollars, and with it you will receive a "Season Ticket" for the three days free. This stock is non-assessible, and entitles the owner thereof to a share of the profits of the Association and a vote at the Annual Meeting of the Association. For further information, Premium List or Entry Blanks address. Yours Truly,

J. V. E. WYATT, Secretary,
Crookston, Minn.

Burglars at Red Lake Falls.

Ed. Hammery's general store on the north side at Red Lake Falls, was broken into on the 12th inst. Forty dollars cash and some goods were taken. Two doors were broken through to get in. The night before three horses were stolen two from E. G. Durocher and one from L. Daoust. The horses made much noise and awoke the owners, who set after them. The thieves deserted the horses and escaped.

A Good Thing to Boast of.

East Grand Forks Courier:—East Grand Foks has more saloons than any city in the world in proportion to its population. The city has one to every 50 of her population.

Death of Mrs. Oppegaard.

Fertile Journal: Mrs. John E. Oppegaard, wife of our county commissioner, died last Friday of quick consumption, at her home near Eskine. The deceased was 26 years old and leaves behind to mourn her untimely death an affectionate husband and three small children. The funeral services took place Sunday at Erskine and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. Mr. Oppegaard has our heartfelt sympathy in his sad bereavement.

Several Villages Left Out.

In speaking of the scheme to divide Polk county into four counties, the Fertile Journal remarks:

Thus it will be seen that we are figured in with McIntosh, that wonderful (?) metropolis of the thirteen towns, situated on Jim Hill's grape-vine-once-a-month-train-railway. Better set us off by ourselves with Valley as county seat. We can stand most anything but this. Guess we better go in with Fisher, Thief River Falls and Fosston and get up another scheme to divide the county. Why not?

"I was prostrated with a severe billious complaint," writes Erastus Southworth, of Bath, Me. After vainly trying a number of remedies, I was finaly induced to take Ayer's Pills. I had scarcely taken two boxes when I was completely cured."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Blue Earth county will build a $30,000 jail.

Erick Jensen, a section hand, died at Canby of sunstroke.

Arrangements are being made for a public reception to Mgr. Satolli at St. Paul.

Company A, First regiment M. N. G., is in camp near the world's fair grounds.

Burglars cracked the safe in Hanson, Swendsen & Co's store at Alden and secured $200.

A half mill tax has been levied in Winona county for the county sinking fund.

Bishop Whipple is spending the summer at Marblehead, Mass., and other sea coast points.

A telephone line has been completed between Renville and Beaver [illegible]. The distance is 20 miles.

It is estimated that the cost of lowering the Milwaukee railroad tracks in Minneapolis will be $1,720,936.

St. Paul and Minneapolis brokers will ignore the anti-scalper law which went into effect this week.

T. D. Craig of Duluth and W. [illegible] Sheehan, both well known explorers, are reported drowned on Rainy river.

The new Catholic seminary at St. Paul, endowed by J. J. Hill, is nearing completion. It will be opened in the fall.

Duluth merchants have been taken in by bogus checks during the past week. A well dressed woman passed them.

At Buffalo lightning killed a little son of Mr. Kilstrom. Another child sleeping in the same bed was uninjured.

The damage by hail in Otter Tail, Grant and other Central Minnesota counties last week is estimated at $100,000.

John Wenquist was found dead and mangled near the railroad tracks at Grove City. His watch and money were gone.

The Railway Postal Clerks Association of the United States will hold its second annual convention at St. Paul Aug. 2 and 3.

The state board of railway commissioners formally heard a complaint from the Mankato board made regarding rates on Saturday.

The Merritt-Wetmore synidicate has purchased a controlling interest in the Adams mining property on the Mesaba. The price paid was $900,000.

St. Paul is having a large number of distinguished guests this summer. Hoke Smith, the Nawob of Rampur and a party of English noblemen were abong her visitors last week.

John Singleten, a colored elevator boy, has confessed to having set the Bradstreet-Thurber fire at Minneapolis some weeks since. He did it out of revenge for a rebuke for neglect of duty.

The growth of the Royal Arcanum in the State of Minnesota for June ranks third among the 20 state jurisdictions. It only lacked 14 of taking first place. The growth of the order during the last three months has been over 400.

The skeleton of a man was found by workmen digging a well in Elmer township near Pipeston Saturday, three feet under the ground. There was a bullet hole in the skull. The skeleton had clothes and boots on. An investigation is in progress.

Tramps, whisky and Sioux Indians caused a big row at the lower agency, at Redwood Falls, in which the tramps got the worst of it. Four hundred Indians got drunk and started a war dance around the tramps, who finally escaped, but not till they had been badly injured.

An Ortonville correspondent says; The dispatches from this place to the effect that A. Schoen, mayor of Ortonville, was guilty of embezzlement in handling the funds of John Lindquist, his ward, are untrue. The wife of Lindquist makes affidavit that she has received all the money properly coming to her husband.

Governor Nelson has appointed the auditing committee of four under the management of which the work of draining the Red river valley will be performed. The committee as it now stands consists of Governor Nelson, Secretary of State Brown, Ezra G. Valentine of Breckenridge, who represents the people of the interested counties, and Nelson D. Miller, chief engineer of the Great Northern railway, who will represent that company. It was reported at one time that the Great Northern would not contribute its share of $25,000 to the work, on account of a technality. The company has finally deposited its money and the work will proceed at once.

PERSONAL CHECKS.

St. Paul Banks Will Hereafter Receive Them for Collection Only.

ST. PAUL, July 17.—The St. Paul Clearing House association, embracing every bank in St. Paul except one or two savings banks, has agreed to refuse personal checks for deposit drawn on county banks or banks located outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis. This rule became operative July 15. All private checks drawn on banks located outside the Twin Cities, or the large Eastern cities, will be received for collection only, being wholly at the risk of those who present them. This notice has been given to all business firms. It means that all people throughout the Northwest and the country at large, who have business dealings in St. Paul, must pay their bills with drafts payable in St. Paul or Minneapolis. Exchange on New York, Chicago, Philadelphia or St. Louis may be accepted at the discretion of each St. Paul bank.

SWORE TO FALSEHOODS.

Dempsey and Beatty Convicted on Manufactured Evidence.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—Patrick J. Gallagher and J. M. Davidson, who are serving terms in the Western penitentiary for self-confessed complicity in the poisoning of the workmen in the Homestead mill, have made a confession in which they say they were paid to swear away the liberty of Hugh F. Dempsey and Robert J. Beatty, both of whom they now assert were innocent of the crime of which they were convicted. They further state that as far as they know there was no poison administered to the men in the Homestead mill. Gallagher's confession is written by himself and sworn to before Esquire Egan. Davidson's was given verbally in the presence of witnesses.

The matter will be brought to the attention of the board of pardons and if the stories can be proven true, Dempsey and Beatty will be given their liberty.

SUSPENDED PENSIONERS.

Hoke Smith's List Now Contains 2,560 Names.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—It is learned at the pension office that 2,560 pensioners have been suspended up to date under Secretary Hoke Smith's ruling requiring beneficiaries of the act of June 27, 1890, to prove total disability where they are drawing pensions of $12 per month. The suspensions are not confined to any particular locality, but are well distributed throughout the country. No pensioner has yet been dropped under the decision for the reason that 60 days allowed the pensioners in which to make proof of disability have not elapsed. Many of the cases suspended will not result in the dropping of the pensioner, but may be confined to a reduction of pension according to the degree of disability and its cause as shown by the proofs submitted.

General Edward Jardine Dead.

NEW YORK, July 17.—General Edward Jardine, who has been critically ill for some time, died at 1 p. m. His death was not unexpected, but shortly before the end came his physicians left the chamber. A few moments afterwards the veteran suffered a recurrence of the sinking spell which had pulled him down at intervals during his illness and he succumbed from sheer exhaustion. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning under the auspices of the A. F. and A. M. at Greenwood cemetary.

Will Ride Against Time.

CHADRON, Neb., July 18.—Miss Emma Hutchison, who was to have participated in the Chadron-Chicago cowboy race, arrived here last night with two fine horses and two dogs. She expects to ride to Chicago against the time made by the winner of the cowboy race. Miss Hutchison is very good looking, weighs less than 90 pounds, wears a cowboy hat and endeavors to look as much like a cowboy as possible.

Big Strike at Sheboygan.

MILWAUKEE, July 18.—A special to the Wisconsin from Sheboygan, Wis., says: The biggest strike in the history of this city has been inaugurated here. Eight hundred of the 1,000 employes of the Mattoon Manufacturing company are out. The strike is the result of a general reduction in wages on the part of the company.

Militiamen Killed.

CAMP DOUGLASS, Wis., July 15.—A bolt of lightning struck at the camp ground during the afternoon, playing great havoc. George Clary was killed outright and William McMahon was fatally injured. Eight others were burned and bruised, but none of them fatally.

Army Bill Passed.

BERLIN, July 15.—The army bill has been passed by the reichstag by a majority of 16, the vote standing 201 in favor of the measure to 185 against it.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, July 18, 1893.

HOGS—Not enough received to make a market.

CATTLE—Very slow; modest demand for butcher stuff. Veals are in demand. Prime steers, $3.50@4.00; good steers, $3.00@3.25; prime cows, $2.50@3.00; good cows, $2.00@2.50; common to fair cows, $1.00@2.00; light veal calves, $4.00@5.00; heavy calves, $1.50@2.50; stockers, $1.50@2.25; feeders, $2.25@2.50; bulls, $1.50@2.25.

SHEEP—Good steady; others slow. Muttons, $3.50@4.25; lambs, $3.00@4.00; stockers and feeders, $2.50@3.50.

Receipts—Hogs, 20; cattle, 900; calves, 5; sheep, 100; horses, 185.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 18, 1893.

WHEAT—July opening, 58⅞c; highest, 59⅝c; lowest, 58⅝c; closing, 59c⅝. August closing, 60⅝c; September opening, 63¾c; highest, 64c; lowest, 63⅝c; closing, 63⅝c. December opened 70⅝c; highest, 70½c; lowest, 70c; closing at 70c. On track—No. 1 hard, 62½c; No. 1 Northern, 60½c; No. 2 Northern, 58@59c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, July 18, 1893.

CATTLE—Steady.

HOGS—Steady. Heavy, $5.75@6.00; mixed and medium, $5.65@5.95; light, $5.60@6.00.

SHEEP—Steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 19,000; hogs, 32,000; sheep, 12,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 18, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 67¾c; September, 69⅛c.
CORN—July, 40½c; August, 40½c; September, 41½c.
OATS—July, 29c; August, 25⅞cc; September, 25½c.
PORK—No trading.
LARD—September, $10.10.
SHORT RIBS—September, $8.65.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 65¼c; August, 65¾c; September, 69c.
CORN—July, 40c; August, 40½c; September, 41c.
OATS—July, 29¾c; August, 25⅝c; September, 25½c.
PORK—July, $18.85; September, $19.00.
LARD—July, $9.95; August, $9.65; September, $10.05.
SHORT RIBS—July, $8.31; September, $8.42½.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, July 12.

Corbett and Jackson have agreed to meet in June, 1894.

The Terre Haute (Ind.) Car Works company is in financial trouble.

Banks at Sundance and New Castle, Wy., have been compelled to suspend.

The Lake Superior Mineral Paint works at West Superior burned Tuesday. Damage, $100,000.

Kansas miners have determined to continue their strike. It is said Governor Lewelling will furnish them with tents to live in.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Iron Hall was held at Indianapolis. It was determined to resume business as soon as possible.

One million bushels of grain came to Kingston, Ont., from the West last week. The receipts were the largest ever received there in one week, and as a result many of the large grain carriers are lying there waiting to be unloaded.

Thursday, July 13.

The Viking ship arrived at Chicago and was given a hearty greeting.

Professor Smith has resigned as professor of theology at Lane seminary.

Charges are made that the Pennsylvania road is cutting rates to Chicago.

The six victims of Baumberger, the Cando murderer, were buried at Lancaster, Pa., Wednesday.

New York bankers unanimously agree that the fiduncial situation is improved and the outlook is bright.

The Charles Parker company of Meriden, Conn., has shut down for an indefinite period. The firm employs about 1,000 hands in the manufacture of lamps, screws, etc.

Postmaster General Bissell has decided to abandon the three sizes of postal cards now in use, and to substitute one size for both single and reply cards.

Friday, July 14.

It is expected that a decree dissolving the French chamber of deputies will be issued on Thursday next.

W. G. Cressy, a prominent Milwaukee pharmacist, committed suicide. His wife had applied for divorce.

The board of promotions in the interior department, which was created by an order issued Dec. 11, 1892, has been abolished.

The total value of the exports of domestic breadstuffs from the United States during the month of June was $15,912,751.

Captain Oscar G. Lenge, the first Swedish-American settler in Chicago, died of pneumonia, aged 82. He came there in 1838.

The eighth annual conference of religious workers among the deaf mutes is in session at All Angels' church, Chicago.

Saturday, July 15.

Sept. 30 has been fixed upon as Ireland's day at the world's fair.

William Steinway of New York has been knighted by Emperor William.

Madison, O., is excited over the advent of a savage lion supposed to have escaped from Main's circus.

J. K. Armstrong, deputy county treasurer at Tipton, Ky., is short $25,000 to $40,000. He played the horses.

Frank C. Ives, the American billiard champion, and John Roberts, Jr., the English champion, have signed articles for another billiard match. They will play in Chicago next September.

The Canada marine department has agreed to release the American schooner Lewis Giles, recently seized for catching fish inside the three-mile limit, upon payment of a fine of $2,500 and costs.

Monday, July 17.

The gold reserve has increased to $98,373,679.

Charlie Mitchell has decided not to sign articles for his fight with Corbett before he comes to America.

Half a million people are receiving government aid on account of the famine in some districts of China.

Governor Waite of Colorado has reiterated in an interview the sentiments expressed a few days ago in his incendiary silver speech.

The new United States cruiser William Windom, has left the Columbia Iron works for Norfolk, where she will receive her armament.

Alfrad Wilson, sent to jail at Fitchburg, Mass., Tuesday, for inability to pay a $5 fine, received notice Thursday that he was heir to $50,000.

M. Charles Buloz, editor of The Revue des Deux Monde, has been blackmailed out of an enormous sum, said by some to be 16,250,000 francs. Buloz is now in hiding.

Tuesday, July 18.

By the will of Martin Richelberger of York, Pa., Yale university gets $50,000.

By a train wreck in the Province of Biscaya, Spain, six persons were killed and thirty hurt.

Seven prisoners broke jail at Salem, Ills. They were chased to the woods and six were recaptured.

By premature explosion of a fireworks bomb at an Italian picnic in Chicago two were killed and many injured.

Rear Admiral Earl English, retired, died at his residence at Washington aged 69. He had served in the navy 43 years.

F. T. Day, wanted in Milwaukee for illegal banking, is in Indiana under medical treatment. Friends say he will return.

The Sunday attendance at the world's fair was very light, notwithstanding the proceeds were to go to the families of dead firemen.

Sheriff W. F. Wanner, of Chittenden county, Ark., was knocked off the platform of a Pullman car and robbed of $11,000 which he had drawn to settle with the county.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION
—OF THE—

Scandia-American Bank

At Crookston, in the State of Minnesota, on the 12th day of July, 1893.

RESOURCES
Bills receivable	$221,057.11
Overdrafts	938.70
Due from other banks	6,485.80
Furniture and fixtures	1000.00
Current expenses and taxes paid	4,676.25
Cash on hand	12,599.51
Total	$246,757.35
LIABILITIES.
Capital stock paid in	$50,000.00
Surplus	5,000.00
Undivided profits	27,812.50
Individual deposits subject to check	44,988.39
Demand certificates of deposit	74,956.37
Bills Payable	44,000.00
Total	$246,757.35

I, J. W. Wheeler, Cashier of the Scandia-American Bank, of Crookston, Minnesota, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } SS.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this seventeenth day of July 1893.

{ SEAL. } G. H. PALMER, Notary Public. Polk County, Minn.

Correct—Attest:
L. ELLINGTON,
C. O. CHRISTIANSON, } Directors.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
Reckitt Bloc., - - Crookston, Minn.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.
Besides carrying a full and complete line of
COFFINS,
CASKETS
AND BURIAL SUPPLIES,
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—
Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 105½ Broadway,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S. BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED
—RIVER HARD WHEAT.—
BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.
BRAN, SHORTS
AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor
R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, ≡ ≡ ≡ MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston. Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT
NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, [illegible], Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE [illegible] CHEATING FRAUDS.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

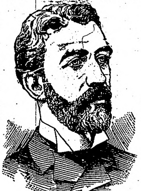
THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THE APPROACHING INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION AT ST. LOUIS.

The World's Workers to Meet In Exposition Hall—America Contains More Than Half the Sunday School Scholars of the World, and Great Britain Stands Next.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

Twenty-one million Sunday school teachers and scholars will be represented in St. Louis in late August and early September in three great assemblages. First is the seventh international Sunday school convention, which meets on Aug. 31 and adjourns on Sept. 2. Immediately after it the second world's Sunday school convention will meet and sit till Sept. 6. and about the same time an informal convention will be held of the international field workers in the Sunday school line. Of these three the first is the historic and important one, and among its promoters are many of the most noted religious educators in the world.



B. F. JACOBS.

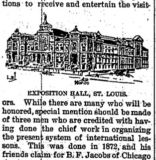
The numbers given above are but a round estimate from the known growth of the Sunday schools, but in exact figures the last report showed 2,051,679 teachers and 18,026,916 scholars, a grand total of 20,078,595, of whom but a few less than one-half, or 9,800,471, are in the United States. Add the 530,220 in Canada, and it will be seen that considerably more than half of all the Sunday school attendants of the world are in English speaking North America. In Great Britain and Ireland are 7,390,685 more, and every other country is so far behind that it is not in it for comparison.

In truth, the Sunday school was from the start and still is an English-American institution, and whether it be decided that the great liberality of thought and progressive energy of this great race, this two nationed race, so to speak, be the cause or the result of Sunday schools, or that each promotes the other, the fact is equally suggestive and instructive. Germany comes next with 431,221, then Sweden with 238,082, Holland with 157,676 and Switzerland with 89,459, after which the numbers fall off with surprising suddenness. In all Austria there are but 4,831, in all Russia but 6,465 and in all Spain but 8,400. Yet it is a pleasant surprise to read that Mexico and Central America contain 163,000 Sunday school attendants and South America 153,000.

Wherever English is the language the Sunday school is established as soon as a colony has children enough to form a class, and next in this line are the speakers of German, Dutch and the Scandinavian tongues. Even faroff Australia, so recently a great country that old people still think of it as Botany Bay, the land of exile for criminals, has 457,729 teachers and scholars, while little New Zealand, but yesterday the home of the wild Maori, has 109,872. Hawaii-Nei (official name of the Sandwich Islands) has 17,253 and the English islands generally 10,800.

It should be noted that many sections are omitted. Very few Catholic churches sent in any returns, and a large part of the Episcopal schools are not included, as they are given a different name. So it is believed that the total of teachers and pupils in the world exceeds 22,000,000. Still more remarkable is the fact that of the 190,575 places of meeting reported the United States alone has 103,930, or nearly three-fifths of all in the world, as in this country generally the churches are used and room is abundant, while elsewhere the schools are often held in immense halls. In St. Louis are 64,337 teachers and pupils by the last report, and these will consider the delegates as their guests and the guests of the city.

St. Louis has devised and maintains in great activity an original system of house to house visitation in connection with her Sunday school work. Her Sunday School union and the Missouri State association are making thorough preparations to receive and entertain the visitors. While there are many who will be honored, special mention should be made of three men who are credited with having done the chief work in organizing the present system of international lessons. This was done in 1872, and his friends claim for B. F. Jacobs of Chicago the honor of inventing it. His colaborers in perfecting it, however, were Dr. Edward Eggleston and Dr. (now Bishop) John Heyl Vincent, and it is probable that, like most devices of that nature, it was suggested by many persons.



EXPOSITION HALL, ST. LOUIS.

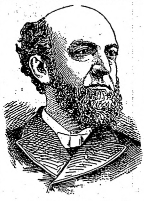
Mr. Jacobs is the son of a Baptist Sunday school superintendent and was born at Paterson, N. J., in 1835. At the age of 19 he went to Chicago and soon after engaged in the wholesale fruit business. Later he became a dealer in real estate and has been very successful. From boyhood he was active in Sunday school work and is now noted among the workers of the world. During the war he was secretary for the northwest of the Christian commission and has held various positions since, being at present chairman of the executive committee of the international Sunday school convention and president of the Illinois State Central association.

Professor Hinds of Cumberland university says, "Dr. Vincent invented the lesson system, Dr. Eggleston showed its practicability and adaptability, but it was B. F. Jacobs who conceived the idea of a uniform lesson for the whole country." When the completed scheme was presented in the convention of 1872 at Indianapolis, it was received with a unanimous aye and enthusiastic cheering, and before the vote could be announced the whole assemblage rose and by one mighty impulse joined in singing "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

John Heyl Vincent was born in Tuscaloosa, Ala., Feb. 23, 1832. His career has been distinctively American. He is spoken of as apostle of the democracy of thought and has done as much to popularize learning as any other man. He received his education in Pennsylvania and began to preach in the Methodist church at the age of 18. At 20 he became a member of the New Jersey conference and soon after was transferred to the Rock River conference. His life has since been a steady advance, and in 1888 he was elected a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church. He is usually considered the originator of the Chautauquan system of teaching and has a national reputation as chancellor of the Chautauquan circle.

The sessions of the convention will be held in Exposition hall morning, afternoon and evening, so the delegates will have but little time for amusement, but excursions will be arranged. The delegates from the United States will be equal to four times the representation in congress, as nearly as can be allotted, but there is no limit fixed to those from foreign lands, it being considered that distance will make a sufficient limit. All Sunday school unions or other associations in all foreign countries will name delegates as they may desire. And truly it will be an inspiring sight when all are gathered in the great hall and the thoughtful spectator runs over in his mind the wonderful growth since 1780.

It was in that year and on July 10 that Robert Raikes organized his first Sunday school in the house of Mrs. King in St. Catherine street, Gloucester, from which date and point it is usual to count the history of modern Sunday schools. It is, however, a fact that schools of some kind for Sunday reading and instruction have existed from the earliest times. A Jewish tradition runs to the effect that Methuselah instructed his descendants in the mishua (or record continuous from Adam) on set days for several hundred years; that Abraham also taught, and that Jacob was a good Sunday school attendant while Esau played truant. This may be tradition only, but Josephus records that from the time of Moses until this day the Jews assembled on the Sabbath for instruction in the law, and the prophets and Bible allusions confirm it.



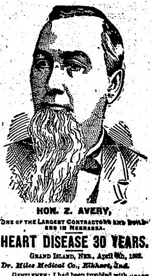
BISHOP JOHN H. VINCENT.

It is certain that Bible schools for children existed among the early Christians, and Mosheim says that they established a school wherever they formed a church. Why these schools were discontinued it is not easy to explain, but it is certain that they were and that in time it came to be thought a violation of church law to teach children the creed in the vulgar tongue, so called—that is, the language of everyday speech. Latin had become a dead language, but all the formularies of the church were still written in it. When the inquisitors first went among the Waldenses, they were amazed to learn that the children could report all the lessons of the church and recite long passages of Scripture in their everyday dialect, and it was reported as something very serious.

It is also certain that other dissenting sects taught their children in classes and in the common tongue, and Count Zinzendorf records that about 1727 there was a great revival of child teaching among the Moravian brethren. In 1603 a plan of teaching children was authorized in England, and in 1560 the Scottish kirk established regular Sunday schools. It also appears that Rev. Joseph Alleine had a school at Bath in 1665 and that such schools existed at Roxbury, Mass., in 1674, in Norwich, Conn., in 1696, in Plymouth in 1670 and in various other places.

Nevertheless the credit is justly due Mr. Raikes and his colaborers, and it is an interesting fact that he gives the whole credit to Hannah Ball, a young Wesleyan who established a school at High Wycombe in 1769. Robert Raikes was born at Gloucester in 1735 and died there in 1811. He was editor and publisher of the Gloucester Journal, and his first plan for Sunday schools was to employ poor women as teachers, to whom he paid a shilling per day. So many volunteers offered that the pay system was soon discontinued, and the rest of the history is too well known to need recital here.

J. H. BEADLE.



HON. Z. AVERY,
ONE OF THE LARGEST CONTRACTORS AND BUILDERS IN NEBRASKA.

HEART DISEASE 30 YEARS.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., April 6th, 1892.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I had been troubled with HEART DISEASE FOR THE LAST 30 YEARS, and although I was treated by able physicians and tried many remedies, I grew steadily worse until I WAS COMPLETELY PROSTRATED AND CONFINED TO MY BED WITHOUT ANY HOPE OF RECOVERY. I would have very bad sinking spells, when my pulse would stop beating altogether, and it was with the greatest difficulty that my circulation could be started, which would bring me back to consciousness again. While in this condition I tried your NEW HEART CURE, and began to improve from the first, and now I am able to do a good day's work for a man 68 years of age. I give DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE all the credit for my recovery. It is over six months since I have taken any, although I keep a bottle in the house in case I should need it. I have also used your NERVE AND LIVER PILLS, and think a great deal of them. Z. AVERY.

CURED THOUSANDS

SOLD ON A POSITIVE GUARANTEE.

TRY DR. MILES' PILLS, 50 DOSES 25 CTS

A MEDICINE THAT MAKES GOOD BLOOD

GILMORE'S AROMATIC WINE

Will completely change the blood in your system in three months' time, and send new, rich blood coursing through your veins. If you feel exhausted and nervous, are getting thin and all run down, Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which is a tonic and not a beverage, will restore you to health and strength.

Mothers, use it for your daughters. It is the best regulator and corrector for all ailments peculiar to woman. It enriches the blood and gives lasting strength. It is guaranteed to cure Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and all Summer Complaints, and keep the bowels regular.

Sold by all druggists for $1 per bottle.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE
The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps. Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by A. G. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

W A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE. IN McKINNON BLOCK.

MINNESOTA
State Normal Schools,
—AT—
WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

THESE schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common of the state.

ORGANIZATION. Each school comprises two departments—the Normal Department and the Training Department or Model School.

The Normal Department embraces:
(a) An Elementary Course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.
(b) An Advanced Course for teachers of advanced grades.
(c) A Professional Course, for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.
(d) A Kindergarten Training Course (at Winona and St. Cloud.)

ADMISSION. Graduates of high schools and colleges, and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificates are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES. Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota. Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is about $3 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3 per week. The new Dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS. By a recent act of the legislature, a diploma becomes a state teachers' certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 18th; at Mankato Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead Oct. 3d.

For free catalogues and circulars, giving full information, address the presidents as follows:

IRWIN SHEPARD, Winona.
EDWARD SEARING, Mankato.
JOSEPH CARHART, St. Cloud.
LIVINGSTONE C. LORD, Moorhead.

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING

WE SUIT
Everybody Every Time.

Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits.
Suits that Fit to a T.

LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.

Who Wouldn't be Suited

With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?

That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their

SUMMER SUITS.

Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.

BOSTON - - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS—C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the guardianship of Lena O. Tommerdal, insane.

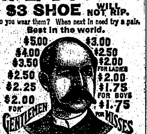
On reading and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Solibakke, guardian of the above named insane person, it is ordered, pursuant to the prayer of said petitioner, that a time be fixed for examining and allowing the account; that said account be examined and petition heard by the Judge of this court on the 17th day of July, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office in said county.

Ordered further, that public notice be given to all persons interested of the time and place of examining said account by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston this 17th day of June, A. D. 1893.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.
[10-12]

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 SHOE WILL NOT RIP.
Do you wear them? When next in need try a pair.
Best in the world.



If you want a fine DRESS SHOE, made in the latest styles, don't pay $6 to $8, try my $3, $3.50, $4.00 or $5 Shoe. They fit equal to custom made and look and wear as well. If you wish to economize in your footwear, do so by purchasing W. L. Douglas Shoes. Name and price stamped on the bottom, look for it when you buy.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass. Sold by
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

ALDERMAN
&
SYLVESTER

—ARE OFFERING—
SPECIAL PRICES
—ON—
FARM MACHINERY.
SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS AND WALL PAPER.

Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.

A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.

WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN. C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

Commenced Business October, 1881.

PAID IN CAPITAL........$100,000
SURPLUS.......................15,500

Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. E. Chase, E. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, J. R. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW.
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

Fits.

All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper in America.

DAILY. SUNDAY WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.

Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM
The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS
Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year........$5 00
" " 6 months........2 50
" " 1 " 45
Daily only, one year........3 00
" " 4 months........1 00
Sunday, one year........2 00
Weekly Press, one year........1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.

Address. THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

DUCATS DECIDED.

MONEY MAKES INCONTROVERTIBLE ARGUMENT

In Favor of Sunday Closing—The Directory Saw They Were Playing a Losing Game and Decided to Quit. Persistent Opposition of Religious People Has Had a Poweful Influence.

CHICAGO, July 15.—What could not be accomplished directly in the matter of closing the world's fair gates on Sunday has been none indirectly, and hereafter the gates will be closed on the first day of the week. This was decided upon at a regular meeting of the local directory, and the rule will become operative Sunday, July 23. The directors were reluctant to admit that Sunday opening had proved a failure, but the dwindling attendance and the opposition of many exhibitors who were unwilling to meet the extra expense entailed by a 7-day fair has forced the conclusion upon the local managers of the exposition that nothing was to be gained by a Sunday fair. The working people, who are unable to attend on week days, have not taken kindly to a Sunday fair with motionless machinery and covered exhibits. While Midway Plaisance has been well patronized on Sundays the other features of the exposition have offered but slight attraction to visitors. The of the religious element throughout the country has without doubt had a powerful influence in bringing about the action of the directors. Hundreds of petitions have been received from religious bodies and prominent preachers praying that the fair be closed Sundays and promising all the aid in their power to make the fair a financial success if such action were taken. The directors saw that the conclusion was forced upon them that much was to be gained and little to be lost by Sunday closing. The action of the directors will deal a severe blow to the interests of concessionaires, many of whom count upon Sunday as their most profitable day, but the majority of exhibitors are satisfied with the change.

Persistent Opposition

NOT CERTAIN OF CLOSING.

There Is an Injunction in the Way Which Must Be Disposed Of.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The action of the directors in deciding to close the fair on Sundays it appears, says The Tribune, does not finally settle the question. A temporary injunction obtained several weeks ago by Charles W. Clingman, one of the stockholders in the exposition company and a taxpayer of Chicago, compelling the gates to be kept open, still stands in the way. Judge Stein of the superior court of Cook county who granted the decree say:

"The injunction is still in force; there is no doubt about that. If the court's attention is officially called to any violation of the order it will, after due consideration, take such action as may appear proper."

Further than this the judge declined to discuss the matter. He sasd that it would not be becoming in him to anticipate what might be done.

ADVICE TO CARLISLE.

How Ex-Senator Farwell Would Fix Up Our Finances.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Ex-Senator Farwell of Chicago has addressed a letter to Secretary Carlisle, suggesting some remedies for the present financial difficulties. Mr. Farwell says:

"In the first place, I would provide for the funding and refunding of all the national debt, including bonds, greenbacks, silver certificates and treasury notes into bonds running 100 years, and

Bearing 2 Per Cent Interest, which would authorize the national banks to use these new bonds at par as a basis for their issues. They would all take these bonds at par. I would recommend the repeal of the sub-treasury act. This act was considered in haste, and has never been of any benefit to anybody. The government, by continuing to use the sub-treasuries, discredits and shows no confidence in the national banks which it has created and which it supervises, and its example is followed by timid people in withdrawing their money from national and other banks and in placing it in safety deposit vaults, thereby adding to the intensity of the present panic.

Deposit In National Banks.

The secretary of the treasury should be authorized upon the repeal of this act to direct his collectors to deposit the revenue of the country in the national banks selected by him at the points where these revenues are collected. This would do away with any expense of keeping up the different sub-treasuries of the country, which is probably not less than $500,000 a year.

On the subject of silver, I suggest that the ratio be changed so as to bring the value of the metals to a parity with each other, rather than silver free coinage, and provide that silver shall be a legal tender as long as the parity continues, and when it ceases then it should be a legal tender for only a limited amount."

No More Edicts Against Catholics.

ROME, July 18.—It is stated here by good authority that the German government has intimated to the Vatican that no official opposition would be made in the reichstag to the centrist proposals looking to the adopting of a law allowing the return to Germany of the members of the Catholic religious orders.

Six Deaths From Heat.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Six deaths from sunstroke have been reported to the health office as having been due to the heat of Friday. Another death will result, and many others are not out of danger.

RATES TO COME DOWN.

Meeting of the Western Passenger Association Called For Friday.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The Western roads are at last ready to come down on world's fair rates, and they are to get almost to the bottom. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Northwestern, Atchison and Rock Island roads have requested Chairman Caldwell of the Western Passenger association to call a meeting for 10:30 o'clock Friday morning of this week for the purpose of considering the world's fair rates. The request for the call says that it is desirable that tickets be sold every day good for passage on regular trains and good for the return passage from Chicago up to and including a final return limit of about thirty days. The one-way rates between important terminals are to be based proportionally upon whatever reductions may be made or agreed upon for the round-trip rates.

The association may not decide to yield all the points asked by the lines, but it is practically a foregone conclusion that it will grant the most important one—that of one fare for the round trip, and the chances are very strong that they will adopt most of the others. The truth of the matter is that the passenger business for July is showing a marked decrease from that of June, and the roads are biginning to feel uneasy. People are not flocking to the fair quite as much as the roads anticipated, and they now realize that something must be done, and done at once. Chairman Caldwell issued the call for the meeting Friday, as requested, and next week will probably see the new rates in effect.

BUSTED BANKS.

Three Bad Failures Take Place at Denver.

DENVER, July 18.—Commercial circles are greatly excited over the failure of three banks in this city during the day. The banks constituting the triple failure are the Colorado Savings bank, the People's Savings bank and the Rocky Mountain Dime and Dollar Savings bank. An estimate of the total assets are $1,500,000 and liabilities are placed at nearly that amount. Charles H. Blakeney was made assignee of the Rocky Mountain Dime and Dollar Savings bank.

Two at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, July 18.—The Missouri National and the Bank of Grand Avenue have suspended. Total assets about $1,500,000; liabilities about the same.

Six Kansas Banks Fail.

KANSAS CITY, July 18.—Six Kansas banks closed their doors during the day. All the banks closed are correspondents of the National bank of Kansas City.

A CALL ISSUED.

The Third Reciprocity Convention Meets at Duluth Oct. 10.

DULUTH, July 18.—The chamber of commerce, co-operating with the other commercial bodies of the city, has issued a call for an international reciprocity and deep waterways convention to be held in Duluth beginning Oct. 10. Delegates will be asked from all the states in the northern part of the United States and from Candian provinces. The Duluth convention will be the third held by the international association. The first was at Grand Forks and the last at St. Paul.

Surveying on the Strip.

GUTHRIE, O. T., July 15.—Special Surveyor Swinburn has gone upon the Cherokee strip with a corps of surveyors to lay off the line of nine new counties, locate the county seats and prepare for the establishment of four new land offices. There will be one land office on the Santa Fe railroad, one on the Rock Island and two on the Southern Kansas railway, in the western part of the state. He says the opening will take place not later than Sept. 1.

Educational Congresses.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Educators will hold forth at the Art institute for the next two weeks. Every possible phase of education, from the kindergarten to the highest points of what may be denominated as high culture will be discussed. No less than 15 separate and distinct congresses will be on the programme.

Great Northern Ocean Steamers.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 17.—A letter has been received by the chamber of commerce which states that Messrs. Samuel Samuels & Co., of London, will immediately start a line of steamers off the Great Northern between China and Japan and Seattle. F. C. Davidge, who is the American agent for the London firm, has just completed the arrangement in St. Paul.

Crickets Invade Wyoming.

CASPAR, Wy., July 15.—An army of crickets has invaded Wyoming. They cover a strip of country 15 to 20 miles in extent and are devouring all vegetation in their track, and are traveling in a southeastern direction at the rate of three miles a day.

Long Lockout Broken.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., July 15.—The long lockout of union lumber shovers is at last broken. A meeting of the union was held at which it was unanimously decided to not try to hold out any longer, and go to work at once as individuals.

Miss Windom to Marry.

BOSTON, July 18.—The engagement is announced of Miss Ellen Windom, daughter of the late secretary of the treasury, and Mr. Bentley, a successful Boston lawyer.

Dead in His Bed.

IRONTON, O., July 14.—General W. H. Enrichs, congressman from this district, was found dead in his bed at 9:30 a. m.

DRIVEN TO DEATH.

UGLY CHARGES REGARDING THE WORLD'S FAIR FIRE.

Claimed That the Terrible Loss of Life Was Due to the Bullheadedness of Chief Murphy—Repeatedly Warned of the Danger Before the Men Went Up.

CHICAGO, July 17.—John B. Skinner, president of the Hercules iron works, the company owning the cold storage building burned, lays the blame for the terrible loss of life upon Assistant Fire Marshal Murphy. He insists that a blunder was made in the face of repeated warnings from employes in the building. Captain Fitzpatrick was with Marshal Murphy. The men, Mr. Skinner declares, would not listen to the admonitions of the men who knew the structure and the danger of ascent to the tower.

"There is one side of this fire case that has not yet been told," said Mr. Skinner. "I suppose it will all come out before the coroner if the case is gone fully into and the coroner keeps his promise that he will go to the bottom of the affair."

Was All a Blunder.

"There was absolutely no excuse for the loss of a single life. The firemen were informed by our employes that there was fire below before they went up into the tower. They were begged not to go up and the danger was pointed out in advance, when there was plenty of time to order down such as were already up.

"Among those who warned the men, and who is ready to testify to the fact is Walter M. Donaldson, the office manager of the business in the storage and ice department. He went into the tower and informed himself of the state of the fire before the firemen arrived. Donaldson has been present during nearly the whole time of the exposition, was familiar with the building, and he offered to act as a guide to the fire fighters.

Didn't Need Advice.

"He could not have been mistaken for an outsider. As soon as the firemen arrived he hunted up Captain Fitspatrick and found him on the rink floor with his men, some of whom were armed with axes. He asked the captain to chop a hole below and turn the hose on the fire in the lower part of the tower. He emphasized and repeated his statement that the bottom was the place to fight the fire. As to these directions and entreaties Captain Fitzpatrick answered: 'You go to ——; I am running this thing.'

"He was trying at the time to carry three loads of hose up at once, and was not making headway. Notwitstanding his rebuff, Donaldson, appreciating the situation, begged him to get one up. Captain Fitzpatrick answered he would get the three up or none.

Knocked This One Down.

"A. J. Brauch, who is one of our men," continued Mr. Skinner, in response to a request for the names of the other witnesses, "asked Captain Fitzpatrick to work on the base of the tower and fight the fire which was already there. The captain, for an answer, fetched a backhanded blow with the flat of his hand which knocked him 8 or 10 feet.

Mr. Alsip, the architect, was one who also advised the men of the danger, and told them the fire was below before they went up, and begged them not to ascend.

Drove His Men to Death.

"Marshal Murphy stood there in spite of this information and actually drove his men to their deaths. Upon the information we had given them, some o the firemen hesitated and demurred. The marshal was heard to shout to them by at least two of our people:

"Get up, you d——d cowards."

"He drove them to their deaths. There is no question about it. We are prepared to prove it, and it must all come out at the inquest. As soon as I heard the statement of our men, right after the fire, I went immediately over to Mr. Higinbotham's office and told him what I state here."

TWO MORE VICTIMS.

List of Dead at the World's Fair Fire Numbers Fourteen.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, July 14.—The day's work in the ruins wrought by Monday's horrible affair resulted in the finding of one more body, that of R. Drummond, superintendent of the electric light company.

Lewis J. Frank of Engine Company No. 2, who jumped from the burning tower, died in the emergency hospital, where he has lain in a semi-unconscious condition for two days, at 4 o'clock a. m. In making his terrible leap for life Frank broke two or three ribs, was burned and bruised in many places and suffered internal injuries which were too much for medical aid. The list of known dead now numbers 14.

STILLWATER CYCLONE.

Not a Great Amount of Damage to Property.

STILLWATER, Minn., July 15.—Beyond the killing of the two men, William Anez and Sam Simonson, and the injury of five others, the cyclone which passed over this city did little damage, most of it being at the brickyards and the Atwater sawmill. A fair estimate of the total loss is $18,000. Crops were damaged east of here, but the damage is not great, inasmuch as the storm did not strike any of the farming communities. The debris at the Atwood mill has been cleared away and work resumed.

Charged With Embezzlement.

MANITOWOC, Wis., July 15.—George Burnett, cashier of the State bank, which failed a few weeks ago, has been arrested on a charge of illegal banking and embezzlement.

The Question

is a simple one—easily decided by reason and common sense.

COTTOLENE

—the new scientifically prepared shortening — is made from beef suet and purest refined cottonseed oil. Lard is made, in the majority of cases, in the packing-house, and not as of old, from the clean leaf of the hog. Which is likely to be the most healthful? Decide for yourself. It must be

COTTOLENE

Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes.

Cottolene is sold in three and five pound pails, by all grocers.

Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.

CROOKSTON. - - - MINN

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

Is the only line running

THROUGH PULLMAN CARS

BETWEEN

Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis

AND

NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE

Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE

The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE

The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS

Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior.	6:40 p.m.
Daily	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg,	7:45 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, call on, wire or write any agent N. P. R. R.

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

DO YOU WANT A GOOD HOME PAPER

Devoted to the interests of Crookston and Polk County.

THEN SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

IF you want to Buy or Sell anything,

Advertise in The Journal.

IF YOU WANT ANY PRINTING OF AMY KIND,

Done Quickly at Reasonable Rates,

GO TO THE JOURNAL,

COOKE & HAMMOND,
Pubs. and Props.

Chew Climax Plug

It's Much the Best.

Its name indicates it,
Its make guarantees it,
Its use will prove it.

Try it and see.

Sold everywhere. Made only by
THE P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America and the largest in the World.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Great Northern Railway

TIME CARD.

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Leave.		Arrive
8:05a.m. Daily.	Going south to Ada, Glyndon, Barnesville, Fergus Falls, St. Cloud, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and West Superion.	7:55p.m. Daily.
7:00a.m. Daily.	Going west to Fisner, Grand Forks. Winniped, Larimore, Devils Lake, Minot, Great Falls, Helena, Butte, Spokane, Seattle and Pacific Coast Points..........	6:50a.m. Daily,
7:15a.m. Daily. ex. Sun	Going noth to Euclid, Angus, Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Hallock and Saint. Vincent..........	7:30p m. Daily ex.Sun.
9:00a m. Mond. Wed. Friday.	Going east to Wylia, St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls	6:00p.m. Mon. Wed. Friday.
8:00a.m. Tues. Thurs. Sat.	Going east to Mentor, Erskine, McIntosh, and Fosston..........	5:30p.m. T. T. S.

Take the Great Northern in going East, West North or South. Tickets sold and baggage checked to all principal points in the United States and Canada. Rates always as low as the lowest.

W. W. FEGAN,, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily	For St. Paul. Minneapolis, Superior. Ashland, Duluth. Chicago. and for all points South, East and West	at 6:40 p. m.
	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina. Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north,	at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c
Eggs, per dozen	15c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	80c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	48.
1 Northern	46.
2 Northern	43.
3 Northern	35.

'Round Home.

District Attorney Hay was in the city last week.

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

Charlie Westler was seen upon our streets last Saturday.

For stack covers, tents and awnings apply to J. F. Cartier. [13-24]

Schmidt the painter has finished some fine lettering on the windows of the C. O. D. store.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Lewis Ellington went up to Marshall County last Saturday returning in the evening.

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Quite a number of our citizens went out to Maple Lake last Saturday to spend the Sabbath. Services were conducted at the pavilion by Rev. R. H. Battey.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

D. McMillan was up from Edna last Sunday to consult with Dr. M. Leguee about a sick horse. The doctor can write as good a prescription on Sunday as any other day.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

Dr. M. Leguee says that Henry Steege has a finer crop than any farmer in Polk county.

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

Somebody cut that patch of Canada thistles near the Red Lake Falls road after the JOURNAL called attention to them. It was a good deed.

For repairing engines and machines of all kinds apply to Feli Cartier Jr. [13-24]

Geo. M. Swift was in from Mentor on Tuesday.

The county board sat as a board of equalization this week.

S. A. Wallace has purchased the property on the corner of Second and Broadway. Consideration $5,000.

Mrs. Chris. Houston has been quite ill again—confined to her bed for sometime last week. She was sitting up some on Sunday.

Joseph Laframboise has returned from Montana with a car-load of horses that he traded his stock for. He will feed them up and have horses to sell later on.

Earnest Rolsch received this week a sickle-bill curlew from the taxidermist. This curlew is one that Schmidt, the painter, shot last fall and gave to Earnest who sent it below. The curlew has a bill over seven inches long.

The Crookston senior club crossed bats with the Grand Forks club on the diamond of the latter last Wednesday and were defeated by a score of 12 to 8. They will try it again in this city sometime during the Fair.

A good bit of rain has fallen for the past week which will serve to thicken up the grass for fall feed. Probably it will not benefit anything in the line of grain except the late sown barley. The rest is too far advanced for much improvement.

L. C. Couverette ran in from the farm on Monday to inform the JOURNAL that he is well pleased with the outlook for his crop this year and expects fully as much as last year and very much better quality of wheat. His estimate yield for Polk county is about one-half an ordinary yield.

Speaking of the result of Arne Higdem's pilgrimage to Utah the East Grand Forks Courier says:

"The Courier learns from good authority that Arne A. Higdem invested personally some $2700 in his concentrated mill. Two gentlemen, named Johnson and Steen, the former a Norwegian and the latter a Swede, were joint partners in the mill with Mr. Higdem. Owing to the mines shutting down the mill is practically useless—a white elephant; but as Salt Lake City in particular, and Utah in general has a grand future before them. Mr. Higdem will yet reap an hundred fold. While waiting for the future—in prospective—Mr. Higdem will again till his Minnesota farm in reality. A word to the wise should be sufficient."

Wm. Weaver writes the Fargo Argus protesting against the reports that North Dakota will produce 50,000,000 of wheat this year, and that half that figure is a big estimate. Among the causes that contribute to produce a light crop he mentions weeds prominently. He says: "The land was dry last fall and most of it plowed late thus the weeds did not get a chance to sprout and grow so that they might be killed by the frost. So this spring they were ready to come up quickly and what rains we did get were more beneficial to the weeds than to the grain." This suggests the benefits of early plowing—as soon as possible after the grain is taken off the ground which gives the weed seeds time to germinate and grow before the fall frosts come.

Chris. Houston: "Does it pay to raise sheep? Well I should say yes, from the limited experience I have had in the few years I have raised them. I commenced with eight or ten a few years since and no experience in the business and from what I know of the profits in sheep I wish I had 500 thorough-bred Cotswold sheep, instead of the flock of less than 100 half-breeds that I have. A short time since I bought a Cotswold ram for $75—the price of five good cows at the time—and my neighbors all laughed at me, called me something akin to a fool, but I have not yet decided that I am quite that. I would not take twice $75 for my crop of spring lambs and I have the ram yet. He sheared 20 pounds of wool this spring as against 6 or 8 pounds apiece from my original flock and his lambs will show a great increase in wool over their dams or I will miss my guess. No, sir, I don't think I am fooled on this question a little bit, and if I only had just one-half of my farm in grain this year and just sheep enough for the balance of it I should feel better satisfied with the outlook to-day."

Have you decided what you would bring to the fair?

A little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Roberts last Thursday.

Jacob Dobmeier, the East Grand Forks brewer, was in the city on Saturday.

Chris. Hoch went down to St. Cloud last week to file on a pine claim in the Reservation.

Fred Mix has returned from Barnesville and resumed his old position in the freight depot.

Dave Robinson arrived on Monday morning to see his little son who is critically ill with dropsy.

D. D. Overholt and C. C. Lawton were in from the lake this week, stopping at the Cleveland house.

Fred Durand, Frank Hertz, Sam Rosenthal and A. E. Permain spent Sunday at Maple Lake.

The whirligig shut up shop, packed up the kit, and left for Moorhead on Sunday. We congratulate Moorhead.

J. V. E. Wyatt, Frank Creamer, M. C. Malone and others went up to Red Lake Falls on Saturday evening to organize a lodge of Odd Fellows.

If you have some oats or barley that you would like to pay that subscription with we will give you the highest market price at the JOURNAL office.

J. Des Jardines and family have gone to Chicago to the great fair. He just locks up his store and goes all the same like he would be back again in the morning.

Sam Wallace is fixing up a bit at the Second street entrance to the drug store and is painting the store outside. Sam is bound to have things right whatever.

Farmers complain of a spontaneous growth of barley—which suggests to the JOURNAL that barley must be a good winter crop. Did anybody ever try it?

E. Masters, a saloon-keeper, of Fosston, was brought before United States Commissioner Christianson Saturday, charged with selling liquor to an Indian. He was bound over to the United States court.

Charlotte Eleonora, the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Nelson, of Fertile, died of dropsy on Tuesday evening of last week. She had been attending the Concordia college at Moorhead.

The weather for the past week has been excellent for crops and the wheat shows great improvement. Some who were predicting three and four bushel crops now begin to have hopes for very much better yields.

Frank Benoit, accompanied by his young son, came up from St. Paul on Saturday morning for a two days' visit with his brother, L. I. and family. Frank will be remembered by many of our citizens as a former resident of Crookston.

The new Vine block is all completed and ready for occupany, and the corner room all ready occupied by Eli Asselin as a saloon. Geo. contemplates putting a meat market in the next room which leaves one neat room for somebody else.

Deputy District Grand Marshal, Mrs. C. A. Wyatt last week installed the officers of North Star Rebecca lodge of Crookston. She was ably assisted by Frank Gravel as grand marshal, Sister Gates as grand secretary, and Brother Geo. Holt as grand warden.

A. S. Partridge, of Flushing, Mich., who has been for a few weeks looking the country over with a view to investment informs the JOURNAL that he is very much pleased with all he has seen of Polk County and is well pleased with the country and its prospects. He says that our A. N. Hixson is from the same part of Michigan—used to know him when a boy—used to be two of him then—big Al. and little Al. Your A. N. Hixson used to be known as big Al. He was a likely boy, and when he came back to our country a year ago full of big, glowing accounts of this land of promise we all naturally took stock in his words and the result of it is I am here to see for myself, and I find the half had not been told me. I intend to stay till fall and see your crops harvested and threshed and I may decide to locate—shouldn't wonder if I did.

In its issue of July 6th the JOURNAL mentioned the appearance of a mysterious stranger who insisted that John Cromb, of the Merchants National bank must be a brother of a former partner of the individual. While Mr. Cromb at that time suspected that the individual had some kind of a skin game to play none developed at that time and Mr. C. was a good bit puzzled to account for the stranger's actions but a few days later the man showed up again with his partner, whom, he had told Mr. C. at the former interview, he had been obliged to leave in Fergus Falls as he was too sick to travel. This partner was an Indian and he showed a gold brick from their mines in Arizona and the couple wanted to let Mr. Cromb into the deal—Cromb to furnish the money necessary to successfully operate the gold mine. It is needless to say that Mr. Cromb did not bite and the couple departed in quest of somebody green enough to be caught by their scheme.

E. M. Walsh went up to Red Lake Falls on Wednesday.

T. K. Torgerson was up from Lake Park on Tuesday.

T. H. Bjoin sells Buffalo Pitts threshers, engines and repairs.

Erickson & Morberg are treating their store to a fresh coat of paint.

Farm property in Polk county to-day is a better investment at present prices than any other property.

The Salvation Army had some new people arrive this week and the work is now being vigorously pushed all along the line.

Mrs. Thomas Brown of Euclid, has been in the city visiting her mother and friends in the city for the past week, returning home on Tuesday morning.

Attorney Steenerson returned Monday from Hillsboro, where he cleared his client—a man charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Two boys, sons of Mr. Theurer, fell from a ladder in the Hixson elevator on Tuesday sustaining quite serious injuries. Dr. Just patched them up and thinks they will do nicely.

Carl Johnson the man who was injured on the gravel train last Wednesday is reported doing nicely. As yet the arm has not been amputated but as it was badly crushed the chances are that it will have to be.

Mrs. W. E. Slocum essayed to drive a lady friend out to J. P. Marcum's on Monday, got lost and wandered about disconsolately awhile and finally returned to the city—but they insist that they had a lovely ride all the same.

Talk about going to California for health! The JOURNAL learns of a case where a Californian has come to Polk county for his health—not only come here for it but has got what he came for. That's the kind of a county what Polk county is! Where you will find one better country you will find one hundred worse.

W. E. McKenzie has brought suit against the county to recover the sum of $53.00 which he claims is the profit on certain printing done by other papers, and which should have been given to the Times, as that paper was awarded the county printing by the county board. The case will be argued before Judge Gossman next Saturday—Wm. Watts appearing for plaintiff, and A. R. Holston for the county.

One case has been reported to the JOURNAL of a man who is actually sick of living in Polk county—we will bet a big red apple that he does not read the JOURNAL. This man, we are told, complains that "times are hard in Polk county and he wants to go somewhere where a fortune is to be had for the asking." Well, we don't know where he will go to find his millenium on the earth in these times, for we have assurances from our private correspondents everywhere else that times are very much harder there than here. If with our rich, fertile soil and with proper industry and ecomomy a man cannot do tolerably well, we do not know where on this broad earth he will go to better his condition. To-day there are farms that can be had at from one-quarter to one-half what they are actually worth for farming purposes—farms that are convenient to market and composed of the best soil on earth, and a man can get them for one-half the crop each year until they are paid for if he needs that kind of a layout. It is true that difficulties and drawbacks exist in a certain degree, but it is equally true that there is not one of these that cannot be successfully overcome if properly met. We have hundreds of cases to prove this assertion. It is true that some make failures, but that is true everywhere and proves nothing against the capacity of the country, but the fact remains true to-day that there is no better place for a man to succeed than right here in the Red River Valley.

T. H. Bjoin sells Buffalo Pitts threshers, engines and repairs.

My entire stock of wall paper, paints, oils and glass will be sold at actual cost as I am overstocked and must have money. A good quality of paper at 9 cents per double roll. A nice gilt paper 14 cents per double roll. White lead, St. Louis Red Seal brand, $7.45 per 100 pounds. Window shades and fixtures complete at 22 cents. Sell all over from 35 to 40 cents. All other goods in same proportion. Come in and see quality of goods and get prices.

A. C. SCHMIDT,
[13-15] Second St., Crookston.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied by a wonderful diarrhœa. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit. Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which we did, and it cured us right away. I think much of it, as it did to me what it was reccomended to do. John Hertzler, Bethel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.,

H. C. Misner, accompanied by his mother, his wife and little son drove down from Euclid on Monday and H. C. had to drive home alone in the afternoon as the folks stayed over night visiting Charlie and family, returning on Tuesday morning's train.

Same Here.

Bob Dunn, in the Princeton Union, pithily remarks: "Again we say that the advertising colums of the Union are no index of the amount of business transacted in Princeton."

Money on Chattels.

$1000 to loan, in small amounts, on good chattel security, for from 60 to 90 days. P. J. RUSSEL, [13-tf] Crookston.

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county. Sano, sure cure for piles. I. O. O. F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [39-tf]

Lost Half a Million.

Lord Granville, who died in 1846, with a great reputation for courtliness of manner, held for many years the post of embassador at Paris, and the only objection which could with any show of plausibility be brought against him while holding that conspicuous post was that he was sometimes inclined to be indolent. He was addicted to play and often ran over to London for a little of his favorite amusement at Crockford's, White's or Graham's, but almost as frequently returned to the French capital with the loss of a considerable sum of money. He was one of the four noblemen who lost $500,000 at Crockford's in one night, his companions in misfortune from the ranks of peerage being Lord Chesterfield, Lord Foley and Lord Sefton. Still, in spite of all his losses, Lord Granville left behind him no less a sum in cash than $800,000.—Exchange.

Resigning From the Militia.

There are ways of getting out of the national guard before one's time is up, and it is not always necessary to acquire a chronic illness or remove from the state or become a convict to find those ways. A young man who recently joined the guard applied for dismissal at the end of his sixth week of service. He did not give his reasons, but the officers learned that he wanted to get out because his best girl had told him that uniform was not becoming to him. He was dropped from the rolls with dizzying suddenness. —New York Sun.

Like Siamese Twins.

The Nankin correspondent of a Shanghai paper says: "A Tianwasi man came to this city, bringing with him a remarkable freak of nature in the shape of his two sons, aged 8 years. The boys were alike in face and form, but they are connected with each other by a piece of flesh as thick as a man's arm and joined together just below the waist, making the twins stand face to face. The twins never fall asleep at the same time."

The Political Chameleon.

When the chameleon had to explain his changes of color, it is recorded that "Then first the creature found a tongue." The political chameleon differs from the natural one. He is all tongue, and he uses it, while exhibiting in succession all the hues of the rainbow, to prove that he has never changed his color at all.—London Saturday Review.

Why the Duke Sold His Estate.

The Duke of Westminster, who has scandalized the English aristocracy by selling Cliveden, his ancestral estate in Berks, to Mr. Astor, excuses himself by saying that he has a family of 10 children to provide for. The sale adds $50,000 a year to the duke's income.

Times Have Changed.

Mrs. Smythe—Before we were married you didn't use to groan the moment I sat on your knee.

Smythe—I know it, my dear, but you didn't use to stick a millinery bill under my nose then, either.—Life.

FUGACES ANNI.

Oh, my love, my queen of May,
The light of youth is gone.
Thy balmy tresses gather gray.
Thy rosy lips are wan.
Will thy true eyes alter yet
And their nuptial smile forget?

Oh, my love, will Time deceive,
Will he wither true love so?
There is more in love, believe,
Than the silly nations know;
More in love, when bloom is dead,
Than the rose wreath round his head.

Oh, my love, and if thou need
Harbor when the north winds blow;
If thy tender footprints bleed
On the flints among the snow,
Love will raise a sheltered cot,
Where the ice blast enters not.

Oh, my true love, we are wise;
When snow whitens on our land
Underneath the cloudy skies
We will travel hand in hand,
Since we have not far to go
To our rest beyond the snow,
—Lord de Tabley.

Individual Freedom.

There is greater individual freedom in Great Britain and her colonies than in America. For instance, every Sunday small knots of men may be seen in the principal London parks, giving expression to the most varied sentiments on matters political, social and religious, and language painful to the great majority of the people is constantly being used. No restriction is ever placed on such expressions of opinion, so long as they are uttered on sites designated by the police, where there can be no obstruction to traffic or danger of intimidation being exercised. In America, however, no meetings of any kind are permitted in these open spaces.

In Central park, New York, no one may even pick up a leaf without danger of fine or imprisonment. No one may walk on the grass unless he is playing a game. I barely escaped arrest for walking on the carriage drive. The police march about with their batons out—often swinging them—and appear to regard themselves more as the masters than the servants of the people.—Earl of Meath in Nineteenth Century.

Wendell Phillips' Power.

The writer heard Wendell Phillips once on the nobility of the North American Indians, and while the spell of the speech lasted he was almost ashamed of himself for being white instead of copper colored. One secret of the power of Phillips with an audience was that he was always definite, certain in his statements and position. If he had privately doubts about a course or a policy, he never exhibited them when on the platform. He very well knew that there is nothing an audience likes so little in a speaker as indecision and beating about the bush. There was no haziness in what he said. His subject stood out before his hearers as clearly cut as a cameo. —Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's.

The Great Napoleon In a Passion.

I never saw Bonaparte in such a wrath as when he learned his brother Lucien had married at Senlis the widow of Jouberthon, a Paris broker. He ordered me to send for the notary and tell him to bring his register. When the notary arrived, I took him to St. Cloud at 9 in the morning. Here is word for word the dialogue between the first consul and the notary: "Was it you, sir, who registered my brother's marriage?" "Yes, citizen first consul." "Were you unaware, then, that he was my brother?" "No, citizen first consul." "Did you not know that my consent was necessary to the validity of the act?" "I do not think so. Your brother has long been of age. He has filled high posts. He has been a minister and embassador. He has no father. He is free to marry." "But he has a mother whose consent was necessary?" "No, he is of age and a widower." "But I am a sovereign, and as such my consent was necessary." "You are a sovereign only for 10 years, and your family is not bound to you." "Show me the marriage register?" "Here it is." The first consul read it and in shutting the book was very near tearing the page. "I shall annul it." "That will be difficult, for it is carefully drawn up." "Be off with you." The notary retired without having for a moment lost his composure.—Chaptals' "Memories of Napoleon."

Perpiration of the feet is a sign of good circulation, but perception of it is a sign of vulgarity. Neatness is a sure cure.

That Peculiar Lightness and Flavor

Noticed in the finest biscuit, rolls, cake, etc., is due to the absolute purity and the accurate combination of the ingredients of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER. The best things in cookery are always made and can be made only with the ROYAL BAKING POWDER. Hence its use is universal—in the most celebrated restaurants, in the homes of the people, wherever delicious, wholesome food is appreciated. Its sale equals that of all others combined.

Made with the pure acid of the grape.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder.

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.

Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1893. NO. 15.

Historical Soci

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

State.

Governor........Knute Nelson.
Lieutenant Governor..........David M. Clough.
Secretary of State..............F. P. Brown.
Attorney General..............H. W. Childs.

Congressional.

Member of Congress, 7th Dist....Haldor E. Boen,

Legislative.

Senator, 51st Sen. Dist..............E. E. Lommen.
Representatives, 51st Sen. Dist.....John D. Knuteson, B. M. Chesley and Hans Juelson.

Judicial.

Associate Justices Supreme Court.....Thomas Canty, Daniel Buck, Wm. Mitchell and Loren W. Collins.
Judge 14th Jud. District ....Frank Ives.
Clerk of Court....................Nils Muus.

County.

Auditor.............................C. U. Webster
Treasurer...........................J. T. Beaudry
Register of Deeds..................John Amundson
Attorney.............................A. R. Holston
Sheriff..............................Arny Grundysen
Judge of Probate....................C. M. Benson
Supt. of Schools....................A. A. Lommen
Surveyor............................O. L. Hamery
Court Com'r.........................W. H. Averill
Coroner..............................Henry Shepard

County Commissioners.

First District.................John E. Oppegaard
Second District..................Anton Linden
Third District.....................M. E. Kirsch
Fourth District....................C. P. Demers
Fifth District....................A. C. Rhinehart

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Augus,	J M Palmer	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Halvor Grundesen	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	John O Johnson	Fosston
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Charlie Asp	Brooks
Euclid,	H C Misner	Euclid
Eden,	Nerl A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	A O Daniels	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	John G. Tenney	Crookston
Fisher,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Fertile, vil.,	L E George	Fertile
Gd Forks,	E J Hogen	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	J A Johnson	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor,
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Nellsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	O A Wilson	McIntosh
Knute,	Lars E Nelson	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	August Brunelle	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Clark B Goodale	Fertile
Lessor,	Chas Matteson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christiansou,	Crookston
Louisville,	Benjamin Dalbec	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	H D Baardson	Tweet
Northland,	M S Merager	Northland
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	S W Bleau	Crookston
Poplar Biver,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Chas. Peterson	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	A P Tonpin	R L Falls
Ked Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Engleslad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukind	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randklev	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	J S Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	James F Sullivan	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	O J Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Wick	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

"One of my customers came in today and asked me for the best cough medicine I had" says Lew Young, a prominent druggist of Newman Grove Neb. "Of course I showed him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and he did not ask to see any other. I have never yet sold a medicine that would loosen and relieve a severe cold so quickly as that remedy does. I have sold four dozen of it within the last sixty days and do not know of a single case where it failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, druggist, Crookston, Minn.

I have one or two choice young Jersey cows for sale. Who wants them? Also will sell one or two Jersey heifers should anybody desire to purchase. They are all fine animals extra care having been taken in their breeding and are worth very much more money than they will bring at this time. Will sell only for cash or delivery. For particulars inquire of H. E. Cooke at the JOURNAL office.

A GREAT FAILURE

On Account of Lack of Co-operation,—Christianity Being Supplanted by Ecclesiasticism.

Crookston has not the Kind of Churches Which She Needs but may Have one.

The Plan as Set Forth by Rev. J. G. Smith in a Recent Sunday Evening Discourse.

It is always easier to find fault than it is to apply a remedy. It is easier to see that the churches of Crookston are failing to influence the life of the community as they ought, than it is to put into effective operation some more practical methods than those that obtain at present. It is the purpose of the writer to remark in passing some of the glaring defects and then to describe briefly the kind of church which, as he conceives it, Crookston needs.

To the ordinary observer the attitude of the churches toward the community is somewhat as follows; "Believe as we do, learn to pronounce our Shibboleth correctly and you shall go to heaven when you die. Believe as we do and don't get caught in any act that will take you to the penitentiary and you are all right. We have a through ticket for the heavenly land with sleeping-car accommodations, without extra charge. To be sure the train is very limited in its capacity. But that don't matter, the elect are all aboard the great mass of sinning and suffering humanity are left, but who cares for them! Leave them to their folly and wretchedness. "Such is the apparent attitude of the churches. The train scheduled from Crookston is made up of some fifteen or twenty private coaches in most of which there are very few passengers. Each coach has a conductor of its own. But somehow he can not persuade many to get aboard. There is an occasional grumbler (dis-satisfied with his sleeping accommodations) from one of the other coaches and now and then a straggler from without is picked up.

In other words the mistake which the "church of Crookston" is making is two fold. The first part is a narrow conception of the mission of the church and the second part is sectarian division into imbecility.

The New Testament doctrine is that the gospel was intended for all men and for the entire man.

Paul desired for those to whom he wrote a sanctification. Body, soul and spirit preserved entire was his idea of the complete man. Our Lord Jesus himself taught the same thing by example and practice. He cared for men in all their needs. The Great Physician does not confine himself to a specialty. Every disease of mind or body comes equally within the scope of his loving care. He did not say I came only to look after men's souls. Christ knew men in their entirety—of body, soul and spirit. He recognized that man was a union of these elements. He did not treat men as disembodied spirits. In reference to men's needs he entered into hearty sympathy with them. Whether a man was hungry or sick or leprous or demonized—whether the trouble were of mind or body our Lord Jesus Christ was equally willing to relieve him. He meant that men should be saved in the world as well as out of it. Christ prayed not that the Father should take men out of the world but that he should keep them from the evil. The proposition which I wish to maintain, then, is this; that the church ought to take this same broad view of humanity which our Lord took. We ought to be in touch with every human need. It is to be feared that the churches often fail to accomplish their mission because they have not correctly understood the needs of men in their present condition. Christ came to men where they were. He adapted himself to their needs. The church which is Christ's body, Christ's representative in the world should do the same thing or else the Great Head of the church is misrepresented.

Christ came to earth to demonstrate that God loved men. He showed by entering fully into every human condition that he had a fellow feeling with men. It follows that a true church is a brotherhood. It is a fraternity in which the members are in close touch with one another, sharing every good. Nothing that affects one member for weal or woe is a matter of indifference to any other member. The church then should be an organized brotherhood, organized in order to help one another and all men to better living.

Having premised these principles in reference to the aim of the church it remains to make a few practical suggestions in reference to the kind of work such a church should undertake in Crookston. I can only suggest a few things that occur to me. Many other lines of activity would suggest themselves, no doubt if these were put into practice.

1 We should continue preaching and teaching as we do now. We ought to do these things which we are doing and more. We need no less of the old truths of salvation through Jesus Christ but more of the truth applied to living.

2. The advance which the church should make is to more fully meet the common or social needs of the community. There are certain needs which the individual is not usually able to meet by himself. The church as a co-operative brotherhood can provide advantages beyond the ability of the individual. The church should be the center of the common life. In connection with the kind of church that Crookston needs there would be found many of those advantages that are connected with social clubs, secret fraternities, and Y. M. C. A. buildings.

To be more specific I will enumerate a few of the things which I would have in the church building beside what is ordinarily found there.

1. A library and reading room well stocked with reference books, general literature, history and science. Also magazines and periodicals. I would provide especially abundant means of studying the practical questions of the day, like the industrial, social and political problems.

2. I would provide for the developement of the physical as well as the mental powers. Let there be a fully equipped gymnasium and an instructor in attendance. "Know ye not that your bodies are the temple of the Holy Ghost?"

3. I would provide for legitimate amusements. Our homes are not generally both able and willing, to meet all needs for social sports. There is no good reason why all these opportunities should be handed over to the saloon.

4. I would have parlors for social purposes where people gather for the exchange of opinion and thought upon all matters of interest and the cultivation of the almost lost art of conversation.

5. I would have opportunity for all lovers of music by furnishing competent instructors of choral classes and orchestra.

I have thus briefly hinted at a few of the things which might, with great advantage to the Kingdom of Christ, be done in the church. The great objection that will at once occur to everyone is that none of the churches here are strong enough in numbers to do these things. The objection is well taken. The five English-speaking churches of Crookston in one would not be too large to do what ought to be done. When there is a spirit of federation or co-operation among the different denominations which will lead them to be willing to sink sectarian prejudice in the love of the Kingdom of Christ then we shall see men pressing into the Kingdom. When we have a church that has for its purpose to meet the real needs of men—physical, mental spiritual—then we shall find that there are more people who believe in the church than we find at present. Can Crookston have such a church? By what means and methods such a church could be organized, without any denomination surrendering an essential principle shall be the subject of another article.

"My little boy was very bad off for two months with diarrhœa. We used various medicines, also calling in two docters, but nothing did him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him. I consider it the best medicine made and can conscientiously recommend it to all who need a diarrhœa or colic medicine. J. E Hare, Trenton, Tex. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace Crookston, Minn.

Cheap Rates to the World's Fair.

On July 11, 24, 31 and Aug. 7 the Northern Pacific will sell round trip tickets to Chicago for one fare for round trip limited 12 days from date of sale. For full particulars inquire of C. A. Sharkey, Agent.

IT'S A SUCCESS.

The Polk County Fair Opened Yesterday Under the Most Favorable Circumstances,

A Large Line of Exhibits, Especially in Live Stock which is Excellent.

A Good Turn-out for the First Day—An Immense Crowd Expected To-day.

The New Exposition Building Well Filled, and All the Floor Space Occupied.

The Races To-Day and To-Morrow will be Interesting and Well Contested.

The fair commenced yesterday morning under very favorable auspices considering the time of year and the financial conditions. The display is very good and the racing events are extra. Many farmers were in attendance on the first day, and the fair seems to be a grand success in every way.

Up to the time of going to press everything indicates a big time for the Polk county fair. Very many entries have been made of produce, store goods and farm stock and a great many tickets sold. It looks like a big success. The number and character of the horse exhibit is a surprise to everyone and no farmer can look it over without being encouraged to make greater efforts to improve his stock. There are some choice Jersey's and Holstien's, some Shropshire sheep and a few Chester White and Poland China hogs. Every farmer in Polk county should see this fair.

NOTES.

Tom Wallace feels proud over some of the handsomest grade Norman colts in the county—on exhibition at the Fair.

If anybody can show a finer colt than T. C. Bergland has on the fair grounds we should like to see it. T. C. feels a great deal prouder of that colt than he does of the people's party and justly so for there is value to him—in the colt.

E. D. Childs shows some excellent cows—Jersey and Holstein. Rev. Currie ought to have some of his choice Jerseys on the ground.

F. Bivins & Son have some fine Shropshire sheep on exhibition. They are fine.

Himmelsbach Bros. have some choice Norman mares and colts on exhibition which do credit to the enterprise of the boys.

The stores were all closed yesterday afternoon and everybody went out to the fair.

There are some of the finest Clyde colts on exhibition at the fair we ever saw anywhere. We don't see how any farmer could look at them and not be encouraged to raise some himself.

The Fair is well worth the time and expense necessary to see it.

Secretary Wyatt has put in herculean efforts in behalf of the Fair, to make it a great success.

Mentor Mites.

From our regular correspondent.

MENTOR, July 25.

The crops in our part of the county are looking considerably better than a short time ago. It appeared at one time as though we would not get a half a crop, and yet it now promises an average one.

The Congregational church building has been moved into town and placed on its foundation, Mr. Rickey had the contract of moving, which he did to the entire satisfaction of the members.

John F. Smith is having his new hotel built which, when finished, will add greatly to the looks of our town. J. O. Larson our hardware merchant furnished the lumber.

Hank Rickey has begun work on his new structure. He is building a general blacksmith and wagon shop.

Our base ball team went to McIntosh on the 22nd, and defeated the McIntosh nine by a score of 26 to 30. After looking over the town and making a purchase or two of the go-as-you-please water, the boys started for home at 10 p. m. Some of the boys came home towards morning better acquainted with the roads in Lessor and Badger townships than they ever were before. They are going to cross bats with the Red Lake Falls nine next week and if they "do" them the Mentor team will undoubtedly challenge the world.

J. H. Fulton from Ada arrived here on Saturday night July 22nd, on his route for McIntosh where he has rented the hotel Duluth, having sold out his farm and all implements and will try city life for a while. We wish the gentleman success in his new undertaking as he is well qualified for the business and we hope the people of McIntosh will give them their hearty support.

Sheriff Losey passed through town yesterday en route to a land that is fairer than this.

Euclid.

(From our regular correspondent.)

EUCLID, July 26th.

E. L. Smith, a former citizen of Euclid but now of Grand Forks, was with us last week.

Prof. Hecster of St. Anthony Park, spent a couple of days looking over Mr. Currie's fine herd of Jerseys.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Kinnan are happy over the arrival of a bouncing baby boy. Will came in like a little man and "set 'em up" to the boys.

M. M. Davis says he came very near being knocked out last week. But he wishes to announce that he is still in the ring.

Miss Julia Fossberg who has been visiting friends here, returned to her home at Blanchard, N. D., Wednesday.

Tom Brown unearthed an old gun barrel with the year 1616 on it. The stock and some of the small steel parts had all decayed away.

E. Taylor & Co. have completed building their warehouse.

The town dads had a meeting on Tuesday.

Mrs. L. S. Hancock assisted by her daughter Della, held a 5 o'clock tea last Wednesday.

Miss Daisy Fargo returned to take up her studies at the Crookston Business College, Wednesday.

Miss Myers, sister of Mrs. T. T. Brown, returned to her home at Crookston, Tuesday.

Geo. Easby was over from the Forks Saturday.

Mrs. B. Duntley came up to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Davis, Saturday.

The dance Monday evening was well attended. There were several parties up from Crookston.

Billy Winter of Argyle was a guest of the manager of the Kilalamy farm last week.

Geo. Rich of Grand Forks was visiting friends here last week.

Miss Amber Nelson is visiting with Mine Host Kennan, at Warren.

Miss Olive and Master Ray Tiedt who have been visiting in the family of T. E. Biever, returned home Monday.

Hon. W. D. Carlton of Angus, was here on business Monday.

Mrs. Tim Biever is visiting at Argyle.

Rev. W. T. McAlteoner preached his farewell sermon last Sunday. We understand that the Reverand genrleman and his daughter, Thedora, intend taking a trip to Maine and California.

Mrs. H. C. Misner and mother Taylor start for Lyons, Iowa, Monday. H. C. goes as far as St. Paul on business.

The section bosses have reduced their crews.

The patrons of the dance Monday evening took supper with Mr. and Mrs. John Hanson.

Opera House Tonight.

F. J. Arnold, blackface comedian in an original creation of his own.

Prof. Spain will render a violin solo.

Taylor Bros. in blackface aerobatic feats.

Messers. Robertson and Spain, guitar and mandolin duet.

Taylor and Arnold in their side splitting sketch entitled "Chicken" and the howling afterpiece "Escaped from Sing Sing."

Prices 50, 35 and 25 cents. Seats on sale at Tom Morris'.

The opera House will be the coolest place in town tonight.

Don't forget the "Troupe" at the opera house tonight.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Wednesday, July 19.

The relief fund for the families of world's fair firemen now amounts to $130,000.

Five hundred thousand ounces of silver and 100,000 Mexican dollars go to Europe on the Spree.

Roy Keefer, 73d victim of the Iowa cyclone, died in the hospital at Sioux City. He had a wagon spoke thrust through his body.

Foreign exhibitors at the world's fair have filed claims against the United States for $400,000 for damages to their exhibits.

It is stated that Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, formerly of the Minneapolis Tribune is soon to marry Miss Elizabeth Bacon of Reading, Pa.

It is said a peculiar fly has made its appearance in Pennsylvania, whose sole object in life appears to be the slaughter of the potato bug. They come in swarms, and clear a field in a few hours.

Thursday, July 20.

Uruguay's exhibit at the world's fair has been opened.

Ex-Congressman Frederick A. Johnson died at Glens Falls, N. Y., aged 65.

The Bank of Anacortes, Wash., has failed. Depositors will be paid id full.

Congressman Breckenridge and Mrs. Louise Scott Wing were married at Louisville.

Directors of the Chemical National bank at Chicago have reported against a reorganization.

President Higginbotham has ordered the closing of Pugilist Corbett's exhibit on Midway Plaisance.

Comptroller Eckels was dined at the Union League club, New York, and made a speech to bankers.

Hundreds of buildings were wrecked and several persons killed by a tornado at Voghera and Casteggio in Italy.

Friday, July 21.

Paid admissions at the world's fair Thursday were 126,387.

Rear Admiral Melancton Smith, U. S. N., died at Green Bay, Wis., aged 83, after a two days illness.

Maid Marion broke the record for one mile and 20 yards at Washington Park Wednesday, going the distance in 1:40.

Mitchell has signed articles of agreement to fight Corbett before the Columbian Athletic club. He refuses to fight elsewhere.

The Green Bay, Wis., high school building, recently built at a cost of $35,000, has been declared by experts to be in an unsafe condition.

Lieutenant Charles C. Ogden was drowned near Hamburg, Mich. He was on a wedding trip, having been married at Fort Supply, I. T., on the 5th inst.

Saturday, July 22.

Secretary of Agriculture Morton favors the repeal of the state bank tax.

The South Milwaukee Malleable Iron works were completely destroyed by fire.

Miners in Great Britain threaten to go on a strike against a proposed reduction in wages by the owners.

Agent Donaldson of the Great Northern at Winnipeg was seriously injured by falling from a crowded street car.

The Illinois Central has declared a dividend of 2 1-2 per cent for the half year ending June 30. The dividend is payable Sept. 1.

Mascot paced a mile in a heat race at Cleveland Friday in 2:04 1-2. The race was the fastest ever trotted or paced, the slowest time in the five heats being 2:07 1-2.

Monday, July 24.

Home rule will be before the house of lords next month. It will probably pass the house of commons in its present shape.

At Victoria, Mexico, Francisco Valloreal and Juan Rangel quarreled over a senorita. In the duel which followed both were killed.

Morello won the Wheeler handicap at the Washington Park track at Chicago Saturday, equalling the record of the great horse Salvator.

Disastrous fires are ranging on the Wyoming cattle ranges. The thermometer stood from 120 to 150 in the shade at Buffalo Sunday.

The answer of Siam to the French vltimatum was unsatisfactory and France has ordered her Siamese minister to leave Bangkok within 24 hours.

Liquor and running horses caused a sad accident at Mapleton, Minn. Edward Lynch was thrown from a cart and instantly killed, his neck being broken.

Tuesday, July 25.

Detroit celebrated the 200th anniversary of the city's birth Monday.

Thoades opera house at Monticello, Ills., was damaged $5,000 by fire.

The summer race meeting at Hawthorne track Chicago began Monday.

Butte business men resolved to boycott all anti-silver men. Their action was endorsed by the city council.

The United States subtreasury in Chicago refuses to receive any more silver until the enormous amount already on hand can be counted.

Two men amused themselves shooting through the window of a powder magazine at Huntington, Ind. They were blown to pieces, two other persons injured and two more missing.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE COUNTY BOARD.

Minutes of the Meeting Held July 10th.

The committee on Euclid and Crookston county road reported that the amount appropiated to repair said road had been duly expended.

The committee on the Fairfax road appropriation made a report showing that they had duly expended the $150 entrusted their care.

The County road and bridge fund was drawn upon for $75 for Grove Park, $100 for Brandsvold, $50 for Northland and $50 for the town of Knute.

A petition from Rosebud was laid over.

In the matter of dividing school district No. 187 in Queen and No. 152 in Sullivan a hearing was ordered for next session.

Commissioner DeMers reported having paid $75 for material for a bridge in Hill River and the auditor was authorized to draw a warrant for $105 for building said bridge and $25 for a Black River bridge.

Drainage petition of Hendrickson and others laid over.

Petition of Merrill and others, for establishing a ditch through Lowell was granted and M. R. Brown, Chris Houston and Ole O. Estenson appointed viewers.

The probate judge was allowed $50 for extra clerk hire.

The sum of $500 was appropriated to the use of the Northern Minnesota Agricultural and Driving Association in payment and awarding of premiums.

Action on the bids for the purchase of the jail building was postponed till next meeting.

The sum of $75 was appropriated for a bridge over Badger Creek on the Terrebonne and Red Lake Falls road.

The road and bridge petition from Bray and other towns laid upon the table.

The following bills were allowed:

Brown, Treacy & Co., stationery	$ 64 42
Pioneer Press Co., stationery	50 00
Tabor, diphtheria cases	14 35
A. Bochaud, witness fees	2 80
A. Ryan, constable fees	8 00
Fred Cyr, marshal fees	2 06
J. J. Fant, team hire	12 00
T. A. Campbell, marshal fees	41 45
C. L. Bang, assisting Co., surveyor	7 50
J. B. Harris, assisting Co., surveyor	19 50
O. Ducharme, constables fees	5 25
L. E. Gossman, justice fees	27 25
John Barette, witness fees	2 08
Adolph Barrette, witness fees	2 80
H. Pare, witness fees	3 28
S. R. Sylvester, tin tags	21 75
J. E. O'Brien & Co., hardware	7 40
Geo. Pratt, constable fees	6 05
A. Robinson, constable fees	7 35
G. H. Holt, constable fees	1 40
John N. Kirsch, assessing	20 00
Peter Wold, assessing	6 00
E. W. Johnson, assessing	20 00
M. Brewster, witness fees	2 80
A. A. Lommen, freight and postage	5 92
H. C. Gilbertson, work on Co., road	6 50
E. T. Bjellard, work on Co., road	1 25
John Amundson, postage	10 00
E. E. Abbott, postage	2 85
P. N. Svelgard, town clerk	2 50
A. G. Harris, work on Jerome addition bridge	10 00
Crookston Water Power & Light Co., water and light	225 00
L. Lee, care of prisoner	8 00
W. E. McKenzie, printing	50 56
A. O. Daniels, road work	10 00
O. L. Hammery, surveyors fees	31 20
P. Hince, assessor	4 00
H. Shepherd, coroner's fees	5 20
Fontaine & Anglim, mdse jail	42 95
A. Sture, mdse jail	10 10
A. J. & A. McKinnon, work on bridge	37 15
A. J. Stoeser, board jury	3 25
W. Walsh, assisting surveyor	21 00
Gervais & Gervais, mdse	10 44
H. Quigley, constable fees	5 05
J. E. Oppegaard, commissioners fees	17 60
W. Welsh, blanks Co. Superintendent	44 50
J. S. Dwyer, justice fees	62 95
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	15 70
County Auditor, express and postage	2 80
A. Grundysen, sheriff's fees	51 50
H. C. Burdick funeral expenses, Wagner case	35 00
J. E. O'Brien & Co., hose	16 80
Mrs. A. J. Freeman, nurse	32 00
E. E. Childs, milk hospital	11 00
W. Cunningham, potatoes	4 00
Miss E. Work, work at hospital	15 00
Mrs. E. Slater, nurse	22 60
F. E. Hertz, laundry hospital	24 66
Cleary Bros., groceries hospital	36 44
C. H. Denniston, medical attendance at hospital	22 75
A. Grundysen, sub-jurors	134 04
C. P. Demers, butter hospital	2 84
C. P. Demers, commissioners fees and mileage	28 00
A. Linden commissioners fees and mileage	53 10
A. C. Rhinehart, commissioners fees and mileage	63 00
M. E. Kirsch, commissioners fees and mileage	73 00
S. Torkey, Marais bridge	32 40

The following bills are allowed providing the city of East Grand Forks pays ⅓

Ole Johnson, work on bridge	1 00
J. J. How, lumber for bridge	63 60
P. Sullivan, watching bridge nights	32 00
H. R. Nolan, work on bridge	98 00
John Enright, work on bridge	46 00
Jas. Jarvais, work on bridge	11 00
J. Wood, work on bridge	34 50
L. H. Richmond, work on bridge	12 37
Geo. Dainerd, nails for bridge	7 40
Herrick & Peterson, nails for bridge	42 32
Jas. McIlraith, pile driving	159 25
W. W. Wilson, work on bridge	49 00
E. Williams, work on bridge	8 00
A. Grey, work on bridge	27 00
A. Hunter, work on bridge	43 00
W. Haley, work on bridge	10 00
G. W. Lewis, watch bridge nights	38 50
R. R. Lumber company, lumber	214 30
W. S. Russell	85 00
Sam Torkey	72 80

The following bills were rejected: E. Columbus, E. Allard, O Ducharme, Eli Asselin, J. E. Swanson, R. S. Hurd, John Olson, August Munn, B. F. Zarracher, O. Mercil, F. Benoit, Chester Facto, P. Sullivan, G. K. Chambers, J. V. E. Wyatt, J. P. Jones, James Johnson, Erick Kling.

Several bills of Sheriff Grundysen were rejected.

Board adjourned to 31st inst.

Do You Realize.

That you can purchase round trip tickets to Chicago at one fare rate on July 24th, 31st and August 7th via the Northern Pacific railroad and be landed at the Grand Central Station Hotel in Chicago where first class accommodations can be secured at very reasonable cost? This will save the necessary of transfer of yourself and baggage in Chicago. Direct trains between Grand Central Station and World's Fair grounds. [15-16]

World's Fair Rates.

The Northern Pacific railroad company has made a rate of $30.25 from Crookston to Chicago and return Dates of sale, every Monday and Thursday. Tickets will be limited to continuous passage in each direction with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[3 tf] Agent.

Free Homesteads.

Thousands of people are rushing into the Beautiful Saskatchewan Valley and taking up homesteads there. From Dakota, Montana' Michigan, and in fact from nearly every state in the union farmers are leaving in considerable numbers for the Canadian Northwest where they can find splendid land with plenty of wood for fuel and building purposes, and also good water. Only $10.00 is charged for filing and this sum comprises all a settler has to pay, nothing being charged for proving np. The farmers in the Edmondton and Prince Albert districts have been getting 65 cents per bushel for wheat all winter. Cattle sell much higher than they do here in Minnesota, and in almost every particular the farmer is better off there than he is here.

There are good railway facilities, oceans of hay and the climate is good. For particulars apply to

MUNSON & MCCREA,
Crookston, Minn.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Lost.

From the pasture of Wm. Hooper on July 7th a brown mare colt two years old. A suitable reward will be paid for her return to the barn of E. D. Schreader, Main street Crookston. [13-15]

Holstein Bull.

John Scheffer has a fine Holstein—Friesian bull at the Centra house barn to which he desires to call the attention of breeders. For terms and further particulars call on or address.

[5tf] JOHN SCHEFFER.

World's Fair Rates.

Northern Pacific Railroad Co. has made rate of $30.25, Crookston to Chicago, and return on sale daily with final limit of November 15th.

C. A. SHARKEY,
[4tf] Agent.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Mid-Summer Novelties in Ladies Hats.

One of the characteristic features of the McDowell Fashion Journals is that they generally represent a hat of the lastest fashion with each costume, for the double purpose of giving millinery novelties and of illustrating the intimate relation between a toilet and the head-gear. The most popular of these Fashion Magazines are: "La Mode de Paris," "Paris Album of Fashion," "The French Dressmaker" and "La Mode." The former two cost $3.50 each, a year, or 35 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" is $3.00 per annum, or 30 cents a copy. "La Mode" costs only $1.50 a year, or 15 cents a copy, and is intended to become the home fashion journal par excellence. If you are unable to procure any of these magazines at your newsdealer, do not accept any substitute, but apply directly to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

An Anecdote of Lord Lytton.

Many years ago when the elder Bulwer was in his prime a laborer on the estate was engaged to do a certain job of hard work. At the end of a week he carried his account to the bailiff, who said a week's work was worth 3 shillings and 6 pence. The man insisted that this was not enough and refused to settle, and every time he met the bailiff he would stop him and ask him for his money. Finally the bailiff became angry, discharged the man and refused to allow any farmer on the estate to hire him.

The man was forced to leave the neighborhood, but he was too poor to move any great distance, so that he was still within the circuit of the bailiff's ill will. Wherever he went this pursued him, and his life in consequence was a hard one. But all the time he kept telling his family and his friends that some day he would get the money which the Bulwer Lytton estate owed him.

He was well on in years, when one day he met a man in the road. It was the some time poet Owen Meredith, now come to the title, and English embassador to France, at home on a visit.

"You are Lord Lytton, I believe," he said respectfully.

"Yes."

"Then, if you please, I should like you to pay an account which has been due me for a long time."

Lord Lytton looked at the account, and at his request the man told the whole story. The poet was very much affected and disturbed. Then he said:

"Well, I will do what I can to make it up to you."

He was as good as his word. He built a house at the gates of the park, put the man and his family into it, and gave it to them rent free, with other perquisites, so that he was entirely comfortable for the remainder of his days.—Hartford Courant.

The largest cut stones in the world are in the Temple of the Sun at Baalbec. Many are more than 60 feet long, 20 feet broad and of unknown depth.

THE FEAR OF SNAKES.

Why Many Children and Some Grown Persons Dislike Them.

There are many authenticated instances of children becoming attached to snakes and making pets of them. The solution of a question of this kind is sometimes to be found in the child mind. My experience is that when young children see this creature its strange appearance and manner of progression, so unlike those of other animals known to them, affect them with amazement and a sense of mystery and that they fear it just as they would fear any other strange thing. Monkeys are doubtless affected in much the same way, although in a state of nature, where they inhabit forests abounding with the larger constrictors and venomous tree snakes, it is highly probable that they also possess a traditional fear of the serpent form. It would be strange if they did not.

The experiment of presenting a caged monkey with a serpent carefully wrapped up in a newspaper and watching his behavior when he gravely opens the parcel, expecting to fine nothing more wonderful than the familiar sponge-cake or succulent banana—well, such an experiment has been recorded in half a hundred important scientific works, and out of respect to one's masters one ought to endeavor not to smile when reading it. A third view might be taken which would account for our feeling toward the serpent without either instinct or tradition. Extreme fear of all ophidians might simply result from a vague knowledge of the fact that some kinds are venomous: that, in some rare cases, death follows swiftly on their bite, and that, not being sufficiently intelligent to distinguish the noxious from the innocuous—at all events while under the domination of a sudden, violent emotion—we destroy them all alike, thus adopting Herod's rough and ready method of ridding his city of one inconvenient babe by a general slaughter of innocents.

It might be objected that in Europe, where animosity to the serpent is greatest, death from snake bite is hardly to be feared; that Fontana's 6,000 experiments with the viper, showing how small is the amount of venom possessed by this species, how rarely it has the power to destroy human life, have been before the world for a century. And although it must be admitted that Fontana's work is not in the hand of every peasant, the fact remains that death from snake bite is a rare thing in Europe, probably not more than one losing his life from this cause for every 250 who perish by hydrophobia, of all forms of death the most terrible. Yet while the sight of a snake excites in a majority of persons the most violent emotions, dogs are universal favorites, and we have them always with us and make pets of them in spite of the knowledge that they may at any time become rabid and inflict that unspeakably dreadful suffering and destruction on us.

This leads to the following question: Is it not at least probable that our excessive fear of the serpent, so unworthy of us as rational beings, and the cause of so much unnecessary cruelty, is partlp at all events, a result of our superstitious fear of sudden death? For there exists, we know, an exceedingly widespread delusion that the bite of a venomous serpent must kill and kill quickly. Compared with such ophidian monarchs as the bushmaster, fer de lance, hamadryad and tic polonga, the viper of Europe—the poor viper of many experiments and much (not too readable) literature—may be regarded as almost harmless—at all events not more harmful than the hornet. Nevertheless, in this cold, northern world, even as in the other worlds where nature elaborates more potent juices, the delusion prevails and may be taken into account here, although its origin cannot now be discussed. For my own part I am inclined to believe that we regard serpents with a destructive hatred purely and simply because we are so taught from childhood.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Hawthorne as a Visitor.

On one occasion after my return from an African and European cruise I was ordered to the Portsmouth station, where we were hardly settled at housekeeping when Hawthorne came to see us.

The hall was encumbered with boxes, the sight of which made him feel his visit to be inopportune, and he said quickly:

"I have just come for an hour or two to see you and must return this evening."

Mrs. Bridge, seeing that he was only afraid of incommoding us, at once answered:

"Must you desert us when I need your aid in unpacking these boxes?"

"Will you really let me help you?" he asked.

Her joking answer, assuring him of her pleasure in gaining a helper so strong, both in muscle and intelligence, put him entirely at ease, and for a week he made himself useful on all possible occasions.—Commodore Bridge's "Recollections."

Mental Emotion and Jaundice.

The connection of simple jaundice with sudden mental emotion is generally admitted. Such facts as the following are not uncommon: A young woman becomes yellow at the discovery of her misdeeds; another on hearing that her fiance was killed; a young man on being discharged from office because he had not grown tall enough.

Simple jaundice is often followed by acute yellow atrophy, which is also known to be directly caused by shock. In this form of jaundice there is always disorganization of the liver cells. Even cancer may have a like origin.—Exchange.

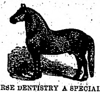
In the Street Car.

Fogg—No, I never give my seat to a lady unless she is advanced in years. (To young lady who has been trying to eye him out of his seat) Would you like my seat, madam?

Young Lady—Thanks! Prefer to stand!

But she looks mad enough to bite Fogg's head off.—Boston Transcript.

PILLSBURY ADACEMY,
OWATONNA, MINN.
An Excellent School for Both Sexes.
PREPARES FOR COLLEFE OR BUSINESS, EXCELLENT COURSES IN ENGLISH OR SCIENCES, VOCAL OR INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.
An experienced faculty, a comfortable Home. Beautiful new buildings, heated with steam and water.
New Music Hall and Large Drill Hall just completed.
Special attention given to health and physical training of students.
Good Morals. Kind and firm discipline. Expenses low.
Send for catalogue to
[12-15] JAMES W. FORD, Principal.



E. D. SCHRAEDER,
VETERINARY SURGEON.
HORSE DENTISTRY A SPECIALTY.
All calls receive prompt attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main street, in connection with Livery house,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

BROWN, THE CIGAR MAN
Invites attention to a choice line of CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
Manufactory over Merchants Nat'l Bank. Entrance on Second Street.
DON'T FAIL TO GET MY PRICES.
H. F. BROWN,
Crookston, Minn.

THE NEW NORTHWEST
FARM LANDS — Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana
NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
LOW RATES — Settlers on free Government lands alond the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.
Horses, Cattle. — Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.
Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sheep, Hogs. — Sweetes Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock rai2ers' paradise.
Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenry of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

"In no way can Americans so effectively inform themselves on the subjects that claim public attention from one month to another as by reading the North American Review."
IN THE
North American Review
YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.
THE TOPICS are always those which are uppermost in the public mind—in morals, politics, science, literature, business, finance, industrial economy, social and municipal affairs, etc.—in short all subjects on which Americans require and desire to be informed. No magazine follows so closely from month to month the course of public interest. All subjects are treated of impartially on both sides.
THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Review are the men and women to whom the world looks for the most authoritative statements on the subjects of the day. No other periodical can point to such a succession of distinguished writers. The list is a roll of the people who are making the history, controlling the affairs, and leading the opinion of the age, such as Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, Mr. Blaine, Signor Crispi, Ex-Prime Minister of Italy, Baron Hirsch, H. R. H. the Count of Paris, Cardinal Gibbons, Bishops Potter, Doane, Malleiieu, Foss, etc., etc.
THE TIME when these subjects are treated of by these contributors is the very time when the subjects are in the public mind—not a month or two after people had ceased to think of them. The promptness with which the Review furnishes its readers with the most authoritative information upon the topics of the day is one of its most valuable features.
Subscription Price, $5.00 a year.
THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
3 East 14th Street, New York.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. [illegible] INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges when received. [illegible] BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

IT PAYS
To buy a first-class article, no matter in what line. We sell the DEERING HARVESTING MACHINERY,
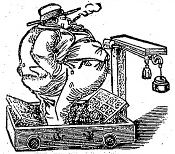
ADVANCE THRESHERS AND ENGINES.
RUSHFORD WAGONS, - - -
JOHN DEERE PLOWS AND RAKES.
And a Complete Line of—:-:—:-:—:-:—:-:—
BUGGIES, CARTS AND HARNESS.
WE ARE are strictly in it on this year. Don't be deceived TWINE by any so-called cheap twine. It is either short in weight or length, or inferior in some way. In Twine, as well as everything else, a first-class article bought of responsible dealers at a fair price is sure to prove cheaper and more satisfactory in the end. See our goods and get our prices before you buy.
MERIT WINS.
Larsen, Carpenter & Co.
Broadway and Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

FRESH VEGETABLES RECEIVED DAILY.
A Choice lot of
CANNED GOODS
At Reduced Rates.
STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES,
Large Stock, Low Prices.
The Crookston Grocery Company,
W. E. SLOCUM, Manager.
ROBERT ST. - CROOKSTON, MINN.



The Price
—OF—
Groceries
HEAVY WEIGHT GOODS.
Like everything else, is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and as
TIMES ARE HARD AND MONEY SCARCE,
I am selling my goods at correspondingly Low Prices.
My Stock of
Groceries, Crockery, Etc.,
Is New, Fresh and Clean. My stock of Flour and Feed is large, and my vegetables are fresh every day.
L. I. BENOIT, The Cash Grocer,
BROADWAY, - - - - CROCKSTON, MINN.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.
Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.
FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

DEFECTIVE PAGE

LIGHT OUT OF DARKNESS

BY MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY GODEY PUBLISHING COMPANY.

[CONTINUED.]

Her parents, George and Dunbar, all listened without interruption and with beating hearts, for they felt that the crisis was not far distant, and Rose's unnatural pallor indicated a strife in her own mind beyond and distinct from that natural to her lover's petition. The silence was but for a moment, and then, though her cheek was deadly pale, her voice was firm and clear, but its birdlike tones were wanting.

"Jasper, let this subject rest for the present. You know well, if you will do me justice, that I do not thwart your wishes from any foolish coyness. We are both young, and our youth was the reason why my parents and your own wish our union deferred two years, and we recognized the wisdom of their united judgment. Six months only of that time have passed, and instead of my father's losses changing the plan first adopted my respect and filial affection make it now an imperative duty. I should despise myself, and so would you in a short time, if I yielded to your present impulses to avoid what you call hardship, but which I name pleasure.

"Do not interrupt me, my friend. There is something else which I must say, and you must hear me patiently. A few months, perhaps weeks, will determine if peace is to continue in all our borders. Until this question is settled I remain 'among my own people.' Hear me yet a moment longer," and she caught his hand while she trembled like an aspen leaf, "dear Jasper, hear me. I have not understood you of late. I had thought your whole heart so full of patriotism that no local attachments could make you swerve. But within a few days—oh, Jasper—I ask no question, wish for no explanation now. I will, I do trust your patriotism, and to prove my trust before all here I promise, and I know my parents will not gainsay the pledge. Should this bitterness end in war, no matter how soon, my brothers will, I know, be ready to enlist in the first call—and you?" Ah! who could resist the pleading look of agony she bent upon that face, disfigured by so many conflicting emotions?

"And you, beloved, will spring to arms with them to fight together under our dear old flag for justice and freedom. With all my heart I will bid you godspeed, and, father, the day my brothers and Jasper march to the rescue I solemnly promise to become his wife!"

"Amen! with all our hearts," said her parents in one breath, but Grenville clasped her a moment to his breast, exclaiming:

"Rose! Rose! You tempt and try me fearfully, but this is idle enthusiasm. There is no war, probably will be none, unless the north"——

"Oh, let us drop this subject," said Rose. "You understand me. And as I have said, God is my witness, so will I do. When the time of trial comes, and come it will, you are too good, too noble, to be found wanting."

"But hear me, Rose! You must and will! Should we be involved in war, why must I join in the contest? Consent to be mine now and let us revisit together in the old world the scenes you have so often described."

"And this to me! To me! Oh, Jasper!" And clasping her hands tightly over her eyes—in tones so childlike and piteous—"but I did not understand you. I dream. I did not hear you. You did but jest to try me. Let it pass. You need not explain," she continued to moan.

A moment's pause, and then a great change passed over her. With head erect and eyes as keen and resolute as a martial hero she said:

"There needs no more words. You must know I would never join hands with one who could leave his country or remain idle in time of peril. A scorn equaled only by what I should feel for a traitor would annihilate every emotion of love from my heart. But I must say good night to all. Remember," laying her hand tenderly on Jasper's arm, "I know this is but sport, rather cruel, but I trust you all the same, and you will not fail me when the trial comes. For my sake let me ask that no more be said on this subject tonight."

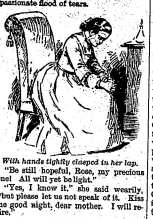
Grenville rose as she left the room, evidently with the design of replying, but waving a good night kiss to all she passed from her friends to her own chamber.

An awkward pause succeeded, but among the gentlemen each face wore a look of mistrust and scorn, while Mrs. Newton and Lillian's heads were bowed in sorrow.

In vain Jasper tried to assume a careless and indifferent air, and soon muttering something of a forgotten engagement he departed.

A few minutes of gloomy silence followed his departure, but Rose's request was constantly in their minds, and no allusion was made to the painful scene, but that in their hearts he now stood revealed there could be no doubt. Mr. Newton made a few remarks about some business, and then Dunbar took his leave, and the family separated for the night. As Ralph passed from the room his father noticed his greatly excited manner and said a few soothing words to him and earnestly enjoined upon all the necessity of strict self government for Rose's sake, assuring them that it was in his opinion the better policy to wait patiently for the final result, which could not be far distant.

Poor Rose! As soon as the closing door hid her from view all excitement died away; and like one stunned and bewildered by some fearful blow she crept up to her room and mechanically seated herself there. With hands tightly clasped in her lap and stony eyes, she sat as pale and motionless almost as the dead till her tender mother's kiss roused her from this sad stupor, and she found relief in a passionate flood of tears.



With hands tightly clasped in her lap.

"Be still hopeful, Rose, my precious one! All will yet be light."

"Yes, I know it," she said wearily, "but please let us not speak of it. Kiss me good night, dear mother. I will retire."

CHAPTER X.

The next morning Rose met the family at breakfast, paler and more quiet than usual, but perfectly self possessed. The loving hearts around her needed no words to teach them that all allusion to the painful conversations of the previous evening should be avoided.

Lillian proposed that Rose should accompany her mother on the exploring expedition, alleging that Rose's taste and judgment would be more adapted to the taste of the whole family than her own.

The proud girl divined at once her sister's real meaning, and with heightened color and contracted brow shrank as from a blow. Her mother came to her rescue, remarking quietly she preferred Lillian should go, as Rose could more advantageously aid in superintending various changes at home that should be arranged at once and in which her brothers could be effective assistants, judging, with her usual sagacity, even laborious employment for the comfort and welfare of the family would be the most certain cordial for her wounded spirits.

Those sent to spy out the land returned in the afternoon and brought back a most enthusiastic report of the beauties of the place, its great capacity for profitable employment, the convenience of the house and outbuildings, so arranged as to save much labor, and therefore peculiarly desirable in their estimation, as it was well understood they must dispense with servants. Indeed, Mrs. Newton told her husband it was the facsimile of such a place as they had often dreamed over.

The prospects this glowing report opened were so in unison with the natural taste and good judgment of the whole family, giving a field for the working of each individual and peculiar talent, that nothing remained but to hasten the business arrangement between Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Newton and enter at once upon their labors. The good wife and mother thought that no repairs were necessary but such as could be better attended to when on the ground. Mr. Newton then offered to take a lease of the property for a certain number of years, paying a rent equal to that paid in the vicinity for farming property, the papers to be at once drawn up and possession taken immediately.

Dunbar, on the contrary, urged that he should so soon deprive them of Lillian's aid it was only fair that rent should be considered but a proper equivalent from himself and his Lilly for the loss of their valuable services.

He was interrupted by an outburst of merriment, started of course by Ralph at Eustace's expense, for his high estimate of their capabilities, in which even Rose joined with something of her usual sparkling repartee. But Dunbar was not to be silenced, even though his gentle Lilly was leagued against him. Mr. Newton finally replied that no arguments would avail. He must enter upon his work according to his own ideas of independent action or not at all.

A few days saw all the changes completed. The splendid mansion where the Newtons had passed so many happy hours was transferred to other hands, not without natural regrets, but without a murmur. Selecting such articles as would suit their altered circumstances, the family removed immediately to their new home, leaving such property as they could claim to be sold at auction. When all was sold and fully settled, Mr. Newton was thankful to find that between $4,000 and $5,000 clear remained in his hands, besides the unpretentious furnishings of the farm home and the expenses of removal. Part of this money he at once safely invested, reserving only what would supply their wants till they might hope to receive something available from the farm, having also purchased from Eustace the stock and farming implements he had secured with the place.

A very honest and efficient farmer, who had for some years lived in a little cottage near by and superintended the work, was also retained, Mr. Newton being aware that he should economize by securing trusty and experienced farm laborers till such time as he might hope to acquire the requisite knowledge himself. During the coming winter, while engrossed in such preparatory labor as every farmer understands is essential for summer operations, he would at the same time become familiar with both theoretical and practical agriculture.

The storm that threatened Rose's peace had quietly subsided, and her spirits rose often to their natural tone, but at times a discordant note told too plainly that her heart was not fully reassured. The young man meanwhile was assiduously trying to banish every cloud from the sweet girl's brow, and all his really excellent qualities were called into action and his hasty temper and natural hauteur were wisely controlled when at the farm, which by no means was infrequent.

And so, happy in their new occupations, without ennui or discontent, each actively employed during the day, looking forward with even more than the old exhilaration to the peaceful evenings, which always gathered them together to mingle in pleasant conversation or instructive reading, the winter glided cheerfully on.

Fearful of another explosion from Grenville the family had all been very careful not to hazard any remark in his presence with reference to the intense public feeling which by this time was fast culminating toward a crisis. The wisdom may be doubted of the strict reticence, but the time was drawing near which must compel a full separation of the "sheep from the goats" and call in trumpet tones to all: "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve. If the Lord be God, then follow him. If Baal, then follow him." That strong affection which shrinks so naturally from giving pain to the beloved one is not always the wisest counselor, but the good parents, although not satisfied with the uncertainty that hung over their child's future, avoided any word that might force Grenville into an avowal of his sentiments until it should be settled past controversy whether it was to be peace or war with the south.

Fears lest Rose's peace was endangered and apprehensions for their country were the only shadows that fell across their pleasant life. Both these perils caused at times great anxiety, but like the dreams of the night they soon vanished, for to American minds the idea of a war, or any attempt at real disunion, had so little tangibility it was not strange, engrossed as they were with so much that was novel in their own situation, that it should be difficult to realize the danger. Their minds were not aroused by the intense excitement that city residents experienced when morning and evening papers and frequent bulletins kept the brain in perpetual tumult.

Mr. Newton could not afford either time or money for such luxuries or annoyances. But their one weekly paper or some intelligence brought by Duncan in his frequent visits to Lillian and the friends at the farm often roused their indignation almost beyond control, showing that under all the peacefulness of their present life a fire smoldered that needed but a spark at any time or moment to leap into an inextinguishable flame.

When Dunbar was present, the country's prospects were the constant theme, but of late Grenville, who once was accustomed to meet Dunbar that they might walk together every evening to Mr. Newton's house, now apparently avoided him, for they seldom met and never called together. While Jasper was with them those topics that were of the greatest interest were never mentioned. The family ventured on no questions, and he volunteered no remark. He was unwearying in little acts of kindness, apt to devise topics of general interest or amusement, and to Rose never was lover so devoted.

If Rose was only waiting patiently for unmistakable revelations of his feelings and intentions or had really been lulled to rest by his unceasing kindness and tenderness, neither her parents nor brothers could understand, but they had become painfully certain that he harbored in his heart a purpose that might at any moment "sweep all her hopes, like sand, away."

It came at last, that fearful day, just as the cold, stern winter had departed and spring was full of promise—Sumter surrendered. For some days groups of men were seen standing on the corners of the streets in earnest conversation, and "expectation stood aghast with horror."

The excitement spread all over the country. At Montgomery farm the peace and quiet of the winter were dispelled by stern and resolute watchfulness, waiting impatiently for the signal to spring to arms. Dunbar was with them every evening of the previous week to keep them posted and arrange for instant action whenever needed. Grenville came not at all. Rose moved about her work mechanically, repelling any indication by word or look that seemed like sympathy with an impatience, an irritability, so foreign to her nature that it was too evident some concealed fear or sorrow was hidden in her heart.

On this eventful Sabbath Grenville made his appearance in season for dinner. He apologized for his absence the past week on the plea of slight illness, telling Rose he would have sent her a line, but each morning he felt sure of being better before night, but found himself mistaken. He had, however, embraced the first moment of convalescence to come to her. So wretchedly pale and haggard did he look that her heart reproached her for the doubts which she had tried in vain to conceal, and even her friends were so struck by his miserably changed appearance as to be almost ready to hope they had misjudged him and carefully avoided remarks that might disturb the Sabbath by bitter feeling or unguarded anger.

Eustace had failed to be with them in the morning or to attend Lillian to church, and knowing such unwonted absence was significant George, with his father's consent, after dinner was just starting for the city when he espied the truant riding rapidly up the lane and hastened to meet him. As the friends met Eustace exclaimed:

"It is war now, war of complete extermination or submission."

"Stay a moment. Is Grenville with you?"

"Yes. He has been here but a short time and is either ill or in great mental anxiety. Have you heard anything more of his movements?"

"Yes, indeed! Enough to destroy him! Our poor Rose!

"The southern sympathizers in the city are wildly jubilant over this first aggressive step of their brethren and now feel safe to speak out. Horton told me exultingly that Grenville was heart and hand with them; that he had just received a letter from his father urging him to break away from all ties here at once and hasten to join them, saying that his father's influence with his party had secured for his son a high position in the large army they are raising. Horton says he saw the commission, and that Grenville had accepted this very morning, and was confident that when Rose saw that his mind was fixed she would yield."

"Ah, how little he understands our darling! Or rather, he understands too well. What he said to Horton was spoken in a moment of excitement, and his dispirited manner since he came proves plainly he dare not even broach the subject to her. He must have known of this news you bring, and yet not a word has he spoken."

"But, oh, George, how will the dear girl bear it?"

"It certainly will not be half so heavy upon her as the torturing suspense under which she has for some weeks been pining. I think we have been unwise to conceal our knowledge of his intentions so long. But I will at once unmask the villain! My sweet darling sister!"

When the young men entered the house, all gathered anxiously around Eustace, for, his face once seen, there could be no doubt he brought tidings of great importance. The tale was soon told. The fearful step had been too long anticipated for any great surprise to blend with the excitement and indignation it caused. The color fled from every face, but the lofty courage and stern resolution stamped on each feature needed not words to tell how willingly they would offer their lives for a country so dearly loved and bitterly insulted.

"And now may God bless us and speed us to our work," said Eustace, while with his arm thrown closely around Lillian he read with pride and admiring love the unselfish spirit with which she laid her heart's life on her country's altar.

Mr. Newton raised his hand to heaven and solemnly blessed them, while Mrs. Newton, with more than a Roman mother's fortitude—a Christian heroism—yielded her brave boys to her country's service. But when Alfred sprang to her arms with an imploring look and the one word—"Mother"—she pressed her quivering lips to his noble brow, unable to reply to that unspoken entreaty. But his father laid his hand lovingly on his head, saying: "My boy, I am too old and you too young to enter into active service for our land, at least for the present. Should there be pressing need, neither age nor youth shall keep us back at such a call. This good mother will yield us without a word of remonstrance."

While this was passing Rose, forgetting lover, self, all but her country's peril, had listened with compressed lips and eyes whose heroic light might have led men to the cannon's mouth. George saw that a spirit was raised within her at this moment that would sustain her under the coming revelation. So, turning suddenly to Grenville, he said:

"We must endeavor to be all enlisted in the same regiment, and by going into town tonight we can enter our names early tomorrow and be on hand to march at any moment. This precious, darling sister will have little time to redeem her pledge of last fall."

Without a moment's hesitation she passed to her lover's side and laid her hand timidly on his, then raised those eloquent eyes to his face with a look of earnest, pleading love, at the same time carrying into his inmost soul the conviction that every word of that pledge was well remembered and would be truly acted upon in every particular. He threw his arms convulsively around her and said:

"Oh, Rose! My own Rose! Be mine now! Consult your own heart and not your prejudices. In two days a steamer leaves for the old world! See! I will give up all for your dear sake. Leave the strife and bitterness here and wander with me through gay, beautiful France and sunny Italy till peace is once more restored."

For one instant Rose gazed into his face, with scorn and contempt quivering in every lineament. Then dashing his arm from around her and springing to her father's side, her head erect and eyes whose burning light should have blasted the traitor where he stood, she cried:

"Do you hear that man, father? Do you understand what he asks of your daughter?"

"I fear I do but too well, my sweet child. Grenville, it is high time that all duplicity on your part should cease. Nay, check your passionate reply. I have not been as fully blinded as you had hoped, but for some time have feared that, while apparently one with us, yet in your heart you were joined to the south in all her wicked designs. If I have misjudged you, with all my heart I beg your pardon, but under the present circumstances I feel entitled to demand an explicit avowal of your true sentiments."

"Who has warped your judgment and your affection to me? What proof have you that, though less enthusiastic, I am not really as loyal to my country as yourself?" demanded the young man, with much temper and embarrassment.

"Mere subterfuge," cried George. "I did not think you would stoop to such miserable quibbling. In your heart you have a meaning that your words do not reveal. You call the south your country, but do not recognize the north as such, and then talk of your loyalty!"

"Again I ask, what proofs have you of this assertion?"

"Oh, Jasper! Dear Jasper!" cried Rose, once more starting to his side and clasping his hands. "We ask no proofs but your own words. Only assure me you are true to our united country and ready to fight with my brothers under the stars and stripes, and we ask no further. Your love for your birthplace may have warped your judgment, while all was uncertain and the strife had been but a war of words, but now that the crisis has come you can no longer halt between two opinions with honor. Why do you hesitate? I cannot endure this suspense! Speak, I entreat you, and end this misery!"

"He cannot do it, my dear sister," said George, leading her to a seat beside her mother. "He is joined to the south heart and soul and has been from the first, yet at the same time concealing it from you, my Rosie. Dunbar brings the proofs such as he cannot gainsay. Be strong, my darling. He is not worthy so noble a heart."

Dunbar stepped forward, and placing a letter in Grenville's hands said:

"This is from your parents, I presume. Horton requested me to bring it to you and at the same time boasted that you were pledged to the cause he advocates. The letter contains an officer's commission for you and a summons to return south without delay."

"Curse him!" exclaimed the young man. "But I have no wish to conceal my sentiments, only so far as I wished to save my darling Rose from the pain I know she must feel. Yet now that the south has taken the step she should have done long ago I must act with her. I love you all and many more at the north, but I do most heartily detest the principles she would enforce. But, Rose, my dearest one, hear me."

"Not a word! I have no fellowship with a traitor!"

"And no love for me, Rose?"

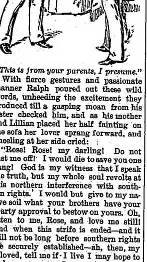
"No more for you as I know you. Oh, I thought you all that was pure, true hearted and noble and fondly enthroned you in my heart and worshiped you. How fearfully am I punished for my idolatry now that I am awakened to the deformity of that which my blinded vision saw once so perfect! Oh, Jasper Grenville, what desolation have you brought on one whose only fault lay in loving you too well!"

It were vain to describe the agony of these young hearts. By turns he raved and entreated, appealing one moment to the parents and the next to Lillian, who each repelled his attempts to enlist them in his behalf. Ralph's passionate defiance, George's manly remonstrance and Mr. Newton's earnest and touching appeals to urge him back to duty were unavailing. He argued that he was acting from solemn convictions of duty and that nothing could be more convincing proof of his convictions than the fact that by this step he destroyed every hope of happiness he had in life, and if Rose cast him off he should be a martyr to a cause he had espoused believing it to be right.

On the contrary, Mr. Newton assured him, from facts which he could not gainsay that his mind had been poisoned from earliest childhood, and now, being called into vigorous activity, was leading him to destroy his own peace and happiness and bring misery to those who had so loved and trusted him.

It was distressing to witness the young man's wretchedness when he tried to say farewell. As he approached Rose, in whose whole attitude scorn, disappointment, insulted affection and earnest entreaty were all unmistakably mingled, Ralph started to his sister's side, throwing one arm around her, and with the other waving him off:

"Back! Do not touch her, or I shall find it in my heart to strike you dead at her feet! Miscreant! Traitor! Look at your work! Reflect upon the misery you are causing one you have so pretended to love! A southerner's hot passion, soon cooled, ready now to forsake her true affection, forswear your country, reject her laws and take up arms with a misguided mob and fight against all that you but too well know Rose most values. In your very first battle you may be brought face to face in deadly conflict with the members of her own house, and yet you have dared to ask that she should leave us all and follow you in your mad career."



"This is from your parents, I presume."

With fierce gestures and passionate manner Ralph poured out these wild words, unheeding the excitement they produced till a gasping moan from his sister checked him, and as his mother and Lillian placed her half fainting on the sofa her lover sprang forward, and kneeling at her side cried:

"Rose! Rose! my darling! Do not cast me off! I would die to save you one pang! God is my witness that I speak the truth, but my whole soul revolts at this northern interference with southern rights. I would but give to my native soil what your brothers have your hearty approval to bestow on yours. Oh, listen to me, Rose, and love me still! And when this strife is ended—and it will not be long before southern rights are securely established—ah, then, my beloved, tell me if I live I may hope to make you my own."

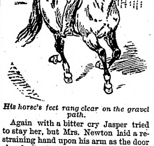
It was an unfortunate speech for the pleader, but it roused the spirited girl from the heartsick lethargy which was stealing over her, and she answered with dignity and firmness:

"Never! But if you will lend your aid to uphold and enforce the government of these United States and assist to reclaim those disobedient children who have rebelled against their mother country, then all the sad misjudgments of the past shall be buried forever, never to be recalled, and I will be to you this hour a true and loving a wife as man ever claimed. But, Jasper Grenville, hear me! If you leave us to fight against my friends and country, then farewell and forever! From this hour we shall be utter strangers. I wait one moment for your final answer—the final decision."

What a change had this hour's agony wrought in Rose, whose pretty, winning ways, all, softness, gentleness and love, made her, as George used to say, "the sunbeam" of the house. All looked on in silent grief and amazement. Her slender form seemed to expand into queenly dignity. Her eyes, wont to sparkle in gleeful humor, now looked down in clear and regal light on the recreant lover, who could not meet their determined gaze. Thus he stood

Like those who wait
Till judgment speaks the doom of fate,
So still, as if no breeze might dare
To lift one lock of raven hair.

Then turning from him with a look of unutterable scorn she gave her hand to Ralph to lead her from the room.



His horse's feet rang clear on the gravel path.

Again with a bitter cry Jasper tried to stay her, but Mrs. Newton laid a restraining hand upon his arm as the door closed after her, saying:

"This has lasted too long already. My daughter has been sufficiently tried. Your own act has severed all connection between us, and you must now depart. Harsh as it may sound, my roof cannot shelter a traitor. Our paths from this time lead in an opposite direction. I grieve that you should be so blinded and that our pleasant intercourse must cease. But you would have it so. May God forgive you, but now farewell."

Without a word he passed out, and in a few moments his horse's feet rang clear on the gravel path, and long after he passed the gate could be heard, urged by the wretched rider into a mad gallop along the road. Little cared he if he sped to instant destruction.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

The Wily Chinee.

A German Jew who keeps a pawnbroker's shop in Sydney is blessed with one daughter, who now and then keeps shop while her father attends sales on the lookout for bargains. During the temporary absence of old Moses recently a meek looking Chinaman walked into the shop and asked Rachel to show him some "welly good watches."

Rachel handed down four from the shelf at the end of the counter marked respectively, "$50 watch," "$40 watch," "$30 watch" and "$10 watch," and arranged them in a line on the counter in the order of their value.

John inspected them, and taking advantage of Rachel's momentary inattention slipped the $10 watch into the place occupied by the $40 watch and handed over a $10 note saying:

"I takee cheapee watchee."

Shortly afterward Rachel detected the swindle and sought refuge in tears. On the return of old Moses she related the misadventure with many protestations of concern.

"Never mind, mine tear," said the father, with a dry chuckle, "dose vatches were all de same brice—$6—but vat a scoundrel dot Shinaman must pe, don'd he?"—London Tit-Bits.

The Cause of Geysers.

Bunsen has explained the periodical eruption of geysers in such a satisfactory manner that doubt is no longer possible. A cavern filled with water lies deep in the earth under the geyser, and the water in this cavern is heated by the earth's internal heat far above 212 degrees, since there is a heavy hydrostatic pressure upon it arising from the weight of water in the passage or natural standpipe that leads from the subterranean chamber of the surface of the earth.

After a time the temperature of the water below rises, so that steam is given off in spite of the pressure, and the column in the exit tube is gradually forced upward. The release of pressure and the disturbance of the water then cause the contents of the subterranean chamber to flash into steam and expel the contents of the exit pipe violently. These eruptions may also be provoked by throwing stones or clods of turf into the basin of the geyser. The water in the cavern below is disturbed by this means.—Great Divide.

Newspapers and the Love of Books.

It is not any more true in England than it is in this country that the reading of newspapers is spoiling the taste for books. Never in any other generation were there as large editions of books of knowledge and thought printed and sold as there are in this one. The figures given in the reports of the British and American book trade are amazing, especially as regards books of the highest erudition, the deepest cogitation and the wisest counsel. As many as 50,000 copies of Mr. Bryce's "American Commonwealth" have already been sold in this country and England. The works of the great authors of the past, too, are more in demand than they ever were before. It is ignorance to say that good newspapers spoil the taste for books. They promote the love of the best books.—New York Sun.

Showing That Plants Can See.

Can plants see? Darwin gave it as his opinion that some of them can, and an Indian botanist relates some curious incidents which tend to verify the belief. Observing one morning that the tendrils of a convolvulus on his veranda had decidedly leaned toward his legs as he lay in an attitude of repose, he tried a series of experiments with a long pole, placing it in such a position that the leaves would have to turn away from the light in order to reach it. In every case he found that the tendrils set themselves visibly toward the pole and in a very few hours had twined themselves closely around it.—London Public Opinion.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE appearances in the old world indicate war. France covets a portion of Siam and it looks like she will be obliged to fight for it if she gets it.

MINISTER Lewis Baker has been having a red hot time of it in Nicaragua this summer, meantime the Globe, under the able management of H. P. Hall has been very much improved.

Two faithful Polk County democrats have been rewarded. H. B. Laughlin, a prominent merchant at Fisher, has been appointed postmaster at that place vice Gunder Krostue removed; and S. M. Hoff gets the St. Hilaire post-office, vice C. G. Rapp removed.

THE democrats have a majority in the lower house of congress but they have not one man in the lot as brainy as big Tom Reed, and they are anxiously hunting for a substitute. They can't find him in their entire party.

Ex-president Harrison, in an interview upon the financial situation of the country is disposed to take a very pessimistic view of the situation hardly warranted by the facts in the case. While it is bad enough we do not concur with him in the idea that there is not just a little bit of daylight ahead.

THE St. Paul banks have served notice that they will handle no more checks on outside banks except to take them for collection. This is a hardship on the country dealer that can be averted by trading at some other wholesale centre until banks take a sensible view of the question again.

As strange as it may seem there were a few of the G. A. R. boys who voted for Grover at the last election. We wonder how they feel now in view of the action of the administration on the pension matters? Grover Cleveland is not and never has been a friend to the Northern soldier. What little sympathy he has for soldiers is given to the veteran of the rebel army.

It is perhaps not much consolation to Red River Valley farmers to know that hay is very scarce in England and sells at $50 per ton in the London market. But the fact that hay is being shipped from New York to the English market in large quantities, and that the crop in the eastern and middle states is reported to be very short may be significant. We have thousands of tons that could be cut in the Valley and if it could be sold to net the farmers $8 or $10 it would be a bonanza to him.

THE St. Hilaire Spectator says that section is opposed to the proposed county division scheme. It seems strange to us that any farmers in the county could be found who would favor the scheme—and yet there are some, we are told. Well, P. T. Barnum made several large fortunes acting upon the theory that people like to be humbugged, and that phase of human nature does not seem to be changed much.

CHINCH BUGS.

Prof. Lugger is in the south part of the state experimenting with chinch bugs. The Prof. claims to have found a method for killing those pests. At some institute in Kansas the bugs can be innoculated with the spores of a disease that is fatal to chinch bugs, a disease that is contagious. The Prof. has secured a quantity of bugs which he will take to the Kansas institute for the cure and will then turn them loose upon the chinch bug community in Southern Minnesota. Efforts were once made to have an appropriation from our legislature to enable the experimental station to provide the means for innoculating vermin in our own state which would have saved the crop of Southern Minnesota this year, but our solons were too busy with other matters to attend to it and now if we need bug-juice we must borrow it of bleeding Kansas and by the time it can be made operative the crop for this summer will be destroyed. Had this been procurable in our own state it is thought that the crop might have been saved.

Of the Northwest the Little Falls Transcript says:

"We here in the northwest sometimes think our cities have been over boomed, but still when compared with the mushroom cities of the much talked of golden shores of the Pacific, the growth has been very legitimate here in the northwest. There is no section of the country that has been more neglected by the professional boomer than Northern Minnesota, nor does any part of the vast area of the United States offer greater inducements than this same section. The whole north half of the state is very thinly populated, although it is rich in undeveloped resources. It possesses mineral and lumbering wealth in abundance and much of the land is excellent. The pine barrens cover comparatively but a small portion of it. Northern Minnesota is the termini of two continental lines of railway and also the western terminus of the greatest lines of lake and river commerce on the globe. From a great city on the western terminus of Lake Superior many lines of railway must soon radiate. And these lines will branch off into Northern Minnesota. A few years ago there was great activity in railroad building, principally on the great prairies. But there is a defective rainfall on them. Yet Northern Minnesota with its dense vegetable growth, numerous small lakes and proximity to the great lakes will always have an abundant rainfall. And a sufficient precipitation of moisture is the first great requisite of every country. There has now for several years, with the exception of the Great Northern coast line, been little railroad building, but with the dawn of better times there will unquestionably be great railroad activity in Northern Minnesota. Vast industries for manufacturing railway rails have been established in this country, and since the cessation of railroad building here they have been obliged to a great extent to seek a market for their rails in remote parts of the globe, Australia and India. The hitherto latent resources of the earth, the mines, have been developed, and with the greatly reduced price of iron and steel, and of labor, Northern Minnesota cannot long remain without railroads. Look upon the map of the United States and you will find no section so far east so devoid of them. Besides Minnesota has the iron ore, the lumber and the men with which to built her own lines. Look out for the next boom in Northern Minnesota."

We give the following item, that is going the rounds, for what it is worth. Our own experience in the matter has been that it is best to sell wheat when you get ready, and in nine cases out of ten the early fall price has been the best:

The Journal of Agriculture of St. Louis treating editorially of the condition of the present wheat crop and the probable advance in prices, says the best American and European authorities agree that the world's deficiency will be at least 100,000,000 bushels. The most reliable figures now place the total American crop of 1893 at about 383,000,000 bushels which, added to the surplus carried over, will make less than 450,000,000 bushels, England will want probably 250,000,000 and the home trade needs 370,000,000 bushels. The Journal believes that in view of the fact that the American crop is 130,000,000 bushels short as compared with last year and as Europe with a short crop is now grabbing up American wheat as fast as she can without attracting too much attention, the time has come when American farmers should not sell a bushel of wheat at present prices. For granting, it says, that prices do not advance, it will pay much better to feed to stock than so sell at present figures.

Is Your Pension Withheld?

The pension bureau has notified a great many pensioners throughout the country who are drawing pension under the act of June 27th, 1890, known as the dependent pension act, that payment of their pension will be suspended for 60 days, during which time they are required to show cause why they should continue to draw pensions. The testimony necessary to prevent their being dropped from the rolls is the certificate of a reputable physician, attested to by two witnesses, to the effect that the pensioner is precluded from active labor owing to injuries or disability not a result of his own vicious habits. In case no attention is paid to the department notification within 60 days, the pensioners will be dropped from the rolls. On the other hand, should the necessary certificate, properly drawn up and signed, be forwarded to the pension bureau, the pensioner will be requested to appear before the local board of medical examiners for examination as to his condition.

It is estimated at the pension office, although the work has but recently been begun, that something over 1,000 suspensions have already been made.

Mr. Gladstone is one of those cautious people who do not destroy letters. The venerable statesman is said to have a collection of 60,000 letters deposited in a strongroom at Hawarden castle.

A farmer near Spartanburg, S. C., had missed many eggs of late, so he decided to set a trap and catch the offender. The thief, he claims, proved to be a large frog.

Educational accomplishment has always been desirable, but its need is now more plainly felt than ever before, and its attainment is better provided for.

In a perfect state of being, wit and humor could not exist because both depend upon imperfection or incongruity for their matter.

A copy of the first dictionary, made by Chinese scholars in the year 1109 B. C., is still preserved among the archives of the Celestials.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

St. Paul plasterers won their strike for an eight hour day at $3.50

The Satolli reception will occur at the Ryan hotel, St. Paul, Friday.

The jury in the Ortonville libel suit of Mayor Schoen against Editor Whitman, disagreed.

Winona Poles reiterate that they will have no priest but Father Misicki. They will appeal to Satolli.

William Taggart of McKinley was committed to the Duluth jail on a charge of having beaten a horse's brains out.

Fourteen farmers' institutes were held in the Northern portion of the state during June and July. All were well attended.

Detectives are looking for a Miss Ease, who is said to have passed forged checks on several St. Paul retail dry goods stores last week.

M. J. Dowling, editor of the Renville Star, a man with neither hands nor legs, has been arrested by order of the village council for not working poll tax.

Secretary Hart reports the population of the state charitable and correctional institutions for the first six months of 1893 to be 3,854, against 3,596 in 1892.

According to Bradstreet's St. Paul has had but 6 failures since May 1, involving a total of $34,500, as against 11 for the same period last year, involving $287,278.

The state auditor has received 25 cents a ton royalty on 6,739 tons of ore taken from section 16, town 58, range 17. This is the first royalty received by the state from its mineral lands.

The conductor and engineer of a St. Paul and Duluth train were arrested at Hickley Saturday night for violating the law which requires passenger trains to stop at all county seats. Pine City was the county seat passed.

It was estimated last week that there were from 3,000 to 4,000 unemployed men in St. Paul and Minneapolis, the majority being from outside the cities. Large numbers are sent to the harvest fields daily, but the supply holds out.

Gus Olson, who had charge of a dynamite storage shed at East Minneapolis, went into the shed for some purpose Friday. He came out in little bits, the largest piece of him found being a part of a thigh. Just how it happened is not known.

Governor Nelson has received notice from Secretary Gresham that the Italian government had complained of negligence on the part of many of the states in reporting the death of Italians in this country without apparent heirs as required by treaty, and asking that close attention be paid to this.

The mystery of the famous window in the Catholic church at Canton has been solved. It is said Father Jones, the priest in charge, is a hypnotizer, and that whomsoever he wills sees the picture. It is further said that beside his salary he has taken in $15,000 as gifts from those who thought themselves benefitted.

Southwestern Minnesota editors met last week at Luverne. The officers elected for the ensuing year are E. H. Huntington, Windom Reporter, president; E. J. Lynch, St. James Journal, vice president; John E. King, Adrian Democrat, secretary; V. B. Crane, Jackson Pilot, treasurer. The association selected Windom for its next meeting.

The case of the Bohn Manufacturing company against W. C. Hollis, representing the Northwestern Lumbermen's association, was decided by the supreme court in favor of the association. The lower court enjoined the association from sending out notice to the effect that the Bohn company had violated the association's agreement. This was overruled.

During the past year thousands of dollars worth of property have been stolen from box cars at Wabasha. Sunday night $750 worth of clothing was taken. The property was traced to the residence of Otto Burkhardt, son of Senator Burkhardt, and a close watch kept. Monday night the watchers caught Burkhardt, Fred Trichter, August Sanger and Henry Smith, all residents of Reed's Landing. They were arrested and with them a stranger, who is thought to be the man who disposed of the stolen goods.

COST OF EDUCATION.

Some Interesting Statistics Furnished by Professor Hyde.

ST. PAUL, July 24.—Professor Hyde, assistant superintendent of public instruction, has prepared a statement of the cost of education in the state. He shows that the cost of maintaining the public schools of Minnesota each year is $3,100,000, and the annual cost of all the public educational institutions of the state, exclusive of those at Faribault, is $3,339,000. The cost of the high schools is $33,000, and the university $140,000. Of the university support $75,000 is received from the national government and $65,000 from the state. The annual cost of the normal schools is $84,000, and that of teacher institutes and summer training schools $27,000. Of the total cost of the schools $410,000 is received from the government, $600,000 from the state 1-mill tax, and a like amount from the local 1-mill tax, making in all $1,200,000; from licenses and fines collected by county auditors, $90,000, and from the special tax levy by districts, $1,400,000.

At this rate the annual cost per pupil in the common schools is $10, but including university education and the entire system it is $11. The cost in the common schools is divided between the funds as follows: Given by the general government, $1.25; state tax, $2.25; district compulsory tax, $2; voluntary tax, $4.50. The cost of the teachers' institute is $2.66 2-3 per pupil.

WAS A FAKE CONFESSION.

Gallagher Retracts His Story of the Homestead Poisoning.

PITTSBURG, July 21.—At 3:10 p. m. Patrick Gallagher, the confessor, requested the presence of Warden Wright in his cell in the penitentiary. Warden Wright responded at once. Gallagher said:

"Warden, I have been in h—l all night and wish to say to you now that the confession made by me was all a hatched up scheme and that I was dragged into it. I wish now to retract everything that was said in that confessional and wish that you would send for the attorneys interested, as I will decline to sign the confession."

Warden Wright immediately notified District Attorney Bartlett and Attorney Burleigh by telephone and they hurried to the penitentiary with all haste. After a 3-hours' talk with Gallagher, District Attorney Burleigh came out and said that Gallagher had declared under oath that every statement he made was absolutely false, and that he, Dempsey, Beatty and Davidson are guilty as indicted. He broke down and cried like a child. Warden Wright said that Gallagher had a bundle of manuscript which he took as the foundation of his little speech, which was prepared for him on the outside of the penitentiary.

ADVICE TO FARMERS.

Journal of Agriculture Predicts Higher Prices For Wheat.

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—The Journal of Agriculture of this city, treating editorially of the condition of the present wheat crop and the probable advance in prices, says the best American and European authorities agree that the world's deficiency will be at least 100,000,000 bushels. The most reliable figures now place the total American crop of 1893 at about 383,000,000 bushels, which, added to the surplus carried over, will make less than 450,000,000 bushels. England will want probably 250,000,000 bushels, and the home trade needs 370,000,000 bushels. The Journal believes that in view of the fact that the American crop is 130,000,000 bushels short as compared with last year and as Europe with a short crop is grabbing up American wheat as fast as she can without attracting too much attention, the time has come when American farmers should not sell a bushel of wheat at present prices. For granting, it says, that prices do not advance, it will pay much better to feed to stock than to sell at present figures.

Phenomenal Crop in Manitoba.

WINNIPEG, July 21.—The propects of an enormous yield of all kinds of grain in Manitoba this year are of the most flattering nature. Reports from all sections of the province are favorable. But once in the history of the province has the outlook been so favorable at this date, and the prediction is freely and confidently made that the fast-ripening crop will rival, if not exceed, the phenomenal crop of 1887.

NEED MORE AID.

Mistaken Impression That the Pomeroy People Are Well Fixed.

POMEROY, Ia., July 21.—The relief committee have issued a lengthy appeal, stating they are already confronted with a scarcity of money and means to do what should be done—principally to build up homes for the unfortunate sufferers from the cyclone. The committee says the impression seems to have gone abroad that ample money has been contributed to meet all needs, but there is not half enough, and it is their wish that the good citizens of Iowa and elsewhere respond more liberally with money to accomplish the desired end.

Ex-Governor Stone Dead.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 19.—Ex-Governor Stone of Iowa died at Oklahoma O. T., and will be buried at Knoxville, Ia., Friday.

Candidate For Governor.

BOSTON, July 20.—The Post announces that Mayor Matthews of Boston, is in the field as a candidate for governor.

LATEST MARKET PRICES.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, July 25, 1893.

HOGS—Not enough hogs received for a market and receipts held over. Eastern markets higher.

CATTLE—Steady but quiet; light demand. Prime steers, $2.75@3.50; good steers, $2.25@2.75; prime cows, $2.50@2.75; good cows, $2.00@2.50; common to fair cows, $1.00@2.00; light veal calves, $3.50@4.50; heavy calves, $1.25@2.00; stockers, $1.50@2.00; feeders, $2.00@2.50; bulls, $1.50@2.00.

SHEEP—Dull. Muttons, $3.00@4.00; lambs, $2.75@3.90; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.00.

Receipts—Hogs, 25; cattle, 100; calves, 20.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 25, 1893.

WHEAT—July closing, 60⅝c; August closing, 60⅞c; September opening, 62⅝c; highest, 63⅝c; lowest, 62c; closing, 63⅝c. December opened 68c; highest, 69⅝c; lowest, 67⅝c; closing at 69⅝c. On track—No. 1 hard, 65c; No. 1 Northern, 63c; No. 2 Northern, 60@61c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, July 25, 1893.

CATTLE—Steady.

HOGS—Strong; 15@20c higher. Heavy, $5.50@6.00; mixed and medium, $5.55@6.05; light, $5.70@6.50.

SHEEP—Steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 18,000; hogs, 13,500; sheep, 11,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 25, 1893.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—August, 64⅛c; September, 67⅛c.

CORN—July, 40⅛c; August, 41c; September, 41c.

OATS—July, 28c; August, 25⅛c; September, 25⅝c.

PORK—September, $19.90.

LARD—September, $10.12½.

SHORT RIBS—September, $8.12½.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—July, 65c; August, 65⅜c; September, 68⅝c.

CORN—July, 40⅛c; August, 39⅞c; September, 41⅛@41⅝c.

OATS—July, 28⅛c; August, 25⅞c; September, 25⅝c.

PORK—July, $20.00; September, $20.50.

LARD—July, $9.90; September, $10.20.

SHORT RIBS—July, $8.27½; September, $8.37½.

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences. Indigestion, headache, nausea, biliousness, and vertigo indicate certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy. Mrs. M. A. BROCKWELL, Harris, Tenn., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is and have induced many to use it."

No Better Medicine,

"Thirty-five years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 80 years old; but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 210 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread."—H. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.

AYER'S PILLS

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Every Dose Effective

Best Trains for World's Fair.

The best equipped and most complete trains from Minneapolis and St. Paul for Chicago and World's Fair run via "The North-Western Line."

"World's Fair Express" leaves Minneapolis 5:45, St. Paul 6:25, every evening except Sunday, arrives Chicago 7:45 a. m., and is equipped with free reclining chair cars and gas-lighted, vestibuled buffet sleepers, and because of its early arrival in Chicago is the best train to take for the World's Fair as it gives a long day in Chicago.

"North-Western Limited" leaves Minneapolis 7:30, St. Paul 8:10 o'clock, every night in the year and arrives Chicago 9:30 next morning. This is the easiest riding, finest equipped train west of Chicago, having both Pullman and Wagner private compartment sleepers and Buffet smoking library coaches, and is the only palatial train of its kind in America on which no extra fare is charged.

"Badger State Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:20, St. Paul 8:00 o'clock, every morning in the year and arrives Chicago 9:35 p. m., and is equipped with modern day coaches and luxurious parlor cars. It means the best service, the most complete comfort and the greatest luxury when your tickets to Chicago read, via "The North-Western Line." For illustrated World's Fair guide and map folder free address,

T. W. Teasdale,
Gen'l Passenger Agent,
[13-4] St. Paul, Minn.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION

Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

PROBATE NOTICE.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, July 18th 1893.

In the matter of the estate of Lena Tommedahl deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of Rasmus J. Solibakke of the County of Kittson representing, among other things, that Lena J. Solibakke late of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 3rd day of June A. D. 1893, at the County of Nicollet died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of her death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and the said petitioner is the guardian of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Rasmus J. Solibakke granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court, on Friday the 11th day of August A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate office, in the City of Crookston in said County.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 18th day of July A. D. 1893.

By the Court.
C. M. BENSON.
[14-16] Judge of Probate.

Congress

WILL NOT BE IN SESSION

UNTIL AUGUST 7TH.

—BUT—

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

WILL BE IN SESSION RIGHT ALONG

To help regulate the financial condition of Polk County with the

BEST GOODS

—AT THE—

LOWEST PRICES.

CONFIDENCE

In the ability of the government is what is now most needed, and Confidence in Our Ability and Methods is Already Established.

You can make money by trading with Fontaine & Anglim.

Crookston Normal College

—AND—

BUSINESS INSTITUTE.

Preparatory, Teachers', Collegiate, Elocutionary, Commercial and Musical Courses.

Courses Short and practical.

Gives a good practical education in less time, and less expense than any other school in the Northwest.

Special classes for those deficient in the English language. Students can enter at any time.

Board $1.50, and $1.75 per week. Room 35 and 60 cents per week. Tuition $10 per term.

School Opens October 3d, 1893.

For Catalogue address,

M. L. TUVE, Principal.

P. J. CHRISTENSEN,
Associate Principal.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

HE SEES NO MOSES

TO LEAD THE BUSINESS WORLD OF DARKNESS.

Ex-President Harrison Interviewed on the Financial Situation—He Takes a Pessimistic View—Personally He Pities President Cleveland.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The World prints the following as ex-President Harrison's expression on the existing business depression:

"The Sherman act is not alone responsible for the prevailing want of confidence that this country now experiences. The distrust is not against silver alone. The Sherman act has served its purpose, it is true, but it is not responsible

For the Depression

which overhangs commerce, trade and agriculture. The present party in power came in on a statement of its principles formulated and promulgated at Chicago, where a gathering, which represented a diversity of political beliefs and policies, gave this statement to the country as the platform of the Democratic party. It was announced to the country that the existing system of tariff should be modified to the extent of a Tariff for Revenue Only.

On this basis the candidates of the party now in power were elected. The enormous manufacturing interests were, of course, duly impressed and became compelled to suit themselves to the condition to which the Chicago platform must logically lead.

"It is impossible to bridge over suddenly the wide chasm intervening between comparative free trade and the protective system under which the nation grew rich without prolonged convulsions in trade. Great economic changes

Do Not Adjust Themselves

with celerity, hence, fearing changes, factories stop, workshops close and prices shrink. If the Chicago annunciation of principles is to be maintained business must prepare for a change. According to its principles the government is pledged to reduce the tariff to the standard of the Chicago convention. The business of the country cannot prosper under the circumstances. Distrust is widespread, everything languishes. The heterogeneous political elements that will meet at Washington in August will represent free trade and many theories

Contrary to Business Stability.

The conservative people of the country stand aghast at the possibilities of legislation and are trimming sails to suit the weather. The outlook is dark, because it is difficult to see how relief is to come. The distrust might be dispelled, perhaps, but how? In one sense the situation is theatrical; excitement may be calmed by a stroke of inspiration. A panic is sometimes avoided by a band striking up a popular air, just as the frightened crowd is about to rush and Trample Over One Another.

"How can the present somewhat analogous situation be changed by suddenly inspiring confidence? The leaders of the party in power will scarcely acknowledge that its principles are mistaken ones. That the Chicago platform was false and should be repudiated. I can see no Moses at present who will lead the business world out of its Egyptian darkness."

General Harrison sympathizes personally with President Cleveland, who is carrying, he thinks, about as heavy a burden as mortal man can bear up under.

CONFIDENCE IS RETURNING.

Nearly All Suspended Banks Will Resume—Situation Brighter.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—As viewed at the treasury department, the week begins with brighter financial prospects. A number of the recently failed banks are taking the necessary steps to resume, and Comptroller Eckels is lending them all the aid possible. He was notified that the failed First National bank of Kendallville, Ills., and the failed Northern National bank of Big Rapids, Mich., would probably resume this week. The First National Bank of Santa Anna, Cal., which resumed business on Saturday after a short suspension, received in deposits $12,000 while the withdrawals amounted to only $6,000. This is regarded here as an evidence that confidence is being practically restored on the Pacific coast.

GATHERING OF THE CLANS.

Party Leaders Will Be In Washington by Aug. 1.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Aug. 1 has practically been decided upon as the date for the assembling in Washington of the leaders of the next house, and also for the return of a majority of the cabinet. The president will reach here, it is thought, not later than Aug. 3, in order to consult with the men who are to make the battle for the repeal of the Sherman law. Speaker Crisp expects to arrive in Washington Aug. 1. The members of the cabinet are all planning to be here by that time.

Stanford's Successor.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Governor Markham settled the vexed question of the senatorial succession by appointing George C. Perkins as the successor of Stanford in the United States senate. This action was a surprise, as it was expected the honor would be given to M. H. De Young, M. M. Estee or Irwin Stump. Perkins is an ex-governor of California, and has filled many state offices. He was born in Maine in 1829.

Fifteen Indicted.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The treasury department is informed that 15 persons, eight of them federal officials, have been indicted at Portland, Or., for smuggling Chinese and opium into the United States.

RAILROAD DEALS.

Hill Gets the Sioux City and Northern—The Pacific Short Line.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 19.—It is announced that the changes that had been expected a long time in the ownership of roads built by local capitalists, will take effect soon. President Hill of the Great Northern is here. It is said his line is to take the management of the Sioux City and Northern, while the Illinois Central will take the Pacific Short Line, running into Nebraska. The Central will also take the unfinished bridge of the Missouri River Bridge company and complete it. It is announced that it will

Extend the Short Line

to the West in one or two years, probably to Denver. This is the first road owned by the Central west of the Missouri river. President Fish of the company was here a few days ago and confirmed these statements substantially. His line will make other important improvements here this year, and will run its trains into the union depot now being finished. It has been expected for a long time the Great Northern would take the Sioux City and Northern, but it did not want the Pacific Short Line, and there was delay on account of negotiations to dispose of that road to the Central.

A. J. DREXEL'S WILL.

Large Charitable Bequests Made to Philadelphia Institutions.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—The will of the late Anthony J. Drexel was probated during the morning.

By the will Mr. Drexel devises $1,000,000 to the German hospital at Philadelphia, and $1,000,000 as a fund for the establishment of a public art gallery at Philadelphia. His books, pictures and works of arts are given to the Drexel Institute.

Other Bequests.

He creates six separate funds of $1,000,000 each for the benefit of the six children left by his deceased daughters, Mrs. Biddle and Mrs. Paul, each having left three children. He provides for the acquirement by his estate of the full control of The Public Ledger after the demise of George W. Childs, in accordance with an agreement now in existence, and leaves it within the discretion of his executors whether corporations shall be secured for the control and maintenance of the Drexel building and of The Public Ledger. He provides for the continuance of the Drexel interest in the firms of Drexel & Co., Drexel, Morgan & Co. and Drexel, Harjes & Co. Mr. Drexel further devises the sum of $500,000 to James W. Paul Jr., his son-in-law, as a token of his affection.

The estate is generally believed to be worth $30,000,000, and it will be seen by the document that fully $8,000,000 is directly disposed.

SHELLED MANAGUA.

Nicaragua Insurgents Carry War to the Capital.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 25.—The city of Managua, was under bombardment by the revolutionists for four hours during the morning.

Two of the steamers seized by the Leons when they started the revolt appeared off Managa at 4 a. m. They opened fire at once and continued to shell the city until 8 o'clock. Thirty shells in all were thrown into the city. Considerable damage was done to public buildings and private houses, and two persons were killed.

No notice of the proposed bombardment was given, but the shelling was begun before the women and children had a chance to leave the city. One shell burst near the house occupied by Minister Baker and his daughters. Minister Baker has sent a protest to the leaders of the revolution against the violation of the rules of civilization and acts of barbarism in shelling the city without first giving notice.

THE POWERS NOTIFIED.

France Announces Its Intention to Blockade Siamese Ports.

PARIS, July 25.—The government has notified the powers that it intends to establish a blockade of the Siamese coast without prejudice to other measures that may be taken with the object of securing to France the guarantee to which she is entitled.

Preparing to Resume.

DENVER, July 25.—Bank Examiners Laxar and Aschurch had a conference with representatives of the six suspended national banks of Denver during the afternoon to arrange for the bringing about of a speedy resumption of business. So far as the affairs of the different banks had been looked into the examiners were convinced that their business has been honestly administered

Said Powderly Will Resign.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The Sun says: It is reported on good authority that T. V. Powderly is going to resign as general master workman when the general convention of the Knights is held in October. The order is in a bad way and the per capita tax would not be enough to pay the salaries of the officers if there was no money in the treasury.

Located Normal Schools.

MADISON, Wis., July 22.—The board of normal school regents has decided upon the location of the two normal schools, for the establishment of which the legislature appropriated $70,000. One will go to West Superior and the other to Stevens Point.

State Funds Gone.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A Herald special from Topeka, Kan., says: There seems to be a shortage on the records of the auditor of state, credited with the sale of public lands which amounts to about $86,000, and embraces about 80 counties.

HELD RESPONSIBLE

CORONER'S VERDICT IN THE WORLD'S FAIR FIRE.

Director of Works Burnham, Chief Murphy, J. B. Skinner, and Charles A. Macdonald Guilty of Criminal Negligence.

CHICAGO, July 19.—After its prolonged investigation the coroner's jury investigating the world's fair cold storage calamity, reached a verdict at 5:30 p. m. The jury held to the grand jury the following persons: D. H. Burnham, director of works at the world's fair; Fire Marshal Edward Murphy of the world's fair fire department; J. B. Skinner, president of the Hercules Iron company; Charles A. Macdonald, secretary and treasurer of the Hercules Iron company.

The evidence was concluded at 3:20 p. m. and Coroner McHale at once gave the case to the jury. The jury reached its conclusion much more quickly than the time they were out would indicate, as there were 16 deaths, the causes of which they were called upon to consider and each represented a separate case. The verdict was the same in all the cases and read as follows:

We, the jury, find that the deceased came to their deaths from injuries and burns received at a fire of the Cold Storage building at the world's fair grounds on July 10, 1893. We, the jury, find from the evidence presented, that Charles A. McDonald, John B. Skinner, D. H. Burnham and Edward W. Murphy be held to the grand jury for criminal negligence and there held until discharged by the course of law.

TRUE BILLS.

Indictments Found Against Ainsworth and Others.

COLONEL F. C. AINSWORTH.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The grand jury has found a true bill against Col. Frederick C. Ainsworth, chief of the record and pension division of the war department, George W Dant, the contractor employed to make the excavation for the electric light plant, William E. Covert, superintendent, and Francis Sasse, engineer of the building, holding them responsible for the Fords old theatre disaster of June 9 last in which 23 persons lost their lives and a large number of others were injured.

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY.

Jury In the Mead Murder Case Out Only Twenty-four Minutes.

WAUPACA, Wis., July 21.—Just 24 minutes after Judge Bardeen finished his charge to the jury in the Mead case a verdict was rendered of not guilty and three happy men walked up with tears in their eyes and shook hands with the jurymen. The feelings of the people of Waupaca and vicinity is intense. Criminations and recriminations have been a feature of this trial to an extent never before heard in this court. Nearly all witnesses of any importance have been contradicted by other witnesses and a state of tumult and anger has resulted that years cannot eradicate.

The defendants in this case were Sam Stout, Tad Prior and Edward Bronson. The trial has lasted six weeks and the result will no doubt end in quashing the indictments against A. R. Lea, A. J. Poll, David Holmes and Rodney Chesley. Mead was a banker, and while working over his books on the night of Oct. 9, 1883, was shot and robbed of $3,000 in cash and $5,000 in bonds. Several persons have been arrested during the 10 years that have elapsed, and one, a man named Vandecar, barely escaped conviction. The claim was made in the case that just ended that Mead was murdered by a gang of young men who were out for a lark, and only intended to frighten the old man, but being recognized killed him and took the money. Lea has become a leading merchant of the town, and was a member of the legislature when he was indicted. Bronson is now a leading merchant of Tacoma, Wash.

Was a Costly Trial.

WAUPACA, Wis., July 22.—Attorney Goldberg entered a nolle prosequi in the cases of A. R. Lea, Rodney Chesley, A. G. Poll, Clarence Sherman and David Holmes, who were indicted as accessories to the murder of Banker Mead. William Hanscomb alone remains in durance vile and Mr. Goldberg says he shall prosecute him for perjury. The estimated cost of the case is $30,000 to $40,000.

Moliter Murderers Sentenced.

ALPENA, Mich., July 24.—Jacobs, Fuhrmann, Vogle and Repke, who were convicted of the murder of Albert Moliter, received their sentences. When asked by Judge Kelly if they had anything to say, all of the prisoners expressed themselves as being not guilty. Repke was the only one of the four who broke down. The judge then sentenced them to imprisonment for life at hard labor at Jackson prison. They will arrive at Jackson on Monday.

Jenkins Will Not Resign.

MILWAUKEE, July 20.—Judge Jenkins will not resign from the bench of the United States circuit court in consequence of his indictment by the grand jury as a director of the Plankinton bank. He has reached this decision since a conference with Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court and his circuit court confreres. The chief justice will personally lay Judge Jenkins' case before President Cleveland.

AN IMPORTANT WORK.

Jurors of Awards at the Columbian Exposition.

NEW SYSTEM OF MR. THACHER.

A Revolution in the Method of Granting Medals or Awards After a Bitter Battle Fought Single-Handed and Alone—Comparison Between the Old and New Way of Judging.

WORLD'S FAIR, July 28.—[Special.]—For a week or more visitors at the exposition have noticed small squads of men going about among the various exhibits with catalogues and notebooks in hand and attended, usually, by the owners of the wares, or in the case of foreign exhibits often by the royal or imperial commissioners from the country whence they came, with a guard of honor in resplendent military uniform, a secretary and messenger as well. These are the examiners and jurors who are to sift out of the mass of exhibits those which are worthy the medals to be awarded for excellence or advancement. This is important work, and upon these men who go about so quietly, attended with such diligence and eagerness by interested parties, the eyes of the commercial world are now fixed. The result of their labors means a great deal to all the arts and industries represented here, to the sixty thousand or more exhibitors and the vast interests which lie behind them.

It is a tremendous task which these men have undertaken. Their business it is to examine carefully and critically every article here exhibited. They must slight nothing, must deem nothing too trivial for their attention. These are the men upon whom devolves the responsibility of summing up the achievements of the artisans, artists, mechanics, farmers and manufacturers of the whole world as mirrored in this most thorough and comprehensive of universal expositions. They will be weeks at their task, and after they shall have completed their rounds of examination they will have weeks more of labor in reducing their findings to form and in writing out their reports. When these reports are published, as they will be some time during the coming winter, we shall have the best critical judgment on the achievements of man in the world of art and fabrication that was ever formed or set down in words.

It is with a genuine feeling of satisfaction that I record a noteworthy fact in the history of this exposition. It is not only the greatest of all known expositions, but it has marked a distinct step forward in the all-important matter of granting medals or awards to exhibits and exhibitors. It was not enough for the Columbian exposition to follow the beaten track in this matter. Through the genius and the energy of a single individual, John Boyd Thacher, of Albany, N. Y., a revolution has been effected which promises to enable this exposition to accomplish more that is really valuable to civilization and to the arts than all the expositions that have preceded it. Mr. Thacher is entitled to more credit because in order to effect this revolution he has been compelled to fight a bitter battle single handed and alone.

The representatives of foreign nations did not like his new system, for reasons which I will explain. They rebelled, and made so much ado over their dissatisfaction that they alarmed the managers of the fair and Mr. Thacher soon found not only all the representatives of foreign nations and exhibitors but the very men who should have been with him up in arms against him. To add to the difficulty, the press of Chicago maligned and misrepresented him. They lied about his plan, and ridiculed him personally. Without ever understanding what it was that Mr. Thacher was trying to accomplish, without ever taking the trouble to look into his work and ascertain if there was not some good in it, the newspaper men of Chicago hounded him in a manner which was discreditable to their profession and to the city of the exposition. Mr. Thacher was not working for glory or profit. A cultured, broad-minded, progressive man, he had seen an opportunity to mark a distinct advancement in the method of awarding prizes to exhibitors, and like the man of courage and persistency that he is he fought it out on that line with all these allies against him. He won his fight, too, and that is why I am writing this letter. He gave his time and his energies to the cause without a dollar of pay, to the neglect of his private affairs, and amid personal discomforts and annoyances which would have driven almost any man from the field. When the history of the Columbian exposition is written as it deserves to be written I predict that no name will stand higher on its roll of honor than that of John Boyd Thacher.

First let me tell you what the old system was, the system of awards that had been followed at every international exposition up to this time. It was a system in which there were juries of awards. A jury was selected for each line of exhibits, and consisted of three, five or seven men, sometimes more. They went about among the exhibits, attended by a secretary, and each man marked on a card his estimate of the artistic or commercial value of each article. For example, let us suppose we are with the committee on pianos. Mr. A. thinks a certain piano is worth 95, Mr. B. thinks it is worth only 90, while Mr. C. puts the value at 98. An average of these three estimates is made by the clerk with the aid of a lead pencil and a few figures, and the official finding of the valuation of this piano comes out as 94 1-3. Mr. B. is sure that his judgment of 90 was all the instrument was fairly entitled to, while Mr. C. is just as sure that the piano should be marked 98. The only man whose judgment has been supported by the lead pencil method is Mr. A., who has been endorsed because he happened to be about midway between the figures of his colleagues.

This method of ascertaining values or merits goes on through the entire exposition. When all the pianos have been marked the one which has the highest value is adjudged winner of the gold medal. The next highest gets the silver medal, and the third the bronze medal. Now what is the effect of this award? The manufacturer who gets the gold medal (the only one that amounts to much commercially) may be richer by half a million dollars than he was before he got it. This award is worth to him, for the purpose of advertising his instrument and extending his trade, fully that sum. If he could have gotten the award in no other way, and could have done so without being discovered, he might have been willing to pay several hundred thousand dollars in cash for it. The jury of awards has helped him mightily in his endeavor to amass a great fortune. It is a good scheme for him, but how about the other piano makers? How do they fare? Excepting the two who have received consolation awards of silver and bronze medals all are unhappy. They have been handicapped in the race for trade. They have entered a competition only to see their enemy gain an immense advantage over them, which you may be sure he will make the most of.

In other words, the exposition has resolved itself into a huge advertising auxiliary. It presumes to set one man up in fortune-making, and to hold another man down. It presents one man with a piece of metal worth half a million dollars to him, and hurts all his competitors. If this could be done on absolute lines of accuracy and infallible judgment there would not be so much objection to it. It would be still objectionable, but not so grievously so. But it cannot be done and has never been done on any infallible plan. In fact, the selection of a piano justly entitled to grand prize in this exposition would be altogether a work of fancy, of taste, of favoritism or of prejudice. It would take infinite intelligence to do that. One piano excels in tone, perhaps, another in touch, a third in durability, a fourth in some other quality. The differences between them on each of these lines is so slight that not even an expert can estimate them with certainty. His judgment must be more or less arbitrary, dependent upon his education, his tastes, his surroundings. In fact, the making of these awards of first, second and third prizes is largely a lottery, and has always been, as is shown by the granting of first prize at Paris to the pottery of one country in 1878, and first prize to another in 1879, though the same exhibitors with the same class of wares contended on both occasions. This is only one of many examples that could be mentioned of the purely arbitrary or fanciful method of granting first, second and third prizes.

JUDGES AT WORK.

The plain, blunt truth is that these big gold medals, worth fortunes to their possessors, have in the past been struggled for just as men struggle to win lawsuits. Interested exhibitors have employed skilled diplomats to handle their cases for them. They have hired lawyers, counsellors and even detectives. They have schemed and intrigued to pack the juries. The prize was worth struggling for with every art known to human ingenuity, and thus these gold lottery awards have been struggled for at every exposition in the past.

At the Vienna exposition, for instance, an American firm of beer brewers won a gold medal. No one has contended that they had the best beer in the exhibit, but they had the best managers or the best luck. Well, the gold medal the firm has estimated was worth more than a million dollars to them in working up sales in this country. With its aid they have built up the greatest brewery in America.

The most serious objection to the graded prize, competitive method of awards, aside from the scandals which often accompany the juries, the injustice to defeated exhibitors and the extravagant value given the winner on merely fanciful grounds, is that it does not help the consumer. It throws no light upon the questions in which he is interested. On the contrary, it may very easily and often does help to deceive him. To illustrate, suppose you want to buy a piano. Your circumstances are such that you want the best piano made for durability. If it has good tone and touch and other qualities, even if not the best, you will be satisfied. But durability it must have to suit your purposes. For light you turn to the award of the latest exposition. That will surely give you the evidence you want, you think. But it doesn't do anything of the sort. It only deceives you. Noting that a certain piano obtained the grand prize you naturally conclude that must be the best, and though it costs from 30 to 40 per cent. more than other makes on account of the honor awarded it by the exposition, you gladly pay the difference in order to get the best. In a short time you discover that while the piano which you have purchased has as fine a tone as any in the market it does not wear well, and that as a matter of fact for a much smaller sum you could have bought one with as good a tone and greater durability. You have a right to complain that the exposition award, which should have been a help to you, has actually been a harm.

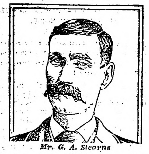
This exposition has abandoned all the old methods. There is no competition between exhibitors. There are to be no scandals, no intrigues for the glittering prizes. There are no gold medals, no silver medals, no graded medals of any sort. No man through a fancy or a shade of difference in lead pencil judgment is to be enriched while another is handicapped. The only medals to be awarded are of bronze, and all have the same value, the same inscription, the same significance. They are awarded not for the best, or second best, or third best, according to some one's fancy, but as reward of excellence or of advancement or for general usefulness of a high grade.

Best of all, each of these medals is to be accompanied by a diploma which will set forth in simple, lucid language the grounds on which the award is made. If a piano is given a medal for its touch, that fact will be stated in the diploma. If for durability, that will be set forth. If for tone, the diploma will so state. If for a combination of these qualities, the parchment will explain in what proportion. So with everything in the exposition. Everything that reaches a high stage of excellence, that shows meritorious advancement in that art, will be awarded a medal. And the public, the cause of education, the value of honest methods of advertising, will receive the benefit of this illumination by experts of all the handiworks of the arts and sciences.

When an article gets a medal at this exhibit you will know that it is a fine article of its class, that it has strong points of merit, and you will be able to ascertain just what those points are.

ROBERT GRAVES.

Hood's Cures



Mr. G. A. Stearns

Purifies the Blood

"I was attacked with a painful itching and swelling. Red blotches came out on my body. I could hardly see. Words cannot express my suffering. When I had taken six bottles of all traces of the disease had disappeared, and I am now perfectly well." G. A. STEARNS, Gravity, Iowa. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

HOOD'S PILLS cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache.

RECKITT BLOCK

MEAT MARKET,

VINE & RICHINGS, Props.

FRESH AND SALT MEATS,
—Constantly on hand.
GAME, POULTRY, FISH,
—In season.
Highest price paid for
FAT CATTE, HOGS, = =
= = SHEEP and POULTRY.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
Reckitt Bloc., - - Crookston, Minn.

John Wyatt
THE UNDERTAKER,
EMBALMER AND
FUNERAL DIRECTOR.

Besides carrying a full and complete line of COFFINS,
CASKETS
AND BURIAL SUPPLIES.
has the largest and most complete stock of Pictures, Picture Frames,
—AND—
Picture Framing Material
—In the city.—

Special discount During the Holidays.
Office 105½ Broadway,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

Valley Roller Mills.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Manufacturers of
FINE FLOURS
MADE FROM SELECTED RED
RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.

BRAN, SHORTS
AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

H. BURKHARDT, Proprietor
R. C. BURKHARDT, Business Manager.
CLEVELAND HOUSE,
CROOKSTON, ≡ ≡ ≡ MINN.
This Hotel has been Enlarged and Thoroughly Overhauled. Only first-class Dollar a Day house in the city. Good Sample Room in Connection. No. 323 N. Main street, Crookston, Minn.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

NOISE IN A BIG CITY.

PROGRESS FROM BARBARISM MAY BE MEASURED BY NOISE.

The Higher the Civilization the Greater the Desire For Less Noise—The Efforts of City Authorities of Today Are Directed Toward Reducing It.

There always comes a period in the history of a progressive community when a desire to keep down noise begins to show itself. In the primitive stages of culture—the savage, the barbarian and the semibarbarian—the passion for noise is always strong. All savages and barbarians love to make all the row they can. Their joy and sorrow both express themselves in yells, wails and shouts and the beating and blowing of loud resounding instruments, more especially the drum and the horn. The noise of primitive savage warfare almost equals that of the gunpowder engagements of modern arms, although it was, as we might say, almost wholly manual or vocal.

The din of a barbarian funeral, too, was and is something appalling. The practice of hiring mourners to make a loud lament on such occasions has come down almost to our own time among the Celtic Irish. All African travelers describe the noise of little merrymaking in an African village as something which no civilized man easily forgets. Those who have passed an evening at a Chinese theater have probably never in their wildest dreams thought it possible to produce plays with musical accompaniments of such awful shrillness and intensity.

In fact, it is hardly an exaggeration to say that the progress of a race in civilization may be marked by a steady reduction in the volume of sound which it produces in connection with its deaths, births, marriages, feasts, merrymakings, its wars and peaces, trade, commerce and manufactures. The more culture of all kinds it acquires the less noise it produces. There is no surer sign, in fact, of an upward movement of the tribal soul than the appearance of a desire to get along with less uproar. When its leading men begin to ask themselves whether this or that could not safely be done with fewer yells or smaller drums, it shows that it is becoming self conscious and is feeling the throbs of a new life. After this comes a change in the character of the musical instruments, a general lowering of the tones of the voice, the substitution at funerals of the silent tear for the half maniacal "keen," and the exaction of silence in military drill.

In cities this mental and moral growth is of course displayed in the repression of street cries, of street music, of all noises made for mere amusement, such as beating of drums, and blowing of horns, and purposeless and persistent shouting and yelling. These are but rudimentary steps, and we have already taken them in New York. The next and most important one, the reduction of the noise made by the ordinary and legitimate street traffic, we are only beginning. Its importance has been recognized in the modern world pari passu with the increasing interest in and care for public hygiene.

There is no modern city health board, and indeed no modern city doctor, who is not well aware of the evil effects of incessant noise in the vast and increasing multitudes who in all the great cities now live, one might say, by their wits, but, more accurately, by their nerves. The amount of mental operations which require silence, or at all events an approach to silence, for their healthfulness in cities like New York, London or Paris, carried on by merchants, brokers, bankers, bookkeepers, preachers, professors, architects, designers, engravers, painters, students, judges, lawyers, editors, ministers, is something enormous and grows with all our material growth. The performance of this work in the midst of tremendous uproar of any kind of course greatly increases the expenditure of vital force which accompanies all mental exertion. Consequently the reduction of city noise is now one of the most important elements in all city reforms.

In New York we have as yet only made a beginning on it by the introduction of the asphalt pavement, but this is being rapidly extended and must produce a marked effect in sound reduction before long. What this pavement does to lessen noise in the streets in which it exists everybody who has passed along them or lived on them knows. It makes conversation in cabs or carriages and in rooms facing on the street comfortable and makes sleep in summer nights with open windows an easy possibility—facts which are really a complete answer to all the complaints of slipperiness.

Better far that an occasional horse should come down than that the nerves of thousands of hardworking men and women should be continuously set on edge by clatter which is all the more wearing for being intermittent. In London the hard grinding, soul penetrating noise of the New York stone pavement has been suppressed, or rather has been largely converted into a subdued, continuous roar or boom by means of wood, asphalt and macadam, and though horses fall much on them all humanity gains.—New York Post.

A Tribute to Horses.

In view of the fact that more than half the women who drive, and the men, too, for that matter, know really nothing of the art and have no sympathy or feeling for the horse other than as a pleasant means of locomotion, it is really to be wondered at that more accidents do not happen. That they do not, I am of the opinion, should be put down to a kind Providence, and that the noble animals in very many instances know more than their drivers.—Buffalo News.

Giving an Impetus.

"Don't you think her presence will give 'go' to our party?"

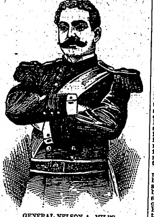
"Yes. Every one will leave as soon as she comes in."—Kate Field's Washington.

A UNIQUE CAREER.

How General Miles' Military Reputation Has Grown Since the War.

Major General Nelson Appleton Miles, recently elected president of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, has no doubt seen his biography in print many hundred times, but as he is still in active service there is always something new to say about him. Furthermore, major generals of the late war are no longer numerous, and from the standpoint of a life insurance agent General Miles has excellent chances of being among the very last survivors.

His career has been unique in many respects. He is one of the very few civilians who outran the average West Pointer in rapid promotion, for he started as lieutenant in the Twenty-second Massachusetts on Sept. 9, 1861, was colonel just a year later, brigadier early in 1864 and full major general late in 1865. He was in every battle of the Army of the Potomac except one, was wounded three times, was three times promoted for conspicuous gallantry and yet was not very well known to the nation at large at the close of the war, for brave men, even great generals, were then numerous. The extraordinary fact in his career is that he gained in military reputation, so far as the country at large is concerned, much more rapidly from 1860 to 1880 than during the war.



GENERAL NELSON A. MILES.

Sept. 1, 1866, he ceased to be a major general of volunteers and started anew as a colonel in the regular army, yet he has once more regained the higher ranks. In 1875 he subjugated the Cheyennes, Kiowas and Comanches of the Staked Plain, in 1876 the Sioux of Montana, in 1878 the Bannocks, and in later years the Apaches.

He was born in Westminster, Mass., Aug. 8, 1839, received an academic education and had just started in mercantile life in Boston when the war started. He at once began to fit himself for the service and was soon well informed in the duties of a soldier. He has been blamed by defenders of the Indian and has had a few rather bitter personal controversies, but the western people swear by him.

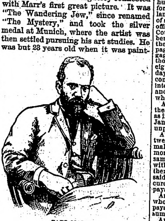
A FAMOUS AMERICAN ARTIST.

A Milwaukee Boy Who Is a Great Man In Europe.

Very impressive and worthy of close study is Carl Marr's picture of "The Flagellants," now on exhibition in the loan collection at the Art palace of the Columbian exposition. It represents a procession in Florence of the famous religious order that spread throughout southern Europe with such amazing generalness in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries and is masterful in its characterization of religious fanaticism. It was first exhibited in Munich in 1886, where it got the gold medal.

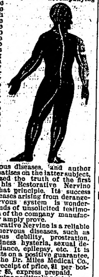
In striking contrast to "The Flagellants" is another of Marr's pictures in the loan exhibition, "Summer Afternoon," the property of Mrs. Hearst of California, which took the "ideal medal" in Berlin. It is a garden scene, with a group of women at one table and children at another. It has a marvelous blending of light and shade, the effect of the sunlight shining through the green foliage.

There is an interesting story connected with Marr's first great picture. It was "The Wandering Jew," since renamed "The Mystery," and took the silver medal at Munich, where the artist was then settled pursuing his art studies. He was but 23 years old when it was painted and undergoing all the hardships that attend beginners in the artistic world. His picture was admitted to be good, but he could not sell it. He returned to America and opened a studio and art school in Milwaukee, his native place, but here he also failed to find a purchaser for his picture. He then took it back to Europe again, where it was purchased by an English art dealer, who sold it to George F. Seney of New York. It was presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by Mr. Seney and is now considered one of the gems of that famous institution's collection.



CARL MARR.

Mr. Marr is of German parentage and was born in Milwaukee in 1858. He displayed artistic talent while a mere youth, and at the age of 17 his father sent him to Germany to study. He first attended the art school at Weimar and thence went to Berlin and Munich. He is highly appreciated in Germany.



SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY!

A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion of the mind, etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, wind in stomach, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying these organs with nerve fluid or force. This is likewise true of many diseases of the heart and lungs. The nerve system is like a telegraph system, as will be seen by the accompanying cut. The little white lines are the nerves which convey the nerve force from the nerve centers to every part of the body, just as the electric current is conveyed along the telegraph wires to every station, large or small. Ordinary physicians fail to regard this fact; instead of treating the nerve centers for the cause of the disorders arising therefrom they treat the part affected.

Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., the highly celebrated specialist and student of nervous diseases, and author of many noted treatises on the latter subject, long since realized the truth of the first statement, and his Restorative Nervine is prepared on that principle. Its success in curing all diseases arising from derangement of the nervous system is wonderful, as the thousands of unsolicited testimonials in possession of the company manufacturing the remedy amply prove.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a reliable remedy for all nervous diseases, such as headache, nervous debility, prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. Restorative Nervine positively contains no opiates or dangerous drugs.

A MEDICINE THAT MAKES GOOD BLOOD

GILMORE'S AROMATIC WINE

Will completely change the blood in your system in three months' time, and send new, rich blood coursing through your veins. If you feel exhausted and nervous, are getting thin and all run down, Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which is a tonic and not a beverage, will restore you to health and strength. Mothers, use it for your daughters. It is the best regulator and corrector for all ailments peculiar to woman. It enriches the blood and gives lasting strength. It is guaranteed to cure Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and all Summer Complaints, and keep the bowels regular.

Sold by all druggists for $1 per bottle.

Cotton Root Compound

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for COOK'S COTTON ROOT COMPOUND, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps. Address Pond Lily Company, No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by C. Anderson, S. A Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON. MINNESOTA

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS MILTON VAN DYKE UNmarried, of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 14th day of December A. D. 1889, duly execute and deliver to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company" a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio and having its principal office in the City of Cincinnati, Ohio, as mortgagee, his mortgage bearing date the 14th day of December A. D. 1889, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, viz: The west half (1-2) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred and forty nine (149) north of range forty-three (43) west, containing 320 acres of land; and which mortgage was, with the power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of December A. D. 1889 at four o'clock and 20 minutes in the afternoon in book "48" of mortgages on pages 182, 183, 184 and 185. And which mortgage was given to secure the payment of one thousand ($1000) dollars and interest thereon at eight per cent per annum payable on the 1st day of January of each year, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached made by said mortgagor and payable to the order of said mortgagee and which note became due on December 14th, 1899.

And whereas default having been made in the payment of the sum of eighty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January A. D. 1893 and the said interest is still unpaid and due.

And whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if the maker of said note shall fail to pay any of said money, either principal or interest, when the same becomes due, or to conform to, or comply with, any of the conditions, or agreements, therein contained, to be kept and performed by said mortgagor that the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall become due and payable at once.

And the said mortgagee having declared the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable and it does hereby declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable.

And whereas there is now due and payable on said mortgage the sum of one thousand one hundred twenty-eight ($1128) dollars at the date of this notice, and no action or proceedings at law, or otherwise, having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The west half (1-2) of section thirty-four (34) in township one hundred forty-nine (149) north of range forty-three (43) west, containing 320 acres of land, situated in Polk County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and the taxes if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorneys fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston in said county and state, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1893 at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated July 8th 1893.

UNION CENTRAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

ELMER C. YETTER,
[13-19] Attorney for Mortgagee,
Hallock, Kittson County, Minn.

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING

WE SUIT
Everybody Every Time.
Our Suits
Are Suits
As are Suits.
Suits that Fit to a T.

LOOK PLEASING AS A SMILE, WEAR WITHOUT BECOMING SEEDY, AND ARE CHEAPER THAN A GOOD ARTICLE IS ANYWHERE ELSE.

Who Wouldn't be Suited
With such a combination of Suitable Qualities?

That's our business, suiting the public, and we keep it up all the year 'round. We like it, and do not propose to change our business. The public, of course, like it, too, and the procession of buyers is parading to our store for their

SUMMER SUITS.

Fall in with the crowd and be made happy with a good fitting suit. Give us a call. We will use you well.

BOSTON - - - - -
One Price Clothing House.
CROOKSTON. - - - - MINN.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized 1877 under the State law. Capital $50,000. Surplus, $5,000. Undivided profits, $15,000. Special attention given to collections.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS— C. Hendrickson, Grafton, N. D. C. O. Christianson, Halvor Steenerson, Max Ericsson, J. W. Wheeler, E. P. Pierce, L. K. Aaker, D. H. Turner, A. G. Gallasch, Lewis Ellington, J. H. Locken, O. H. Lucken.

W A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

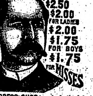
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE. IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

L. E. GOSSMAN;
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.



W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 SHOE WILL NOT RIP.
Do you wear them? When next in need try a pair.
Best in the world.

$5.00 $4.00 $3.50 $2.50 $2.25 $2.00 FOR GENTLEMEN
$3.00 $2.50 $2.00 FOR LADIES
$2.00 $1.75 FOR BOYS
$1.75 FOR MISSES

If you want a fine DRESS SHOE, made in the latest styles, don't pay $6 to $8, try my $3, $3.50, $4.00 or $5 Shoe. They fit equal to custom made and look and wear as well. If you wish to economize in your footwear, do so by purchasing W. L. Douglas Shoes. Name and price stamped on the bottom, look for it when you buy.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass. Sold by
FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

ALDERMAN
&
SYLVESTER

ARE OFFERING
SPECIAL PRICES
ON
FARM MACHINERY.

SEE THEM ABOUT IT.

SCHMIDT THE PAINTER
IS NOW ON DECK
AT THE OLD STAND ON SECOND STREET,
WITH A FULL LINE OF
PAINTS, OILS, GLASS
AND
WALL PAPER,
Ready for anything in the line of Painting or Papering. Be sure and get an estimate from me before you contract your work.
A. C. SCHMIDT.

SAAKE
Is still doing business at the old stand and selling
WATCHES,
CLOCKS
JEWELRY
CHEAPER THAN EVER.

WATCH REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
C. H. SAAKE.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements.
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
Commenced Business October, 1881.

PAID IN CAPITAL.........$100,000
SURPLUS...................... 15,500

Interest on certificates of deposit. Accounts of farmers and business men solicited.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. H. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston. Minn.

Fits.
All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

THE PRESS
(NEW YORK)
For 1893

Has a larger Daily Circulation than any other Republican newspaper n America.
DAILY. SUNDAY WEEKLY.

The Aggressive Republican Journal of the Metropolis.
A NEWSPAPER FOR THE MASSES.
Founded Dec. 1st, 1887.

Circulation over 125,000 copies daily. The most remarkable Newspaper Success in New York. The PRESS is a National Newspaper. Cheap news, vulgar sensations and trash find no place in the columns of the the PRESS.

The PRESS has the brightest Editorial page in New York. It sparkles with points. The PRESS Sunday Edition is a splendid paper, covering every current topic of interest. The PRESS Weekly Edition contains all the good things of the Daily and Sunday editions.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM
The Press has no superior in New York.

THE PRESS
Within the reach of all. The best and cheapest Newspaper in America.

Daily and Sunday, one year	$5 00
" " 6 months	2 50
" " 1 "	45
Daily only, one year	3 00
" " 4 months	1 00
Sunday, one year	2 00
Weekly Press, one year	1 00

Send for Press circular. Samples free. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal commissions.
Address THE PRESS,
38 Park Row, New York.

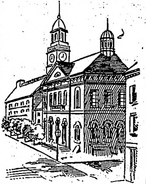
THE NATION'S PRIDE.

THE CAPITOL AT WASHINGTON IS ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

Preparations For an Elaborate Celebration of the Centennial—How Washington Laid the Cornerstone—History of the Structure—First Capitol at Philadelphia.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

Travelers say that the capitol at Washington is the finest and noblest building of the kind in the world. Of course there are finer palaces, grander fortresses and more elegant art halls in Europe than in this country and ducal or other lordly residences without number, but for a capitol proper, a building in which the supreme legislature sits, the world has not its equal. The hall of the German reichstag and that of the French assembly are fine in their way, but lacking in convenience, and as to the parliament houses of Great Britain they are not in it for comparison.



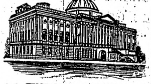
FIRST FEDERAL CAPITOL AT PHILADELPHIA.

It is therefore most appropriate that in this era of centennial celebrations the country should celebrate the beginning of our capitol, and ample arrangements are already made for a great display at Washington on the 18th of September. It was on that day in 1793, according to contemporary writers and the files of a few newspapers, that George Washington, as grand master of Virginia lodge, No. 22, of Free and Accepted Masons, did the formal act, and as president of the United States gave his official sanction at the placing of the southeast cornerstone of the original structure.

On reading the original accounts the one fact that impresses the student of history is that the accounts were so meager and so long delayed. But when one reads the full history of that time he is inclined rather to wonder that there was any account, or indeed any ceremony at all. A strange, sad summer indeed was that of 1793. All Europe was rocking in the throes of revolution and war. France, our ally in the Revolution, loved at that time by the American people with a love surpassing that of ardent woman, had risen against her ancient rulers and gone mad in the reaction from despotism. Monarchical Europe was in arms against France. Ireland was boiling with the tempestuous fury of national, racial and religious disturbance. This new nation was torn and distracted by the contending sympathizers with the two parties in Europe. And in the very hottest hour of this heated time the yellow fever suddenly broke out at the seat of government and almost depopulated the city after threatening to turn it into one vast charnel house.

The continental congress, as every American schoolboy knows, convened at Philadelphia and there drafted the great charter of our liberties, but being driven away by the British had held its sittings at other places. The convention which framed the constitution had sat at Philadelphia in 1787, but named New York as the first seat of government. The sentimental argument in favor of Philadelphia was, however, overwhelming, and the story of how this national sentiment was overcome and another place selected is one of the most curious in our history. There had been an uprising of Pennsylvania troops and a threatening of congress during the Revolution, and there had been riots in New York. It was therefore decided that the new republic should reverse the precedents of the old monarchies and that its capital should not be in a great commercial city.

At least a dozen cities and towns put in their claims, and congress wavered for nearly two years between sites on the Delaware, the Potomac and the Susquehanna. At length the last named was virtually agreed upon. But Alexander Hamilton was eager to secure the passage of his bill for assigning state debts and an arrangement, which in these days would be called a "bargain," was made between him and Thomas Jefferson. Each induced a few of his supporters to change their votes. The state debts were assumed, and on July 9, 1790, the house of representatives passed the senate bill, declaring that the seat of government should be at Philadelphia till 1800 and permanently thereafter on the banks of the Potomac. It was the pet project of Washington, and on July 16 he affixed his signature to the bill.



FEDERAL CAPITOL IN 1880.

On the first Monday in December, 1790, congress met in the courthouse at Philadelphia, and that city was the national capital for 10 years. The old colonial statehouse, in which the Declaration of Independence was signed, may be called our first capitol, and of the other places in which congress sat in its fugitive days, Nassau hall in Princeton, N. J., the courthouse at York, Pa., the Congress house in Baltimore, the old brick hall in KNOWS WHEREOF HE SPEAKS.

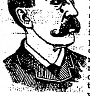
George Kennan on the New Extradition Treaty With Russia.

George Kennan, famous for his exposures of the horrors of the Russian penal system in Siberia, on his return recently from a trip to Europe expressed strong disapproval of the recently negotiated extradition treaty between the United and Russia. The points made by Mr. Kennan against the treaty are that it fails to protect naturalized American citizens of Russian birth, that it is retroactive in that it will permit the extradition of Russian refugees who may have lived out of their native land for years if they come to this country after the ratification of the treaty, and that there is nothing to prevent Russia's demanding the arrest and return of a man upon some charge specified in the treaty as extraditable and then trying and punishing him for some offense of which the treaty takes no cognizance, or even imprisoning him or banishing him to Siberia without any trial.



GEORGE KENNAN.

Few men are so well qualified as Mr. Kennan to speak with authority concerning the Russian juridical and penal systems. His travels in Siberia and Russia, his exceptionally intimate knowledge of the people and their language and his lifelong habit of investigating and digesting facts for publication all contribute to make his opinions worthy of due consideration. Mr. Kennan has devoted the better part of his life to Russia and the Russians, and his books and the magazine articles on Siberian prisons that established his fame were but the culmination of years of laborious preparation, much of it apparently fortuitous, but all of it especially valuable.

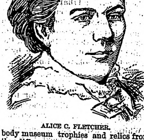
In 1865 Mr. Kennan, then but 20 years of age, undertook his first journey to Siberia in the interest of a projected Russian-American telegraph scheme. The two years of multiplied hardships that he then spent there proved an admirable preparatory school. His book, "Tent Life In Siberia," was the outcome. In 1870 he made a tour of Daghestan on horseback, traveling alone and facing dangers almost beyond belief. In 1885 and 1886 he made the great journey for which he will probably always be best remembered, but whose worth cannot be at all accurately estimated if it be considered merely by itself and separately from the experiences and influences that made the traveler's observations and deductions especially valuable. It is pretty certain that he has not said his last word about the treaty.

HARVARD'S FEMALE FELLOW.

Miss Fletcher, Who Studies Anthropology Among the Indians.

A woman of rare genius and modesty is Alice C. Fletcher, the only woman ever honored with a fellowship by Harvard university. Miss Fletcher is regularly attached to the Peabody museum of archæology and ethnology at Harvard and has for many years devoted herself to the study of the Indian race in America. She has done a great deal of original investigation and made many long visits to the Sioux, Winnebago, Nez Perce and other tribes, living in their camps and studying their language, customs, music, traditions and philosophy. It is probably within bounds to say that there is no other person on earth whose knowledge of the subject equals hers.

But Miss Fletcher's work among the Indians has a benevolent as well as scientific side. She is as much interested in the improvement of their condition as in the study of their peculiarities. The Indians regard her as their friend and treat her with a respect approaching veneration. Their friendship has enabled her to secure for the Peabody museum trophies and relics from the different tribes which had never even been seen by a white man. Among these is the sacred pole of a tribe, to which are attached the scalps of many of their noted enemies. There are also sacred arrows, connected with some of their mystic ceremonies, and the sacred pipe of the Nez Perces. The latter was presented to Miss Fletcher as a token of the tribe's appreciation after they had agreed to accept their lands in severalty, a result almost wholly due to her individual efforts.



ALICE C. FLETCHER.

Miss Fletcher was sent to Alaska by Commissioner Eaton in 1886 to investigate the educational needs of the Indians there, and the report she prepared on the subject was of such merit as to become a classic in its line and ran through several editions. Its usefulness has not yet ceased, and it is still considered authoritative at the bureau of education.

Much of Miss Fletcher's work may be said to radiate from the national capital, and her general headquarters are there. She has long held a commission as "special agent," being first appointed by President Arthur. She is president of the Anthropological society, which is a very fashionable organization, though it does good work. Mrs. Schliemann, wife of the excavator of Troy, is a member, as was the late Dr. Amelia Edwards.

THE GLOOMY SIDE.

SOME POINTS ON THE WOMEN WHO DOTE ON THE GREWSOME.

Gloating Over the Things Which Cause Them Pain—Gathering Pansies, but Looking For Snakes—Episode of a Newspaper Woman's Street Car Ride.

The other day I was riding in a street car. There were 11 women and 3 men in the same quarters. We jogged along our way as people do out of whose life all interest had been taken by a hot day, as a rude nurse snatches playthings from helpless children. Whether "school kept or not" was a matter of not the slightest moment to any of us. Indeed I had reason to hope that I should never again be confronted with bulletins as to the rise and fall of that mythical educational bureau whence we all draw more or less of knowledge fraught with bitter experience. Its pupils are so stupid and its head preceptor so unrelenting that I have long been a-weary of its curriculum.

Opposite in the car sat a young woman whom I often meet and shall continue to meet, I suppose, until the sexton shovels a few feet of dust between our faces. If she were a man, she would be in the attitude of one who is "spoiling for a fight." What is mere combativeness in men takes the form of insolence in women and is harder to bear. This young person eyes my clothes. She gloats over my shabbiness. She knows exactly how many times a day my poor old gown is groomed. She is cognizant of the fact that my off shoe has sprung a leak, and as she tosses her head and smiles the smile that, passed from woman to woman, means more than a blow I seem to hear her say: "Ha, cumberer, are you here yet? Last time I met you I thought I stared you down, but such rubbish seems hard to kill! A trifle more ridicule, though, slightly veiled, like poison in a capsule, will lay you low, and I shall have the pleasure of turning my battery upon some other God forsaken crank who appears to have more brains than style!"

We were tumbling along in the old street car, a tired and dirty lot of us, bound for the depot. As we passed a certain undertaker's shop on the way we noticed that a big crowd had collected at its doors—a hushed crowd, with white faces and bated breath. A police patrol was drawn up to the curbstone and four brawny officers were lifting something out of the wagon and carrying it within the undertaker's open gate. The something that lay beneath the old tarpaulin was very still and outlined itself sharply beneath the sable folds of the pall that covered it. I turned away from the sight, for there is that within me that revolts from such sights as the butterfly does from the thistle or the swift running boat from a capful of head wind.

I knew well enough what the "something" was. Ten minutes before perhaps it had been a man, swinging like a sailor on the uplifted ladder where the painter pursues his craft, or a careless vagabond knocked down by a passing vehicle and straightway ushered into the audience chamber of the great and only King, or a merry hearted boy spurned by a flying wheel, or a tired old woman "lifted high as heaven" by the tender arms of death. I knew very well that the awful something was once a breathing, blundering mortal like myself and that a sudden calamity had transferred it into clay, how or in what terrible manner I did not care to see. But every woman in the car in which I rode jumped from her seat to watch the grewsome thing I turned away from.

"Oh, I wish the cover would fall off so that we could see!" cried one.

"Lift Willie up so that he can look!" exclaimed a careful (?) mother, making room as she spoke for the nursegirl to place the little boy in a better position.

No sooner did all these women gain a vantage point from where they could best behold the dreadful burden which the policemen bore without either tenderness or care into the waiting station of the morgue than they began to tremble and to cry.

"Oh, dear, how dreadful!" moaned they in unison, while their fascinated gaze was unaverted and their necks were craned to see it all.

And then because I am a philosopher in my own poor fashion and can no more help philosophizing than a spider can help spinning webs I said to myself: That is the way with all of us! We seek out our own discomforts and we cultivate them with our own tears. We gloat over the very things that bring us pain and take a front seat to witness our own tragedies. Given, the most of us, a chance to spend an afternoon among the tombs or to go fishing for goldfish out of a crystal pond, and we will trot along with the mourners every time. We are always in the attitude (most of us) of the Peterkin family at the seaside. They were continually looking off shore for whales, and they saw whales and nothing but whales from season's start to season's close! What we look for we find, what we sow we reap, what we dread we draw and what we expect comes to us.

Take two girls and send them out through the divine beauty of these June woods with a basket apiece. They are after violets, we will say, although the purple drapery of the dim spirit flower has been almost withdrawn from the woods already, like a curtain uplifted by an eager hand. One of the girls is afraid of snakes and declares the sight of one would kill her on the spot. How she looks for them! How eagerly she watches every tremor of the underbrush! How she starts at a floating timothy and shrieks when a clover jostles in the wind! And she sees snakes—plenty of 'em! She goes home with an empty basket and has to take a powder to quiet her nerves. The other girl keeps her mind on violets and never sees a serpent's trail. She goes home with a basketful of flowers and dreams that she is setting sail for paradise in a purple boat with the tender green of violet stems for its oars and a sail that smells of the wood flower's perfect soul.—Amber in Chicago Herald.

The Question

is a simple one—easily decided by reason and common sense.

COTTOLENE

—the new scientifically prepared shortening—is made from beef suet and purest refined cottonseed oil. Lard is made, in the majority of cases, in the packing-house, and not as of old, from the clean leaf of the hog. Which is likely to be the most healthful? Decide for yourself. It must be

COTTOLENE

Send three cents in stamps to N. K. Fairbank & Co., Chicago, for handsome Cottolene Cook Book, containing six hundred recipes.

Cottolene is sold in three and five pound pails, by all grocers.

Made only by
N. K. FAIRBANK & CO.,
CHICAGO.

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

Is the only line running

THROUGH PULLMAN CARS

—BETWEEN—

Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

NORTH PACIFIC COAST POINTS.

THE DINING CAR LINE
Dining Cars on all through Trains.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
This marvellous Wonderland reached only by this line.

THE PEOPLE'S LINE
The people's highway from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior to Winnipeg, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Puget Sound.

THE TOURISTS' LINE
The popular line to reach Lakes Pend d' Orielle Cœur d' Alene, Kootenai, Chelan, the Hot Springs and Mountain Resorts of the Northwest and to Alaska.

DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS
Have Pullman Palace Cars, Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

THROUGH TICKETS
Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leave Crookston Daily	For St. Paul, Minneapolis Chicago, Duluth and West Superior.	6:40 p.m.
	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Brandon and Winnipeg,	7:45 a.m.

have Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car and Dining Car attached.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, call on, wire or write any agent N. P. R. R.

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

DO YOU WANT

A GOOD

HOME PAPER

Devoted to the interests of Crookston and Polk County.

THEN SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE

POLK COUNTY

JOURNAL.

IF you want to Buy or Sell anything,

Advertise in The Journal.

IF YOU WANT ANY PRINTING OF AMY KIND,

Done Quickly at Reasonable Rates,

GO TO THE JOURNAL,

COOKE & HAMMOND,

Pubs. and Props.

Chew Climax Plug

It's Much the Best.

Its name indicates it,
Its make guarantees it,
Its use will prove it.

Try it and see.

Sold everywhere. Made only by
THE P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
The oldest tobacco manufacturers in America and the largest in the World.

Great Northern Railway

TIME CARD.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Leave.		Arrive
8:05p.m. Daily.	Going south to Ada, Glyndon, Barnesville, Fergus Falls, St. Cloud, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and West Superior.	7:55p.m. Daily.
7:00a.m. Daily.	Going west to Fisher, Grand Forks, Winnipeg, Larimore, Devils Lake, Minot, Great Falls, Helena, Butte, Spokane, Seattle and Pacific Coast Points.	6:50a.m. Daily.
7:15a.m. Daily, ex Sun	Going north to Euclid, Angus, Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Hallock and Saint Vincent	7:30p m. Daily ex.Sun.
9:00a m. Mond. Wed. Fri day.	Going east to Wylie, St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls	6:00p.m. Mon. Wed. Friday.
8:00a m. Tues. Thurs Sat.	Going east to Mentor, Erskine, McIntosh, and Fosston	5:30p.m. T. T. S.

Take the Great Northern in going East, West North or South. Tickets sold and baggage checked to all principal points in the United States and Canada. Rates always as low as the lowest.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

Leaves Crookston Daily	For St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior, Ashland, Duluth, Chicago, and for all points South, East and West	at 6:40 p. m.
	For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Brandon, Winnipeg, and points north,	at 7:45 a. m.

THE MARKETS.

[Corrected weekly by the Crookston Hay and Commission Co.]

RETAIL PRICE.

Hay, per ton	$6.00@$10.00
Butter, per lb	15c
Eggs, per dozen	15c
Hogs, dressed, per cwt	$6.00@$7.00
Beef, hind quarters	4c@5c
Beef, fore quarters	2½c@4½c
Potatoes	80c
Flax Seed, per bush	$1.25
Wheat—1 Hard	48.
1 Northern	46.
2 Northern	43.
3 Northern	35.

'Round Home.

A. R. Holston and wife spent Sunday at the Lake.

Goods are sold cheaper than ever at the New York Store.

For stack covers, tents and awnings apply to J. F. Cartier. [13-24]

Farmers are very busy in the hayfields.

Go to the California wine house for choice wines and liquors for medicinal purposes. (5-tf)

Koeppe's "Our Boss" cigar is warranted a sure antidote for hot weather.

Supt. Scott and Fred Durand went out to the lake for Sunday.

Do not miss the great at cost sale that still continues at the New York Store.

Just received—a fine invoice of California wines for medical purposes, at the California wine house. (5-tf)

W. D. Wilson went down to Fargo to visit his mother last week.

Buy your clothing at wholesale prices at the New York Store.

A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

Mrs. Roy Arnold has gone to West Superior for a visit.

Anything you want in the purest wines and liquors for medicinal purposes at the California. (5-tf)

Wm. Davidson is in attendance at the fair this week.

A. Chabot needs money and will sell you goods at and below cost. Now is the time to buy.

NEW YORK STORE.

S. L. Collins & Co. have sold ten Champion binders this season.

For repairing engines and machines of all kinds apply to Feli Cartier Jr. [13-24]

T. H. Bjoin sells Buffalo Pitts threshers, engines and repairs.

Viava remedies for sale by Mrs. John Wyatt, sole agent for Polk county. Sano, sure cure for piles. I. O. O. F. block, or 105½ Broadway. [39-tf]

Deputy Sheriff Losey retuned on Sunday morning from a trip to Chicago.

A. A. Miller returned on Wednesday morning from a six weeks vacation, during which time he visited the World's fair.

A lovely shower on Monday was a good thing for potatoes and grass.

Plenty of hay on the market, $5 asked and generally $4 paid after waiting one day on the market.

Mrs. Overland was brought before Judge Benson last week to be examined as to her insanity and was sent to St. Peter.

Rev. R. H. Battey will exchange with Rev. J. G. Smith and preach at the Congregational church in this city next Sabbath.

The office of the Red River Dalen has been moved into the new building on Second street adjoining Schmidt the painter, on the east.

From the number of mowers one sees going out of the city every day one would judge that a great deal of hay is to be put up this year.

Potatoes from California have been selling at $2 per bushel. New potatoes round in the country are being brought in and sold at $1.60.

Geo. Benoy and John Ristow were in Monday preparing for haying. Mr. B. informed the JOURNAL reporter that his crops promise finer than any he has had in several years.

Cleary Bros. delivery rig started from the hill on Monday morning and ran toward the store the wagon being upset and somewhat demoralized but no other damage resulting.

Ten ($10) dollars reward for the recovery of a tent stolen on Main street and denouncement of the party that stole it in the night of need the 19th, inst. will be paid by J. F. CARTIER.

W. G. Hunt was in last week intending to go out to McIntosh on Saturday morning's train but over slept and the last we saw of him—about 5 p. m., he was still-Hunt—ing a chance to ride out.

E. M. Walsh, who was up at Red Lake Falls last week says much improvement in the crops is noticable up that way. He thinks they will have a half a crop all right enough where only a quarter was expected.

Comrade H. W. Cleveland was in from Mentor last week trying to arrange for a G. A. R. picnic excursion to the lake shortly. He has been largely increasing his facilties for caring for his guests and intends to be ready to care for all who apply.

John Crawford took possession of his new house on Jerome's addition last Friday. Mr. C. has a very neat and tasty residence and an acre or so of ground surrounding it on which is growing as fine a lot of garden stuff as can be found in a day's travel.

Rev. R. H. Battey writes the JOURNAL from Stephen under date of July 26th: "A nice rain all the farmers here has welcomed gladly. The rains we have been having at Crookston recently have not reached here and rain was needed very much, but there will be a fair harvest of wheat and oats. In my 20 mile drive yesteaday I passed large wheat fields that should yield 25 bushels per acre."

Chas. Greenhalgh brought in new potatoes and some garden stuff for sale on Monday. The potatoes he sold at $.125 per bushel and even at that figure he says it does not pay to dig them yet as more than half the yield is wasted by digging while the potatoes are so young. The roots are full of sets, which, of course are destroyed by digging and the potatoes one does dig are not half grown.

A. A. Glenn is at work raising the second-hand store buildings on Broadway adjoining Monroe's shop. We are told that Mr. Norblad intends to build in between the two buildings so as to make room to store his second-traps. If he finds it difficult to dispose of them we would suggest that he take them up on the block recently occupied as a ball park—we would guaranty there wouldn't be a thing left inside of a week.

Deputy Coroner Wyatt went over to East Grand Forks last Saturday to hold an inquest on the body of Nels Harquist, who was drowned at that place on Friday. Harquist with three companions, was bathing in the river in the rear of Ed. Anderson's place, and getting beyond his depth and being unable to swim, he was drowned before his companions could reach him. He was 26 years of age, and was employed in the brick yard at East Grand Forks.

DR PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.

Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

S. N. Hoff was down from St. Hilaire last week.

Mr. and Mrs. DeForrest Bucklen went to Grand Forks on Monday.

Sam Dainerd was in from St. Hilaire last week enjoying city life.

Mrs. A. M. Stewart left on Tuesday evening for a visit with friends at Verndale.

Sam Furan came in from Dugdale on Saturday evening. Reports grain improving very materially.

Tom Morris welcomed his wife home on Sunday morning. Tom's mother came with her for a visit with her son.

The Crookston Hay and Commission Co. are fixing up their building on Main street that they recently purchased preparatory to moving into it.

Charley Misner took a spin out along the N. P. road 8 or 10 miles on Sunday evening. Says he notes a great change for the better in crop prospects out that way.

The fair started up in great shape on Wednesday morning but the forenoon was mostly occupied taking care of the late entries. This morning it is in full blast and promises to be a great event.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Porger arrived this week from their home in the west. Phil brought along a carload of fat cattle that he is taking to Chicago, and let them off here to rest up a bit and get a bite of grass.

Louis Columbus bet a box of sigars that he could beat a team to the city on Sunday afternoon from Maple Lake. Louis rode his bike and had 13 minutes to rest up after he reached home before the team arrived.

The case of W. E. McKenzie vs. Polk County, mentioned in our last issue, was argued before Justice Gossman on Saturday and decided in favor of plaintiff. Wm. Watts for for plaintiff and Holston for the county. The case will be appealed.

Prof. John Allison, who was one of the alliance lecturers in '90, died at his residence in Minneapolis last week, the result of an accident a few days previous. Mr. Allison was formerly a noted minister at Milwaukee with a salary of $5000 per annum and a few years ago he was chaplain for the senate at St. Paul.

After having sampled a case of the pop made at the Crookston factory during the hot weather last week, this office is prepared to vouch for the excellent quality of their wares. If there is any better article made anywhere in the world we don't know where it grows.

Comrade Jacobson was up from Ada on Tuesday. Says that wheat in Norman county will be about a half crop of a fine quality however. Many pieces are no good and there are some that promise above the average. Says he commenced sowing his wheat on April 6th, and has a fine looking crop which promises a good yield.

From the latest reports received the JOURNAL is of the opinion that the average yield of wheat in Polk county this season will be fully up to that of last year and the quality very much better. That there is a great shortage is true which should cause the price to be better than for years but whether it will in the present condition of the money market is problematical.

Have you heard Johnson's phonograph at Wilson's place? The way it reproduces instrumental music played by the U. S. Marine band of Washington, the Bohemian Girl and others is truly wonderful. The Milwaukee Fire, with piano accompaniment, is wonderfully clear and plain. The Picolo Solo and Corbet and Mitchell Solo are excellent in fact Johnson has an extra attractive selection and every piece played with wonderful distinctness. This machine is said to be the best one ever brought to the city.

"The Fringe of Society" as presented by the Maude Granger company was greeted by an extremely small audience which may account for the apparent indifference manifested by the company in their rendition of it. We received the impression that Maude and her leading man could have done exceedingly well had they chosen to do so, but they did not seem disposed to exert themselves unduly to a light house. The balance of the company seemed to catch the cue naturally and laughed and trifled through in great shape.

On Monday morning while George, the young son of E. M. Walsh, was leaving the depot with a team, a breast-strap broke letting the buggy strike the horses which threw them into a panic and they started off on a brisk run. The boy hung onto the leathers and kept the team straight in the road until a point about opposite the old laundry was reached when some man stopped the team and the boy was rescued. The little fellow displayed wonderful nerve for so young a lad and managed the team exceedingly well under the circumstances.

A fine shower on Monday night was a great help for potatoes.

A. C. Wilkinson went over to the Forks on Monday on legal business.

Tom Hill arrived from Grand Forks on Tuesday morning, with some horses for the Fair.

Chief Gonvea's new house is completed all ready for occupancy. It is as neat as a new top.

Bert Bivins and Mr. Farrel, of Argyle, drove down on Wednesday morning to take in the fair.

Miss Maggie Monroe left for Grafton on Monday morning for a week's visit with relatives at that place.

Thirteen coaches on the Great Northern through train on Wednesday morning, filled with passengers for the coast.

August George welcomed his wife and daughter on Thursday on their return from a visit with her parents at Ashland, Wis.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church will furnish Ice Cream and Cake on the Fair grounds this week.

Mrs. Ed. Nicholson arrived in the city from Fertile on Monday morning en route to her home at Devil's Lake, N. D.

The bones of an Indian was unearthed in the gravel pit at Benoit last week. The body had been buried Indian fashion, in a sitting posture.

The Fisher Bulletin says that a letter from Tommy Johnstone to a Fisher man says that Tommy is at home in Scotland and sick. It may be some weeks before he is able to return.

S. A. Sylvester is agent for the sale of Nichols & Sheppard threshers and the old reliable Buckeye binders and mowers. Corner Broadway and Fletcher streets, Crookston Minn.

A delegation of seven Scandinavians, of Grand Forks, headed by L. K. Hassell, passed through the city Monday on their way to Chicago to attend the National Sangaerfest.

Late reports indicate a phenominal yield of corn and potatoes as the weather seems to have been better for these than for wheat. Barley and oats also are said to be A 1.

The Grand Forks County Farmers Alliance met in Grand Forks on Saturday last to discuss the question of harvest help. With wheat at 40 cents no farmer can afford to pay over $1.25 per day for harvest and threshing wages.

W. E. Slocum sold his Holstein cow to L. H. Judson for $35 spot cash one day last week. Judson is a man of excellent judgment and never lets such a bargain as that pass by.

Sunday was one of the hottest days of the season and much apprehension was felt as to its effect on wheat. If there was any wheat in the milk it must have suffered severely but the probability is that there was not much of it in that state. Tuesday was a fine, cool day—a grand day for wheat.

S. A. Sylvester, formerly of the firm of Sylvester & Finseth, and F. J. Roalkvam, a clerk in Locken & Holomboe's store have formed a partnership, leased a store in the Vine block, and will engage in the grocery business as soon as they can get a stock of goods.

The large alderman, I. Simmons, and the alderman from the 1st, ward, Fred Anderson, were observed on Tuesday noon taking a cutter ride on Fletcher avenue. It required the combined efforts of the two to pull the cutter but it is the first time this summer that they have been known to "pull together."

Institute week Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Bergland came out to attend the exercises but Mrs. B. was taken sick and was unable to be taken home and at times her life has been despaired of but we are pleased to note that she is now improving encouragingly. The illness was the result of La Grippe.

Among gentleman's driving horses August George has a fine five year old mare that is no slouch and August justly feels proud of her. She was bought by him when a mere colt from Bill King and has royal blood in her veins. She can go a mile in better that four minutes with two in the buggy. She is a little daisy and no mistake.

Rev. R. H. Battey will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church of Crookston again next Sabbath, Mr. Smith preaching for Mr. Battey at Maple Bay and Fertile. Mr. Battey's subjects will be "The Prince Who Bought a World," for 11 a. m. service; and "What Makes the World Improve," for 8 p. m. Everybody very cordially invited to attend.

On Monday at about 4 p. m. a fistic encounter took place at the Great Northern depot between two strangers. One being a little too full was inclined to be too demonstrative which soon brought on a display seldom witnessed. There was no clinching but a square stand up fight for several rounds until the bystanders interferred. Though not previously advertised quite a crowd witnessed the mill.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Some sneak thief, on Wednesday night of last week stole a tent belonging to J. F. Cartier, which was set up on a vacant lot opposite the Tribune office. The being who is mean enough to steal from a poor man is too mean to live in this world and altogether too mean-spirited for the next.

C. O. Christianson went down to Fargo last week to see the ruins and while gazing at them was run over by a boy on horseback. He was insensible for some time and received a bad cut over one eye. He was brought home on Sunday and has been in the dry docks for repairs ever since. Getting along nicely, though, now.

Adolph Rauch and wife returned on Wednesday morning from a pleasant visit to old friends at Wabasha, and other places, including a trip to the World's Fair at Chicago, and returning by way of Duluth and Superior. Adolph says there is no use for him trying to describe the World's Fair to any one as it is altogether too big a thing—must be seen to be appreciated, as there is a sample of everything in the world on exhibition there. He is of the opinion that business in Crookston is far better than most of the places that he visited.

A. M. Childs has been appointed by the Radams Microbe Killer Co. as their agent for Polk and Marshall counties. This Microbe Killer is the most wonderful remedy yet discovered. It cures disease by eradicating its cause from the system. If you have any disease which has stubbornly resisted other remedies, call on him for information concerning the Microbe Killer. [15]

Low Rates to Chicago.

The Northern Pacific Railroad announces some extremely cheap excursion rates to Chicago and return for the benefit of World's Fair visitors.

Tickets on the basis of one fare for the round trip will be on sale at Northern Pacific office on Monday July 24th, 31st and August 7th, limited to return from Chicago on trains leaving that city either four or eleven days from date of sale.

For further particulars call at Northern Pacific ticket office. [14-16]

If the hair is falling out and turning gray, the glands of the skin need stimulating and color-food, and the best remedy and stimulant is Hall's Hair Renewer.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied by a wonderful diarrhœa. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which we did, and it cured us right away. I think much of it, as it did to me what it was reccomended to do. John Hertzler, Bethel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by S. A. Wallace, Crookston, Minn.,

Money on Chattels.

$1000 to loan, in small amounts, on good chattel security, for from 60 to 90 days. P. J. RUSSEL, [13-tf] Crookston.

Whither Pastuer and Koch's peculiar modes of treatment will ultimately prevail or not, their theory of blood-contamination is the correct one, though not original. It was on this theory that Dr. J. C. Ayer of Lowell, Mass., nearly fifty years ago formulated Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

My entire stock of wall paper, paints, oils and glass will be sold at actual cost as I am overstocked and must have money. A good quality of paper at 9 cents per double roll. A nice gilt paper 14 cents per double roll. White lead, St. Louis Red Seal brand, $7.45 per 100 pounds. Window shades and fixtures complete at 22 cents. Sell all over from 35 to 40 cents. All other goods in same proportion. Come in and see quality of goods and get prices.

A. C. SCHMIDT,
[13-15] Second St., Crookston.

Are You Nervous,

Are you tired out, do you have that tired feeling of sick headache? You can be relieved of all these symptoms by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives nerve, mental and bodily strength and thoroughly purifies the blood. It also creates a good appetite, cures indigestion, heartburn and dyspepsia.

A lady, whose hair came out with every combing, was induced to give Ayer's Hair Vigor a faithful trial. She did so, and not only was the loss of hair checked, but a new and vigorous growth soon succeeded that which had gone.

Hood's Pills are easy to take, easy in action and sure in effect. 25 cents a box.

For Cash.

You can buy a half section of land handy to the city, about 300 acres in crop and looking nicely, at $20 per acre; or if you do not have all cash we will give you figures on application at the JOURNAL office. Owner desires to engage in other business and is prepared to give a great bargain. [14-tf]

Twenty Dollars per Acre

Will buy a half section of land; 200 acres in wheat and in splendid shape and about 100 acres in oats and barley, 20 acres in young trees, artesian well, good buildings. Inquire at the JOURNAL office. [14-tf]

For Sale, A Good Cow.

An extra good grade Jersey cow—soon to be a new milch cow. For particulars call at this office. [13-16]

DAYS GONE BY.

Oh, the days gone by! Oh, the days gone by!
The apple in the orchard, and the pathway through the rye;
The chirrup of the robin, and the whistle of the quail
As he piped across the meadows sweet as any nightingale,
When the bloom was on the clover, and the blue was in the sky,
And my happy heart brimmed over, in the days gone by.

In the days gone by, when my naked feet were tripped
By the honeysuckle's tangles, where the water lilies dipped,
And the ripple of the river lipped the moss along the brink,
Where the placid eyed and lazy footed cattle came to drink,
And the tilting snipe stood fearless of the truant's wayward cry,
And the splashing of the swimmer, in the days gone by.

Oh, the days gone by! Oh, the days gone by!
The music of the laughing lip, the luster of the eye,
The childish faith in fairies, and Aladdin's magic ring,
The simple, soul reposing, glad belief in everything,
When life was like a story, holding neither sob nor sigh,
In the olden, golden glory of the days gone by.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

A Man Sleeping In the Street.

A well dressed man leaning against a lamppost and apparently sleeping the sleep of the just created a great deal of interest in a busy London street the other day. He sat on a box which he had been carrying.

Evidently, being suddenly overcome with drowsiness, he had placed the box on the curbstone, and sitting down upon it had fallen asleep. To those who succeeded in getting close enough to the man his gentle, restful snore dispelled the fear that he might be dead. The side of his face was exposed and betrayed no sign of intoxication. It was the judgment of every one that he was sober, in good health and simply taking a quiet snooze.

When the crowd became so deep as to threaten a blockade, the supposed sleeper suddenly jumped to his feet, mounted his box, and flourishing a couple of bottles over his head exclaimed:

"Now, gents, seein that you are all here, I rise to a question of privilege, and after thankin you for this most cordial reception, which I assure you will long remain upon the tablets of my memory, I wish to call your attention to my world renowned corn and bunion eradicator."—Exchange.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

L. J. COUMBUS, : : MANAGER.

TO-NIGHT

THE RANKIBOO'S

—IN THEIR—

UNIQUE SPECIALTIES.

F. J. ARNOLD.
PROF. SPAIN.
TAYLOR BROS.
ROBERTSON & SPAIN.
TAYLOR & ARNOLD.
FRANK WILLIAMS.
MRS. F. J. ARNOLD.

And the Howling Afterpiece

Escaped from Sing Sing

Prices 50c, 35c and 25c.

Seats on sale at Tom Morris.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

SOCIETY
Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 3, 1893. NO. 16

THE COUNTY FAIR.

It Exceeded the Expectations of its Promoters Both as to the Amount of Exhibits and the Attendance.

The Display of Horses Was the Best and Biggest Ever Seen at a Fair in the Northwest.

The Exposition Building Was Crowded with Exhibits of Every Description and Variety.

The Races and Other Sports Were Interesting, Closely Contested and Honestly Conducted.

Everything Passed Off Smoothly, and the Management Covered Themselves With Glory.

A LIST OF THE PRIZE-WINNERS.

The first annual Polk county fair, which opened in this city on Wednesday last and closed on the following Saturday evening, far exceeded the expectations of its promoters and the public generally, both as to the number and quality of exhibits and the amount of attendance.

Too much credit cannot be given the management, especially President Thompson and Secretary Wyatt, for the manner in which the fair has been handled from its inception to its final wind-up. They have labored early and late, neglecting their own affairs, booming the fair in every way possible, and finally conducting it throughout the four days without a single hitch.

Every visitor went away well pleased and declared the fair to be "just splendid."

As a stock show the fair was a surprise to everybody, and even people who had lived in the county for years did not realize that there was so much good stock in Polk county.

In the exposition building there was also a good display, particularly in the ladies department, many of the exhibits being exceedingly meritorious. Many of our merchants made displays of their wares, and every spot of space in the building was taken. Woodham had a display of furniture, Gervais & Gervais showed carpets, laces and silks, J. E. O'Brien stoves, A. C. Schmidt some fancy painting, and Cleary Bros. canned goods and vegetables.

There was plenty of amusement provided, such as horse, foot and bicycle races, ball games, pulling matches, etc.

When such good results were obtained at this time, in spite of the hard times, the Polk county fair next year will undoubtedly be the biggest and best institution of the kind in the country.

THE PRIZE LIST.

DIVISION A.

HORSES.

German Coach—Stone & Columbus, Crookston, 1st premium.

French Coach—J E Sullivan, East Grand Forks, 1st.

Clydesdale, 4 years and over—D Morrow, Mallory, 1st, H Cyr, Brooks, 2d, O Estensen, Neby, 3d.

Percheron, 4 years old and over—E Himmelsbach, Fairfax, 1st, W Davidson, Keystone, 2d, C A Tullar, Warren, 3d.

Percheron, 3 and under 4—Hugh Thompson, Crookson, 1st, J A Bryson, Fisher, 2d, E D Childs & Co., 3d.

English Shire, 3 and over—Fisher Shire Horse Co., Fisher, 1st.

Standard Bred Trotters—Hugh Thompson, 1st, E M Lancaster, Crookston, 2d, E A Columbus 3d.

Sweepstakes—D Morrow, 1st.

Colts of 1893—Euclid Stock Association, 1st, T W Welter, Beltrami, 2d, T O Bergland, Lowell, 3d, P J Carey, Edna, 4th, T E Biever, Euclid, 5th, D McMillan, Edna, 6th, T E Biever, 7th.

Pair of mares or geldings—D Morrow, Mallory, 1st; Julius Wagner, Fisher, 2d; Oliver Paul, Crookston, 3d.

Mare and colt—Euclid Stock Association, Euclid, 1st; T O Bergland, Lowell, 2d; Julius Wagner, Fisher, 3d.

Mare or gelding, 3 years old or over—T O Bergland 1st; T Greenhalgh 2d; T O Bergland 3d.

Mare or gelding, 2 years or under, J A Henry, Mallory, 1st; D Morrow 2d; T O Bergland 3d.

Mare or gelding, 1 year and under 2—T O Bergland 1st; T W Welter, Beltrami, 2d and 3d.

Pair mares or geldings, C A Tullar, Warren, 1st; D McMillan, Edna, 2d.

Mare and colt, C A Tullar, 1st; D McMillan, 2d.

Mare or gelding 3 and over, C A Tullar, 1st; mare or geld. 2 and under 3, D McMillan, 1st; C A Tullar, 2d.

Best stallion and 4 colts, D Morrow, Mallory, 1st; E Himmelsbach, Fairfax, 2d; C A Tullar, 3d.

Best mated carriage team, Archie McKinnon, City, 1st.

Best single driver, George Marchildon, Red Lake Falls, 1st.

Best pulling team, W Sampson, City, 1st.

DIVISION B.

CATTLE.

Jersey cow, E D Childs & Co., city, 2.

Holstein bull, E D Childs & Co., 2.

Holstein cow, E D Childs & Co., 2.

Native and grade cow, Jos. Laframboise, Gentilly, 2

Native and grade heifer 2 and under 3, Jos. Laframboise, 2.

Native and grade calf of 1893, E D Childs & Co., 2

DIVISION C.

SHEEP AND SWINE.

Best Ram—F Bivins & Son, Andover, 1st; C Houston, Fairfax 2d.

Best Ewe—F Bivins & Son, 1st; E D Childs & Co. 2d.

Lamb of 1893—F Bivins & Son 1st, E D Childs & Co. 2d.

Grade Ewe—F Bivins & Son 1st.

Cotswold—C Houston 1st.

Berkshire Boar—J Sylvesterson, Fairfax, 1st.

Poland China Sow—Jos Duffy, Tilden, 1st; E D Childs & Co 2d.

Chester Swine—E D Childs & Co. 1st and 2d.

Boar sweepstakes—D McMillan, Edna 1st; J Sylvesterson 2d.

Sow sweepstakes—Jos Duffy 1st; D McMillan 2d.

Sow and Litter—D McMillan 1st.

DIVISION D

POULTRY AND PET STOCK.

Trio of Brahmas, W E Walker, city, 1.

Trio of Brahmas, C. Walker, city, 2.

Trio of turkeys, E D Childs & Co., city, 1.

Trio of geese, Jos. Laframboise, Gentilly, 1.

Trio of geese, E D Childs & Co., 2.

Trio of Spanish fowl, Jos. Laframboise, 1.

Trio of Crouf de Cœuer, Jos. Laframboise, 1.

Trio of Tartar Games, Jos. Laframboise, 1st.

Stag-hound, Jos. Laframboise, 1st.

Female racoon and four offspring, Earnest Rolsch city, 1st.

DIVISION E.

FARM AND DAIRY PRODUCTS.

Scotch Fife Wheat—Carl Radi, Crookston, 1st, T Greenhalgh, Fairfax, 2d.

Barley—J M Stephens, Crookston, 1st, Theo. Greenhalgh 2d.

Corn—L Davis, Andover, 1st, John Dougherty, 2d.

Saskatchewan Wheat—W Latta, 1st, W Johnson, 2d.

Russian Oats—W Latta, Crookston, 1st, D Morrow, Mallory, 2d.

Potatoes—E D. Childs & Co., 1st, W Latta, 2d.

Best Collection of Roots—J M Stephens, 1st, W Latta, 2d, Cabbage—W Latta, 1st; E D Childs & Co., 2d.

Onions—L Davis, Andover, 1st; J M Stephens, 2d.

Butter in Jars—D McMillan, Edna, 1st; L Davis, 2d; Mrs A Weber Crookston, 3d.

Home made Cheese—Mrs A Weber 2d.

Butter in Prints—C Baarnaas, Tilden, 1st.

DIVISION F.

HORTICULTURE.

Cut flowers, Mrs J R Barb, Lowell, 1st; Mrs W E Slocum, city, 2d.

Roses, Mrs J R Barb, 1st; Mrs R J Montague, city, 2d.

Oleanders, Mrs M E Kirsch, city, 1st.

Fuschias, Mrs F L Durand, city, 1st; Mrs O J Barnes, city, 2d.

Collection of foliage, Mrs J R Barb, 1st.

Petunias, Mrs F Fournet, city, 1st.

DIVISION H.

PANTRY STORES.

Best loaf bread—Joegine Solberg, city, 1st; Mrs S L Collins 2d.

Raised biscuit—Lizzie Arnold, city, 1st.

Strawberry pie—Mrs S L Collins 1st.

Fried cakes—Mrs A C Wicks, 1st.

Nut cakes—Mrs J Bunnell 1st.

White cookies—Mrs J Bunnell 1st.

Canned peaches—Mrs S L Collins 1st; Mrs J Bunnell 2d.

Apple jelly—Mrs W E Walker 1st; Mrs. S L Collins 2d.

Canned peas—Mrs A D Stephens 1st.

Canned pie plant—Mrs W B Dawley 1st; Mrs E M Walsh 2d.

Canned strawberries—Mrs E M Walsh 2d.

Canned preserves—Mrs. W B Dawley, 1st.

Canned gooseberries—Gertie Barb 1st; Mrs. F Fournet 2d.

Canned raspberries—Mrs W B Dawley 1st.

Canned wild strawberries—Mrs W B Dawley 1st.

Raspberry jam, Mrs W B Dawley, City, 1st.

Currant jelly, Mrs W E Walker, city, 1st.

Canned pears, Mrs A D Stephens, city, 1st.

Canned tomatoes Mrs A D Stephens, 1st.

Canned plums, Mrs W E Walker, 1st.

Crab apple jelly, Mrs A D Stephens, 1st.

Plum jelly, Mrs A D Stephens, 1st.

Spiced peaches, Mrs J Bunnell, city, 1st.

Spiced pears, Mrs J Bunnell, 2d.

Canned ground cherries, Mrs J Bunnell, 1st.

Spiced currants, Mrs O J Barnes, 2d.

Brandied peaches, Mrs A D Stephens, 2d.

DIVISION I.

WOMEN'S AND CHILDREN'S WORK.

Patchwork, Mrs R H Battey, 1st.

Crazy quilt, worsted; Mrs A C Wicks, 2d.

Worsted log cabin quilt, Mrs R J Montague, 1st.

Counterpane tufted, Elizabeth Teal, 1st.

Counterpane tufted Mrs E Roberts, 2d.

Foot warmer, Mrs E Hammond, 1st.

Silk crazy quilt, Elizabeth Teal, 2d.

Knit counterpane, Lizzie Arnold, 1st.

Knit counterpane, Ellen McKeegan, 2d.

German wool hose, Ellen McKeegan, 2d.

Patchwork quilt, Mrs A C Wicks, 1st.

Patchwork quilt, Mrs I B Welter, Edna, 2d.

10 yards flannel, Miss Y Hanson, 1st.

Worsted rug, Mrs A Bloom, 2d.

Knitted silk hose, Lizzie Arnold, 1st.

Placque Scene, Lydia Barb, 2d.

Landscape, Miss Cora Leguee, 2d.

Landscape pencil drawing, Mabel Arnold, 1st; 2d

Crayon sketch, Mabel Arnold, 1st.

Bread—Margy Arnold 1st.

Jelly—Mamie Barb 1st.

Quilt Patchworks—Edna Roberts 2d.

Crazy Quilt—Mamie Barb 2d.

Marine—Maud Leguee 2d.

Painting on Glass—Lydia Barb 2d.

Patched Stocking—Fern Lancaster 1st.

Lace (five piece)—Miss S Himmelsbach 1st; Mrs H H Drew 2d.

Crocheted Apron—Miss S Himmelsbach 1st; Mrs. Geo Winnie 2d

Sideboard Drapery—Mrs J Bunnell 1st.

Banners—Temple Coleman 1st; Mrs A C Wicks 2d.

Dress Skirt—Mrs S H Drew 1st, 2d;

Silk Drape—Mrs S H Drew 2d.

Etched piece—Mrs J Bunnell 1st; Mrs S H Drew 2d.

Fancy Apron—Mrs Geo Winnie 1st.

Pie Cases—Mrs J Bunnell 1st; Mrs Geo Winnie 2d.

Drawn work—Clara E Bullan, 1st; Mrs J Bunnell 2d.

Sofa pillow—Mrs G C Wilde, Carman, 1st; Mrs Murney, Euclid, 2d.

Handkerchief case—Mrs W E Slocum, 2d.

Mantle piece—Mrs A C Cowing, 1st.

Photo case—Miss L Warninger, 1st; Mrs S H Drew, 2d.

Pin cushion—Mrs T. Eggleston, 2d.

Worsted mittens—Mrs A Rauch, 1st; Miss Y Hanson, 2d.

Crazy quilt—Mrs C White.

Set of Dollies—Mrs H Robertson, 1st.

Tables spread—Mrs H Robertson, 1st; Mrs S H Drew, 2d.

Wreath—Mrs L H Walker, 2d.

Embroidery—Mrs W A Robertson, 1st; Mrs M E Bartlett, 2d.

Tidy darned—Mrs M E Bartlett, 1st.

DIVISION J.

FINE ARTS.

Collection of stuffed birds—G G Henault, 1st.

Collection of insects—Mamie Barb, 1st.

Singing birds—Mrs J R Barb 1st, and 2nd.

Fossils (collection)—Mrs W F Arnold, 1st.

Oak corral—Mrs W. F Arnold, 1st.

Sea moss—Temperance Coleman, 1st; Mrs W F Arnold, 2d.

Collection of stones—Mrs W F Arnold, 2d.

Abolarie shells—Mrs I U Jennings, 1st.

Star fish—Mrs I U Jennings, 1st.

Tondo wood—Mrs I U Jennings, 1st.

Collection of singing birds—Mrs J R Barb. 1st.

Marine in oil—Mrs W E Slocum, 1st; Miss Meda Welter, Edna, 2nd.

Placque in oil—Miss Meda Welter, 1st.

Painting on silk—Miss Meda Welter, 1st and 2nd.

Horse head—Miss Meda Welter, 1st; Mrs Ed George 2nd.

Gilding on glass—A C Schmidt, 1st.

Gilded sign—A C Schmidt. 1st.

Repousie—Mrs W A Robertson 1st.

Collection of Photos—P Lynne 1st, 2d.

Crayon Portrait—Mrs Ed George 1st; Mabel Arnold 2d.

Pastel Portrait—B B Ralph 1st.

Dog's Head in Oil—Mrs A R Holston 1st.

Pencil Drawing—Mrs R H Battey 1st.

Landscape in Oil, in Fruit, in Panel, in Flowers—Mrs Ed George 1st premium in each.

Flowers in Oil—Mrs W A Robertson 2d.

Figure in oil; Landscape (water); Marine (water); collection of Water Fruit Pastel; Flowers Pastel; Crayon Drawing, Mrs Ed George, 1st premium in each.

Crayon drawing—Mrs W A Robertson 2d.

Collection of oil paintings—Mrs W A Robertson 1st; Mrs W E Slocum 2d.

DIVISION L.

EDUCATIONAL.

Collection of stamps—Ralph Kirsch 1st.

Map of 13 colonies—Frankie Coleman 1st.

Map of Northwest Territory—Frankie Coleman 1st.

Set of book-keeping books—Nils Hoffard, Fisher, 1st; Hans Lecum, Stephens, 2d; L Halvorson, Gary, 3d.

Penmanship—B A Strawbridge, 1st.

THE SPORTS.

WEDNESDAY.

THE RACES.

The first event was a 3:10 trot, which was won by Tom Hill's Maud J. with T. Hennessy's Scipio Chief second and Ed. Love's Theo. B. 3rd. Time by heats: 2:43, 2:44, 2:47, 2:46.

The next race called was a ½ mile trot for two-year-old colts owned in Norman, Marshall, Kittson and Polk counties. Eulalie, owned by Alley & Konzen, of Hallock, won 1st money with L. J. Columbus' Nellie Rose 2nd and A. K. Austin's Alph 3rd. Time: 1:43, 141, 1:31.

Two heats were run in the ½ mile running race. Nellie Kennie getting first place in both heats, won the race, with Buster 2nd, Nancy Lee 3rd and Little John 4th. Time: 53, 52.

Alley & Konzen's Eulalie trotted an exhibition ½ mile heat in 1:30.

THURSDAY.

BASE BALL.

The first event was a game of base ball between the Picketts of Grand Forks and the C. O. D's of Crookston, and resulted in the defeat of the home team by a score of 15 to 26. The main cause of this result was the fact that the C. O. D's. had secured the services of a pitcher from Ada, who was recommended to them as a "cyclone." But his ability had been badly overestimated, and the Picketts secured some 17 runs while the home team got only 4. Billy Martin was then put in the box, and for five straight innings the Picketts didn't get a run. Billy pitches a nice drop curve which is hard to find. Owing to a strong wind which was blowing, the score ran up higher than it would otherwise. Umpires: Frank Flynn and W. Wood.

RACES.

There were four horse races down on the program—a 2:50 trot, a half mile pony race, a mile trot for three-year-old colts, and a free-for-all trot.

In the 2:50 trot there were but two entries: William F. entered by J. D. Bacon, of Grand Forks, and P. J. entered by P. J. LaChapelle, of Crookston. The first and second heats were won by the Grand Forks horse, and the remaining three by P. J. thus giving the latter first money. In the fourth heat William F. came in ahead, but the heat was given to P. J. on a foul. In turning the first corner the horses were about even, when the driver of the Grand Forks horse turned him in short ahead of P. J. who had the pole, and on this ground P. J. was given the heat. Time by heats: 2:50½, 2:55, 2:51, 2:50½, 2:55.

There were five entries in the half-mile pony race: Nellie, entered by T, West, of McIntosh; Patsey, by J. N. Kirsch, Crookston; Ted, by F. Fair, Reynolds, N. D.; Mabel Grey, by D. Douglas, Gilby, N. D.; and Black Bess, by T. Varity, Ada. The last mentioned horses were runners and no mistake, and it was nip and tuck between them. In fact they were so close at the finish that it was necessary to watch them from above the wire to name the winner. Mable Gray won the last heat by about eight or ten inches. In the first heat Mable Gray was first, Black Bess second, Ted third, Patsey fourth, Nellie fifth. In the second heat Black Bess was first, Mable Gray second, and the balance had same positions as first heat. The third was won by Mable Grey, who took first money, Black Bess second. The other three horses didn't run this heat, having probably had enough glory. Time: 55, 56, 53.

Hugh Thompson's stallion, Maleon, and J. Warninger's Ham Nut were pitted against each other for the three-year-old colt stakes, and Ham Nut came out victorious, although at first it appeared as though Maleon would have the race all to himself. Ham Nut has had a good deal of training and can trot a lively gait, but for some reason he didn't want to trot until he was put in a heavy breaking cart, with long thills, and was given a little application of the rawhide, then he got down to business and took the second and third heats. Maleon promises well but has had no training yet. Both of these colts are as fine looking animals as a person could wish to see. Time by heats: 3:30, 3:13, 3:04.

There were four entries in the free-for-all trotting and pacing race. Bessie P. entered by F. Laurence, Grand Forks; Ned S. entered by T. Hill, Grand Forks; Billy B. entered by H. A. Bronson, Grand Forks; and Jessie Green, a South Dakota mare which Dr. Warninger is training. This latter animal proved to be the steadiest as well as speediest traveler of the lot, and won the first and second heats—the only ones trotted, as the other three were postponed until Friday, owing to the lateness of the hour. The first and second heats resulted as follows: Jessie Green first, Bessie P. second, Billy B, third, Ned S. fourth. Time: 2:38½, 2:36.

The ½ mile bicycle race during the afternoon was a surprise. There were six entries: W. H. Winchester, Warren; F, A. Lumbard, T. McCallum, J. B. Turner, Grand Forks; W. A. Olds and H. Ducharme, Crookston. Everybody expected that Olds—who is quite an expert on a wheel—would be a sure winner, but young Winchester got a regular Johnson move on himself, and went under the wire, an easy winner, in 1:23, with Olds second, and J. B. Turner third, The latter might have made a better showing had he not twisted one of the pedals on his wheel. Young Winchester—who is only about 16 years of age—will sometime be reckoned among the speedy wheelmen of the country, if he continues to improve.

One feature of the afternoon not down on the bills was the riding of two of Collins' livery horses by C. A. Brown, a circus rider who happened along. Standing upright, with a foot on the bare back of each horse. Brown drove them against another horse ridden by a jockey from Gilby, N. D., and would have beaten him too, had the horses he rode been evenly matched in speed. When it is considered that these horses were never driven this way before, and that Brown never handled them until he went to ride them, it was certainly a wonderful feat, and showed that he had some right to the claim which he makes: viz.: that of being the champion Roman rider of the United States. The Brown Bros. also gave some tumbling exhibitions on the track.

There were three entries in the 100-yard foot-race: Geo. McLaughlin, Alex. Shanahan, and T. McCallum—Shanahan taking first money.

The novel event of the afternoon's entertainment was the marriage of Henry Zange to Maggie Seibert. Promptly at 5:30, Starter Vining remarked to Hugh Thompson—who was superintendent of the matrimonial department—"Bring on your wedding!" Mr. Thompson at once hustled around, found Justice Gossman, and the twain proceeded to hunt up the victims. The track in front of the grand stand was cleared and pretty soon the bridal procession hove in sight. First came President Thompson, with the bride clinging to his arm, then came the groom leaning on the strong, supporting arm of the Justice, and then followed the best man and the bridesmaid. When the procession came in front of the grand stand, they faced the stand and took their respective positions—the best man to the right of the groom, the bridesmaid to the left of the bride, the Justice in front, and Mr. Thompson a little to one side. The party in the Judges' stand doffed their hats, the Justice read the marriage cermony, the contracting parties clasped hands, and were pronounced man and wife. The couple then marched off amid the shouts of the immense crowd and the defeating clang of the starter's bell. Mr. Thompson was then called into the Judge's stand and given a good "jacking up" by the Judges for neglecting to perform all his duties as superintendent of his department. He had neglected to kiss the bride, but was let off by the Judges on his promise to do better next time. Mr. and Mrs. Zange will start housekeeping with five barrels of flour contributed by Mr. Thompson.

FRIDAY.

BASE BALL.

The game of base ball between the C. O. D's. and the Fisher nine was close and exciting, and when each club had seven innings, and the score stood 9 to 8 in favor of Crookston, the Fisher team kicked on a decision of the umpire and refused to go on with the game, which was decided in favor of Crookston. But the association refused to recognize it as a game, and it was decided to play it on Saturday. The friends of the clubs put up $30 a side as a further inducement for good play, and H. F. Brown offered to the winning team a meerschaum pipe valued at $35. Umpires: D. Horton and Mike Reilly.

RACES.

Two heats of the unfinished colt race between Maleon and Ham Nut were trotted. The first was taken by Maleon in 3:03½ and the next by Ham Nut in 2:53, the latter winning the race.

The third heat of the unfinished

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.]

MOB OF STRIKERS.

A SERIOUS LABOR RIOT AT ASHLAND, WIS.

Union Lumber Shovers Make a Successful Attempt to Drive Off Non-Union Men—Several Injured With Clubs—The Ringleaders Arrested.

ASHLAND, Wis., Aug. 1.—A crisis was reached in the lumber shover's strike during the morning. The strikers openly defied the officers of the city and county, closing with them in a hand to hand battle, in which blood was shed freely. The Shores Lumber company sent word to Mayor O'Keefe that it would commence loading its boats with non-union laborers, and asked for police protection. The mayor sent Chief of Police Schwarz and some officers to the docks, where they were joined by Sheriff O'Brien and deputies. They took a stand on the tramway of the dock. Work had hardly commenced on the dock when a swarmed down over the dock and tramway. The foremost of them were forcibly handcuffed by the officers and others were arrested who were afterwards rescued from the police by their fellows. A desperate hand to hand contest followed, in which revolvers were flourished and several shots fired. The officers were nearly lal bruised with clubs and stones. The advance on the tramway was finally checked, but the strikers then swung down underneath the tramway and made for the boats, reaching them ahead of the officers. There an awful scene of brutality was enacted by the violent mob. Non-nnion men who where loading the boats were and terribly beaten as they fled panic-stricken, followed by the strikers. They were met by the officers, who protected them from further violence. Forty of the ringleaders among the strikers have been arrested.

Great Mob of Strikers

Struck Down With Clubs

Mayor O'Keefe says the president of the Lumber Shover's union had assured him that no violence would be committed. He now swears that the city will protect the non-union labor at any cost.

The mob was composed not only of lumber shovers, but of coal heavers, ore punchers and all that class of dock laborers. The men have become so intimidated that it is hardly possible to get them started at work again. Mayor O'Keefe is now doing his best to get them to return to work, where, he says, they will be protectected if he has to raise an army to do it.

Kansas Miners Defeated.

TOPEKA, Aug. 1.—Noah Allen, the attorney of the striking coal miners, has returned from Pittsburg, Kan. He admits practically that the miners have lost the strike and that they are about ready to give up and return to work at the operators' terms.

Reduced Working Hours.

OMAHA, Aug. 1.—An order has been issued by the Union Pacific, limiting the working hours of its employes to 40 hours per week. Under this rule no work will be done on Saturday at the shops.

Work for Married Men.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Aug. 1.—Advices from Negaunee state that Superintendent Cole of the Buffalo mines, has set the married men to work again at the Queen mine, one of the Buffalo group.

REDUCED THE RATES.

Western Railroads Reach an Amicable Agreement.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Western lines have agreed to make world's fair rates of one fare for the round trip, plus $2 from all points. The only exceptions to this blanket rate are from short distance points where the $2 added would make a higher rate than that now in effect. From such points present rates will be maintained. Tickets sold at the reduced rate on and after Aug. 1 will be first class in every respect. They will take the place of first class tickets as far as Chicago is concerned and will be good returning any time within 30 days of purchase.

SIAM'S BACK DOWN.

All the Demands of the French Ultimatum Are Granted.

BANGKOK, Aug. 1.—The Siamese government has accepted the full terms of the French ultimatum.

Forced to Take Licenses.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 1.—Despite all that has been said to the contrary, Secretary Tiesberg of the state railway and grain commission, reports that the applications for elevator licenses under the new law, are coming in fast. They are forced to this by the Bank of Nova Scotia, for this bank, which has been for many years the mainstay and support of the elevator business of the Northwest, has declared that it will loan no more money to elevators that are not controlled by the state.

Powderly Won't Resign.

NEW YORK, July 28.—A special to The Herald from Scranton, Pa., says: Mr. Powderly says the rumor of his resignation as general master workmen of the Knights of Labor is without foundation. Mr. Powderly says he has the interests of the order as deeply at heart as ever, and he will not leave it when his services are most needed.

Hanged Hoke in Effigy.

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 31.—Secretary Hoke Smith was hanged in effigy by the enraged citizens of Rome, a little town of Adams county, 20 miles from this city, Saturday night at 10 o'clock. A number of pensioners had been suspended. The climax was reached when the pension of J. L. Reed, a veteran of the Eleventh Illinois cavalry, aged 83 years, was dropped.

GREETING TO SATOLLI.

Leo's Ablegate Tendered a Magnificent Reception by St. Paul Citizens.

ST. PAUL, July 29.—The reception tendered Mgr. Satolli last evening at Hotel Ryan by Catholics of Minnesota was one of the most brilliant affairs of its kind over given in St. Paul. Nearly 2,000 people from many different towns were present. The distinguished prelate was formally presented by Archbishop Ireland and Mgr. Satolli responded feelingly. The address of the evening was delivered by the Hon. Christopher D. O'Brien, ex-mayor of St. Paul, his subject being "The Catholic Laity." Those receiving with Mgr. Satolli were Dr. O'Gorman, Dr. Grannan, Dr. Shannon and Dr. Pace of the Washington Catholic university; Archbishop Ireland, Archbishop Grace of St. Paul, Mgr. Ravoux, Bishop McGolrick of Duluth, Bishop Cotter of Winona, Bishop Zardetti of St. Cloud, Bishop Shanley of North Dakota and Bishop Marty of South Dakota.

STRICKEN SUDDENLY.

W. S. Mellen, General Manager of the Northern Pacific, Dead.

ST. PAUL, July 28.—General Manager Mellen of the Northern Pacific died at Victoria, B. C., of neuralgia of the heart. Mr. Mellen left St. Paul about two weeks ago on an inspection tour, and was at that time in splendid health apparently. He had visited most of the important points along the line, and had made a thorough inspection wherever he went. Wednesday afternoon at Victoria, he was taken ill and rapidly became worse until minnight, when he died. Chief Engineer Kendrick, of this city, and Mr. Alexander of Tacoma, were with him at the time, and everything that friendship and medical aid could do was done to relieve him, but without avail.

Mr. Mellen leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. They are now at West Superior, where they went to spend the time he should be gone on the inspection tour with Mrs. Mellen's father.

Mr. Mellen was born in Will county, Ills., in 1846, and begun his career as a telegraph operator at Milton Junction, Wis., in 1865.

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME

Of the National G. A. R. Encampment at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 1.—The official programme of the national encampment of the G. A. R. to be held in this city in September is as follows:

Sept. 1—Reception of the Naval Veterans' association.

Sept. 2—Parade of the naval veterans.

Sept. 3—Naval veteruns at religious service.

Sept. 4—Arrival of G. A. R. Naval Veterans' association meets at Masonic hall at 10 a. m. In the evening the reception of officers, delegates and distinguished guests of the G. A. R. will be held at Tomlinson hall. The first night of the electrical and artificial gas displays, which will be continued every dight of the encampment.

Sept. 5—G. A. R. parade. Reunions will be held after the parade. At night the Woman's Relief Corps will hold a reception at Tomlinson hall.

Sept. 6—National encampment meetings. G. A. R. at Tomlinson hall; Women's Relief Corps at Roberts Park church.

Sept. 7—Meetings of the encampment and reunions continued. At night the war pageantry.

Sept. 8—Sessions of the national bodies will continue. The farewell receptions will be held at night.

Spooner Will Speak.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 1.—The executive committee of the real estate exchange met for the purpose of selecting a speaker for the congress, to be held here Aug. 21-23. The unanimous choice of those present at the meeting was Hon. John C. Spooner of Hudson, Wis., who will address the convention on the second evening on some subject connected with law and real estate. The subject of the speaker's remarks will be left entirely to himself.

Eloped With His Wife.

ELWOOD, Ind., July 28.—Pleasant Wedden and wife have eloped. They were married last spring and she tried to commit suicide because of bad treatment at his hands. They separated, she living with relatives, who would not allow her to see him. They planned an elopement, succeeded in eluding her relatives and are in Cincinnati.

St. Paul to St. Louis.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Rates from St. Louis to St. Paul have been reduced to $12.50 one way and $24 for the round trip. This action has been taken because the sum of the reduced world's fair rates from St. Louis and Chicago to St. Paul made these figures.

Confidence in Milwaukee Restored.

MILWAUKEE, July 26—The bank panic in this city is over. There is not the slightest tendency toward a run on any of the local banks. The crowds that surrounded the various banking institutions have dispersed and business at the paying teller's window has resumed its normal condition.

Has the Infected Bugs.

ST. PAUL, July 26.—Professor Lugger, the state entomologist, has returned from Kansas with a large quantity of inoculated chinch bugs. He will have the farmers in the infected districts send him jars of bugs, which he will inoculate with the disease and distribute among the infested fields.

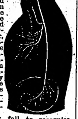
Want Jim Hill's Road.

MILLBANK, S. D., Aug. 1.—The citizens of Millbank held a mass meeting to discuss ways and means for getting Jim Hill's road in here. The probabilities are that Mr. Hill will run his road from Albee to Millbank, 18 miles, during the next year.

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cut the long nerve descending from the base of the brain and terminating in the bowels is the pneumogastric, while the numerous little branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.



Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of this fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in curing these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs. It is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

A MEDICINE
THAT MAKES GOOD BLOOD

GILMORE'S
AROMATIC WINE

Will completely change the blood in your system in three months' time, and send new, rich blood coursing through your veins. If you feel exhausted and nervous, are getting thin and all run down, Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which is a tonic and not a beverage, will restore you to health and strength. Mothers, use it for your daughters. It is the best regulator and corrector for all ailments peculiar to woman. It enriches the blood and gives lasting strength. It is guaranteed to cure Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and all Summer Complaints, and keep the bowels regular.

Sold by all druggists for $1 per bottle.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE
The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps.

Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO.,
131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Sold at Crookston by A. G. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON. MINNESOTA

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

